GOOD ROADS' EXHIBITION

R.A. Meeker Describes State's Showing at Exposition.

PLAINFIELDER'S WORK

Article by State Supervisor of Roads in the Good Roads Magazine.

Robert A. Meeker, State Supervisor of Roads, has contributed to the Good Roads Magazine, which is devoted to the construction and maintenance of improved roadways, an excellent article on "New Jersey's Exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition." The Plainfielder has entire charge of the exhibit and has received much praise for his work there. By courtesy of the Good Roads Magazine the article and its illustrations are reproduced by The Daily Press.

Mr. Meeker says:

"New Jersey has the distinction of having the only State road exhibit on the grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Is is located on the model street, in the very centre of the model city. Here the process of road building is shown in its successive stages: first, the prepared sub-grade, where the earth is carefully shaped and rolled to a grade and curvature parallel to that of the finished road; second, the bottom course of two and one-half inch stone, three inches deep when compacted; third, the same thickness of one and one-half inch stone, and last, one inch of three-quarter inch stone and screenings, forming the finished road.

"Beyond this first section is a second showing the manner of laying telford. The large stones, forming the bottom course, are carefully laid by hand on their broadest edges, with the longest axis at right angles to the line of the road, the projecting points being broken off and wedged between them so as to form a solid and compact, though rough, pavement; on this the one and one-half and three-quarter inch stone is spread, as in the first section, the finished road looking exactly like that first shown.

"Still beyond these is a third section, illustrating the method of gravel road construction. The sub-grade is

LAWYER KILLS HIMSELF

Franklyn Paddock, Formerly of This City, Ends His Life.

REASON UNKNOWN

Franklyn Paddock, formerly of 1409 Watchung avenue, committed suicide in New York early today. His wife is said to be missing and the New York police are now investigating the case. The reason for his act is unknown.

Mr. Paddock removed to this city one year ago and occupied a handsome house on Watchung avenue together with his wife and two children.

He left here about a month ago, going either to Morristown on Montclair.

The dead man was a lawyer, having handsome offices at No. 32 Liberty street, New York. He was about forty years of age and was small in stature.

Mrs. Paddock was a Miss Barron and before her marriage was a resident of New York city.

Concert at Westfield.

Harry Rowe Shelley, the noted organist and composer, will give a concert in the Westfield Presbyterian church on Friday evening, December 9, under the auspices of the choir. A large number of Plainfielders are planning to attend the affair.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

Exercises at the Casino to Be On An Elaborate Scale.

ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Howard MacSherry Selected to Deliver Sermon—Episcopal Minister to Offer Prayer.

In addition to informally observing its first anniversary, Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., last evening, completed all plans for its memorial service to be held Sunday evening. It is to take place at the Casino. Admission to the service is to be by ticket only, the limited seating capacity of the auditorium making the restriction necessary.

Edward MacSherry, of New Brunswick, a member of the Middlesex county bar and a brilliant speaker, will deliver the sermon. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace Episcopal church, will offer prayer.

As is customary in services of this nature, the music is to be a prominent feature. Professional singers and instrumentalists from New York, thoroughly proficient in choral and cantata work, will furnish it. The memorial committee consists of Herbert B. Brooks, Walter H. Freeman, Mayor O. L. Jenkins, Charles A. Reed, William N. Runyon, George F. Schoonmaker, Edward M. VanBuren and Samuel P. T. Wilbur.

The lodge's birthday, last evening, was celebrated with an informal entertainment and supper and also the initiation of eleven candidates, making the membership 150. This is considered a remarkable growth as when organization was perfected last December there were but thirty charter members.

Mrs. Malvina Giles, of Newark, has commenced an action for divorce against her husband, Joel Giles, a veteran of the Civil War.

She alleges gross cruelty and mentions the fact that he frequently placed her in a chair and kept her there for four hours with a pistol levelled at her head.

The Giles were married in New Market by Rev. Charles T. Little, in 1867 and resided there for many years.

The couple have five children, two of them handsome and well-educated.

MRS. EDWARD BARTLE IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

DAUGHTER OF JOHN SCHORB, OF NORTH PLAINFIELD, GETS A DECREE.

Immediately after all the testimony was presented in the action of Mrs. Corinthia Bartle, nee Schorb, of Somerset street, on a petition for divorce from her husband, Edward Marshall Bartle, Vice Chancellor Stevens, sitting in the Chancery Chambers, Newark, yesterday, granted the petition of the plaintiff. She was represented by Isaac P. Runyon, Esq. The petitioner, her father, John Schorb, and mother and Miss Carrie Marsh, of Rahway; Former Chief Marshal William Campbell and Recorder Thomas Dond, of North Plainfield, were witnesses. The defendant's counsel, Coddington & Swackhamer and the defendant did not appear in court.

The couple was married on February 5, 1901, the bride being sixteen years old. She claimed that her husband deserted her in August, 1901 and upon the ground of harsh treatment the petition for divorce was filed. The defendant, through his counsel, filed an answer, denying the facts set forth in the petition and the matter was referred to Vice Chancellor Stevens and the hearing was set down for yesterday. Nearly the whole day was consumed in taking testimony.

VAN ZANDT & VOORHEES PURCHASE PROPERTY

FIRM TO ERECT LARGE BRICK BUILDING ON PARK AVENUE.

VanZandt & Voorhees, hay and feed dealers in Park avenue, have purchased from the Estate of Boice, Runyon & Co., a strip of land adjoining their present place of business and running along the New Jersey Central and they will erect a large brick building thereon in which they will continue their business. The property has a frontage on Park avenue of forty feet, a depth of 275 feet and seventy feet in the rear. The railroad company will run a siding into the building.

This change is necessitated owing to the fact that F. L. C. Martin has taken a five-year lease on the property now occupied by VanVandt & Voorhees, which he will use in connection with his automobile business. A. E. Hoagland, the expressman, is the only tenant on the property purchased by VanZandt & Voorhees and he received notice of removal today.

TRAFFIC TIED UP BY FREIGHT WRECK

ACCIDENT ON JERSEY CENTRAL AT BOUND BROOK HAMPERS SERVICE.

A freight wreck which completely tied up the Central Railroad of New Jersey occurred at Bound Brook at 4:45 yesterday afternoon.

An east-bound freight crashed just east of the station into the side of a coaler, which was crossing the track on which the freight was travelling. The freight engine and fifteen cars piled up in a heap. The rails were ripped up in a heap. The rails were ripped out for a couple of hundred feet.

The engineer of the freight and a brakeman who was on the coaler were bruised by flying wreckage after they jumped. The fireman of the freight escaped injury.

The road was not cleared until early this morning. Meanwhile all through trains were sent around over the Lehigh Valley tracks and passengers on way trains walked around the wreck.

The wreck caused a partial blockade of passenger trains in this vicinity, through switching at Fanwood, and Plainfield commuters, last evening, reached home from an hour to two hours late.

This morning, local commuter trains from beyond Dunellen, were again delayed by a mishap at the junction of the Central and Reading roads west of Bound Brook. A train left the track and those following, including the local 7:55, had to be switched about.

Mrs. Edward Shearer, of Madison avenue, is detained at home by illness.

Miss Ethel Clarkson, of Orchard place, is detained at home with a severe attack of bronchitis.

COUNCILMANIC "SLATE"

Report That Tyler Will be Head of Police Committee.

DANIEL FOR FINANCE

Bullock Likely to be Chairman of Fire Committee—Gloak to Hold On.

In the re-organization of the Common Council for 1905 there is considerable talk to the effect that among the most important changes will be one in reference to the head of the police committee. Councilman Frank DeW. Randolph has been chairman of this committee for two years, as William S. Tyler, who is now chairman of the license committee, is "slated," according to the opinion of many, to succeed the present chairman. It is said that he has had considerable experience in police matters, and being well versed in the laws governing this branch of the city government, his friends argue that he would be just the man for the position. If Mr. Randolph is removed as the head of the police committee, he may be given the chairmanship of some other important committee.

Mr. Bullock, the second man on the fire committee, is slated for the chairmanship of it, and there is no reason to look for a change in the head of the finance committee. Mr. Daniel is especially fitted for this position, it is argued. He is looked upon as a worthy successor to former Councilman John B. Dumont, who made an enviable record as the head of the finance committee.

As Mr. Gloak has become so well acquainted with the work of the streets and sewers' committee, it is believed that he will be retained as the head of it. There will be two new members of the Common Council, in Charles C. Randolph and H. D. Hibbard, and they will probably be placed on some of the important committees, especially Mr. Hibbard, who is a man of wide business experience. Mr. Murphy is quite likely to be retained as chairman of the light and trees' committee, and in fact he will probably remain a member of the various committees on which he is now serving.

QUEEN CITY LODGE ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

LOCAL ODD FELLOWS BEGIN SERIES OF WINTER SOCIALS.

Queen City lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., acted as host for 100 members and visiting brothers, last evening, treating them to a combined smoker and entertainment. The programme of the latter was contributed by Queen's City's own talent and was highly enjoyed.

It comprised vocal selections by William Wilson, Harry Mixner, David Patterson, James Manson, Alfred Aitkin, Albert Barber, James Gray and Alock Muir; selections by the Queen City quartette; addresses by Guillermo Thorn, of Queen City; W. S. Frampton, of Washington, D. C.; remarks by Past Grands John Becker and Stephen Schleif, P. H. Latourette, Brother Freeman, of Jersey City, Brother Clark, of Albany, N. Y., Brother G. Pratt, of Trenton, and Noble Grand Henry Hoffman, of Queen City.

The affair was in charge of Queen City's good and welfare committee and is the first of a series which it proposes to give during the winter.

Children's Home Grateful.

The officers of the Children's Home wish to gratefully acknowledge their appreciation to the North Plainfield Public Schools for their generous gifts of vegetables, fruit and clothing with $456 in cash; also to the Little Beginners of Grace M. E. church for fruits and vegetables, and Grace Episcopal church for basket of fruit, the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church for fruits and vegetables, Reynolds & Co., for a large box of candy, and to all the individual friends whose gifts helped to make a genuine Thanksgiving Day at the Home.

Muhlenberg's Harvest Home.

Muhlenberg Hospital's harvest home will be held in the new Nurses' Home on Wednesday afternoon, December 7, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Aside from the fact that the affair will practically open the new Home and everyone will want to see this handsome building, it will afford an opportunity to contribute something toward the hospital. Gifts of fruits, vegetables and other things will be appreciated.

AUTO REPAIR CO. FAILS

Wilson, a Stockholder, Asks for Bankruptcy Proceedings.

"BILL" SMITH'S CONCERN

Garage Company Owes $2,400 and Its Assets Amount to $1,088—Restrained for Present.

An order has been secured in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, as counsel for the complainant, directing that the Plainfield Auto Garage show cause before the chancellor at the State-house, December 6, why an injunction should not be issued and a receiver appointed to take charge of all the property of the defendant. The complaint is made by Andrew H. Wilson, who claims that he owns five shares of the capital stock of the company and that the company is indebted to him for money loaned in the sum of $1,467.75.

The complainant alleges that the liabilities of the company amount to over $2,400, while the only assets are a book account of $188; office fixtures worth $500 and tools and machinery valued at $450. It is alleged that the company is hopelessly insolvent and has no funds with which to carry on its business.

The order carries with it a temporary injunction restraining the company from transacting any business pending the litigation.

R. F. VonMinden, counsel for William B. Smith, said today that as to the direct cause for the bankruptcy, he preferred to remain silent for the present. Mr. Smith, Andrew Wilson and Charles H. Thornton are the stockholders. The company will not be reorganized. Mr. VonMinden said that Mr. Smith's share is slight.

Inspector McCardell to Enforce Law.

As a result of the inspections made by Andrew McCardell, one of the State factory inspectors, changes involving thousands of dollars in expense will have to be made by manufacturers to comply with the law. It is not Mr. McCardell's purpose or desire to work a hardship on any one, but he says that he will insist upon having the law enforced in his territory. He has been obliged to close one or two factories until certain changes are made. In a majority of cases Mr. McCardell finds the owners willing and ready to obey every letter of the law.

Notice to Taxpayers.

The resignation of Frank H. Smith as collector takes effect this day and Robert L. Lee, who has been appointed collector by the Common Council, enters upon the duties of the office this day, taxpayers are requested to draw checks for taxes to the order of Collector of the City of Plainfield.

LEE'S BOND IS APPROVED

New Tax Collector Gives $25,000 Security to City.

NOW IN CHARGE

Mr. Lee Has Performed Good Service As a Councilman—His Career.

The action of the Common Council in approving the bond of Tax Collector-elect Robert L. Lee was about the only business considered at the third adjourned session of that body held last night. The bond was numbered 338630 and was furnished by the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company, of Baltimore. The amount of the bond is $25,000. After City Clerk J. T. MacMurray read the text of the bond, Mr. Daniel, as chairman of the finance committee, stated that it had been approved by Corporation Counsel Marsh as to form of execution and the sufficiency of the security and he moved that the same be approved by the Common Council and filed in the county clerk's office according to law. This motion was carried. Mr. Lee took charge of his new office today.

Robert L. Lee,
City Collector.

President Tolles and Councilmen Murphy, Gloak, Bullock, Daniel, Higham, Garrigues and Charles C. Randolph, the last the new member from the Fourth ward, were the members present.

It was expected that Mr. Tyler would present his ordinance providing for the restriction of the license district, but that member failed to appear and nothing was heard of the ordinance. Mr. Murphy, who stated Monday night that he would be away last night and would not be prepared to vote on the ordinance, surprised all by being present. Unless Mr. Tyler should attempt to introduce it as the regular December meeting, it is quite likely that it will remain on the table for some time.

Before the meeting adjourned a report of the tax collector for November, signed by F. H. Smith, who held the position at that time, was received. It shows a balance of $55,612 39.

Robert L. Lee, who entered upon his duties as tax collector today, succeeding Frank H. Smith, who was elected to the new office of registrar of deeds and mortgages of Union county, has been identified with municipal affairs in Plainfield for a number of years, having served as a member of the Common Council from the Fourth ward. He was completing his third term when chosen to succeed Mr. Smith. That there has been no more conscientious and painstaking city official no one will deny. As a member of the various committees in the Common Council he has given much time and attention.

Probably as chairman of the fire committee, he has accomplished most. He has carefully looked [illegible] the interests of the fire depa[illegible] and kept closely in touch wi[illegible] needs. During his service he w[illegible]

PLENTY OF PROOF.

From People You Know—From Plainfield Citizens.

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced in the face of evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Plainfield, of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 733 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or overexerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

NEARING THE END.

Fierce Attack on Key to Port Arthur Successful.

WILL CUT OFF RUSSIANS' RETREAT

Japanese Emperor In Opening Second War Diet Said, "Our Forces Have Been Victorious In Every Battle."

LONDON, Dec. 1.—A special from Japanese imperial headquarters has made the following announcement:

The Japanese have captured and now hold Two Hundred and Three Meter hill.

Advices from Tokyo say that the Japanese have captured and now hold the whole position on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill. This besides giving the Japanese command of the harbor of Port Arthur will serve to widen the breach made by the wedge the Japanese have driven between the Etse mountain group of forts and the Russians' last retreat to Liaoi mountain. The capture of Two Hundred and Three Meter hill will effectually cut off the Russians' retreat.

The emperor at Tokyo has opened the second war diet. He rode through the streets in a state coach, escorted by a troop of lancers and accompanied by the crown prince, his staff and some members of the imperial household, to the house of parliament, where both houses were assembled in the chamber of representatives. The diplomatic corps and many prominent government officials were present.

The emperor ascended the dais, from which he read the following address:

"We hereby perform the ceremony of opening the imperial diet and announce to the members of the house of peers and house of representatives that, to our profound delight, our relations with all the neutral powers are continually growing more amicable.

"We have directed our ministers of state to submit to you a scheme for meeting the extraordinary expenditures necessitated by the war, together with the budget for the thirty-eighth year of Meiji, besides other projects of law. Our expeditionary forces have been victorious in every battle and have repeatedly shown fresh proofs of their loyalty and bravery, so that the progress of the war has been so constantly to our advantage that we expect by the loyal devotion of our subjects to attain our ultimate object, and we call upon you to discharge your duties by harmonious co-operation, thereby promoting our wishes and ends."

Official and private dispatches received from St. Petersburg indicate that the Japanese are falling back below Sintsintin, where for several days they had apparently been attempting a turning movement. After four days of tolerably severe but unsuccessful fighting they are now retiring, with the Russians in pursuit.

A Shanghai report says that a Russian torpedo boat destroyer returning to Vladivostok from a scouting expedition has been sunk by the guns of the Russian forts in error.

IN KOREA.

Missionary Says Japanese Occupation Is Advantageous.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church has received a letter from Seoul, Korea, from the superintendent of the Korea mission, Dr. William B. Scranton. Dr. Scranton says concerning the present situation:

"It would possibly seem from the home standpoint that a country so near the seat of war and materially involved in the outcome of the same would be greatly disturbed. This is not so. All things move on as they have from the beginning, with only now and then a checkmate of the Japanese authorities or the sending of twenty to forty soldiers (Japanese) here and there when the Koreans seem unable to cope with some internal difficulty or allow a local disturbance to run on too long. What the Japanese do is wholesome and praiseworthy. So far we welcome their presence and find their influence advantageous. There is among the people an eager thirst for all sorts of useful knowledge. Calls are numerous for local schools and instructions in western learning."

Will Boycott Liquor Stores.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—The W. C. T. U. convention here approved a pledge withdrawing the patronage of the members of the union from any store that sells intoxicating liquors. An amendment to the constitution requiring honorary male members of the organization to abstain from the use of tobacco was lost by a vote of 28 to 235.

Boy Gets Life Sentence.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Orrin Cox, seventeen years old, son of respectable parents in Kensington, a suburb, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in Judge Chetlain's court on a charge of robbery. The severe penalty was inflicted because Cox when committing the crime was armed with a loaded revolver.

Mrs. Noble's Hearing Postponed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The hearing of Mrs. Josephine Leighton Noble, accused of having shot and killed her husband, Paton Noble, was to have been held in a magistrate's court in Long Island City, but was postponed to Friday because of delay in summoning witnesses.

Boy a Suicide at Springfield.

WILL SETTLE IN FULL

Mrs. Chadwick Denies Any Intention to Kill Herself.

CARNEGIE'S NAME NOT ON NOTE.

Beckwith Says Woman Had Chests Full of Jewels Worth a King's Ransom—Rescue For Oberlin Bank.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Director J. R. Randolph of the failed Citizens' bank of Oberlin, O., has made the startling statement that the signature on the collateral notes for $500,000 and $250,000 on which Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was loaned money is not worth a dollar. He said he had seen the notes, and they are not signed by Andrew Carnegie; that such a story is ridiculous. In his opinion, Mr. Randolph says, the signature does not add a dollar to the value of the paper.

President Henry Churchill King of Oberlin college, referring to the report that Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick had secured a loan from the college amounting to $75,000, said:

"Mrs. Chadwick does not owe the college a cent on the loan in question. It is true that we did make her a loan, but it was later taken up by President Beckwith of the Citizens' National bank."

"Mrs. Chadwick will settle the claim made against her by Herbert B. Newton of Brookline, Mass., for $19,800 upon a cash basis and in full," was the statement by George Ryall, of Baggott and Ryall, New York counsel for Mr. Newton. He added:

"I have seen Mrs. Chadwick at her apartments at the Holland House, and as a result of my talk with her I am able to say that the case will be settled in a few days satisfactorily to my client.

"Mrs. Chadwick has many powerful friends, both in this city and in Cleveland, who are interested in her case, and our debt will be settled out of court amicably."

Mrs. Chadwick has sent two telegrams to Cleveland evening newspapers. They were the same and worded as follows:

"Please deny reported suicide and further say I have no intention of committing any such act."

President C. T. Beckwith of the wrecked Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., in speaking of Mrs. Chadwick, whose paper wrecked the institution, said:

"I know a good deal about Mrs. Chadwick which I am not prepared to tell at this time. I first met her two years ago, when she came to see me about making a loan. Before I knew it she had borrowed a larger sum than I supposed. I then made the mistake of loaning her money from the bank.

"I know this much about Mrs. Chadwick, she has not the handling of her own money, and that is what has embarrassed her. She is absolutely helpless, but I have seen three chests full of jewels which she owns which are worth a king's ransom. They must have cost at least $500,000. I fully believe she will ultimately pay all the money she owes."

It is said that Judge Albaugh is on his way to Oberlin from New York and that he has with him security great enough to cover the loan which was made through the Oberlin bank to Mrs. Cassie Chadwick of Cleveland. President Beckwith now openly refers to the loan in its entirety as a $300,000 loan.

There was a touch of bitterness in the reply that Mr. Beckwith gave when asked if he had any knowledge of the method Mrs. Chadwick would use in obtaining a sum large enough to cover the Oberlin loan.

"Perhaps she will get hold of some one greener than I and secure $600,000 from him," he said.

Alleged Grafter Arrested.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 1.—County Coroner John D. Hoffman, sheriff elect of Wayne county, was arrested here on an indictment charging him with using the United States mails to further a scheme to defraud the state as he was leaving the police court, where he had been bound over for trial in the recorder's court on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses by means of charging the investigation into the death of Mrs. Josephine Summers to the state when she was a resident of this city.

Secret Negotiations at Panama.

PANAMA, Dec. 1.—Secretary of War Taft, who is here for the purpose of effecting a settlement of the differences between Panama and the canal commission, has received the Panama proposition in writing and may make his reply today. The negotiations between Secretary Taft and the government are being conducted in secret, and no details as to their nature will be made public until an agreement is reached. Secretary Taft was given a dinner last night at the American legation.

New Jersey Central Tied Up.

BOUND BROOK, N. J., Dec. 1.—A complete tie-up of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was caused by a collision between a freight train and a coal train here late last night. The freight engine and fifteen cars were piled in a heap, and the track was torn up for some distance. All through trains are being sent around over the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks.

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 1.—Rev. William T. Manning, D. D., vicar of St. Agnes chapel, Trinity parish, New York city, has been elected first bishop of the newly organized Episcopal diocese of Harrisburg.

DAVIS CHOSEN.

Commander of Dixie in Spanish War to Sit on Dogger Bank Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The president announced that Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis has been offered and has accepted the appointment on the Dogger bank court of inquiry.

This commission, which will investigate the firing by Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet upon the British trawlers in the North sea, will consist of five naval officers, one each from Great Britain, Russia, France and the United States, these four to choose the fifth. It is reported here that Emperor Francis Joseph has chosen Admiral Baron von Spaun, formerly commander of the Austrian navy, to be the fifth member of the Anglo-Russian North sea commission in case the other four members fail to agree upon the fifth member. The commission will sit in Paris. Vice Admiral Sir Lewis A. Beaumont has been chosen to represent Great Britain, and France has named Admiral Fournier.

Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis, the American member of the commission, commanded the auxiliary cruiser Dixie in the Spanish war and in that capacity captured the city of Ponce, Porto Rico. Previous to the war he was superintendent of the Naval observatory. He was the personal representative of President Cleveland in the suit of the Princess Eulalie when she visited this country at the time of the Chicago fair. He is a native of Massachusetts.

Admiral Davis speaks French fluently, and this, with his knowledge of international and maritime law, commended him to Secretary Morton, on whose recommendation the selection was made. He is a brother-in-law of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts.

JOSEPH LEITER INDICTED.

No Attempt Yet Made to Arrest the Coal Magnate.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Duquoin, Ill., says that it has just become known there that three weeks ago Joseph Leiter was indicted on three counts on the charge of bringing armed men into the state contrary to recently passed statutes. No attempt has been made to serve the capias or to arrest Leiter, because States Attorney Scott wishes to leave the case for his successor.

Just what effect the presence of the militiamen will have upon the strike at the Zeigler coal mines remains to be seen. At Zeigler a stockade has been built about 800 feet long and 400 feet wide. It is a tight board fence about fifteen feet high. At each end at diagonal corners are blockhouses, in each of which is a machine gun. As soon as the darkness approaches these guns are placed in readiness for an attack.

They are used, too, Attorney Platt says, every night. Farmers in that vicinity also substantiate his statements in this respect. There is probably no denying the fact that some shots are fired into the stockade from ambush. It only requires one shot from the men behind the machine guns to get in action. They send bullets into the trees 500 yards away like hail.

But the crowning feature about the stockade is the use of a powerful searchlight placed to sweep the country on top of a water tank 154 feet above the ground.

Two Italians Held For Murder.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Carlo Ciardi and Lodi Pagedo, fellow countrymen and roommates of Luigi Polse, the Italian who was murdered here by being strangled to death with a leather belt strap, were placed under arrest last night. Further developments in the case lead the police to believe that more than one person was implicated in the murder. Icidoreo Belvecchia, against whom suspicion is strong because of his sudden disappearance, is still at large. It is now thought that he is in hiding near this city.

Sixteen Hunters Killed; Many Hurt.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—Sixteen deer hunters in Wisconsin and upper Michigan have met death and seven others have been wounded during the deer hunting season, which ended last night. Even this frightful list of hunting casualties, due in almost every instance to carelessness, is exceeded by the list of dead and wounded due to accidents to hunters of duck, partridges, rabbits and other small game engaged in this sport, twenty-six having met death since Sept. 1, and twelve have been wounded.

Former Conductor Killed.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 1.—P. R. Carpenter of Hallstead, Pa., was instantly killed in a runaway near that place. His horse was frightened and started to run while going down hill, throwing Mr. Carpenter out and breaking his neck. He was sixty-five years old and for many years was a conductor on the Lackawanna railroad, having been retired under pension a short time ago.

GO BETWEEN AT BENNINGS.

Speedy Three-Year-Old Broke the Track Record.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Go Between, the speedy three-year-old who broke the record in capturing the Washington cup on Thanksgiving day, as a 1 to 2 favorite won the Fifth Bennings special in record breaking time, lowering the track record of 2:40 for a mile and a half, made by Rochester four years ago, to 2:37 3-5. Go Between took the lead shortly after flag fall and never was headed.

Dazzle was an easy winner in the highweight selling race, Poseur, the favorite, taking place honors. Festoon had the second race all his own way. Shaw landed a winner with Wild Irishman in a neck and neck finish with Bohemia in the fourth race.

The fifth race had a large field of ordinary starters, and Tom Lawson won in a drive with St. Roma. Andrew Mack, the favorite, won handily in the last event.

Foxy Grandpa Beaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Oakland track was again muddy. One of the upsets was when Profitable, at 25 to 1, led all the way, winning from Foxy Grandpa, the favorite. The mile handicap proved to be a good betting affair, with Arcade going to the post a heavily played favorite. He won in a drive from Gateway, who closed fast.

Spencerian's Twenty-first Win.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.—Mrs. Hart Dernham's filly, Spencerian, made her twenty-first win this year when she romped home ahead of Orthodox in the handicap. The Hayman colt, a strong favorite in the betting, was poorly ridden by J. Martin and just managed to finish in the money. Swedish Lad was the only other beaten favorite.

FOOL KILLER LOST.

Nissen, Who Shot Niagara Whirlpool Rapids, Missing With Balloon.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Peter Nissen is believed to have either smothered or frozen to death in his rolling balloon Fool Killer, in which he started for a trip across the lake on Tuesday night.

The opinion that Nissen was lost became general when it was found that after twenty-four hours' of silence there was still absolutely no word from the inventor, who some years ago shot the whirlpool rapids of Niagara falls in a barrel.

Possibility of Nissen's smothering to death was considered more definitely when it was learned that his only supply of air was that pumped into the Fool Killer before the craft was launched. It was said by Nissen's brothers, however, that the navigator had computed his air supply carefully and figured that it would last him for a great number of hours.

Fushimi at New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Prince Fushimi and his party have arrived in New York over the Lehigh Valley railroad. Several hundred of his countrymen, wearing chrysanthemum badges in red and gold and bearing small silk flags, were on hand to welcome the prince. He was escorted to his hotel by Baron Kaneko and Consul General Uchida. The prince will remain in this city until tomorrow, when he will go to Boston. Mayor McClellan will have him as a guest at a dinner on Dec. 10. He will probably start on his homeward journey on Dec. 13.

WHEN WAR IS ENDED

Russia Unwilling to Join Second Hague Conference.

COUNT CASSINI REPLIED VERBALLY

Czar's Ambassador Regretted Necessity of This Postponement—Our Government Will Rest on Its Oars For the Present.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Russia is unwilling to join the powers in a second peace conference at The Hague until her war with Japan is ended.

The Russian reply to Secretary Hay's circular note to the powers inviting them in the name of the president to reassemble in conference at The Hague "to complete the postponed work of the first conference" was delivered verbally to Secretary Hay yesterday afternoon by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador. The ambassador was requested by his government to say that Russia heartily accepted in principle the invitation to a second conference at The Hague and gladly associated herself with the American government in its effort to complete the mission of the first great assembly convened under the leadership of the Russian emperor. The ambassador was further requested to say that while the Russian government very sincerely cherished these views it did not consider the moment opportune for the convening of such a conference, and it therefore must withhold its formal acceptance of the invitation until the war in the far east was at an end.

Secretary Hay and Count Cassini were in conference for nearly an hour. The ambassador was careful to assure the secretary that his government welcomed the invitation of the president as an additional evidence of the American government's appreciation of the beneficent results of the first conference and regretted the necessity of suggesting a postponement of the work then begun, a work in which the Russian government no less than the American was keenly interested.

In diplomatic circles the news of Russia's conditional reply caused some surprise. The caution which characterized even the consideration of the invitation at St. Petersburg made several ambassadors here doubtful about the favorable reception of the American note. This doubt has been removed, however, by the friendly terms in which the reply was couched.

For the present it is probable the American government will rest on its oars. When the far eastern war enters on its final stage this government will be prepared to follow up its invitation.

In the meantime should Russia's htitude change she will find the American government ready to lead the powers immediately to The Hague for their second conference.

Violated the "Honor System."

At a recent examination he attempted to secure outside aid, which was noticed and reported to the student tribunal. Investigation was made in the undergraduate court, and a request for his immediate expulsion was submitted to the faculty. This is the first breach this year of the "honor system," which has been in operation at Princeton over ten years.

The total valuation of taxable property in New Jersey, according to the State Board, which has just made its report, is $1,055,879,028. This is exclusive of railroads and canals. It's billion-dollar-Jersey now.

It is no defense at all for the railroads to argue before the Equal Taxation Commission that others, notably the Leather Trust, do not bear a just share of the burdens of taxation. The question is not whether somebody else is escaping, but whether the railroads are paying a just and equal tax.

Frank H. Smith was succeeded by Robert L. Lee as city collector of taxes today after giving faithful and satisfactory service in that capacity. The Daily Press hopes that Mr. Lee will discharge the duties as well as his predecessor did and if he does he will earn the thanks of the community.

If New Jersey had three United States Senatorships to bestow with two seats to be filled on March 4 next, Governor Murphy would naturally step from the executive chair into one of these Senatorships, and he would be the choice of the party if that choice had not already been fixed upon Senator John Kean as his own successor.—Newark Advertiser.

If such would be the case, New Jersey is indeed fortunate in not having three Senatorships to bestow.

"The proprietor of a small city store was asked whether his trade warranted the expense of newspaper advertising, and he replied that he was building for the future," says the Philadelphia Record. "Three quarters of my trade is from regular customers and the other quarter is from advertising; but the merchant must advertise for his regular customers the same as for transients, many of whom become regulars. Otherwise he would not keep his business and would never grow."

Sailed for Sunny Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Alberto Buccini, of New York, who, for several weeks have been the guests of A. L. Force and family, of Duer street, sailed for Naples, Italy, this morning on the White Star Steamer Republic, to visit Mr. Buccini's mother, brothers and sisters, whom he has not seen in over ten years. From Naples they will make a stop at Paris, for a few days and then go to London, where they will visit Mrs. Buccini's parents, sisters and brothers, returning to New York the latter part of February. Mr. Buccini is an expert Italian interior decorative artist and has gained a great reputation in his art, which is a natural gift. His genial personality has made for him a host of friends in the metropolis and elsewhere.

UNION COUNTY'S BIG GAIN

Increase in Valuation for Year Is $2,449,500.

STATE BOARD'S REPORT

Separate Assessment Plan in Plainfield and Elsewhere Works Well.

The State Board of Taxation has submitted its annual report to Governor Murphy. The document was submitted to the executive in person by the members of the commission. According to the report in Union county the increase of valuation over 1903 is $2,489,500. The total in 1903 was $47,106,200, and in 1904, $49,595,700. In Somerset county the increase in valuations over 1903 is $743,825. The total in 1903 was $18,962,067 and in 1904, $19,705,892.

The board finds that good results have followed the enforcement of the rule for the separate assessment of land and improvements. It says:

"Section 7 of the tax act of 1903 provides that 'the State Board of Taxation may by rule direct the assessor in any taxing district to determine the true value of each parcel of real estate assessed by him without the buildings and improvements and to note the same on his list, and to determine and note separately the true value of every building and other structure on each parcel, and add and carry out the same as the assessed value of the parcel, and in such case the receipt given for the payment of the tax shall contain such separate valuations.'

"Under a previous rule the State Board of Taxation had ordered the separate assessment of land and improvements in the cities of Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Trenton, Camden, New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Hoboken, Bayonne, Orange, Passaic, Bridgeton, East Orange, Perth Amboy, Plainfield, Asbury Park, Atlantic City and Millville. This method of assessing real estate was found to work so beneficially that at the meeting of the board held on January 5, 1904 it was voted to further extend this order, under section seven, above quoted, to other cities.

"Letters of inquiry have recently been sent from this department to the assessors of the various cities and towns affected by this rule, with a view to ascertaining what the general result of the new system has been. Almost without exception it has been commended as excellent and productive of good results. There are some who had not responded at the date of entering this report."

According to the report the total amount of assessed valuations, exclusive of railroad and canal properties, is $1,055,379,028, which is an increase over last year of $47,186,881, and of this amount $912,182,594 represents real estate and $153,244,987 personal property.

The amount of personality returned shows an increase of nearly $4,500,000, and this is explained by reason of the new tax law which exempts mortgages as no longer taxable to the holder as personal property, the whole tax on mortgaged land being paid by the mortgagor. By this mortgages are withdrawn from the list of personal property and credited to real estate.

There is a notable decrease shown in the amount of deductions allowed for indebtedness, the total amount allowed by the assessors throughout the State for 1904 being only $5,890,897, as against $16,327,368 returned for the previous year. This is a decrease of more than $10,000,000 in deductions for debt, and is principally due to the change in the law, which allows the deductions to be made only from personality.

For 1904 the amount of exempt property in the State is: Public schools, $17,541,820; other school property, $7,539,580; public property, $43,831,613; church and charitable property, $33,791,644; cemeteries and graveyards, $4,617,000. Total, $112,446,807.

Their Wedding Date is Set.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Douglas, of 809 West Front street, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith Louise Douglas, and Ralph Bullman, of Craig place. The marriage will take place at the home of the bride's parents on Thursday evening, December 15, at 8:30 o'clock.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A spirited horse belonging to George Weidenhaupt, the New Market butcher, and driven by an employe, became frightened at the wagon which he was pulling and ran away. The driver was thrown out and struck his head against a post, rendering him unconscious for a few minutes. The horse was caught in Dunellen and when being driven back home to New Market he ran away again and had to be run into a fence to be stopped. The driver recovered in a few minutes and beyond a few bruises he was not hurt.

strumental in getting the combination chemical and hose wagon for the West End Hose Company and an excellent plan, although not original with him, but nevertheless of much value here, was his scheme to have red glass placed about the electric lights wherever a fire alarm box was located, thus making it easy to find one of these boxes at night in an emergency.

In many other ways Mr. Lee was a valuable member of the Common Council and it was always his aim, no matter what happened, to represent his ward as fairly and honestly as possible. There have been time when he has been open to criticism, but he has always welcomed any honest opposition to his ideas or criticism of his actions.

New Collector's Career.

Robert Lincoln Lee, was born in Philadelphia, April 14, 1867, just two years to a day, after President Lincoln was assassinated, and for this reason he received the name of Lincoln as a part of his own. He attended the public schools of Philadelphia and was graduated from the senior class in 1881. For five years he was engaged in the wholesale dry goods business and for two years with a woolen and cotton goods concern. Later he studied short-hand, becoming very proficient.

He then went to New York with the Central New England and Western Railroad and Poughkeepsie Bridge system and he was with that corporation about thirteen years, until the property was sold to the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company on February 11, of this year. He was employed as secretary to the late A. A. McLeod, president of the combined railroads, New Jersey Central, Philadelphia and Reading, New York and England, Pennsylvania, Poughkeepsie and Boston, Central New England, Lehigh Valley and Port Reading Railroads. He was also manager for the Manhattan Beach Surf Bathing Company for the seasons of 1903 and 1904.

Mr. Lee has been a resident of Plainfield about fifteen years and was serving his sixth year as a member of the Common Council, when elected to succeed Frank H. Smith in the office of the tax collector. While in the Common Council he was chairman of the fire and poor committees and a member of the streets, finance, poor, fire, license and auditing committees. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M.

WHITTIERS ARE AHEAD IN THE JUVENILE LEAGUE

WINS FIRST PLACE BY DEFEATING LEAL'S SECOND BASKET BALL TEAM.

The third game in the Juvenile Basketball League, and one which was important for the fact that it indicated the strongest team in the league so far, was won by the Whittier School against the Leal's School second team yesterday afternoon. The score was 10 to 5, and though not a large one, was a decisive victory for the Whittier lads. What won for them was passing. They played all around their opponents in this respect, and credit is due to the Leal's guards that they did not score oftener, for their opportunities were many.

Woodhull, of the Whittier School, was in the game from the start to the finish, and his excellent work was a feature of the struggle. For the Leal's team, the best players were Heward and Rowland. They did their best to hold up the Leal's end of the game, but the public school boys were man for man the better, and proved themselves so in every scrimmage.

The line up and detailed score was as follows:

Whittier—Loughlin and Briggs, forwards; Alpaugh, center; Fountain and Woodhull, guards. Leal's seconds—Heward and Underhill, forwards; Millar, center; Rowland and Endicott, and Valiant, guards. Goals from the field—Briggs, Woodhull, 2; Millar, Rowland. Goals from fouls—Briggs, 3; Woodhull, Heward. Referee—Henckle. Umpire—Robbie.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Local contractors report the prospects for building during the coming season as excellent, and an open window will undoubtedly give the mechanics plenty of work.

—To make sure that they are getting the highest quality, Neuman Brothers import directly from France, all the olive oil sold at their store. A new consignment just in this week.

—Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Second street, is now open to travel on both sides of the street, and the improvement is appreciated by those who have occasion to use the thoroughfare.

—As the conductors become more accustomed to the new cash registers now in use in the cars of the Public Service Corporation, fewer complaints are heard concerning the shortage. Many of the conductors have been slow in learning the new machine.

Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, of Belvidere avenue, has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. John Thayer, of Virgina.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wiltse, of Madison avenue, who have been to Syracuse attending the marriage of Mr. Wiltse's brother, have returned home.

SINGWA THE PRODIGY

PRIDE OF IGOROT VILLAGE AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

A Five-Year-Old Boy Wonder from the Philippines Who Has Astonished All with His Precocious Brightness.

The greatest child attraction of the world's fair—the pride and pet of every visitor to the Igorot village—such is Singwa, the five-year-old boy wonder, who has astonished all with his precocious brightness, and holds the record of $34 given to him in a single day by American admirers. Singwa is a wonderful example of the possibilities of the Filipino savage and of the natural ability of the Igorot, in particular, but he is a little more than that, as he is undoubtedly an exceptional child. He was but five years old in August and there has not been an American child visiting the Igorot village who could approach the little savage in wit, fun, sprightliness and real accomplishments. When the American boy in prettily starched sailor suit has been lined up beside the little savage from the Philippines the naturally biased mother of the home product has never failed to admit that the brown-skinned Igorot with no advantages, but a brightly colored cloth about his hips, and a bright mind within his well-shaped little head was more than the equal of the American product.

The surest way to spot Singwa when you enter the Igorot village is to look for the densest crowd about the grounds. Wherever men and women are gathered like a city crowd about a street catastrophe there you are sure to find a spot of Igorot yellow dancing about in the sunshine—the happiest creature at the whole world's fair. An habitual visitor to the village finding Singwa in a ridiculous American boy's suit of large proportions which successfully concealed all his cuteness, queried of Dr. Hunt, the superintendent of the village, "Why have you put those ridiculous clothes on Singwa. Don't you know it takes away all his attractiveness?"

SINGWA AT PLAY.

"Yes," replied the shrewd manager, "and that's just what I want to do. That boy would be pestered to death if I didn't give him a rest once in a while. In his natural state he is entirely too popular for comfort."

Singwa is now an attendant at the Model Filipino school, which holds daily sessions on the Philippine exposition grounds, but long before the school opened he had picked up more English than any of the natives in the village. It is not that Singwa can greet the visitor in English and take a pencil and draw all sorts of caricatures on the visitor's card, but the way he does it that creates astonishment. It is the sly cunning with which he invariably does the unexpected and asks the visitor his own age and name after telling all about Singwa. His first passion was drawing, and when he had learned the alphabet in the model school, his next was writing his age, name and tribe on the typewriter. Being a Suyoc he does not eat dog, while the much advertised Bontoc in the same village do. If a visitor asks Singwa if he eats dog, in great disgust he points the finger of scorn at the inquisitor and replies: "No, Singwa Suyoc no eat dog. You eat dog."

Singwa draws some remarkable pictures of chickens, wild hogs, and different types of visitors on the souvenir books sold in the Igorot village, and there is always a struggle to get the ones he has signed with his name. He has no pocket in his scanty trousers and so wanders up to the visitor and in a cute tone that is never refused asks for a "pencil." If the visitor he is picturing has glasses, a large hat or other distinguishing mark of attire, he puts it in the caricature and then laughing in high glee points to it and says, "You, you." Singwa is here without father or mother, his parents trusting him to the care of C. A. Pettit, who brought the Suyoc Igorots to the fair.

Mean of Her.

"When he proposed," said Miss Antique, coyly, "I tried not to let him read my answer in my face."

"Yes," said Miss Critic.

"Yes," continued Miss Antique, with a girlish giggle, "but he seemed to know right away."

"I suppose he read between the lines."—Pittsburg Press.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 4.

Topic.—How to worship in spirit and in truth.—Ps. c, 1-5; John iv, 19-24.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Worship may be popularly defined as the homage which we render unto God through the medium of praise, prayer, reading the Scriptures, including the interpretation of the Scripture and its application in the sermon, and the giving of gifts unto God when the worship is public.

Since worship is so great and important a part of our lives it is very necessary that we should understand its character. Two of the most vital characteristics of true worship are suggested for our consideration in the topic—namely, the spirituality and truth. The true worship of God must be both spiritual and sincere.

These characteristics of worship were emphasized by Christ Himself. The occasion was His conversation with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well. Her idea was that the place determined the value of the worship. "Our fathers worshiped in this mountain (Gerizim), and ye say that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship." She looked upon Christ simply as a Jew and assumed that He believed, as the Jews, that Jerusalem was the place to worship. But Christ pointed out the error of her belief concerning worship and declared that the true worshipers would not magnify place, but would "worship the Father in spirit and in truth, for the Father seeketh such to worship Him. God is a spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." No other worship than that which is "in spirit and in truth" is actual worship.

We worship God only when our spirits come into touch and fellowship with His. Time, place and methods of worship avail nothing, only so far as they assist the human spirit to come into fellowship with the Divine Spirit. The need of sincerity is very evident. A formal worshiper could have no fellowship with God. Sincerity is an absolute necessity to spiritual worship, and there is no true worship that is not spiritual; hence the absolute need of spirituality and sincerity in worship. Let us remember these facts and both in private and public devotions worship God "in spirit and in truth."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xcv, 1-11; xcvi, 8-9; xcvii, 1-7; Matt. ii, 1-11; vi, 1-8; John xii, 20-26; Acts i, 14; ii, 1-4; x, 1, 2; xvii, 22-34; Phil. iii, 3; Rev. iv, 11-14.

Ohio's Field Secretary.

In politics they say "As goes Maine goes the Union." In Christian Endeavor it is getting to be "As goes Ohio so ought the rest of us." The indefatigable work of Rev. C. H. Hubbell, whose home is in Columbus, is accountable for the putting of Ohio in the forefront as to Christian Endeavor. Mr. Hubbell, in his position as field secretary, has literally "lived in his satchel" the past two years, and the result is a phenomenal gain in societies and a corresponding increase in the general effectiveness of all the work. In addition to his duties as field secretary, which makes for him an average of one or two addresses every day, Mr. Hubbell is editor of the Ohio Endeavorer.

REV. C. H. HUBBELL.

Two Greetings.

The New York state Endeavor convention was unique in its greetings. One of them came from President Roosevelt, the other from Dr. Clark, the founder of the movement. Their greetings, which were received by the 6,000 people in the convention hall with unusual enthusiasm, were as follows:

My Dear Mr. Clements—I believe in the work of the Christian Endeavor unions and am always glad to send greetings to their conventions, but it is an especial pleasure to send, through you, to the Endeavorers of my native state hearty good wishes. Sincerely yours,

Theodore Roosevelt

I wish I could be with you in Buffalo. Please give my affectionate good wishes to all the Endeavorers assembled there and tell them "God is good and doeth good continually"—to Christian Endeavor. Tell them that the "increase campaign" has been taken up with vigor all over Great Britain, Australia and South Africa as well as on the continent of Europe. May God bless it more and more in the Empire State.

Francis E. Clark

"In Other Tongues Than Ours."

The little verse which appeared in this column some weeks ago from the pen of John R. Clements entitled "Christian Endeavor" and which ran thus,

I promise that, as best I may,
I'll do my little task each day
And nothing shirk.
I'll let Christ have his way in me;
I'll show unswerving loyalty
In all my work, comes back to us in a recent issue of L'Activite Chretienne, the Endeavor organ of Switzerland. The literal translation as it there appears is as follows:

Je promets de faire chaque jour ma petite tache
Et de ne rien negliger.
Je laisseral Christ accomplir toute sa volonte a mon egard.
Je montreral dans tout mon travail une loyaute qui ne se dementira jamais.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 4: "Worshiping In Spirit and In Truth"—Ps. c, 1-5; John iv, 19-24.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES.

There can be no inside without an outside. Thought to be communicated must have outward form and expression. Reverence is an inner attitude of the soul. We seek to express it in visible signs. We clothe it in symbols and rites of worship.

At the first the form springs almost as necessity from the circumstances and seems inspired. We feel an uplift of soul and a new song bursts from the lips in strains before unknown. The emotion sought expression thus. The emotion was so satisfying that we seek to reproduce it. We forget that we have passed the former point of time and occasion and are in other surroundings. We repeat the words, we sing the tune, we strive to bring back the soul attitude we had before. To some extent we succeed, but no repetition can equal the original act in worth or satisfaction.

What, then, shall we do?

First.—We need to guard ever against mere repetition of the form as if that in itself had value. Garments have value as garments only as they clothe a human form. Personality must be in them and robe itself with them or they are but so much stuff. So our forms of worship must have the spirit in them and be the natural expression of that spirit in its existing conditions or they are but empty forms or may be worse—straitjackets in which are confined those who have lost their freedom. Forms are good if there is a life within and shaping them. Formality is ever bad and only bad. It is a tomb and not a home.

Second.—We should in every and all conditions and circumstances be absolutely open with our God and seek His truth and guidance. This must be sincerely and earnestly the intention of the soul without disguise or reservation and regardless of emotion, pleasurable or painful. Our seeking is to know God and His will. It is not to feel well or happy. It is to be right and do right, which will eventually yield highest pleasure, but may lead through tribulation and distress first.

Third.—To reach the best attainment we need at times to carefully examine ourselves and seek to know the motives that we are following and compare them with the model given in the New Testament. We shall at times be surprised to find how lacking our worship is in spirit and truth. Then we should seek the Lord and His ways and not make the mistake of seeking by forms to revive our flagging zeal.

How to Laugh.

The secret of happiness is not the size of one's purse, or the style of one's house, or the number of one's butterfly friends. The fountain of peace and joy is in the heart. If you would only throw open your heart's windows to the sunshine of Christ's love it would soon scatter the chilling mists and even turn tears into rainbows. Some professed Christians pinch and starve themselves into walking skeletons and then try to excuse themselves on the plea of ill health or "constitutional" ailments. The medicines they need are from Christ's pharmacy. A large draft of Bible taken every morning, a throwing open of the heart's windows to the promises of the Master, a few words of honest prayer, a deed or two of kindness to the next person whom you meet, will do more to brighten your countenance and help your digestion than all the drugs of the doctors. If you want to get your aches and trials out of sight, hide them under your mercies.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

Either Will Do.

"Either lighten my burden or strengthen my back!" cried out an old divine in prayer to God under the weight of his trials. The Lord can help us in either one of these ways. In the one case we shall have less burden and less strength. In the other case we shall have more burden and more strength. The grace is proportioned to the need of grace, the added blessing to the added burden. When Paul asked for the lighter burden God gave him the stronger back, and Paul learned to say, "I rather glory in my weaknesses that the strength of Christ may rest upon me."—Sunday School Times.

Faith.

Faith is the essence of all religion. Unless it is present no amount of preaching will avail. How, then, can it be created and stimulated? By the example of pious lives, as that example appears in the history of the past and as it is shown by those who in the living present follow the divine commands.

Nuggets.

[From the writings of the Rev. John Mason, a celebrated English divine, who died in 1694.]

There is grace in the desire of grace, as there is sin in the desire of sin.

Temptations are instructions.

The world promises comforts and pays sorrows.

Be not proud of riches, but afraid of them, lest they be as silver bars to cross the way to heaven.

We put a price upon riches, but riches cannot put a price upon us.

We must answer for our riches, but our riches cannot answer for us.

Riches are indifferent things, good or bad as they are used. Be, then, as indifferent to them as they are to you.

'Tis a sad thing when a man can have no comfort but in diversions, no joy but in forgetting himself.

To have a portion in the world is a mercy; to have the world for a portion is a misery.

God will either keep His saints from temptations by His preventing mercy or in temptations by His supporting mercy or find a way for their escape by His delivering mercy.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

How the Fashionable Winter Bride Will Be Gowned.

In Paris they are wearing with the dressiest waists high, stiff linen collars with a jabot of lace. They are very fetching when put on with the indescribable manner of a Frenchwoman.

There is an odd fancy in this season's evening toilets of wearing a dark silk coat fashioned corsage over a light, soft mousseline skirt, and quite an economical style it is, as a single waist will do duty with a number of skirts.

PARISIAN WEDDING GOWN.

La mode, though, hardly had this idea in mind. Rather the originality of the thing appealed to her.

Wedding frocks of white panne cloth elaborately trimmed with heavy lace are very smart.

The charming gown illustrated is of regulation heavy white satin, soft and pliable. The skirt hangs prettily from the waist in well laid plaits and is trimmed around the long train and petticoated front with puffings of satin. A bolero effect of lace falls from under a mousseline lace trimmed fichu, which is caught with a spray of orange blossoms. A chemisette with high collar of brussels lace fastens with three tiny satin bows. The elbow puffed sleeves are lined with stiffening to give a broad effect and end in ribbon trimmed ruffles. The tulle veil is gathered in a soft chou at the top of the head and arranged with a cluter of orange flowers.

MODES IN SHIRT WAISTS.

Wash Flannel Is Stunning—Thin Blouses to Be Worn All Winter.

The prettiest shirt waists of the season are built on the Quaker, the sailor and plaited masculine lines. All are simple, washable and adjusted to the smart figure of the day. These shirts are worn with any kind of short skirt of tweed, hopsack or cheviot. If the skirt is of smooth cloth the shirt harmonizes in color, but when of rough material the color is not so much considered.

It is fashionable now to wear quite thin blouses through the winter, but the majority of girls find lightweight flannels their best choice. The new wash flannels come in exquisite shades of dahlias, copper, onion and oak brown dyes from the palest to the richest and deepest hues.

A dainty shirt is carried out in oak brown wash flannel with long shoulder epaulets edged with a hemstitched band of reddish brown silk. A long tie is worn with this waist pulled through slashes in the center of the box plait. The sleeves have a circular puff to meet deep Puritan cuffs.

The smart little waist illustrated may be created from any lightweight material, although in one of the season's soft silks this design is at its best. The material is adjusted over a fitted lining which opens at the back. The fullness comes from a V shaped yoke of all over lace. About the shoulders are puffings formed by carefully gathering the waist fullness in shape. The sleeves have short puffs finished at the elbow with tiny puffings and ruffles, below which are wide cuffs.

AT PLAY IN SAMOA

THE SIMPLE RECREATIONS OF THE ISLAND NATIVES.

Cricket, Marbles and Mumbly-Peg Played by Young and Old by the Simple Folk Stevenson Loved.

Apia, Island of Samoa.—One is almost puzzled to divide the daily life of our ocean neighbor into these accepted allotments, work and play. It is possible, however, that in time even the daily plucking of flowers becomes a task and the few moments required to spend the sleeping moments in the sun or to gather the over-hanging fruit sufficient for the day would use up all of one's surplus energy.

PLAYING MUMBLY-PEG.

As the Samoans are of a simple and childlike disposition, their amusements partake of the same character and it takes but little to delight them. Baseball has not found its way thither, even with the advent of the American, but cricket is their most popular game. There is but little difference made between the sexes in these flowery isles, so that the fairer portion of the community joins with equal fervor in the games. Cricket or cri-keet, as they term it, is hardly played according to standard rules. To begin with, instead of 11 on a side there may be any number from 10 to 50, or double that number, often one village of 50 or 100 playing against another village of perhaps only 15 or 20. There is no hard feeling, however, and all the bystanders applaud. The game sometimes runs on for two or three days, but is evidently just as interesting in the last contest as in the beginning.

Some enterprising trader has made a neat sum from the introduction of marbles. This fascinating pastime struck a most responsive chord in the tropic breast, for wherever you go you see groups of men, women and children standing about in excited groups or kneeling at the game. It is most amusing to see a stalwart chief come strutting by, and catching sight of some favorite opponent, stop, produce a handful of marbles from the folds of his loin cloth, and squatting upon the ground enter into the game with all the zest of the 10-year-old.

It frequently happens that the players will congregate in such numbers in the public thoroughfare that the native police will come up, confiscate some of the marbles and disperse the crowd. I was quite interested with the promptness with which he attended to this duty until one day I discovered him with a few of his cronies having a quiet little game with the confiscated marbles. There is never any trouble nor violence and the games go happily on.

A CRICKET PLAYER.

Across from the hotel is a large native hut which contains several generations and seemingly untold visitors and relatives. Here all sorts of games are hourly in progress, but the most interesting is that played by the hoary-headed grandsires. Two old wrinkled men will sit for hours over a game of small stones, similar to that youthful delight, "jack stones." Here also may be seen nearly every day an old man crouched opposite to an equally old tremendously fat woman and with a little knife they will play mumbly-peg for hours.

It is the most delightful thing to see old and young living on a common basis, everything, even to the games in the street, being shared alike.

ANNA H. CLARK.

Last Resort.

"Woman!" shouted Mr. Van Albert, crushing his teeth on a granite muffin.

"Go ahead!" spoke Mrs. Van Albert sweetly, "I suppose you are going to say I'll drive you to drink."

"Worse than that—you'll drive me to free lunch."—Chicago Daily News.

True Enough.

If one could remember, when asked for advice, that his friend wants only confirmation of his own judgment it would save much heartache.—Toledo Blade.

MRS FOLEY.

A NEGRO HUGGER.

Kennett Square, Pa., Excited by a Too Vigorous Darky.

KENNETT SQUARE, Pa., Dec. 1.—This quiet, decorous Quaker settlement was stirred to its depth when two of its prominent young women, Miss Ethel Weaver and Miss Lulu Miley, were attacked on the street, vigorously hugged and kissed and then, when he was frightened by their startled cries, released by their assailant, who fled and escaped.

The man, the young women declare, is a negro. They were walking along Central street after sunset when they noticed that a negro was following them. When they reached a comparatively isolated spot and glanced around apprehensively they discovered that the man was close to them.

They started to run, but before they had taken many steps he had overtaken them, and, grasping each by a sleeve, he slipped his arms to their waists and, despite their violent struggles and cries for help, held them, hugged both simultaneously and kissed them alternately.

The young women redoubled their cries and scratched the man's face so vigorously that he finally released them and fled.

The girls hurried home and told of the attack upon them, and a number of angry residents formed a posse, and with loaded guns they are scouring the town and surrounding woods in an effort to locate the fugitive.

The young women can give only a vague description of their assailant.

GREAT STRIKE ENDED.

President Moyer Claims Victory For Mine Workers of Telluride.

TELLURIDE, Colo., Dec. 1.—Both mine owners and union miners are rejoicing over the action of the District Miners' association, in session at Ouray, ending the strike in this district, which was called Sept. 1, 1903. President Charles H. Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners has made the following statement concerning the action of the Miners' association, which was taken in accordance with his advice:

"We have called the strike off because we take the position that the issues involved have been conceded by the mine owners and operators in the Telluride district in that they recently posted notices to the effect that after Dec. 1 they would grant an eight hour workday both for their mills and smelter and a minimum wage of $3. These were the demands we made over one year ago.

"I believe that within sixty days every mine and mill at Telluride and Ophir will be running to its full capacity with the best workmen in the west employed."

NOTES ON A SKUNK

INTERESTING STUDY OF THEM BY A NATURALIST.

How an Italian Got His First Lesson in American Natural History from One of the Little Animals.

Not many weeks ago I went out into the fields with two full-grown skunks which I have had under observation since their birth. When we were far away from all houses and dogs, and free from all chance of interruption, I put my charges on the ground, and lay down, with a field glass, to see what they would do. As first they seemed too much delighted at the freedom of the open fields to do anything but walk about, sniffing at the grass and the herbs they found growing there. But presently they became interested in the insects which they found on the ground, especially the crickets, of which they captured a number. When one of the skunks caught sight of a cricket, he would make a little rush at it and stamp on it with his fore paws, squeezing the insect to death by rolling it over the ground. Then he would put down his sharp nose and eat his victim with evident relish.

After a time one of them managed to catch a frog, which he deliberately rolled about with his paws until it was dead. He picked it up in his mouth, but did not attempt to eat it, and while he was still amusing himself with it, the other skunk came waddling up. Then began a squabble for the body of the frog, which was sometimes in one mouth and sometimes in both. And all the while the skunks squealed as though they were being killed, and stamped their feet at one another with an earnestness which seemed simply absurd. Eventually I saw them both walking gravely away, with the body of the frog stretched out between them. When they finally disposed of it, they were out of my sight, but I don't think they ate it, for I have seen them refuse to eat frogs at other times. When I caught sight of them again, a few minutes later, they were interested in a blueberry bush, which was laden with ripe fruit. They ate many of the berries which they could reach as they stood, and some of those which grew a little higher they got at by pulling down the twigs with their fore paws. During the afternoon I saw them feed on blackberries in the same way.

Later on, one of the skunks amused himself by starting to dig a burrow under a large rock. He went at it with his fore feet, and his great long claws proved excellent implements for the purpose.

Presently there came across the field an Italian workman, who, from his general appearance, had not been in this country very long, and whose English vocabulary, as I presently discovered, consisted of a few sentences about as complex as "Two fer fife." He looked hard at the skunk and then at me, and then at the skunk again. Then he delivered himself:

"Wat dat?"

"Skunk."

"Wat spunk? Gude feet?"

"Fine," with a nod. (This on the statement of one of our most eminent naturalists, not from personal knowledge.)

"You goin' eat 'im?"

"No."

A look of surprise came over his face, and he stepped quite close to the hole where the skunk was working. Presently the little animal backed out of the burrow to rest or to survey its work, and the Italian saw two things. First, that its skin was of probable value, and, second, that it was a small creature easily overpowered. Then he spoke again, this time with a covetous look on his face:

"You get 'im skin, eh?"

"No."

"Me get 'im."

As he said this, he took the last step towards the skunk, which had now returned to his work.

"No, no," I said, rising to my feet to prevent a catastrophe which I felt was imminent, but the Italian mistook my intention. He apparently thought that I wanted to prevent him getting a prize which I had no use for myself, and quickly reached down, and dragged the skunk out by the tail. Now I have known that skunk for a long time, and he is about as good natured as any member of his species which has come under my observation. But he had never been treated like this in his life before, and the next instant the Italian let go of the tail, and was reeling backwards under the effects of his first lesson in American natural history.

TROLLEY HEARING ORDERED FOR TODAY

PROSECUTOR WILL INVESTIGATE FATAL MISHAP AT ROSELLE.

John Lally, brother-in-law of Chas. A Tattam, of Jersey City, the passenger who was killed last Saturday night in the trolley car accident at Roselle, made a formal complaint of manslaughter before Prosecutor English, yesterday, against Lewis W. Drake, of this city, the motorman who ran the wrecked car.

Drake is still a prisoner in the Union county jail in Elizabeth, where he is being held without bail. In consequence of Mr. Lally's complaint, Prosecutor English ordered a hearing, which will take place this afternoon at Roselle before Justice Van S. Rosa.

Though the opinion prevails that Drake is blameless for the fatality, he is greatly broken up over his confinement and also takes Tattam's death very much at heart.

CONSIGNMENT OF QUAIL COMING TO UNION COUNTY

GAME WARDEN HAWKINS ARRANGING FOR DISTRIBUTION.

State Fish and Game Warden Charles M. Hawkins, of Elizabeth, expects to have a consignment of quail for Union County, which will be sent to several sections in care of men who will agree to look out for them until the next season's sport arrives.

Warden Hawins expects the quail will be sent to these parties on or about December 15. Freeholder Noah Woodruff, of Roselle Park, will receive a consignment to liberate at that place. Editor James E. Warner, of Cranford, will receive the birds for that section; Freeholder Elston Darby, of Mountainside, is to receive a shipment; Hotelkeeper Walpoole, at Scotch Plains, and James E. Goodwin, at Ash Brook.

Warden Hawkins is arranging with others to have quail shipped to them to liberate.

NATURAL ICE COMPANY WINS CONTRACT CASES

VERDICTS ARE GIVEN AGAINST FRANK T. OSTROM.

Before the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth, yesterday, the cases of Frank T. Ostrom, of this city, against the Natural Ice Company and the Natural Ice Company against him, were combined and disposed of, concluding the trials for the term. In both issues, decision was made in favor of the ice company.

In the original case, the company sued Ostrom for an ice bill contracted last March, aggregating $240. He filed a counter claim of $400 and brought suit to recover it, saying that he had paid that amount in advance for ice. In its defense the company declared that the $400 had been paid as an account due on another contract made with the Lake Hopatcong Ice Company, which it succeeded.

The jury after briefly considering the testimony awarded the Natural people a verdict for the $240 and declared against Ostrom in the $400 suit. Craig A. Marsh appeared for the ice company.

Mrs. Maria L. Piddington, wife of W. L. Piddington, aged forty-six years, died at her home in New Market, yesterday, following an illness with pneumonia and heart trouble. She leaves a husband and one child. Funeral services will be held from the late home tomorrow evening.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

There will be a practice basket ball game at Hope chapel tomorrow night between the Plainfield High School team and the Hope five.

The first game of the city inter-scholastic league will be played on next Wednesday afternoon between the Plainfield High School teams. Between the halves the juvenile league game will be played.

The basket ball game which was to have been played between the Business Men of the Y. M. C. A., and the Passaic Y. M. C. A., was cancelled by the latter team on short notice. The Passaic men were unable to come on account of the fact that several of their players were laid up in a football game on Thanksgiving Day.

By winning the third game in the juvenile basket ball league yesterday afternoon, the Whittier School stands at the head of the league for the present. The game which the boys played yesterday afternoon would have done credit to a team much heavier in weight and older. The players got in a good deal of team work yesterday, as well as good individual playing. These junior league games are a great attraction, and are drawing large crowds at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday afternoons. Next Wednesday the league will be between the Plainfield High School seconds and the Y. M. C. A. juniors.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The highest score so far made in the Central Journal Bowling League matches has been made by Barlow, of the Park Club, his score being 208.

The Suburban Club, of Fanwood, will bowl a match with the Edward Clark Club, of Elizabeth, tonight. Both teams have defeated the local Y. M. C. A., and the contest between them promises to be an interesting one.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

A free lecture on "Scotland" will be given at the Park Avenue Baptist church this evening by Rev. W. T. Derward, of Stelton, N. J. It will be illustrated by stereopticon views. A silver offering will be received for the benefit of the piano fund of the Sunday-school.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church is greatly interested in the work among the mountaineers of the south, and tomorrow afternoon there will be a discussion relative to these people at a meeting to be held in the parlors of the church at 3:30 o'clock.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the Crescent Avenue church, will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon in the church parlors at 3:30. An interesting address may be expected from Mrs. J. T. Tracy, chairman of the standing committee of the Women's Board, on the "Mountaineers of the South."

SHOWER SOCIAL.

Entertainment at Warren Chapel Last Evening Largely Attended.

Under the auspices of the Missionary and Aid Society, a pleasing entertainment, a shower social, was held in Warren chapel, last evening. The attendance was large and the features were greatly enjoyed.

Paroubek's orchestra was present and its musical contributions were among the best on the programme. Other numbers were given by the Misses Bailey and Schenck, Helen Wooley, Miss Roxana Love, Miss Nora Schenck and by Whitney Frasee. The box work, which the societies of the chapel are sending to North Dakota and to a mission school in the south, was on exhibition. Men contributed $8 to be sent with it.

Bible Study Schedule.

The dates and subjects of the Bible studies to be given in the parlor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church by W. D. prepared exactly as in the other two, and on it are shown the two layers of gravel, each spread and compacted separately, thus insuring a perfectly compact road covering, a thing greatly needed in the sandy region where they are built.

"On the left of and at right angles to the gravel is the oyster shell section, showing first the marsh, second the logs laid lengthwise along the line of the road, third the small poles laid crosswise on the logs, and fourth a layer of six inches of oyster shells. This road is one of the most striking proofs of the truth of the old adage 'that necessity is the motive of invention,' for without it many of our salt marshes would be practically impassable for wages.

"The four kinds of roads shown illustrate the manner in which we have solved the problem of road improvement by utilising the available materials in the different sections of the State.

"In the bungalow on the left, as shown in the accompanying engraving, are exhibited photographs of roads before and after improvement. These tell at a glance what we have done and what obstacles we have had to meet and overcome in our efforts to improve our highways.

"The exhibit has attracted not only general, but special and scientific attention on the part of professors of engineering in many of our colleges, and the technical representatives from Germany, England, Japan, Hungary, Holland, Sweden, Chile, Buenos Ayres, Canada and others who have come to study our methods.

"The question of road improvement is a vital one, in which the progressive men of all lands are interested.

"Much surprise is expressed by those from abroad that the only exhibit of methods of road construction is that of the State of New Jersey.

"It seems that New Jersey is destined to be the first in everything connected with road improvement, even to exploited good roads at a world's fair."

MAY COMMIT MARRA

Authorities Still After Owner of the "Spite House."

CAN'T PAY FINES

Faces Prospect of 360 Days in Jail Because of Inability to Produce $85.

Unable to pay $85, the remainder of an aggregate of $135 in fines imposed upon him in the city court, Anthony Marra, the owner of the East Front street "spite house," faces the prospect of spending 360 days in the county jail. Through Corporation Counsel Marsh, who was instrumental in his conviction for maintaining nuisances on the much-discussed premises, committment has been applied for on one of the four counts remaining against him. There were six originally and he paid the costs of two.

Formal notice that action against Marra was to be taken was served on his counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who replied that the defendant was unable to pay. Under the law when a conviction is secured in the city court and a money fine impossible not produced committment can be made for ninety days. As Marra is still liable in four accounts the same number of days applies in each instance although this is discretionary with the city magistrate. The matter is now in the hands of Judge Runyon and final steps toward imprisoning Marra will probably be taken today.

Marra was first brought into prominence several months ago by erecting a small shack, which he occupies, directly opposite the handsome residence of former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph. The neighborhood was aroused and finally complaints were made jointly by Mr. Randolph and the Board of Health against Marra, who was arrested on the following charges: That he threw decayed vegetable matter on the grounds about his home; that the howling of his dogs kept nearby residents from getting their proper sleep; that he built a privy vault without a permit and that the same was offensive. He was convicted on all four and fines aggregating $125 were imposed. Shorly afterward he was again arrested on another charge of building a cesspool without a permit, complaint being made by Inspector Thurlow, and he was again fined $10. The $50 was all he could pay and beside owing the $85, he must also pay the costs of court which amount to a large sum. Marra is an Italian junkman and until his arrest was supposed to be worth considerable money.

MONROE AVENUE LIBRARY WILL BE OPENED TONIGHT

CEREMONY APPROPRIATE TO THE OCCASION TO TAKE PLACE AT CHURCH.

After several months' preparation, during which time considerably money has been expended in additions and improvements, the library of Monroe Avenue church is ready to be opened to the public, and the ceremony appropriate to the occasion will take place tonight. M. Mansfield Smith has had charge of the work of recataloguing the volumns which at the present time number about fifteen hundred. These books will be for the use of the general public irrespective of church membership.

The library was founded several years ago by the late James McGee, and recently several hundred dollars have been spent in increasing the number of books, and in putting them in condition for use. The variety of books in the library now covers a wide range of interesting and instructive reading matter, many of the latest novels as well as the best historical works being on the shelves.

This evening a short programme has been arranged to celebrate the opening of the library, and a paper will be read by Samuel Merwin, joint author of "Klaumet K." Charles L. Lewis will render several bass solos.

NOVEMBER WEATHER WAS OF ALL VARITIES

AVERAGE TEMPERATURE AND RAINFALL SOMEWHAT BELOW THE NORMAL.

November, the month generally associated with cold rain and buckwheat cakes, treated Plainfielders to a great variety of weather, according to Observer Neagle. There were cold days, warm days, rainy days, several foggy ones and .06 of an inch of snow, to say nothing of a sleet storm that dropped around on the 13. There were but seven clear days, fifteen partly cloudy and eight cloudy, during which rain fell. The mean temperature for the month was 3.1 degrees below the normal, while the precipitation was 0.43 inches below the normal.

The detailed report for the month is as follows: Highest temperature 61, date 1 and 4; lowest temperature 19, date 29; mean temperature for the month 39 1; mean maximum temperature for the month 47 8; mean minimum temperature for the month 30.4; greatest daily range of temperature 32, date 1; total precipitation for the month 2.27; greatest precipitation in twenty-four hours 1.35, dates 13 and 14, date of sleet 13; dates of fog 3, 4, 29; dates of Lunar halos 17, 28.

VENISON, WILD TURKEY AND A JOLLY GOOD TIME

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM L. SMALLEY ENTERTAIN MERRY PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Smalley, of Somerset street, entertained a party of friends at their home last evening, with a dinner which was unique because of the distance at which the game was procured. There was wild turkey from the farm of Alfred I. Smalley in North Carolina, and venison steaks from a buck shot by a Plainfielder in Maine several weeks ago. The dinner was a decided success in every way and at its conclusion several hours were spent in song and story.

The menu was as follows:

OYSTERS.
First Mountain, a la Kinsey.
SOUPS.
Hudson Pond Red Snapper.
FISH.
Stony Brook Pickerel.
RELISHES.
New School Houses. Paid Fire Department.
Voting Machines.
ENTREES.
Venison Steak, Currant Jelly.
Mushrooms, Green Peas.
ROASTS.
Wild Turkey, Chestnut Dressing.
Lettuce and Tomato Salad.
DESSERT!
Roquefort Cheese. Toasted Crackers.
Coffee. Cigars.

Among those in attendance were Mayor N. B. Smalley, City Judge William N. Runyon, former Councilman John B. McLoughlin, Lorenzo Townley, John Y. Barrett, Isaac P. Runyon, William Morrison and several others.

On the menu card was this toast:

"To keep my health! To do my work! To live!
To see to it I grow and gain and give!
Never to look behind me for an hour!
To wait in weakness and to walk in power!
But always fronting forward to the light!
Always and always facing toward the right!
Robbed, starved, defeated, fallen, wide astray—
On, with what strength I have!
Back to the way."

HEART DISEASE FATAL.

Sudden Attack Results in Death of Mrs. Mary Runyon, of Dunellen.

Mrs. Mary Runyon, widow of John Runyon, died suddenly at her home in Washington avenue, Dunellen, yesterday, apparently from an attack of heart trouble. She was in her eighty-eighth year and was well known in Plainfield as a prominent W. C. T. U. worker. Her daughter, Mrs. James Manning, who resided with her, left Wednesday to attend the W. C. T. U. convention in Philadelphia and she was alone at the time death ocurred. She leaves a son, Augustus Runyon, of Lafayette place, this city.

Funeral services over the body will be held from her late home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Tax Office Busy.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee's first day in his new office was a very busy one, and as Dec. 20, the time limit for paying taxes without added costs, draws near, the receipts increase to large proportions. BOARD OF TRADE MEETS

Members Discuss Several Important Municipal Problems.

BETTER STREET LIGHTS

Reports on Trolley Extensions and the Permanent Pavement Question Again Agitated.

Arousing from a lethargy of three months, the city Board of Trade met last night and discussed several municipal problems, among them are lights, permanent pavements and street railway extensions. The first named was taken up in detail and although the matter was recently agitated and then dropped, it was the prevailing opinion that something should be done leading to better illumination for the business district.

Remarks were made by E. A. Laing, Harry Runyon, Charles W. Runyon and others, all of whom mentioned the fact that the absence of up-to-date lights is quickly noted by strangers and that the increased traffic demands them. It was pointed out that the erection of four lights of the arc pattern on East Front street, by Woodhull & Martin, shows that this firm realizes the need and that it is seeking to overcome a lack of municipal progression that should be attended to by the Council. The opinion prevailed that cheaper rates could be secured at the present time than when the question was first agitated and Charles W. Runyon was appointed a committee of one to confer with the electric light officials.

Harry C. Runyon gave an extensive report on trolley matters in which he stated that the Public Service Corporation has been blocked in its effort to get a line through to Metuchen because of property owners' opposition. Consents have been secured as far as Oak Tree and the road will probably be extended to that point within a year and then stop while negotiations are pending for a private right of way. This plan has already been resorted to but land values soared so high it was declared out of the question. Mr. Runyon said that a route to Metuchen is of more importance to Plainfield than ever before as the "fast line" is being constructed through that way from Elizabeth and with its completion this city will be cut off from the express service. He declared, however, that the Arlington avenue route would be extended to the Driving Park in the spring and that the Public Service has its eye on a route running from the present terminus at Monroe avenue through to South Plainfield.

The permanent pavement question was brought up by Harry C. Runyon, who has been investigating methods in other cities for the past few months. He asserted that places much smaller than Plainfield are far ahead of it in this respect and that many more are waking up to the fact that it is a waste of money to put down macadam where there is heavy trucking constantly going on. It was decided to take up the matter in detail at another meeting, when if possible, an expert on pavements will be secured to speak.

As the annual meeting takes place on January 5 next, it was decided to make it a special occasion. E. A. Laing, C. W. Krauese and Charles Runyon were appointed a committee to prepare a programme and provide refreshments. W. R. Cansbrook and R. P. Bache, both connected with the Public Service Corporation, were elected to membership, and George H. Patterson, who is soon to remove to California, tendered his resignation. The question of the annual dinner was touched upon and though no plans were laid, it was decided that it should be given as usual.

Boys' Meeting.

The first meeting for the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at the boys' parlor at the association Sunday afternoon. The speakers for the afternoon are Walter Caldwell, the president of the department and Martin Stateman, the former president. There will be special music and the meeting will be an interesting one to boys. All boys are cordially invited to be present.

HIS DEATH A MYSTERY

No Cause Given for Paddock's Suicide.

WIFE AWAY AT TIME

Cabman Says He Drove About City With Her on All Night Search.

As told in The Daily Press yesterday, in the absence of his wife from their home, at No. 17 West Tenth street, Franklyn Paddock, a lawyer and prominent socially, who lived at 1408 Watchung avenue, this city, until a month ago, was found dead yesterday morning in the bathroom with the gas turned on.

Mr. Paddock, who was thirty-five years old, was junior member of the firm of Stearns & Paddock, of No. 32 Nassau street. He was a graduate of Princeton University, class of 1890.

That Mr. Paddock had had any quarrel with his wife was denied by relatives yesterday, and Mrs. Paddock's absence from the house, it was explained, was due to a search she was making for her husband all of Wednesday night. Mrs. Paddock was still absent when Coroner Scholer visited the house yesterday morning, but she returned soon before noon. Throwing herself upon the body of her husband, she screamed and cried hysterically.

From the two servants in the house Coroner Scholer learned that Mr. Paddock had not reached his home in time for dinner Wednesday evening, and that Mrs. Paddock, after waiting some time, ate dinner alone. At 10 o'clock in the evening she called a cab and left the house.

Mr. Paddock reached home about an hour after his wife went out. According to the servants he idled about the house and did not retire until about 1 o'clock in the morning. They said he did not appear to be melancholy and asked no questions about his wife's absence.

James Lynch, cabman, who was called from a nearby livery stable, said he drove to the Tenth street house and Mrs. Paddock entered the cab.

"She told me," said Lynch, "she couldn't find her husband and asked me to drive her to restaurants and cafes in search of him. I have been driving her around all night and this morning."

Lynch said that he had called with Mrs. Paddock at several places in Broadway and Sixth avenue, and that he had driven her to a place in 110th street and to the Claremont.

"What was Mrs. Paddock doing all this time?" asked Coroner Scholer.

"Driving around looking for her husband," replied the cabman.

"How did you take up all night driving about to the places you mention?"

"I drove slowly, to be easy on my horse," said Lynch.

"Where were you when you called the house on the telephone?" asked the Coroner.

"Forty-seventh street and Broadway."

Coroner Scholer was at the telephone when the Tenth street house was called. He spoke to Mrs. Paddock and told her what happened. She returned home at once.

Mrs. Paddock has a daughter fifteen years old by her first husband. The girl went to Boston on a visit two weeks ago.

MISS H. E. WEBSTER DEAD.

Devout Christian Dies From Pneumonia.

After an illness of one week with pneumonia, Miss Hannah E. Webster, one of Plainfield's oldest residents, died at her home on West Second street yesterday afternoon. Sixty-three years ago Miss Webster was born in the little house on West Second street, near New street, where she has lived all her life, and in which she passed away.

Miss Webster was a member and a regular attendant and active member of the First Baptist church. Her parents have been dead several years, the only surviving member of her direct family being her brother, Daniel Webster, who lives at the Webster home, and is a harness maker in the employ of John Worth. She also leaves two nephews, George Webster, of this city, Daniel Webster, of New Providence. Mrs. Fleming, of New York, is a niece of the dead woman.

The funeral will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, burial being at Evergreen cemetery.

STREET COMMITTEE WORK

Sycamore Street Widening Petition Given a Hearing.

EAST END FLOODS

Request for Sewer System Through the Martine Tract Brought Up for Discussion.

The whole of last evening was taken up by the Councilmanic street and sewer committee considering three important matters upon which reports will be made at the December meeting of that body to be held Monday night. The question of widening Sycamore street, between Fourth and Sixth streets came before the committee, there being a large number of affected property-owners to protest against the improvement. The ordinance drafted for the widening provided for a street sixty feet wide, and this is considered too much. It is possible that if the street is widened a less number of feet may be decided upon.

D. S. Alpaugh, who owns the property corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets, is the leader of the movement to have the street widened, believing that so important a thoroughfare leading from the railroad station is entitled to this improvement. The street committee made no promise as to what action would be taken.

The question of providing adequate drainage in the flooded district in the East End was another matter to be considered. It will be remembered that a lengthy petition asking the Common Council to relieve this condition in heavy rains have been in the hands of the committee several weeks. A report will be made at the December meeting, and it is believed that the recommendations of the committee will be adopted. It is understood that the report will recommend the location of storm sewers and will also have something to say about the dams in Green brook.

F. M. Wells, who recently acquired a large portion of the Martine tract in the southeastern part of the city, appeared before the committee and asked that provision be made to sewer that part of the city when proposed improvements are completed there. While the committee could not make any promises as to what might be done, Mr. Wells was given assurances that the Common Council would undoubtedly be willing to provide sewers for that portion of the city at the proper time.

The matter of widening and deepening Cedar brook was also considered and it is likely that an ordinance will be presented to relieve the present condition which has been complained about.

CHRONIKAH FESTIVAL WILL BEGIN AT SUNSET

EIGHT DAYS' FEAST OBSERVED BY THE HEBREWS.

The triumphing of Judas Maccabee will begin to be celebrated tonight in what is known among Jews as the "Chonikah Festival." It lasts eight days. Throughout that time feasting and merriment go on in commemoration of the victories of the Baccabees. On each of the eight night candles are burned.

The celebration will come to a head this Sunday. On that day there will be singing and preaching in the new synagogue, Children of Israel, on New street.

Most of the Jewish festival days have a tinge of sadness in them. That of Chonika is an exception. Then there is dancing, feasting, exchanging of presents, the obliteration of grievances. Woes are forgotten for the time, and all give themselves up to unalloyed joy.

HUNT CLUB DATES.

There will also be a chase on December 26.

Tomorrow the huntsmen will meet on Cedar Brook Farm, where they will leave for an eight or nine mile run.

SLEUTHS AFTER DR. CLOSE WHO IS NOW IN MEXICO

FORMER RESIDENT OF LINCOLN, N. J., WANTED IN NEW YORK.

Word has been received by Inspector McCluskey, of the New York police force, to the effect that detectives from his department are en route from Houston, Tex., to Vera Cruz, Mexico, to take charge of Dr. H. U. Close, a former resident of Lincoln, who is said to be in custody there on charges of embezzlement and bigamy. He is well known in Plainfield although he removed from this vicinity to the metropolis some years ago.

According to the police, it is alleged that Dr. Close appropriated $15,000 belonging to Folmer & Schwing, No. 407 Broome, street, New York, and then married Sarah Phelan, Maria Becker and Mrs. May Perkinson Howers without the formality of a divorce from any of them.

Dr. Close is the son of Prof. M. H. Close, who for many years was principal of a New York school, and who still resides in Lincoln. He was, the police say, convicted of forgery in California, sentenced to five years, but was pardoned. Lately he was confidential man for Folmer & Schwing.

LEAL'S 1905 ELEVEN WILL BE A LIGHT ONE

PROSPECTS FOR NEXT YEAR'S TEAM ARE RATHER UNPROMISING.

From the present point of view the football prospects of the Leal's School do not look very bright for next season. They made a good showing this year, and have won the city scholastic championship, but after the 1905 senior class has graduated, unless some new material enters the school, the chances for a winning team are slight.

In spite of the fact that they are looking heavy odds in the face the Leal's boys are determined to put a team on the gridiron next season, and they have elected Russell Lawrence, who played guard on the team for the past year, as captain for next season's aggregation. In addition to Lawrence, the old players who will be in the school next year are Glenney, Gutierez, Strong and Manning. These substitutes on this year's team will be in the field for the 1905 eleven: Rowland, Underhill, Howard, and Endicott.

This squad will need upholstering a great deal, as it is lighter than any team which the school has put out for some time, and the boys are in hopes that some "dark horses" will turn up in the ranks of the school, and some unforseen weight will be added to the team. The veterans who graduate from the school this year, and who have helped the eleven to victory for the past season are the following: Roger Wilcox, captain for 1904; Edwin Daniels, the fastest half back that the school has had for three years; Edward Suffern, who has made a capable manager of the team and has played end; Frank Curtis, the right tackle, and William Smith, who has held down the position of center.

Three Contract Cases.

For books which were ordered and not paid for, Louis A. Williams, doing business under the name of the Publishing Society of New Jersey, has sued Charles H. Griffith, J. W. Barkalow, and A. S. Pickle, the cases to be returnable at Justice Mattison's court in December 8, 10, and 12, respectively. Frank Blatz, Esq., will represent the plaintiff in all three cases.

More Street Work.

Under the direction of Street Commissioner Gavett employees of the street department are spreadingh crushed stone on Central avenue, between Front and Second streets. The same will be rolled down and a fine coat of top dressing put on.

Randolph's Reputation O. K.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NEEDS

Appropriation of $23,000 Is Wanted for Coming Year.

THAT HOSE TOWER

And 2,000 More Feet of Hose Are Among the Urgent Needs.

It is the purpose of those in control of the fire department of the city to make an effort to secure more money for its maintenance next year, if possible. When this year's budget was asked for from the various departments, the sum of $28,000 was asked for the fire department. When this reached the finance committee about $5,000 was cut off, making the appropriation about $23,000. This, it appears, has not been sufficient to properly run the department and meet all obligations, and make the necessary repairs from time to time.

One drawback to the department is the $5,000 which has to come out of its appropriation for fire hydrants, and an effort will be made to have that sum taken out of the general fund. By doing this and allowing the department $23,000 all needs could be met. This year the Common Council attempted to take the hydrant money out of the fire appropriation, but was unsuccessful. No doubt legislative action will be sought to help out the department next year.

Among the present urgent needs of the department at present is 2,000 feet of new hose. The hose now on hand is pretty well worn and if new hose is not purchased this year the Common Council will have to get it early in the coming year. The general equipment of the department is in excellent shape and with the exception of the truck horse recently injured, the equine force is in the best of condition.

Chief Doane would like to see some improvements next year. Among other things he would like to have is a hose tower. For a long time he has felt that the department has needed one to fight fires in the larger buildings, which are frequently being erected about the city. Another thing the chief will endeavor to get is a fire net. He says that the natural risk and danger to a fireman at work on a blazing structure is great enough and all proper safe-guards should be provided.

Still another improvement that Chief Doane has not entirely given up is that of a fire house in the East End of the city. In view of the constant building in that section he says that the need of additional apparatus there is more urgent every day.

C. W. M'CUTCHEN BOUGHT BLOCK ON PARK AVENUE

TRUST COMPANY ONLY GOT RANDOLPH AND FORCE PROPERTIES.

It has been learned through investigation that The Plainfield Trust Company only purchased the Randolph property at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, and the Force property directly in the rear, upon which will be erected the new banking institution. The other property on Park avenue, extending from the Randolph building to the Boice, Runyon & Co., estate, was purchased by Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, who is a director in The Plainfield Trust Company. It is his purpose to eventually improve this property with modern buildings. For the present nothing will be done toward tearing down the old dwellings.

The Plainfield Trust Company is making progress in preparatory work for the proposed new building which will probably be started early next year.

At a business meeting of the Hope Chapel Young People's Society, Wednesday evening, President Charles Vincent and Treasurer Mrs. A. B. Lewis, resigned, and Miss Laura Hangliter and Hugh Gray were elected to fill the vacancies. Mrs. Lewis' action was made necessary because of her intended removal from the city and at the close of the meeting she was tendered a farewell reception.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

READY REFERENCES FOR THE LOCAL BARGAIN SEEKERS.

E. B. Maynard, the North avenue barber, makes a specialty of cutting children's hair. This is one of the best appointed shops in the city.

The weather predictions are that we are going to have a cold wave. You will need good coal and this kind you can get from Nash & Weber, of Park avenue.

H. H. Smith, of Park avenue, opposite North avenue, handles Jersey poultry exclusively and he also sells the best sausage, butter and eggs. Give him a trial.

If you are having trouble with sore feet, bunions and ingrowing toe nails call on Dr. E. B. Stowe, of the Babcock building, and your aches and pains will disappear.

Quite often milk is not as good in winter as in summer, but the milk from Lindsay's dairy is still as creamy as ever, and as for sanitary condition, Lindsay's is one of the best places in the State.

What would make a better holiday present than a suit case, or convenient hand bag. Step in at Greer & Greenwood's on your way down town, and see what they have in the line of leather and canvas goods.

Well, how did you enjoy that turkey you got at VanSickle's? One of the best you ever had? Of course it was. All of VanSickle's meats are the same in the fact that they are the best that he can procure for sale.

Harper, the Park avenue notion and stationery dealer, is beginning to display his holiday stock. This year it will be more complete than ever and replete with new novelties. Make sure of seeing them before buying presents.

"I want to be a soldier" and many other of the latest popular songs, vocal and instrumental, are included in a new supply of gold mounted Edison phonograph records received this week by Harry K. Lister, the North avenue dealer.

C. M. Nagle's Blood Purifier and Sarsaparilla are just the thing for a person in a general run down condition. All of Nagle's drugs are the best, and the purest, and those who trade with Nagle have perfect confidence in his goods.

To have clothes made correctly it is necessary to go to a tailor who has had experience and knows the way and wherefore in costume making. S. Hirsch, of Park avenue, is one of this kind, and guarantees a perfect fit. He makes a specialty of riding habits.

Nothing is so delicious on a cold morning as Flemington sausage. Somehow or other it seems to put new life into a person and give the impetus for a day's hard work. The original Flemington sausage in bags is sold at R. W. Barnes' grocery on Park avenue, where many other good things in the grocery line are to be had.

The fire loss on the Woolston & Buckle building on North avenue, together with Edward Maynard's personal loss, has just been adjusted and the insurance paid through the agency of E. M. French & Co. This firm makes a specialty of fire insurance and is ready at all times to furnish information and rates of the best companies.

Equal Taxation.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The Trenton True American American, says editorially: "The principles of equal taxation were so plainly stated in the tax law of 1846 that nothing but a wilful and malicious perversion of the principles of taxation could have metamorphosed that law into the present inconsistent, unequal and outrageous scheme, by which the possession and improvement of real estate in New Jersey is made to be most onerous, and all the advantages of wealth are reserved to the speculative holders of corporate securities.

"If the real estate assessments were diminished by the amount of the mortgage debts; if the mortgage securities were made taxable; if the stocks and bonds of corporations now exempted were made equally taxable with other property; and if the two hundred millions of railroad property were added to the tax ratables—the taxable property within the State would be doubled; the tax rates might be halved; and the real estate would cease to be what it is now—an unprofitable burden and an exhausting care; rents could be lowered; agriculture made profitable; population attracted; new houses built; new towns created, and the State would enter on an era of unexampled progress."

If nothing else was accomplished by the State election the Democratic party through its platform has certainly drawn attention to the fact that taxes have been, and are at present, levied most unequally and are unfairly burdening real estate. It is to be hoped that the people have been aroused to move in this matter. It will not down, at the behest of corporate influence, the election to the contrary notwithstanding.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The cause was dismissed in the contract case of William Jeffries against J. D. Loiseaux Wednesday at Justice Mosher's court. S. E. Swackhamer, Esq., who represented the defendant made an objection to the legality of the proceedings which prompted the court to dismiss the case.

—Miss Marian Reichardt, a "touch typist" for the Smith-Premier Typewriter Company, will be in this city on Tuesday and give demonstrations of her ability at the borough and city schools and the Plainfield Business College. Plans have been completed by the Watson-Stillman Company to rebuild on a larger scale, its machine plant at Aldene recently destroyed by fire. When completed it will have accommodations for nearly 1,000 men. The firm in the meantime is occupying temporary quarters in the S. L. Moore plant at Elizabethport.

JOHN H. TIER

AMUSEMENTS.

The new Lew Fields theatre, on West 42 street, New York, will be open by the Lew Fields Stock Company tonight. The play, "It Happened in Nordland," is written by Glen MacDonough, author of "The Wizard of Oz," and "Babes in Toyland," and the music by Victor Herbert, and the production is being staged by Julian Mitchell. Among the principal people besides Mr. Fields are Miss Marie Cahill, Bessie Clayton, Rosemary Gloss, "Billie" Norton, Pauline Frederick, Indiola Arnold, Nelda Athens, Harriet Forsythe, Josephine Karlin, Diva Maroldo, Susan Porter, Harry Davenport, Julius Steger, Joseph Herbert, Max Freeman, Barry K. Fisher, Joseph Carroll and Frank O'Neill, who was brought from London for this production.

The Majestic Theatre has retained its popular sway with the production of "A China Doll," a dainty comic opera with melodeous music, bright and catchy songs and a great deal of humor and fun. Daintiness is the basis of this clever opera and beautiful production, there is nothing vulgar. It is the kind of theatrical attraction that men like and that appeals particularly to the feminine contingent of theatre-goers. It is well interpreted by one of the best companies seen in New York this season, including such well known artists as W. F. MacDonald, Albert Hart, George C. Boniface, Jr., Miss Helen Boyton, Corrinne, Adele Bafter. The play is drawing big houses. Scenically the production is the most beautiful seen in New York in many seasons. This is especially true of the setting of the second act, which shows the interior of the Porcian Palace. The critic of the New York Times in referring to it, it mentions the name of the painter —Ernest Albert—and said "It is a creation of really poetical atmosphere;" and the conservative critic of the Evening Post declared the scenery "Really gorgeous." Other of the metropolitan newspapers referred to it in equally complimentary vein. The scene is entirely in blue and white, a distinct novelty in the way of Chinese color effect. Different shades of blue and the use of cream white relieve the possibility of monotony and produce the effect of porcian.

LITERARY.

"The Despotism of Combined Millions," the second of the series of life insurance articles, by Henry Shedd Beardsley, in The Era Magazine for December, reveals the interesting and astonishing inside details of the interest of the life insurance "combine" in the shipbuilding bubble, in J. P. Morgan's unsuccessful attempt to form a transatlantic steamship trust, and in E. H. Harriman's mammoth railroad enterprise. The article contains, also, other equally startling and interesting features that are now disclosed to the public for the first time. Mr. Beardsley makes the statement unconditionally that the life insurance "combine" is boldly and dangerously violating the laws of the States.

The twenty-one contributions in Leslie's Monthly Magazine for December are as expressive of the real spirit of Christmas as is the gay and attractive cover of the magazine itself. In the list of contents is an account by Dr. Grenfell, the famous Labrador missionary, of his work along that coast and of the heroic deeds of the fishermen and their wives, and an excellent little article by Annie Payson Call about Christmas. The story of the foreign actors and actresses who will tour America this winter, is illustrated with a number of attractive portraits, and the third article about the Theatrical Syndicate, which takes up the dealings of the critics and playwrights with the Trusts, is the best of the series. Besides these there are eight short stories.

This prospectus of the more notable features of the Atlantic Monthly for 1905 is intended chiefly for those persons who are not now subscribers to the magazine. We expect that our present readers will remain upon our subscription list. The Atlantic is confident of the loyalty of its old subscribers. But it would not be an American magazine if it did not want new subscribers—as many as it can possibly secure without lowering its standards of taste or departing from the principles which have made it what it is. The Atlantic is a magazine "devoted"—as its cover used to say—to "literature, art, science and politics;" in a word, to the most interesting things in human life. It is nearly fifty years old. It has been edited by some of the foremost American men of letters. It is unsectarian in religion and independent in politics. It prints each month 144 pages of reading matter—made up of timely articles on social, political, and educational topics, biographical and historical papers, brilliant fiction, essays and literary criticism. It is beautifully printed at the Riverside Press, and is sewed so that it lies open like a well-made book. The Atlantic has no illustrations whatever, and will contain none.

A BRILLIANT ENDING

St. Louis Exposition Closed With Francis Day.

FAIR PRESIDENT HONORED BY THRONG

Speeches by Governor Dockery and Mayor Wells—Francis and Thompson Presented With Silver Service.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—The Louisiana Purchase exposition has ended. The stupendous and magnificent exposition, whose tendrils of interest have extended into every portion of the civilized world and even into aboriginal recesses, bringing within the gates of St. Louis millions of visitors from throughout the entire world, has run its course and now passes into history as probably having comprised the most representative collection of the resources, industries, art, peoples and customs of the world ever assembled. From the inception of a project to hold an exposition fittingly to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the purchase of the Louisiana territory until the portals were thrown open and the world was invited to enter and enjoy the completed exhibition of the world's life occupied a period of seven years. The duration of the exposition has been seven months, and during that time nothing has occurred to throw a dampening effect on the interest or to detract from the exposition in any way. The best order has been maintained throughout. There have been a few fires, but all were of small moment, with the exception of the destruction of the House of Hoo Hoo and the partial destruction of the Missouri building recently. The former was immediately rebuilt. No loss of life has occurred during the exposition from accidents. St. Louis has proffered her most gracious hospitality to the world and it has been accepted.

Throngs of visitors have poured in to attend the exposition with the expectation of being pleased and satisfied. They have departed amazed and gratified. The opinion has been expressed at all times, on all sides and without reserve that the Louisiana Purchase exposition has been a success. Congratulatory messages were received in large numbers from all parts of the country and from abroad conveying felicitations upon the success of the exposition.

The man probably most prominently known in connection with the world's fair is the president, David R. Francis, and it was deemed fitting that the final day should be designated as Francis day in his honor.

"This exposition has been the work of my life," said President Francis. It has consumed my entire time for the past four years, but every hour has been an hour of pleasure to me. I have exhausted my stock of adjectives in trying to describe this fair. It is as difficult to do it justice as it is to paint the lily."

The closing exercises were held at the base of the Louisiana Purchase monument in the plaza of St. Louis, where were held seven months ago the exercises that formally opened the gates to the world. On the opening day the vast assemblage was buoyant in spirit and filled with a unanimous desire to give expression to good feeling; now depression prevails because of the conclusion at hand, and it was rather a mournful assemblage that formed a solid phalanx around the tall monument and listened to the farewell addresses. There was cheering, but it was the cheering of final leave taking and not the spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm. The principal speeches delivered were by Governor Dockery of Missouri and President Francis. Mayor Wells spoke briefly and introduced Governor Dockery, who said in part:

"In bidding farewell to the world's fair I want to pay a tribute to the kindly feeling expressed toward this exposition by the president of the United States. In the execution of this exposition we have been Americans and not partisans. We have united in doing everything possible to contribute toward its success, and the president has shown unqualified interest throughout.

"I want to pay a tribute to grand old Missouri. She has thrown open her arms in hospitality and extended a welcome to the world. I am proud of the fact that the brightest and most resplendent state given to the Union by Thomas Jefferson in the Louisiana purchase was the state of Missouri.

"The St. Louis exposition takes a long stride toward the conquest of the seas, of which I now warn the nations. We don't intend to send our warships, but we do intend to send our merchant ships, and we will contest on the seas for the trade of the world."

After the cheering following President Francis' speech had died away Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, a member of the board of directors, was introduced and presented to President Francis a beautiful silver service as a token of esteem from the exposition management. A similar gift was presented to Treasurer William H. Thompson.

As the night drew on throngs concentrated in the main avenues to view for the last time the magnificent electric illumination. One solid stream of humanity swept through the Pike from end to end. The spirit of revelry was there. Never since the opening had more enlivenment been shown.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 2, 1904

According to the New Brunswick Home News: "The Brooklyn Eagle continues to scream—the wrong way." Possibly so, but there are few if any better edited and better conducted papers in this country.

It is understood, says Printer's Ink, that the Waltham Manufacturing Company, of Waltham, Mass., through its president, Harrison Williams, of New York, has contracted with a prominent agency for a large advertising campaign on a complete new line of Orient automobiles. But while the advertiser will employ large space, it will be confined to a few mediums only, the advertiser preferring to spend the appropriation in this manner rather than scatter the expenditure broadcast through the magazines.

Passaic, which has attempted to make the P. S. C. give cheaper rates in that city, will have a bill introduced in the next Legislature giving cities of the second class the right to supply gas for their own citizens. The measure will be pushed by Assemblyman Dalrymple at the solicition of the Mayor and Common Council. If the proposed statute is passed it will pave the way for Plainfield to establish a municipal gas plant and the citizens of this city are now in the mood to urge the Mayor and Common Council to do so. It was exceedingly small business on the part of the P. S. C. to discontinue the privilege of allowing the municipal departments to use gas free of charge. Some years ago when a municipal plant was agitated, the company, then doing business here, staved off the proposition by granting the privilege which the P. S. C. has now cut off without any specific reason.

THESPIAN DRAMATIC CO. GIVES ENTERTAINMENT

SHORT SKETCHES AND PANTOMINES DELIGHT AUDIENCE AT Y. M. C. A.

An entertainment in every sense of the word, the performance of the Thespian Dramatic Company, of Boston, at the Y. M. C. A. last night, was one which delighted a large audience and kept it in roars of laughter. The members of the company were very clever in their short sketches and pantomimes, and both comedy and dramatic talent was lavishly displayed.

The cast in all the short plays was taken from these persons, Miss Mary Norton, Miss Mabelle Rose, Miss Abigail Dodge and Hugo Kiesling. The acting, especially that of Miss Norton, won much applause, and the various impersonations were cleverly carried out.

The first number on the programme entitled "Picked-up Dinner," was particularly good, as was also the last number in which all the company took part. The other numbers were scenes between either two or three persons, and the arrangement and selection of the sketches was tasteful and attractive. They were as follows:

"Picked-up Dinner," Hanlon, characters: John Thompson, a rich merchant, Mr. Kiesling, Mrs. John Thompson, his wife, Miss Dodge, Nora, a servant, Miss Norton, scene: Drawing room of the Thompson's; "Young Mr. Pritchard," Tiffany, characters: (With family feelings) Miss Betty, Miss Rose, Miss Hetty, Miss Dodge, Edith, their niece, Miss Norton, Henry Pritchard, Mr. Kiesling, scene: Sitting room in the Old Homestead; "Olga," Trays, characters: Olga, a French Spy, Miss Norton, Valdimer, Inspector of St. Petersbury Police, Mr. Kiesling, scene: Olga's apartments in St. Petersburg; "A Lodging House Episode (Pantomime), Original, characters: Landlady, Miss Dodge, roomer, Miss Rose, Bridget, Miss Norton, scene: Furnished "Room to Let;" "Drifted Apart," Young, characters: Lady Gwendoline Bloomfield, Mabelle Rose, Sir Godfrey Bloomfield, Hugo Kiesling, scene: The Bloomfield Home; "Taking the Census," Buxton, characters: Deaf old lady, Miss Norton, Mr. B (a census taker), Mr. Kiesling, scene: A kitchen; "The Proposal" (mimicry), Arranged, characters: Robert, Mr. Kiesling, Elizabeth, his sister, Miss Dodge, Crissy, his little sister, Miss Norton, Madge, his sweetheart, Miss Rose, scene: Reception room.

MRS. HALL'S SISTER AUTHOR OF ROMA BEATA

WORK ON THE ETERNAL CITY BY MRS. JOHN ELLIOTT.

Mrs. John Elliott, a sister of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, and a daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, is the author of "Roma Beata," which is highly praised by literary reviewers. Mrs. Elliott was formerly Miss Maude Howe, and is a famous beauty. Her portrait in the Corcoran gallery, at Washington, attracts the attention of every visitor. Mrs. Elliott is well known to Plainfield people, having made addresses here on several occasions. At Mrs. Rowland Cox's, on West Seventh street, she gave a talk on "Gen. Booth and the Salvation Army" and has also appeared before the Monday Afternoon Club and at Miss Kenyon's Seminary. At present she is living in New York.

Jeannette L. Gilder, the editor of Critic, says of Mrs. Elliott's latest work:

"This delightful book consists of a series of letters from the Eternal City, most of which have been published in the leading magazines. The book is illustrated with drawings made by Mr. John Elliott, the husband of the author. Mr. Elliott was commissioned by the Boston Public library to paint some of its decorations, and he took a studio in Rome for that purpose. The Elliotts knew everybody worth knowing in Rome in fashionable as well as artistic circles. Mrs. Elliott attended state balls and hobnobbed with the queen, on the one hand, and gave charming little dinners to distinguished artists on an improvised roof garden opening out of her husband's studio. One can see in reading this book that Mrs. Elliott's sympathies are with the government. She thinks that the people are much better off now than they were before, and that it is better that they should be educated than to grow up in the ignorance that so long surrounded them."

BOILS CLAIM DOWN

Mrs. Chadwick Settles Newton's Suit For $128,000.

WHAT SHE DID WITH CASH RECEIVED

Defendant's Lawyer Verifies Report of Settlement—Newton's Counsel Sure of Payment, Although No Security Has Been Given.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Counsel for Herbert B. Newton of Boston announced that his claim against Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick of Cleveland, O., had been settled and that Mr. Newton had withdrawn or would withdraw the suit filed in the Cleveland court.

It is said that Mrs. Chadwick borrowed on such "securities" as she had to offer more than $600,000, according to admitted claims. She disputes another claim which would bring the amount up to $1,000,000. How she spent this sum has been a mystery except to those who have watched her career in Cleveland. Here, it is said, is the way a part of the money went:

In fitting out her home in almost barbaric splendor.

She gave a sealskin coat to a servant and wore magnificent furs herself.

She bought eight pianos at once as presents to friends and bought diamonds by wholesale. Bank President Beckwith says he saw jewels in her possession worth $500,000.

She at one time took twelve young society girls of Cleveland on a trip to Europe and brought a party from Cleveland to New York in a special car to see "Parsifal."

After settling Herbert B. Newton's claim against her for $190,800 by a promise of $78,000 in cash and $50,000 payable in a year from date, Mrs. Chadwick drove from the Holland House to the Central Trust company building, at 54 Wall street, spent about five minutes in the offices of the bank and then went to the sixth floor to the law offices of Butler, Notman, Joline & Mynderse. Mr. Joline, of this law firm, is attorney for Andrew Carnegie.

The presence of Mrs. Chadwick in Wall street caused quite a ripple of excitement.

Mrs. Chadwick boils Newton's claim down to $128,000, and she declares she will not pay him another cent. The arrangement is evidently satisfactory to Mr. Newton and his attorneys.

Edmund W. Powers, Mrs. Chadwick's New York attorney, has verified the report as to the basis of settlement.

George Ryall, local counsel for Herbert D. Newton, last night made a statement that the settlement agreed upon with Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick of Cleveland is for the payment in cash of Mr. Newton's entire claim. The payment, he said, is to be made either this week or early next week.

"No securities have been given for this payment," he added, "but we are sure it will be made."

Will Talk Less In Future.

OBERLIN, O., Dec. 2.—The directors and officers of the Citizens' National bank of this city, which is now in the hands of government examiners, have decided that there is more safety for the depositors and creditors concerning the affairs of the bank and its prospects in secrecy and hereafter will have less to say for publication. Their principal hope is that the report of the two bank examiners will show the bank to be in good condition. Mayor Carter, director of the bank, replying to inquiries as to the character of the security which the bank holds, said, "My God, I wish no one would ask those questions!"

Great Strike at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 2.—The first day of the general strike developed no serious features. All the leading retail stores were closed and labor on the docks was suspended. Troops and policemen were stationed at all the important centers. The railway and street car services were running without interruption. There were partial strikes on the Western and Pacific railways, but the strikes were confined to the machine shops and engine wipers.

Lion Killed Tamer Hendricks.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Charles Hendricks, a lion tamer, badly lacerated by a huge lion during an exhibition here, is dead. The accident happened during the performance of a trick in which the lion was made to jump through a paper hoop. The trainer slipped and was attacked by the huge beast, which tore his leg frightfully and caused a shock from which he did not recover.

Chief Engineer Parsons Resigns.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—William Barclay Parsons, chief engineer of the rapid transit commission, the man who planned the subway, has handed in his resignation. Mr. Parsons is a member of the Panama canal commission and intends to devote himself to the work of building the interoceanic waterway.

Bought the State Building.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 2.—According to a private dispatch received here, the Connecticut state building at the St. Louis exposition has been sold to a Mr. Hall of Pittsburg. The Connecticut building is of the colonial style and patterned after a residence in this city.

A Hohenzollern Dying.

MUNICH, Dec. 2.—The death of Prince Frederick of Hohenzollern, a member of the nonreigning Sigmaringen branch of the family and a younger brother of King Charles of Roumania, is momentarily awaited.

RACING AT BENNINGS.

Charter and Monte Carlo Gave the Talent a Surprise.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Arsenal, in the first race, was the only favorite that won at Bennings. In the second race Winchester, at 15 to 1, beat Calmness and Chimney Sweep, and in the fourth race Delphie easily won from Dazzle, the favorite.

Walter Cleary and Imperialist were the choices of the talent in the steeplechase, but Gascar, at 8 to 1, was first, neither of the favorites getting a place.

The big surprise of the day was the sixth race, in which Charter, at 20 to 1, and Monte Carlo, at 15 to 1, were first and second, defeating Minotaur and Lord Badge, equal priced favorites. Lord Badge got a bad start.

Favorites Win at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Favorites took three of the races at Oakland, and the other winners were not neglected in the betting. One of the close finishes this season occurred in the last event when Davis landed Nigrette up in time to win by the shortest of noses from Andrew B. Cook. Red Cross Nurse, a 4 to 1 chance, led all the way in the mile race, beating Ishlans, the favorite, by less than a length.

Racing at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 2.—In spite of the fact that Dick Bernard was the only winning favorite, the ring suffered considerably. Allista was well supported in the first race, and Sponge Cake, who seems to have struck his gait at last, also carried money. Dick Bernard was heavily played.

Unique Means of Murder Defense.

GOSHEN, Conn., Dec. 2.—As a possible aid to the defense in the trial of Sherman Beaman, who is charged with the murder of his wife, the brains of his father, Samuel Beaman, who recently committed suicide, have been removed from the body and sent to a medical school for examination. It is believed that if it can be shown that the elder Beaman was mentally unsound the effort of the defense to show that Sherman Beaman is also the victim of insanity will be greatly strengthened. Worry over the approaching trial of his son is supposed to have led the elder Beaman to take his own life.

Fushimi Sees American Pantomime.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Prince Sadanaru Fushimi of Japan, who is in this country on a friendly visit, was the guest of honor at a meeting of the New York chamber of commerce and was formally welcomed to the city by the president of the chamber in a brief address. The prince, replying through an interpreter, expressed his pleasure at the reception accorded him and was then presented with the chamber of commerce medal. Last night he attended a performance of "Humpty Dumpty" at the New Amsterdam theater.

Jordan Made No Suicide Pact.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Colonel Edward Jordan, accused of entering into a suicide pact with Mrs. Rena Snowball a little over a year ago, was dismissed by Judge Kersten on a charge of murder, as the facts would not warrant a conviction. Mrs. Snowball and Colonel Jordan were residents of Galesburg and close friends. She committed suicide in a Chicago hotel. Investigation disclosed the fact that Colonel Jordan and Mrs. Snowball were insured in each other's favor.

To Probe Election Frauds.

DENVER, Dec. 2.—District Judge John L. Mullins, in the criminal court, issued an order summoning a grand jury to investigate alleged election frauds in this county. This step is taken at the behest of Democratic leaders who charge that money was wrongfully used by corporations to elect certain candidates at the recent election, and that voters were coerced by their employers. The sheriff was instructed to return the venire next Saturday.

Captain and Cook In Peril.

SAYBROOK POINT, Conn., Dec. 2.—All hope of rescuing Captain Lee and his cook from their perilous position on the wrecked schooner Jordan was abandoned at sundown last night. On account of the dangerous shoals near the schooner tugs cannot reach her, but a steam launch will have no trouble making the vessel at high tide. The Jordan is leaking badly, and it is feared she will prove a total loss.

Hunter Shot For Trespassing.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—While hunting with his friend, William Daly, on the Big Bend road just south of Clayton William Ingman, aged nineteen years, has been shot and killed. The men were fired upon by farmers, who alleged the hunters were trespassing on their property.

Delvecchia Proved an Alibi.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Isidoren Delvecchia, the Italian who was captured by the police in connection with the murder of Luigi Polse, a fellow countryman, has proved a substantial alibi. He was at work with a railroad section gang all day.

Bids For Barge Canal Work.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Since the appearance of advertisements seeking proposals for the construction of the 1,000 ton barge canal requests for plans and specifications have arrived from over 200 contractors all over this country and Canada.

Henrik Ibsen Better.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 2.—Contrary to the report published in London that he is paralyzed, Henrik Ibsen continues to improve, and his condition is now regarded as satisfactory.

NISSEN FOUND DEAD

Body Lay Close to Balloon Boat "Foolkiller."

DROWNED OR FROZEN ON LAKE SHORE

Inventor Started From Chicago In His Rolling, Floating Airship to Cross Lake Michigan—Shot Niagara Rapids In a Barrel.

STEVENSVILLE, Mich., Dec. 2.—Peter Nissen, who started across Lake Michigan from Chicago in his rolling balloon boat called the "Foolkiller No. 3," was found dead on the beach two miles and a half west of here last night. Nissen is supposed to have been washed ashore during the last few hours. His "Foolkiller" was about twenty rods down the beach from the body and was considerably damaged. A life preserver and his overcoat were fastened to the basket shaped car in the boat. The body was brought to Stevensville, where it lies in the town hall. The hands and face are frozen, and the features reflect his sufferings. The clothing on the body was somewhat torn. It is thought that Nissen could not have been dead a great while when the body was found, as rigor mortis had not set in.

The body was found by Mrs. Collier, who lives on a farm near the lake shore. Nissen's employer was notified as soon as word was received here that the body had been found, and a coroner's jury was impaneled and began an inquest. Men have gone from here to bring in the wrecked "Foolkiller No. 3."

It is almost certain that Nissen practically reached shore alive about 4 o'clock, after he had been out of Chicago twenty-four hours. The "Foolkiller No. 3" was then seen about 200 rods from shore, off Livingston, six miles south of Stevensville. A heavy gale was blowing, and it is presumed he was unable to land and was probably tossed about the shore.

It is believed that Nissen was either unconscious or so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to save himself when the "Foolkiller" finally collapsed and that he was drowned.

Nissen had no means of keeping himself warm nor in extremity could he have renewed his supply of air. Warmth and air, so far as the "Foolkiller" was concerned, were beyond the inventor's ken.

He had three days' provisions with him and was confident of crossing the lake, although a storm had whipped the great lake into a tempestuous sea when he made his start.

He was never the same, it is said, since he shot the Niagara rapids and went through the whirlpool in a barrel a few years ago. He believed that that was the greatest thing any one ever did and that it would be eclipsed only by a successful voyage in the "Foolkiller."

Kid Leary Arrested.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Kid Leary, veteran safe blower, who is said to have stolen more than $500,000 in his career, was arrested after a determined resistance. Suspected of complicity in a recent safe blowing in Chicago and two bank robberies in Wisconsin, the police learned of the man's presence in the city. He was surprised while asleep in a rooming house and was unable to reach the weapons secreted in the bed for defense.

Florida Farmer Assassinated.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 2.—John Plummer, a prominent and influential farmer living a few miles northwest of this city, was instantly killed by an unknown assassin. Mr. Plummer was sitting on the front porch of his residence playing a violin and near him was one of his farm hands. The crack of a gun was heard, and Mr. Plummer fell to the floor, expiring in a few moments. There is no clew to the murderer.

A Fight at Zeigler.

DUQUOIN, Ill., Dec. 2.—News has been received here from Zeigler, Ill., that a clash has occurred there between striking miners and armed guards employed by Joseph Leiter to protect the property of the Zeigler Mining company, which has had a strike on its hands for several months. It is reported that two men were killed and four wounded.

Englewood (N. J.) Man Found Dead.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—A man believed from papers found in his possession to be William R. Dorn of Englewood, N. J., was found dead in his room at the Superior hotel. Dorr is said to be a man of considerable wealth and to have a family living in Englewood. His death was caused by heart disease.

Italian Murderer Captured.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 2.—Antonio Benerisco, who is wanted in Philadelphia for the murder on Thanksgiving day of Enrico Ciamochella, was arrested in Risley, Atlantic county, by a squad of Philadelphia policemen. Benerisco admitted his guilt. He was brought to this city to await a requisition.

Lumber Plant Destroyed.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 2.—The planing mill and lumber plant of the A. D. Parr Lumber company was burned to the ground last night. The total loss will reach $50,000. The city water supply was cut off because of the long continued drought, and nothing could be done to save the plant.

Twenty Killed by Poisoned Candy.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Kiev, Russia, announces that twenty persons have lost their lives there through drinking poisoned brandy.

IMAGINATION.

A clothing merchant in the city of London, suffering terrible agony, was carried into a doctor's office. Investigation showed that he had slipped and fallen from a step ladder upon a sharp hook which was placed over the door for the purpose of hanging out cloth. He groaned in agony and complained that he was torn and bleeding to death. While his clothing was removed, his heart grew so weak that it faintly throbbed; but it was found that the hook only pierced his clothing, the man was totally uninjured. When he learned this his pains immediately ceased. His suffering was actually real to him although caused by imagination.

Some people imagine to buy Clothing on credit means higher prices. It is almost impossible to think that the 4,000 accounts that we have opened in the short time being in Plainfield, would be willing to pay higher prices if such was the case. The real fact is that our prices are more than reasonable. One trial is all we ask, and your imagination will cease. CALL AND BE CONVINCED.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

The game scheduled for next Monday evening on the local Y. M. C. A. floor is between the first team of the association and the Newark Y. M. C. A. This game will be a hard one for the local players, as the Newark boys have a reputation which they will try hard to sustain. Other dates scheduled at the Y. M. C. A., are December 12, Y. M. C. A. vs. Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A., December 7, juvenile league game between the Y. M. C. A. juniors and the Plainfield High School seconds; December 13, Business Men vs. Edward Clark Club at Elizabeth.

DIAMOND DUST

Soon after the franchise of the Plainfield A. C. was purchased by a syndicate, it was announced that the Hoboken team would probably be engaged to play Saturday ball in Plainfield next season. There is now a report in circulation that Somerville is after the same team to play in that town. Jack Shaw is at the head of the movement to secure the Hudson county aggregation, and as he pulls a good stroke with Manager Daab it would not be surprising to see his team at the Somerset county seat next year.

Another report heard in baseball circles is that efforts are now being made to have a team in North Plainfield and play fifteen cent ball. The supporters of this movement believe that such a thing would pay, so long as first-class games are arranged.

MOTORMAN COMMITTED

Lewis Drake Must Await Action of Grand Jury.

HEARING GIVEN

Roselle Justice Says Drake Must Remain in County Jail.

Following a hearing in the town hall before a large crowd of people, Lewis Drake, of this city, was yesterday committed to the county jail by Justice VanBrocea, of Roselle, to await the action of the Grand Jury, charged with negligence in running the car that was wrecked Saturday night, causing the death of Charles Tattam, of Jersey City, and injuring many others.

The specific charged was preferred against Drake by John J. Lally, of Jersey City, brother-in-law to Tattam, and a large number of witnesses were examined. Among them were Augustus Johnson and Christopher Jensen, of Aldene; Olaf Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eggers, Mrs. J. C. Mosher and Adolph Carlson, of Cranford, all passengers on the car. Their testimony was almost identical and while it did not tend to show that Drake had been negligent, the justice declared it would be to the best interests of the community to hold the defendant.

Drake was accordingly committed to jail where he had been since the accident occurred and it is not certain as to whether bail will be fixed.

The serving of the supper was supervised by Felix Guibert, who is accredited with being one of the best chefs in this vicinity. John Clark, the president, and William Demler, the vice president of the Club, composed the committee which arranged the affair.

HYDE'S TAXES TO BE CUT

Both Assessor and Committee Deny Responsibilty.

DISPUTE SETTLED

State Board of Taxation to be Asked to Make Reduction of $4,000.

With all the interested persons in attendance and a crowded lobby, the inquiry into the Hyde assessment increase before the Borough Council, last evening, narrowed down to a "Katy did," "Katy didn't" episode. Assessor Cooley, fortified with books and a plan of defense, said the Councilmanic committee had ordered $4,000 additional value put on Frank deL. Hyde's property; the Councilmanic committee insisted that Mr. Cooley had done it of his own accord; Mr. Hyde said Mr. Cooley had told him the Council had ordered it and a lot of questioning by Mayor Smalley and Counsellor Reed only served to bring out the fact that Councilmen Arnold, VanArsdale and VanWinkle said Mr. Cooley was the cause of it all and Mr. Cooley said that these same three were the guilty parties.

The matter might have ended there but for Councilman Lee offering a resolution that the State Board of Taxation be asked to restore the Hyde assessment to the old figure and this was carried. The appeal will have to be made through Mr. Hyde and he announced that he would do so at once.

In beginning the inquiry, Mayor Smalley briefly related the facts of the case, stating that without his knowledge Mr. Hyde's property on Norwood avenue had suddenly been jumped $4,000 in assessing value while there had been no improvements to warrant it. Mr. Hyde did not go before the Commissioners of Appeal to object because Assessor Cooley told him the Council had ordered it done and he thought there was no use. He afterward met the mayor on the street and then spoke of the matter, this being the first that he knew of it.

"I told Mr. Hyde," said the mayor, "that I believed in his stand and saw no reason for the raise, especially as he had just paid into the borough treasury the sum of $1,800 toward macadamizing Norwood avenue. This was an improvement to be sure, but it did not benefit his property any more than it did many others in that section. I believe the assessments on North Plainfield real estate are higher than are properties in many other parts of the county and the assessor and Council should attempt to keep valuations down. I was not present when the assessor's books were gone over and I did not even discuss the matter informally with the committee that did the work."

Mr. Hyde when called upon, simply told of the increase and how Mr. Cooley had informed him it was the Council that had seen fit to put on the $4,000.

"It is my intention to improve the property in that section," he said, "but as yet I have done nothing beyond cutting a road through and aiding to macadamize Norwood avenue. It seems to me it is detrimental to my own interests to put roads through if I am to judge by this increased valuation."

Assessor Cooley was then asked to present his side of the case and he replied by saying:

"I have been accused of stating falsehoods. Under the circumstances I should first like to have it proved that I committed a falsehood before saying anything in defense."

This led to a statement from Mr. Arnold in which he declared that as he was going over the assessor's books in company with Councilmen VanArsdale and VanWinkle he noticed the $4,000 Hyde increase. When Mr. Cooley was asked about it he explained that up to that time the Hyde property had been taxed on Belmont avenue and that it had been transferred to Norwood avenue, the streets running parallel and but 150 feet apart. At this juncture Mr. VanArsdale said all three councilmen agreed on passing the assessment as it was set forth and Mr. Arnold then continued:

"The assessor is elected by the people to assess property and he should have the proper judgment to do it. It's his business and not ours and that is why I am willing to confirm."

Mr. Cooley then gave his explanation, which in brief was that Mr. Arnold had ordered the assessment on Norwood avenue because the borough had expended money in repairing it. In answer to a question put by Counsellor Reed he said the $4,000 had been suggested by him after the councilmen had indicated where cer-

MISS EDITH FISK'S DEBUT

Brilliant Reception in Honor of Mrs. Fisk's Daughter.

CHARMING FUNCTION

Lavish Profusion of Floral Decorations at Affair Attended by Exclusive Society Folk.

Miss Edith Fisk, daughter of Mrs. Chapman Fisk, was presented to society at a charming reception given yesterday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Fisk home on West Seventh street. It was the second society event of the season, closely following the brilliant coming out party for Miss Virginia Hegeman, at the Park Club. Yesterday's affair was largely attended by society folk from Plainfield and North Plainfield and many distant points who welcomed the fair debutante in hearty fashion.

The home was lavishly decorated with flowers, there being a profusion of roses, violets, orchids, carnations and smilax, all of which were attractively arranged and banked in the reception hall and dining room. Miss Fisk was the recipient of numerous floral gifts, many being American Beauty roses and violets.

Mrs. Fisk and her daughter were both gowned in white silk and assisting them in receiving were Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk, Mrs. Benjamin Arrowsmith Hegeman, Mrs. David H. Rowland, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, Miss Florence Waring, Miss Virginia Hegeman, Miss Grace Kaufman, Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Georgiana H. Smith, of this city; Miss Elizabeth Richmond, of Scranton, Pa., and Miss Regis Smith, of Philadelphia, all of whom were beautiful gowns.

During the hours for the reception Austin's orchestra, of Brooklyn, discoursed a fine programme of music.

Following the reception a dance was given at the Casino in honor of Miss Fisk, where even a large number of guests were present than at the afternoon affair. The assembly room was resplendent in decorations consisting of varied colored streamers suspended from the center of the hall, and beautiful flowers were banked about the stage. The flowers included roses, palms, orchids and carnations. Behind this bank of flowers was seated the orchestra which gave an attractive programme of music for the dances.

There were guests at the dance from New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Savannah, Boston and Woodstock, Vermont, besides those from this city and the borough. Altogether the affair was one of the most brilliant of the kind held here in several years, bringing together so many prominent society people. Miss Fisk is a favorite among the members of the younger society both here and in New York, as the honors bestowed yesterday afternoon and evening attested. A great many of those who attended Miss Hegeman's debut a week ago were numbered among the guests at yesterday's affair.

MISSIONARY WORKERS HEAR GOOD REPORTS

YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND OF TRINITY CHURCH MEETS.

Interesting reports were received at the monthly meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, held yesterday afternoon, in the lecture room of the church. The committee on domestic missions stated that a box of useful articles, valued at $35, had been sent to a Sunday-school in Michigan.

Mrs. F. S. Cutter, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported the net proceeds from the supper recently given, to be $42. Mrs. H. F. Crawford, who was a delegate to the anniversary exercises of the Woman's Executive Committee of the Board of Domestic Missions, gave an excellent report on that meeting held in the Madison Avenue Reformed church, New York. Mrs. Cornelius Schenck supplemented Mrs. Crawford's report by a few remarks bearing on the meeting.

It was suggested that members of the band who are sending regularly magazines to missionaries, remember them at Christmas time with a letter or a souvenir card of Trinity Reformed church.

New Pastor at 'Plains.

BOROUGH AFTER P. S. C.

The North Plainfield Council Orders Bill to be Collected.

TO ENFORCE PAYMENT

P. S. C. Refuses to Bear Its Share of Cost of Street Improvement—Other Proceedings.

In the transaction of regular business at the Borough Council meeting, last evening, the Public Service Corporation was rapped over the knuckles because of its refusing to pay a bill of $197.16 as its share of repair work done on Somerset street from February 1 to November 1.

Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, declared that he encountered trouble every year when these payments were asked for and he offered a resolution that the borough counsel be instructed to take the necessary steps to collect the money. The borough owes the Corporation $400 for lights and Mr. Lee suggested that it be taken out of this account but his motion was lost on vote. Mr. Arnold's resolution was carried and Counsel Reed announced that he would proceed at once to bring the trolley people to terms. As near as could be learned, the objection to the payment was made because none of the officials had noticed any of the work being done.

Several appointments were maide by Mayor Smalley and afterward confirmed by the Council as follows: Edward Terry, as captain of No. 2 Hose Company, to fill a vacancy; James D. Frazer, as a call man in the fire department and Brooks Carson as a special marshal. It was reported the Public Service Corporation had granted the borough's request for a free light in front of police headquarters and also that $7 in fines had been collected in the department during November.

A petition from residents of Stone street for a hydrant on that thoroughfare between Greenbrook road and Union street, was referred. Chairman Arnold reported the expenditure of $163 05 on streets during the month and on motion of Mr. VanArsdale a "held-up" bill of $12.50 from the Manganese Steel Safe Company, for placing a lock on a door at police headquarters, was ordered paid.

COLUMBIA LODGE, A.O.U.W., ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

ENTERTAINS RARITAN AND CENTRAL LODGES AS WELL.

Raritan Lodge, Ancient Order United Workmen, of New Brunswick, and Central Lodge, of this city, were entertained by Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., last night, in an enjoyable manner. Prior to entering into the festivities of the evening Columbia Lodge elected these officers for the ensuing year:

Past Master Workman, Merton Lunger; master workman, John G. Bicknell; foreman, Charles Wilson; overseer, Clarence Leland; recorder, Robert Loughlin; receiver, Henry Leifke; financier, V. W. Nash, Jr.; guide, Peter Doeringer; inside watchman, Frank Putnam; outside watchman, Michael Koller; trustees, Caleb Mills and Charles Delahunt; organist, Clarence Leland; representatives to Grand Lodge, V. W. Nash and J. W. A. Bauersachs; alternates, W. A. Woodruff and Richard Kenney.

After the election and transaction of other business there were a number of short addresses by the visiting and local members of the order, including Henry Leifke and V. W. Nash. Some time was devoted to the subject of the assessment plan adopted by the order, there being arguments for and against it. It is quite likely that this matter will come up before the Grand Lodge at its next session.

Following the speeches, the members and guests all adjourned to E. H. Cleveley's banquet room on North avenue, where a fine repast was served.

Rural Service Delay.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird has as yet received no word from Washington as to the successful applicant who recently took the examination for the new rural free delivery route. It was reported that the new route was to be opened December 15 and another report fixes the date as January 1 However, Postmaster Bird expects to get a report soon. There were three persons who took the examination. This route extends through Watchung, Warrenville, Mt. Bethel, Coontown and adjacent places.

CITY LIGHTING IS FREE

P. S. C. Has Not Withdrawn Privilege From City.

OFFICIAL'S STATEMENT

Departments May Use As Much Electric Light As Desired, But No Illuminating Gas.

Somewhat of a misunderstanding seems to exist relative to the action of the Public Service Corporation in serving notice upon the city that it can no longer use illuminating gas without paying for it. When the Common Council received the notice, much indignation was expressed against the concern for cutting off a privilege which the municipality has enjoyed for years.

When seen by a reporter for The Daily Press today, W. R. Causbrook, superintendent of the local plant, said in explanation of the company's action: "The Public Service Corporation intends to be very liberal with Plainfield and it has been so in the past. Light will be furnished free of charge and as much of it as the city wants."

Continuing Superintendent Causbrook said: "Every department of the city government is furnished with electric lights and they can be burned all night if desired. Furthermore they can burn as many at a time as they see fit. But it is only fair that both electric light and gas should not be used together. If they have electric light what need is there for gas? The fact is gas has been used for heating water for baths and this concession was never intended. I can not see that the city has any cause for complaint."

NO SPECIAL ELECTION

Opinion That Assembly Vacancy Will Not Be Filled.

UNNECESSARY EXPENSE

Cost of Choosing One to Take Mr. Embree's Place in Union's Delegation Would be $8,000.

According to the concensus of opinion there will be no special election held to fill the Assembly vacancy from Union County caused by the death of Assemblyman-elect George H. Embree at Westfield. The Governor has the power to issue a proclamation calling for a special election fifteen days prior to the convening of the Legislature, if he deems it necessary, and in case he fails to do this and the Board of Freeholders of the county think that such action is necessary, it can pass a resolution asking the Governor to issue such a decree.

As the Republicans have such a large majority in the lower house of the Legislature, and there are no very important measures to come up this winter calling for a full vote, it is more than likely that the vacancy will not be filled. The expense for a special election would be $8,000 and this would be entirely unnecessary under the circumstances.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, of Norwood Avenue, Celebrate Event.

Together with a large number of friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, of Norwood avenue, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding Thursday evening.

Shortly after the arrival of the guests a dinner was served, at the conclusion of which Mr. Bennett started the evening's programme with a humorous song. The remainder of the evening was spent with music and recitations. Among those who took part was Miss Florence Bennett, the soprano soloist of Trinity church, who rendered several solos in a delightful manner. Mr. Young, a prominent tenor, also sang, while Mr. Hargraves' humorous recitations were most enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs Bennett received many costly silver presents in token of the good wishes of their numerous guests.

Notice to Taxpayers.

The resignation of Frank H. Smith as collector takes effect this day and Robert L. Lee, who has been appointed collector by the Common Council, enters upon the duties of the office this day, taxpayers are requested to draw checks for taxes to the order of Collector of the City of Plainfield.

HITS MODERATE DRINKERS

Rev. Gideon M. Shott Says All Who Indulge Are Hogs.

RADICAL TALK

Minister Says That Liquor Sellers Should Be Indicted for Manslaughter.

Under the auspices of the Good Citizenship Club, of the First Baptist church, of Morristown, the Rev. Gideon M. Shott, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, delivered a pungent temperance talk Thursday night, in which he scathed the moderate drinker, the society men and women, the clubs and Bishop Potter.

In speaking of the moderate drinker, the Rev. Mr. Shott said:

"This moderate drinker boasts that he can outdrink his weaker brother, whom he calls the sot; that he never draws a sober breath, yet never staggers or reels in the street, but like the effects from Oriental feasting, he becomes a dreamer of impure dreams. The horror of this moderate drinker is that he is admitted in the best of society. Although you can smell his breath across a room notwithstanding the most odorous perfume, yet he is looked upon as a man, and much more decent than the poor fellow who stands at the bar until drunk.

"But I hear some one say, yes, I drink, but do not make a public hog of myself. Well, the only difference between this one and the one in the gutter is a difference of hogs. There is the club hog, the society hog, and the hog that wallows in the gutter.

"I have come to the conclusion after twenty-five years of study on this temperance problem that a law should be made making it a crime of manslaughter to sell drink to a man. It's nothing but a slow poisoning which surely kills in time. This social drinking is as much manslaughter as to give rum to the drunkard."

Referring to Bishop Potter's Subway Tavern, the minister said that the Potter cocktails made you as drunk as any other kind sold at any other place. This higher criticism or new theology, he said, comes from German theologians who were slaves to the black bottle.

COMMITTED SUICIDE FOR UNKNOWN REASON

YOUNG COLORED MAN KILLS HIMSELF WITH A REVOLVER.

Lying on the floor of his room at 56 Elm place, the body of Henry Kelso, a well known colored man, was found by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Kelso, early last evening. A bullet wound in the right temple and a .33 calibre revolver by his side was evidence that he had committed suicide The body was removed to Cole's undertaking parlors and a burial permit was granted by the county physician.

According to Kelso's landlady, Mrs. Walley, he came home Wednesday night and went immediately to his room. Shortly afterward Mrs. Gideon Austin, another boarder, heard a shot and a heavy sound as if a body had fallen but she attached no importance to the occurrence. Kelso's absence was noted yesterday and his sister-in-law, who lives next door, was apprised of the noise that Mrs. Austin heard. She at once went to Kelso's room and found the body.

Relatives of Kelso informed the police they knew of no reason why he should have killed himself. He was twenty-nine years old and had lived in this city nearly all his life. For a long time he was employed by John Tier but of late had no settled occupation.

ASSEMBLYMAN IS DEAD

George H. Embree Succumbs to Typhoid-Pneumonia.

ILL THREE WEEKS

Hard Work During the Campaign Caused Illness Which Terminated Fatally—Career of Westfielder.

George Hoffman Embree, who was one of the three Republican Assemblymen chosen at the last general election, died yesterday afternoon at his home in Westfield, from typhoid-pneumonia. He had been ill three weeks, and it was the opinion that the hard work of the campaign was largely responsible for it. He was generally popular among his townsmen and received the full vote of his ticket.

Mr. Embree was born in 1862 in Brooklyn and moved to Westfield in 1872, where he lived the rest of his life. In business he was the sole New York agent for the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, having held the position for many years. In politics he was always a Republican. In 1896 he was elected town committeeman of Westfield, serving three years, the last of which he was chairman of the Board. Last year he was appointed Freeholder, holding that position one year. He was also town treasurer and chairman of the Republican Executive Committee.

Mr. Embree was a member of St. Paul's church, Westfield, being the junior warden at the time of his death. He was also a member of Fireside Council, No 715, Royal Arcanum, the Westfield Club, the Westfield Baseball Association, and for twenty years was treasurer of the Fairview Cemetery Association. He leaves a wife and two children, a son twelve years old, and a daughter fourteen years old.

The funeral services will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church, of which Mr. Embree was junior warden, on Monday afternoon and interment will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Members of the county and city committees are asked to be in attendance at the funeral.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

JOHN H. DOANE TO DISPOSE OF HIS SHOE STOCK.

John H. Doane brother of Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, one of Plainfield's best known merchants, having been engaged in the shoe business here for himself for twenty years, has decided to retire for the present after he disposes of his stock at his store corner of West Front street and Madison avenue. A. E. & A. L. Giddes, formerly of Bound Brook, where they conducted a boot and shoe business, and for the last three years manufacturers of men's pants in this city, have leased Mr. Doane's store and they will take possession about January 1.

Mr. Doane does not know at present just what he will do after January 1, but he has several things in view. His idea is to engage in some business where he is not so closely confined as he has been troubled with insomnia and it has commenced to work on his nervous system. Mr. Doane will start his sale the last of next week and continue the same until the new firm takes possession the first of the year.

AUTOISTS' INHUMAN ACT

Placed Injured Boy on Porch and Hurried Away.

LIVE IN ORANGE

Victim, Seven-Year-Old Francis Barry, of Duer Street, in Serious Condition—Police on Case.

With a broken collar bone and possible internal injuries, Francis Barry, the seven-year-old son of William Barry, of Duer street, was yesterday picked up by the four occupants of an automobile which had knocked him down and left conscious on the porch of a nearby residence. Seemingly devoid of all sympathy or feeling for the child, they then re-entered the vehicle and rode rapidly away. The borough police are making an effort to learn the identity of the party and have several clues which will undoubtedly have the desired effect.

The boy was returning home from school and at Somerset street and Greenbrook road, started to cross. Coming down Somerset street, at a high rate of speed was a large auto, said to be a Winton and according to witnesses, driven by a chauffeur who was paying but little attention to the road. It bore down upon the child almost before he knew of its approach and he was struck squarely. He was thrown into the air and fell on his head, but luckily clear of the machine.

The auto was stopped and the members of the party, four young men, picked the boy up. They carried him to the porch of Mrs. Wyckoff's residence opposite the scene of the accident and without notifying anyone went away. People who had witnessed the affair carried the little victim to his home and he is now under the care of Dr. Clawson.

So far as can be learned, the machine hailed from East Orange and the young men were returning from a dinner at Pedeflous'.

CALVIN BOICE BURIED.

Funeral Services Held at New Market Home.

Funeral services over the remains of Calvin Boice were held from his late residence at New Market yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblies, pastor of the First Baptist church, of this city, conducted the service and spoke with much sympathy and impressive force of the believer's faith in Christ. Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church, New Market, offered prayer.

Interment was made at Evergreen Cemetery here. The pall-bearers were Dr. J. B. Probasco and Benjamin J. Shreve, of this city; John Stelle, of New Market and Irving Stelle, of East Orange.

Baseball Pennant Presented.

The presentation of the pennant to the Westfield Baseball Association was the feature of an entertainment given at the Westfield Club last night. Charles H. Frost presented the pennant with a few remarks, expressing regrets that it was not won by the Plainfield team. Manager Charles H. Denman, of the winning team, accepted the gift in a happy speech, adding that he hoped next year would be bigger and brighter than ever in the local baseball field. During the evening an excellent entertainment was given by the Thespian Dramatic Company, of Boston.

Stop Teachers' Annuities.

Because of a report made at the meeting of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association Saturday in New York, that the teachers' retirement fund was unable to pay twenty-one applicants their annuities, educators all over the state are agitated, and a demand will be made at the annual meeting of the organization, December 27, 28 and 29, in Trenton for the adoption of resolutions calling for an investigation of the fund.

Special Musical Service.

There will be a special musical service at the First Presbyterian church tomorrw night under the direction of Clifford Braider, organist. It will be an evening with composition of Harry Rowe Shelley and Robert D. Brown, tenor, of St. Bartholomew's church, New York, will assist in the service.

Communion Services Tomorrow.

Preparatory services were held last evening at Trinity Reformed church and Warren chapel, and the regular covenant meeting was held at the First Baptist church. At each of these churches communion services will be held tomorrow morning.

IRVING BACHELLER

OUR NEXT SERIAL
Is a stirring and delightful story of the North Country Mr. Bacheller loves so well. It is a tale of the days when the French emigres, fleeing from the Reign of Terror, built their chateaux and mansions in the northern counties of New York; the days when England tried issue again with the young republic, and when Darius Olin, quaint, rugged, wise and at all times truthful, with young Ramon Bell, two types of the men who helped to make America, rode into the Lake Champlain region to adventure, love and danger. It is a rare story of Yankee valor, Yankee humor, Yankee pluck.

NOTES OF SPORT.

Racing at Bennings—Britt-Nelson Fight at San Francisco.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—W. E. Schutt, the Rhodes scholarship student from Cornell at Oxford university, at the Brasenose sports won four events, the 100 yard dash in 11 2-5 seconds, the quarter mile run in 53 3-5 seconds, the one mile run in 5 minutes and 7 seconds and throwing the weight 27 feet 5 inches. Schutt has been selected as a member of the Oxford team for the Oxford-Cambridge cross country run, which will occur Dec. 10.

Britt-Nelson Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—It has been practically decided that William Roche will referee the fight between James Britt and "Battling" Nelson, which will take place in this city on Dec. 20 next. The Britt faction asked for Edward Graney. Theodore Murphy, manager for Nelson, agreed to this, with the understanding that should Graney not accept Roche would be chosen.

Racing at Bennings.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The favorites were beaten in every race except the third at Bennings, in which Bohemia, at 4 to 5, won. The greatest surprise was at the close, when James F. and Marjoram, in the order named, defeated Ostrich, the hot first choice, in a four horse race.

Dane Beat Piening.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—H. H. Egeberg of Denmark defeated John Piening of New York by two falls out of three in a wrestling bout, Greco-Roman style, in the Harlem River casino last night. Three thousand persons saw the contest.

Kid Sullivan Won.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3.—Kid Sullivan of Washington was given the decision over Tommy Daly of this city at the expiration of a hard fifteen round bout before the Eureka Athletic club last night.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Danny Maher, the jockey, who has been riding in Europe for some time, returned to New York on the steamer Baltic.

MAD ARMENIAN SHOT.

Held Police Posse at Bay With Revolver Shots Until Killed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—After holding twenty policemen at bay for over half an hour with a 44 caliber revolver and a keen edged Turkish scimitar, Carabed Kirkorian, a maddened Armenian, was shot to death on the first floor of the candy factory at 361 Wythe avenue, Brooklyn, by Policeman Fallon.

Before the shot which brought him down was fired Kirkorian fired more than thirty shots at the police and at citizens who tried to assist in his capture. With his pistol in one hand he blazed away at the policemen, while with scimitar in the other he tried to batter down the door of a room in which the owner of the factory, Sarsaen Shavesian, his wife and little daughter had taken refuge.

He had sworn to kill Shavesian and exterminate his family because the candy manufacturer had laid him off for a few weeks on account of the dullness of business, and he did his best to make good his threat.

French Fire on Moroccо Tribesmen.

TANGIER, Morocco, Dec. 3.—The Beni M'Suar tribesmen have again attacked the guard in the vicinity of Mr. Harris' house, killed one man and took the rifles and ammunition of the others. Mr. Harris, who was last year made a prisoner by Raisuli and ransomed, is now in Tangier. The British legation has notified the government that it will be held responsible for any damage to the house of Mr. Harris. A boat's crew from the French warship Kleber last night fired several volleys at the Beni M'Suars from the water front opposite Mr. Harris' house.

Mrs. Baagoe to Stay In Sanitarium.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—After a long conference which followed a hearing on the petition for a writ of habeas corpus, asked for by Mrs. Emma Christensen and her daughter, Mrs. Ophelia Mathias of Brooklyn, N. Y., to obtain the release of Mrs. Dagmar Baagoe, Mrs. Christensen's daughter, from a sanitarium in Worcester, Judge S. Braley, in the supreme judicial court, decided that for the present Mrs. Baagoe should remain in Worcester, under the care of Dr. John M. Bemis, the superintendent of the sanitarium.

"Big Frank" Exonerated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—"Big Frank" Felton, Tenderloin poolroom proprietor, was exonerated by the coroner's jury after an inquest into the death of Guy Roche, the gambler whom Felton shot on Broadway on Thanksgiving afternoon. On the strength of testimony given by a patron of his poolroom the jury found that Felton had acted in self defense.

Bank of Liberty Dynamited.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 3.—Telegrams received here both from Greensboro and Jonesboro state that the bank of Liberty, Randolph county, N. C., has been blown open by dynamite and robbed. It is understood that $3,000 were secured by the thieves, who, according to the latest report, were fleeing toward Greensboro with a posse in pursuit.

Big Fire at Dupont, Pa.

DUPONT, Pa., Dec. 3.—A fire which at one time threatened the entire town occurred here. The following properties were destroyed: Samuel Joseph's general store, Charles Somers' wholesale liquor house, Henry Friends' restaurant and three dwelling houses. The loss is estimated at $35,000.

CHADWICK PUZZLE.

Bankruptcy Proceedings Now Taken by Creditors.

RECEIVER APPOINTED AT CLEVELAND

Called a Female "Napoleon of Finance" In Wall Street, Where Police Had to Disperse Mob—Settlement Said to Have Failed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—New and startling developments have occurred in the affairs of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, a society woman of Cleveland, O., who has achieved so much notoriety during the last few days in connection with claims for large amounts brought against her by many persons, followed by allegations that she was connected in some way with the notorious clairvoyant, Mme. Devere.

Jacques Krakauer of New York has filed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy against Mrs. Chadwick in the federal court at Cleveland, O. Krakauer is a dealer in laces and embroidery. He claims $600 to be due him from Mrs. Chadwick. The names of George Couch, a liveryman of Cleveland, and H. F. Potter, a merchant, were also signed to the petition on claims of $300 and $200 respectively.

The petitioners set forth that the giving of a note to the Elyria bank by Mrs. Chadwick while she was indebted to them constituted an act of insolvency.

Later in the day Nathan Loeser of Cleveland was appointed receiver for all the property of every kind and description belonging to Mrs. Chadwick. The receiver was appointed by Referee Harold Remington, who was empowered to act in the absence of United States District Judge Wing. Referee Remington fixed the bond of Mr. Loeser at $10,000. The latter is an attorney. The plaintiffs in their petition declare "that within four months preceding the filing of this petition, while insolvent, Mrs. Chadwick paid to D. Wheaton & Son of Cleveland $700, with intent to prefer Wheaton over other creditors." The Wheatons are meat dealers at 2245 Euclid avenue, Cleveland.

It has been announced by a New York lawyer identified with the affairs of Mrs. Chadwick that a friend has come to her rescue and will pay the claim of $190,800, made by Herbert B. Newton of Brookline, Mass.

Just who the mysterious person is who has come to Mrs. Chadwick's aid at this critical time is known only to two persons, the lawyer who gave the information and Mrs. Chadwick herself. Neither of these will disclose his identity. That it is a man is admitted, and that he is a man of wealth goes without saying, for it takes a man of wealth to shoulder even a single one of this amazing woman's obligations.

Mrs. Chadwick has proved that she is a woman of resource and nerve. To foil the crowd that blocked the entrance of 54 Wall street, where she visited yesterday the offices of Butler, Notman, Joline & Mynderse, who are supposed to be Andrew Carnegie's lawyers, Mrs. Chadwick got out of the fifth story window of that building to the roof of an adjoining structure and escaped unobserved by reporters or by the police squad summoned to control the curious throng.

There were stories current here last night to the effect that there had been a hitch in the settlement of the Newton suit.

RUSSIANS FAILED

Besiegers Repulsed Attempt to Retake Meter Hill.

ST. PETERSBURG PREPARES FOR END

Japanese Mounting Heavy Guns to Sweep City—Stoessel's Friends Say He Will Not Yield Even If So Ordered.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Advices from Tokyo say that concentrating almost all their entire available force in the forts at Port Arthur the Russians under General Stoessel have made a determined but unsuccessful assault upon Two Hundred and Three Meter hill, just captured by the Japanese. The Japanese met the oncoming Russians with the same determination and recklessness that has marked their fighting since the siege of Port Arthur began.

The Russians, to strengthen their forces, drafted sailors from the battleships hemmed in in the harbor.

The Japanese met the assault with fury. Shell and shrapnel plowed through the ranks of the ragged, weak and half-starved Russian troops, but on they came, and then began the hand to hand conflicts that have continued since the assault on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill began. The Japanese, armed with swords and bayonets and outnumbering by many times the Russians, met the oncoming forces, slew many and then drove the remnant back to the inner strongholds of the city.

With the confirmation of the news at St. Petersburg that the Japanese have occupied Two Hundred and Three Meter hill and the report that the Russians unsuccessfully attempted its recapture, officials at the war office are beginning to prepare themselves for the inevitable. Golden hill and Liaoti hill are higher and dominate Two Hundred and Three Meter hill, but the officials say that if the Japanese succeed in mounting heavy guns upon the latter it probably will be only a question of days or weeks before the fortress falls. Still there is not the slightest idea among General Stoessel's friends that he will surrender, even if he should be ordered to do so. It is hinted that it is possible that if the fall of the fortress is shown to be inevitable the emperor may direct its surrender in order to prevent the unnecessary sacrifice of the remnant of its brave defenders. But it is believed by those who know General Stoessel best that he will literally make good his threat to hold out to the last man and the last cartridge in Port Arthur.

The ships in the harbor of Port Arthur, it can now be stated on high authority, are in no condition to attempt to break through the investing squadron. The guns of the warships were long ago landed, and the marines and sailors have been participating in the land defense. Some of the ships also have been injured by shells. If the fortress falls it is understood they will be taken outside and sunk in deep water in order to prevent the possibility of their ever being of service to the enemy.

A Mukden dispatch says that General Rennenkampf has hotly pursued a Japanese detachment below Sintsintin as far as the Taitse river, and on the Russian right scouts have explored the Hun river below Liaoyang. All the passes fell into Rennenkampf's hands.

Nissen Died From Neuroparalysis.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Peter Nissen, whose dead body and the wreck of the canvas bag in which he rolled across Lake Michigan were found near Stevensville, Mich., died as a result of exposure and shock, according to the finding of a coroner's jury. Dr. John S. Beers gave it as his belief that Nissen had reached the shore alive, but that he was terribly exhausted from lack of air and that when he began cutting his way out of his queer craft he died from neuroparalysis the moment he struck the cold air.

Japanese Favor Peace Proposals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Mr. Hioki, the Japanese charge d'affaires, called at the state department and informed Assistant Secretary Loomis that the Japanese government had received the invitation of the American government for a second conference at The Hague and that the invitation would be promptly presented to the diet. The intimation is that the proposition meets with Japanese favor.

Woman's Suffrage Bill Passed.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Dec. 3.—The senate has passed the woman's municipal suffrage bill. The measure will now go to the house. Governor Bell has sent to the senate for confirmation the names of J. E. Cushman of Burlington for tax commissioner and Luther A. Cobb of Island Pond for inspector of finance.

TENNESSEE LAUNCHED.

Governor Frazier and Party Witness Big Cruiser's Plunge.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—Governor James B. Frazier, accompanied by his wife, his staff and a party of Tennesseans, participated in the launching of the United States armored cruiser Tennessee from Cramps' shipyards this morning. Miss Annie Keith Frazier, the governor's daughter, acted as sponser.

Accompanied by her friend, Miss E Murray, they reached the city shortly before the governor arrived. The young ladies came direct from Tarrytown, N. Y., where they are attending school. The entire party is staying at the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford. The governor received a cordial welcome as he and his party entered the stand erected at the ship's bow. An orchestra struck up "Dixie," which was the cause of much enthusiasm.

A large party of Washington officials attended the launching ceremonies. After the great vessel left the ways the Cramp company entertained about 600 of its guests at luncheon.

The cruiser was gay with flags and streamers as it glided into the water.

The Tennessee is a new type of high class, heavy fighting cruiser of 14,500 tons displacement and one of the most formidable vessels of her class ever constructed. In all but a few details the Tennessee is a sister ship to the Colorado and the Pennsylvania. The contract price for the hull and machinery is $4,000,000.

A SEA LEVEL CANAL.

Congressional Committee Favors a Convention With Panama.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling has arrived here from San Francisco en route to Washington and met the congressional committee under Chairman Hepburn, just returned from Panama on the United States transport Sumner. In charge of a committee from the Progressive union the party will make an inspection of the Mississippi river levee system, the United States naval drydock and the harbor at New Orleans.

The members of the congressional committee were astonished at the progress and possibilities of the canal at Panama, but believe that it would take more time and money than at first anticipated. Most of them seemed to favor a sea level canal. They say also that all differences with Panama would be amicably adjusted, several members favoring a commercial and postal convention between the countries.

All agreed that the United States would have to maintain order and protect the labor during the canal work. The party will leave for Washington tonight to be present at the opening of congress.

Reichstag After the Trusts.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—The reichstag after two days' debate adopted a resolution asking the government to introduce a bill for the protection of the middle commercial classes against great accumulations of capital in the retail trade. The resolution contemplates a further extension of the law against unfair competition and the regulation of closing out sales, so as to prevent bogus advertisements, and also seeks a remedy against the hardships caused by sales on the installment plan.

Destroyers Like the Tarantula.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Yarrow & Co., shipbuilders, have stated that owing to the great success of the high speed yacht Tarantula, now owned by W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., they partially completed two similar boats which might be fitted finally as either torpedo boats or yachts. They declined many tempting offers to sell them as torpedo boats because it was suspected they would be transferred to a belligerent.

Wants Court to Stop Wife Talking.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Injunction to prevent his wife from talking was asked today in the circuit court by Thomas P. Wood, a carpenter. In defending his own name from alleged scandal, Wood declares he is also acting for the good of Mrs. Margaret Watson. He fears, he says, that his wife will tell things about him to the members of secret societies to which they belong.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Holiday Goods Moving Freely.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of the trade says:

Holiday goods are moving freely, and in staple lines there is more activity, even the products that are between seasons finding a fair market. Packing and shipping departments are increasing forces, and traffic congestion at several points indicates that the growth of business has overtaxed railway facilities. Earning of all roads reporting for November show an average gain of 7.1 per cent over last.

Weather conditions have favored jobbing and retail distributions of heavy wearing apparel, and also accelerated the marketing of new corn, but there is not sufficient moisture for winter wheat or coke production. A record breaking yield of cotton is bringing the price nearer the point at which normal consumption may be resumed, although there is still much idle machinery at Fall River. Other manufacturing news is most gratifying, especially regarding the leading lines.

November insolvencies were most encouraging. Total liabilities of all commercial failures were smaller than in any previous month this year, except June, and that difference was unimportant, while losses last month were less than in the corresponding month of any year in the preceding decade, with the exception of 1898 and 1899.

Manufacturing failures numbered 217 against 267 last year and involved a defaulted indebtedness of $3,540,983 compared with $6,049,207 in 1903. Trading defaults were 618 in number and $3,929,143 in amount against 845 last year for $8,120,271. Other commercial failures, not properly included in either of the foregoing divisions, were 29, with liabilities of $1,065,333, compared with 50 a year ago for $2,252,831.

Boston Herald Barred Forecasts.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—J. W. Smith of this city, the district forecaster of the United States weather bureau, has received orders from the weather department at Washington forbidding the delivery by him of weather forecasts, maps, etc., to the Boston Herald. By these orders all weather information disseminated by the weather bureau is withheld from the Herald newspaper.

Bribery In Land Frauds Case.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 3.—In the land fraud trial here J. W. Heidricks of Detroit, Mich., told a story of how he was induced to countenance crime by the acceptance of a bribe which, he said, was paid him by S. A. D. Puter, one of the defendants in the case.

MRS. GILBERT DEAD

Aged Actress Passed Away at Chicago.

HER LAST THOUGHT FOR LITTLE ONES

Fatal Stroke of Apoplexy Came While She Appeared to Be In Good Health—Was Merry Until Almost the Last.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Mrs. George Henry Gilbert, the oldest actress on the American stage, is dead in her rooms at the Sherman House. Death came shortly after she had suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

Mrs. Gilbert received the stroke while she was alone with her maid. The maid first sought to lift her to a couch, then, realizing that the attack was a grave one, she left the actress where she had fallen and summoned the house physician, Dr. J. T. Owen. He pronounced the condition of Mrs. Gilbert critical.

Mrs. Gilbert's Chicago engagement in Clyde Fitch's play, "Granny," began at Powers theater last Monday, and until now the venerable actress had appeared to be in her usual health.

Mrs. Gilbert died of cerebral apoplexy. She lived but an hour and a half after being stricken. The attack is said by the attending physician to have been due directly to the shock of a cold water bath.

The end came without a struggle. There was a smile upon her face as she breathed her last. About her stood her maid, Mrs. Margaret Sweeney; Harry Powers, Frank E. Aiken, manager of the theater, and the attending physicians.

Three hours before her death Mrs. Gilbert had risen and declared she intended to devote the day to shopping.

"I must get out and buy Christmas presents for the child actors and actresses of New York," she said to her maid.

"But, Mrs. Gilbert," expostulated the maid, "it is snowing."

"What does a girl of my age care for snow?" replied Mrs. Gilbert, and she went to take her usual cold bath—a bath as cold as the natural temperature of the water would afford. As she emerged from the bathroom she said to her maid: "Please call for Dr. Owen; I feel ill. The lights look strange, and it is growing dark."

A spasm seemed to seize Mrs. Gilbert, and she became unconscious. Just as the clocks were striking 12 Mrs. Gilbert died.

Following a consultation between Harry J. Powers and Charles Bulkley, Mrs. Gilbert's personal manager, who is also a representative of Charles Frohman, it has been decided to take the body to New York. The start will be made over the Erie railroad at 11:30 a. m. today.

Boy Near Death From Burns.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Judson Rosengrant, thirteen years old, son of Rev. E. J. Rosengrant, narrowly escaped being burned to death while his parents were attending a revival meeting here. The lad and his younger sister were left alone at home. While the boy was attempting to turn off the gas the sleeve of his canton flannel nightgown caught fire, and instantly he was enveloped in flames. The little girl rushed to his room and extinguished the fire by wrapping her brother in bedclothing. He was badly burned and is still in a precarious condition.

Wreck on Pennsylvania.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Dec. 3.—While running fifty miles an hour northbound passenger train No. 27 on the Pennsylvania road last night ran into a construction train about two miles north of this city, instantly killing three trainmen, fatally injuring at least one other and inflicting slight injuries upon a score of passengers. The passenger coaches did not leave the track, and none of the passengers were badly injured. Fireman Achenbach's body was burned to a crisp in his engine before the rescuers could reach him.

Run on Buffalo Bank Over.

BUFFALO, Dec. 3.—When the German-American bank opened its doors there were about twenty persons in line. All were paid promptly. Vice President Schelling stated that the bank had the assurance of the clearing house and of every individual bank in Buffalo that they would support the German-American bank, if necessary, with $2,500,000.

Charged With Taking Union Funds.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 3.—James R. Wilson has been arrested here charged with embezzling $98 belonging to the funds of the Central Labor union, of which organization he is financial secretary. The complaint was made by William Burt on behalf of a committee appointed some time ago to investigate Wilson's accounts.

Hotel Steward a Suicide.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 3.—Raoul Larscenneux, twenty-eight years old, steward at the Hollenden hotel in this city, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head last night. No known cause can be assigned for the deed. Larscenneux and his wife had just dined together.

Steerage Passenger Jumps Overboard.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Jabo Sulkava, a steerage passenger from Finland, on Nov. 25 jumped overboard from the steamer Chemnitz, which arrived here from Bremen. Boats were sent out to search for the man, but no trace of him was found. The cause of his act is not known.

tain plots of ground should be increased to make this aggregate. He exhibited his books and pointed out where the alterations frm his original figures had been made. Continuing the explanation he told how Norwood and Belmont avenues were adjacent to each other and how it was that in previous years no Norwood avenue assessment had been made

Mr. Lee's resolution ended further discussion but before adjourning Mayor Smalley said:

"I hope the assessor will try to keep down valuations in the borough as these increases are detrimental to property interests. Mr. Cooley's suggestion that the Council take exact note of all increases is a good one but at the same time, the elasticity of the assessment law admits of a wide range in value and it's all according to how it's being done. The law says it must be fixed on property at 100 per cent, but whether this is done depends on the assessor and in what part of the county he is."

—In furnishing a room where you have a color scheme in mind it is important that the carpet or other floor covering be your first consideration. Manne Brothers, 105-107-109 First street, Elizabethport.

—Two attempts were made to burglarize homes at Westfield yesterday morning. A man, who had entered Mrs. Lathrope's house on Mountain avenue, was found standing at the foot of her bed. Her awakening frightened him and he made a hasty exit out of a rear window without taking anything. At 3 o'clock a burglar entered the home of Milton Phillips, of Prospect street, but here a dog frightened him away before he had a chance to get anything.

—City Attorney C. Addison Swift has notified the Elizabeth City Council that Vice Chancellor Emery had filed a lengthy decision in the case of the city against the Central Railroad in the litigation for the possession of the piece of property at the foot of Elizabeth avenue on Staten Island Sound. The opinion is adverse to the city. Accordingly Frank Bergen recommended that the city take the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals. The city attorney concurs in that recommendation.

NEW LIBRARY OPENED

With Appropriate Services, Occasion Was Celebrated.

MR. MERWIN'S ADDRESS

Prominent Writer Spoke on Subject of "Good Reading"—Charles L. Lewis Rendered Several Solos.

A good sized audience was present at the entertainment given at Monroe Avenue church last night, to celebrate the opening of the church library. The affair has been looked forward to for some time by those interested in the concern, and the opening was enthusiastically welcomed. As was stated in yesterday's issue of The Daily Press, the library will be open to the general public, and the books which have recently been recatalogued by M. Mansfield Smith, cover a wide range of reading matter.

Dr. J. R. Bryan made the opening prayer, after which Charles L. Lewis, musical instructor of the Plainfield public schools, rendered a bass solo, entitled "Autumn." Mr. Lewis also sang the popular song, "Mighty Like a Rose," to which he responded with the encore "The Four Leaf Clover." Mr. Lewis was greeted with his usual reception.

The speaker of the evening was Samuel Merwin, of New York city, who was introduced by Rev. George Mooney, after a few well spoken remarks, appropriate to the occasion. Mr. Merwin's address was on the subject "Good Reading," and was a decidedly interesting and instructive talk. Mr. Merwin, in the course of his remarks, commented upon "the perpetuatity of classical literature." The speaker said that it is the great human interest which the works of such authors as Scott, Macauley and Shakespeare, have for readers, that makes classical literature undying. Mr. Merwin furthermore said that an acquaintance with the characters and the history of which Shakespeare and Scott write, is a help in gaining a greater breadth of understanding in the present time.

A feature of the evening was the arrival of Walter M. McGee, one of the most active members of the church, who has just returned from Europe. Upon entering the chapel last night, he was given a most cordial welcome.

Rev. George Mooney's daughter, who has been confined to her home for some time with bronchitis, is much improved.

Mrs. Luther Anthony, of Kingston, N. J., has returned home after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Manning, of Grant avenue.

The friends of Dr. C. P. R. Fisher, of Bound Brook, will be pleased to know that he has recovered from a severe illness and has resumed his practice.

There is one rational way to treat nasal catarrh: the medicine is applied direct to the affected membrane. The remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. It restores the inflamed tissues to a healty state without drying all the life out of them and it gives back the lost senses of taste and smell. The sufferer who is tired of vain experiments should use Cream Balm. Druggists sell it for 50 cts. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York, will mail it.

HER LEAP FOR LIFE

A GIRL'S HEROIC PLUNGE INTO THE COLORADO RIVER.

Caught by a Herd of Stampeded Cattle on a Long Suspension Bridge —Horse and Rider Go Down Together.

Not many months ago, Miss Beulah Thorn, who is one of the loveliest girls in Texas, was out riding on horseback. Nearby the road passed over the great suspension bridge that spans the Colorado river.

She had trotted about a quarter of the way over when the sound of heavy hoofs caused her to glance around. Not a hundred yards behind a great cloud of dust floated in the hot air. And in this cloud a great herd of oxen was thundering straight towards her.

With eyes aflame, and bellowing loud and ominously, they rushed on to the bridge.

In spite of the awful fear that assailed her, the girl never for a moment lost her presence of mind. She glanced before her. Far away—it looked an interminable distance—she could see the end of the bridge. There only was safety. But was it possible to reach refuge before the oxen overtook them?

Her eyes fell upon the horse. Blazer —that is the animal's name—was swift and sure of foot.

"Now, Blazer, go!" the girl commanded, tightening her grip upon the rein, and bringing her whip down on his flanks.

A bound; the horse had answered to the call. They were off—to safety? But, no, something was happening that the girl had not foreseen. Under the huge weight of the living avalanche the great suspension bridge was swaying heavily. The movement caused the horse to stumble.

There came a mighty roar and the thunder of many hoofs. The herd was on them. Pale, but collected, the girl reined her steed round, and faced the mad onslaught.

Now, a young bull, its head bent low between its fore legs, thundered by; another followed, old and weighty. With nose almost touching the ground and head tilted sideways, it made straight for them, then swerved aside, grazing the chestnut's flanks with its sharp horns.

Still, the terrified girl never for a moment lost her self-possession, but cast around for some other means of escape. Only one loophole presented itself to her. Far below she could see the swirling, muddy waters of the Colorado.

For an instant she hesitated and patted the neck of her trembling steed. Would he make that awful leap? She faced him towards the railings.

"Go, Blazer, leap!" the girl cried out.

And Blazer leaped, bearing his fair mistress on his back down, down, into the swift-running Colorado.

On the river bank a dozen cowboys had seen the gallant leap. Voiceless with excitement they watched both the girl and steed disappear with a great splash beneath the water.

At last the horse arose—riderless. For a few minutes the animal swam around in a circle, as if in search of something.

Five yards away a figure appeared above the water and swam toward the horse. A minute more and the girl had clambered into the saddle. Then, with a delighted neigh, the horse swam quickly to the shore.

Springing from their saddles, the cowboys sent up cheer after cheer, and ran to the brink to assist the brave girl. Six rough, willing hands were out-stretched to her, whilst one cowboy, filled with admiration for the faithful horse, put out his hands and embraced its glossy neck affectionately.

Native American Music.

There is hidden among the mountains of Kentucky, Tennessee and the Carolinas a people of whose inner nature and its musical expression almost nothing has been said. The music of the southern mountaineer is not only peculiar, but, like himself, peculiarly American. Nearly all mountaineers are singers. Their untrained voices are of good timbre, the women's being sweet and high and tremulous, and their sense of pitch and tone and harmony remarkably true. The fiddler or the banjo player is well treated and beloved among them, like the minstrel of feudal days. —Harper's Magazine.

HUNT MEXICAN TREASURE.

Search Being Carried On in Texas for Vast Wealth Buried During War.

A number of Mexicans with teams, plows and scrapers are excavating in that vicinity, claiming to have in their possession maps and charts showing treasure to be buried there to the amount of $100,000 in Mexican doubloons. The treasure is buried near what is known as the Bull Tank, and the party has agreed to pay the owners of the land on which they are at work a certain per cent of the find for the privilege of excavating. This treasure is said to have been buried during the Texas and Mexican war. It is said a tradition has existed that a large sum in Mexican doubloons was buried somewhere on the banks of Pond creek, and another that there was treasure of considerable amount in Mexican money buried at some point along the banks of the Brazos river near Marlin. Many excavations have been made to locate the buried treasure, both on Pond creek and the Brazos river. There efforts were not only made by home people, but strangers have gone in and excavated, among whom were Mexicans. A few years ago it was no uncommon thing to see deep holes dug along the banks of these streams, presumably by parties in search of the lost treasure, but if any money has ever been found in this manner the fact is not known.

SAVAGES DESPISE LABOR.

Hardest Task of African Missionary Is to Persuade Dusky Natives to Work.

The hardest task of the missionary among tropical savages is to teach them the dignity of labor. Where every bodily want is supplied freely by nature, the chief motive to work, the earning of one's daily bread, is absent. But the lesson is being learned. This was shown some months ago in Toro—a central African country lying to the west of Uganda at the foot of the snow-clad range anciently known as the Mountains of the Moon. The king's birthday was celebrated by an exhibition of native work. There were 200 entries, a smaller number than the previous year, but the standard was much higher and the variety greater. The queen, who was herself a prize-winner, presented the prizes, and the king showed much interest. Yet ten years ago, when the first native Baganda missionaries went to this people, they were sunk in the lowest depths of savagery. In some respects, this exhibition in the heart of the dark continent was more interesting and remarkable than that in St. Louis.

FEW SNAKES IN NEW YORK

Copperhead and Rattler Are the Only Poisonous Species About the Great Metropolis.

Over the country extending for many hundreds of miles both north and south of New York, the same embracing the Adirondacks, the Catskill and Blue Ridge mountains, there are but two species of poisonous snakes—the rattlesnake and the copperhead, declares the New York World. The former may be at once distinguished by the rattle, while the latter is a reptile of beautiful hues, showing rich, reddish-brown bands on a hazel body-color. The bands are very narrow on the back and very wide on the sides, presenting the outlines of numerous dumbbell-shaped markings. Despite the presence of these poisonous snakes in the eastern states accidents are of great rarity. The rattlesnake is an honest brute and usually gives ample warning of its presence. The copperhead is a secretive species and generally prefers flight to combat.

LIKENS RUSSIAN TO FLINT.

George Gould, on Return from European Tour, Says Things About the Czar's Subjects.

George J. Gould returned on the Philadelphia from a 4,000-mile automobile tour through Europe. In the smoking room of the Philadelphia an American resident of Moscow spoke one evening of the Russian press censorship.

"Through this censorship," he said, "the war news has been perverted horribly. Repulses have been changed into advances, and routs into victories. Hence, on the occasion of a dozen defeats, I have seen the deluded Russians, thinking they had won victories, light big bonfires and caper about them joyously. Russia, when I left, offered the world the spectacle of defeats everywhere and fires of rejoicing everywhere."

"The Russians are like flints,' said Mr. Gould. "The more you beat them the more fire they make."

Freak of the Wind.

Almost beyond belief is the story which comes from England of a trick the wind played not long ago on the spire of a Presbyterian church. It blew the steeple above the belfry some 25 degrees out of plumb, so that the spire pointed in a northwesterly direction and it was feared that it would fall. When the next morning men were engaged in straightening it the wind veered around and blew it back to its original position. Of course it was necessary for the men to straighten it and its supports, but the wind's freak made their work much easier.

Moslem Grave Never Opened.

In Turkey a Moslem grave, when once it has been filled in, is never to be reopened on any account. With a view to remove the faintest chance of a grave being thus defiled, the Moslems plant a cypress tree on every grave immediately after the burial, thus making their cemeteries resemble forests.

LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

EVENING WRAPS.

Garments That Are Valuable Adjuncts to My Lady's Wardrobe.

Charming are the evening wraps of lace over chiffon embroidered with shaded panne and velvet leaves finished with an ermine or chinchilla collar and cuffs. An edging of the fur is also a luxurious addition. The three-quarter length wrap is the favored one, but the Josephine cloaks are fully trained.

Long suede and kid gloves and mittens are worn in the evening. With classical dress the Juliet cap of many colored stones is wonderfully pretty, and quaint choux of velvet worn in the hair, the center consisting of a beautiful diamond or paste ornament, is a becoming coiffure adornment.

Flowered effects are the vogue just now, and lace motifs on gowns take the flowered form outlined with gathered velvet or satin ribbon. A gown of black taffeta has medallions of venetian lace outlined with a narrow border of pale reseda green ribbon.

An exquisite arrangement of La France roses done in panne velvet adorns the petticoated front of a white satin frock made for a society beauty. The roses are held together by festoons of velvet ribbon.

Altogether charming is the little bodice shown in the picture. It is of broche silk, with an underground of pale blue and an overpattern of lacy effect. An application of lace embroidery outlines the low neck with lattice medallions of pale blue velvet ribbon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHIONABLE FURS.

The Dyeing of Skins Carried to Perfection This Season.

Fur ties are as popular as ever, and the stoles are so large they almost form pelerines. Some of the muffs are of enormous size, and both the flat and round shapes are the favorites of fashion, the round muff being carried out in long haired pelts and the flat shape that narrows at the top adopted for short napped skins.

Those who require a fur of real utility will purchase caracal, which is quite as much in vogue as ever. In fact, it is now produced in smoke gray as well as black and white. This fur is made up in the smartest little Louis coats and boleros, with suede bands at the waist, and worn with a cloth skirt of the same color.

The up to date furriers are very clever at dyeing inferior skins, and in many cases it is difficult to tell the imitation from the genuine. There was a time when the swagger woman would not wear these dyed furs, but the furrier's art has changed all this, and now almost any skin may be turned into pretty and becoming garments. For instance, musquash is dressed to resemble sealskin and forms most charming boleros and jackets. For the smart little girl's coat long haired furs are dyed to match the dainty colored silk or velvet from which the wrap is made.

The picture shows a smart little coat of Texas beaver ornamented with rosettes of brown silk and touches of narrow silver braid. Down the fronts and on the cuffs is introduced a little Japanese embroidery. The smart feature of the coat is found in the epaulets, which are cut in one with the shoulder and fall deep over the arm.

THROUGH THE FOREST

WHAT MAY BE SEEN ON A SUMMER DAY.

Flowers and Trees and Animals Are Interesting to the Nature Student —How to Study Them to the Best Advantage.

Recently I walked through a forest It was one of those hot days when there is no breeze stirring, and when all the birds, save the red-eyed vireo and the indigo bunting, are sitting silent in the depths of the woods. The most noticeable sounds were those of the crickets in the grass, the drowsy thrilling of cicadas, and the occasional "peep" of a hyla from the foliage of the trees. The coloring of the wild flowers had a strong suggestion of autumn, for the goldenrod was at its best, and mingling with it were trumpet weed, boneset, and great masses of pearly everlasting. All the shrubs along the roadside were hung with garlands of wild clematis, and along the borders of the forest itself even the darkest spots were lighted by great clumps of the white wood asters.

As I entered the woods, the first living creature to catch my eye was a chipmunk, looking bright and cheerful in spite of the heat. He did not seem in the least afraid, and he was munching briskly at some blueberries which he had brought from a distance in his cheek pouches. What impressed me most at the moment, perhaps, was the spotless condition of his fur. Here was a little animal which lived in a hole in the ground, grubbed in the soil every day, and which at this season lived chiefly on berries whose juice dyed the hands of every man who picks them. Yet, on that shining coat before me, there was neither mud, nor dust, nor stain of any kind. No racehorse, fresh from the hands of a careful groom, has a sleeker coat than this. And so it is with most wild things; it seems that they might touch even pitch without being defiled. Watch a muskrat, delving in the muddy bank of a stream, and then note the brightness of his glistening brown coat as he sits on a stone by the water to wash his face. "No man can work, in mud and dirt, and keep his clothes so clean."

Soon I struck an old forest trail, faintly marked by trees blazed years ago. The marks of the hatchet, once white and prominent, were now almost grown over with bark, or so weather-stained as to be almost invisible except when close at hand. The narrow path was overgrown with ferns, but here and there a bruised or broken frond showed that the wild things used it still. All around, the trees grew close together, and the light was dim, but now and then there was an open space, where the sunshine filtered through, and glorified the mossy rocks and the fungus-covered trunks of fallen trees.

I was crossing such an open space when I saw, lying on a bed of pine needles in the shade before me, a white-tailed deer whose warm red coat was flecked with brighter red, where spots of sunlight danced across it. It was a buck with well-grown antlers still in the velvet, and he was looking full at me with head raised and ears straight out on either side. I felt that if I took another step after he knew that his presence was known he would dash away through the trees, so, pretending not to see him, I sank slowly to the ground. Then, putting my back to the trunk of a tree, I turned my face slowly toward him. His large dark eyes were full upon me, and his well-shaped translucent ears moved slightly from time to time, as though searching the air for any sound which might be in the nature of a warning. There was no wind, so the large black nostrils were dilated in vain, but in this case neither the nose nor the ears were needed, for I was in full view, and the eyes were getting all the information there was to be had.

I knew that, in less than a month, this mild-eyed dweller of the forest, now resting so gently in his peaceful tree-walled home, would be fleeing over the country side—an outlaw with a price upon his head. I knew that every man who saw those splendid antlers would covet them, and that the shoulder, where now great limber muscles played beneath the skin, would be the target for a score of bullets. Perhaps he would escape them all—small chance, but still perhaps—and live to be pursued again next year. Probably he would be hit, and, if so, I hoped that it might be by a marksman, with a bullet through the heart cnlungs when death would quickly come to his relief.

I raised my hand, and the little creature before me sprang to his feet, snorted, stamped, and with his broad white tail in the air, leaped away among the trees.

ERNEST HAROLD BAYNES.

DOOM OF AMERICAN DESERT

Years of Exploration Show That Cultivation of Vast Waste Is a Possibility.

Fifteen years of work of exploration, survey and investigation by the engineers of the government at an expenditure of $1,500,000 show that the Great American desert can largely be brought under cultivation by irrigation systems and made to support a population probably as great as that of the whole country. Not only this, but it will supply opportunity for the working of the thousands of ranges of barren mountains in that vast region, for their stupendous stores of precious metals and useful minerals that have merely been guessed at as yet. The throbbing east, with its manufactories of necessities of all kinds, would profit no less than the west by the opening up of these lands. And all of them, experience shows indubitably, are so rich, when cultivated intelligently with adequate water supplies, that their settlers would be able to pay the entire cost of the most extensive irrigation systems in a few years and never be distressed in consequence. It was a fortunate day for the nation when the late Maj. John W. Powell, recognizing the vast water, land and mineral resources of the Rocky mountain region, insisted upon adequate government appropriations for irrigation surveys preliminary to the enactment of the national irrigation law, which he foresaw was certain to come.

HUMOR GROWS IN IRELAND

Report That Love of the Ludicrous Had Left the Emerald Isle Is Declared False.

So far from declining, humor has grown and increased in Ireland, declares a writer in the National Review. Indeed, if we go back further still to the early literature to which so much attention is directed just now, I think we shall find that there was no humor at all in Ireland in the days of which it treats. So far, at least, as I have made acquaintance with it, I can find none, but my knowledge is very slight, and if I am mistaken I hope somebody who knows better will correct me. At all events, the most curiously un-Irish element to me in this Gaelic revival is the lack of humor in the whole movement; though perhaps the portentous solemnity with which its pioneers treat their own merits, and discuss their own talents, the utter and absolute seriousness with which they take themselves and each other, reveals a depth of unconscious humor which does some credit to their nationality. Anyhow, if we are not as humorous in Ireland to-day as our great-grandfathers were, we are at least more humorous than the folk who people the Ireland with which Mr. Yates and Dr. Douglas Hyde have made us acquainted. For myself, I can only say that in the Gaelic Ireland of those far past days I have never met with so much as the ghost of a smile.

GIRL RECLAIMED FROM VICE

Queen of Bandit Gang Changes Life to One of Purity with Aid of Salvation Army.

At a meeting held at Innergleithen recently, under the presidency of the Master of Elibank, M. P., Gen. Booth told the story of an Australian Salvation Army soldier who, as a girl of 18, was in the habit of smoking, drinking and gambling. She was known as the "Queen of the Flying Angels," a gang of 36 men, who were a terror to the community. Again and again she was in the hands of the police, and was regarded as incorrigible. One day she was handed over to the matron of a Salvation Army rescue home, where at times she would work and behave well, while at other times she used to take the notion into her head of throwing about everything upon which she could lay her hands. For some while this continued, until eventually she changed her way. A situation was obtained for her, and she got on well until one of her old associates of the "Flying Angels" discovered her and tried to entrap her. She wrote to her captain, who hurried off to see her, and advised her to go to another part of the country, which she did, and has never again been troubled by the "Flying Angels."

ANCIENT NEGATIVE A FAKE

Hard-Headed Business Man, Victim of Camera Fad, Is Fleeced by Old-Time Game.

A case has just come to light in Paris which once more demonstrates how a man full of hard-headed capacity in business may be exceedingly gullible in his fads. A wealthy merchant, much smitten with amateur photography, permitted himself to be persuaded by a plausible young acquaintance that the art was known to the ancients. To clinch his statement the young man submitted a queer-looking negative, which he pronounced to be that of "Cæsar's wife," and the merchant, being in his hobby as far above suspicion as that famous lady herself, not only swallowed the story whole, but, like Oliver Twist, asked for more, which was speedily forthcoming. He was told that in "a village near Cairo" was a distinct "photo of Sesostris," and innocently gave his friend £280 to bring it. Unhappily, when the emissary was supposed to be among the pyramids his dupe met him at a bachelors' gathering in Montmartre. Then the murder was out, but fear of ridicule overcame the sense of loss and the fleeced victim shrank from prosecuting.

MUSHROOM GROWING

PROFITABLE INDUSTRY UNDER PROPER CONDITIONS.

Temperature, Moisture and Soil the Three Things Which Must Be Closely Watched — Growing Demand for the Fungi.

In the United States the term "mushroom" refers commercially to but a single species (Agaricus campestris) of the fleshy fungi, a plant common throughout most of the temperate regions of the world, and one everywhere recognized as edible. From the time of Pliny, and perhaps much earlier, this plant has been sought as an article of diet, and it has been cultivated for many centuries.

The successful cultivation of mushrooms in America has not been so general as in most of the European countries. It is in France and in England that the mushroom industry has been best developed. France is properly speaking, the home of the present mushroom industry. Unusual interest has been shown in the United States in the growth of mushrooms within the past few years, and it is to be hoped and expected that within the next ten years the industry will develop to the fullest limit of the market demand.

Mushrooms may be grown in any place where the conditions of temperature and moisture are favorable. A shed, cellar, cave, or vacant space in a greenhouse may be utilized to advantage for this purpose. The most essential factor, perhaps, is that of temperature. The proper temperature ranges from 53 degrees to 60 degrees F., with the best from 55 degrees to 58 degrees F. It is unsafe to attempt to grow mushrooms on a commercial basis, according to our present knowledge of the subject, at a temperature much less than 50 degrees or greater than 63 degrees F.

A second important factor is that of moisture. The place should not be very damp, or constantly dripping with water. Under such conditions successful commercial work is not possible. A place where it is possible to maintain a fairly moist condition of the atmosphere, and having such capability for ventilation as will cause at least a gradual evaporation, is, by general practice and by the most extensive experimentation, shown to be necessary.

In the growing of mushrooms for commercial purposes, the beds should be constructed of stable manure which has been fermented or composted. Many experiments have been made looking toward the substitution of other composts or waste products for stable manure, but nothing has yet been found which may be more highly recommended. Fresh manure should be obtained, and this should include the litter used for bedding the animals, unless the latter consists of coarse weeds.

The manure should be piled in heaps about three feet deep when well pressed down with the fork, and these piles may be of considerable extent. It should be watered until well moistened throughout, but not drenched. In the course of four or five days or a week it will be necessary to fork over or "turn" the manure. A second turning will be required usually in from seven to ten days, and it may be necessary to water again if the material has suffered considerable drying out. If well pressed down and merely moist, the manure will not burn and, moreover, there will be no tendency for a sour fermentation to become established. In from 15 to 21 days, depending upon the conditions, the temperature will begin to fall, the violence of decomposition will begin to show a subsidence, and the compost will be ready for the construction of the beds.

The manure is always ready for the construction of beds when nearly all objectionable odors are lost and a sweet fermentation, as growers term it, has begun.

BASKET BALL.

There has been a change in the rules governing the juvenile basket-ball league, amending the regulation which prohibited any player on the first team of his school to participate in the junior league games, so that if a player is a substitute on the regular team, and is put in a regular game as a substitute, he may still retain right to play with the junior aggregation. This rule was made for the protection of the first teams of the Leal's and the Plainfield High School.

As yet the Business Men of the Y. M. C. A. have no game scheduled for Monday night. It may be impossible to arrange a game on the local floor and in that case the date will not be closed. Manager Browning is not prepared at present to take the team out of town to play, as they have not encountered anything this season so far that has been at all a formidable competitor, and he wishes them to get a little more practice and experience on their home floor before presenting the association out of town.

ROD AND GUN.

Hunters are complaining about the scarcity of rabbits in this section of the State. A party went out yesterday and after spending the entire day through the woods and fields could not find a single cotton tail.

The indiscriminate shooting of a gun in the western section of the Washington Park part of North Plainfield called Chief Marshall Weiss out yesterday afternoon. The would-be hunter endangered the lives of some children who were playing about their homes, and for their protection he was ordered "back to the woods."

The Waters of Life.

It has come to be regarded nowadays as an indisputable fact that the high tension of life in our great modern cities, unless relieved by frequent changes of scene, shortens the natural period of human existence. In most cases of course, when there is no actual breakdown, people are not aware that they are exhausting in fifty or sixty years a physique intended to serve for seventy or eighty. The summer vacation is usually too short a period in which to store up sufficient reserve vitality for a year of brain work and sedentary life, but a second one in the winter when it can be obtained, if only extending for a few days at one time, will afford the change of air and scene which is so essential. Many men who have been kept in the city most of the summer by the exigencies of their business, will refused to take a holiday in the winter, thinking that there is no resort within their reach where a vacation would be worthy of the name. This is a great mistake. Florida and California may be out of the question, but in Lakewood, New Jersey affors a resort which may be well styled a m. Offering a complete change of sene, opportunity for physical recreation and social pleasures, a healthful and charming environment during the winter months, and having a temperature ranging from ten to fifteen degrees warmer than that of New York although within a distance that may be traversed twice a day, permitting one to attend business in the city if necessary, the value of such a retreat to a great class of overworked business men and their families is inestimable. A suggestive booklet on Lakewood has been published by the Central Railroad of New Jersey. It will be sent free to anyone applying to C. M. Burt, General Passenger Agent, 143 Liberty street, New York city.

Horse Smashes Wheel.

A horse attached to F. W. Dunn's grocery wagon, while standing in front of the store on North avenue, became frightened and took to the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street, this morning. Before the animal was brought to a standstill by Mayor-elect Buckle, he ran over a bicycle belonging to The Daily Press office and smashed the front wheel. Mr. Buckle, who happened to be standing near, grasped the bridle of the frightened horse and restored him to his proper place in the middle of the road. Mr. Dunn promptly paid the damages done to the wheel.

Rape Borough Republicans.

The North Plainfield coterie which tried so hard to defeat Sheriff Cooper, find it difficult to convine themselves that they did not accomplish it. They are still trying to figure out the cuts which they anticipated against Mr. Cooper, but which did not materialize to their satisfaction. They are writing articles for the Plainfield newspapers about how much he ran behind his ticket. Considering the splendid vote which Sheriff Cooper received with the personal fight made against him and the Democrats offering to trade their whole ticket for Ross voter, this argument is about as strong as the Democratic reasoning that the vote of Stokes indicates that the people of New Jersey favor equal taxation. Sheriff Cooper has nothing to be ashamed of in his vote and he will make the kind of a sheriff that Somerset needs.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

Truants Arrested.

Acting under instructions from the Borough Board of Education, Special Officer Pangborn, of the borough, today arrested Eddie Sender and Willie Carver, on charges of truancy. They were arraigned before Justice Mattison and were released in their own recognizance to attend school under penalty of being committed to a reform institution.

HONORED THEIR DEPARTED

Local Elks' Conduct Impressive Sacred Service.

HELD AT THE CASINO

Members Assisted by Professional Vocalist and Instrumentalits—Address by Howard McSherry.

To fittingly commemorate the memories of brothers who have passed away, Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, assembled in the Casino, last evening, and conducted a memorial service. It was the first that has been given by the local organization but was complete in every detail, the nature of the programme adding deep solemnity to the occasion. Great care had been exercised in its arrangement and the result was one of the most impressive sacred sessions that has ever taken place in the city.

The large auditorium was filled to its capacity at 8 o'clock when the members of the lodge, with the exception of the officers, filed in and took seats reserved for them in the front part. Exalted Ruler William N. Runyon, who presided as master of ceremonies, together with his subordinate executives, occupied seats on the platform. A violin, 'cello and piano trio composed of Henry Conrad, Arthur Severa and Mrs. Minnie Seldon-Pearce, all of New York, rendered Thome's "Andante Religioso" as a prelude in beginning and was followed by the opening ceremonies of the Elk lodge, led by the exalted ruler.

The programme following, in detail, was as follows: Baritone solo, "There is a Green Hill Far Away," Townsend H. Fellows, of New York; prayer, Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace P. E. church; hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," in which the entire gathering joined; reciting of Bryant's poem "Thanatopsis," by Brother Frank Rowley; violin solo, "Largo," Mr. Conrad; oration, Brother Howard McSherry, of New Brunswick; baritone solo, "The Publican," Mr. Fellows; instrumental trio, Widor's "Serenade;" closing exercises by the lodge, hymn, "Abide With Me," and benediction by Dr. Rodman.

Each number was on a high order of excellence, the assistant artists being especially proficient in their various parts. Mr. Fellows has a voice of exceptional range and power and his solos were features of the service. The reciting of "Thanatopsis" by Brother Rowley was admirably done and aided by his timely gestures and inflective tones, was a pleasing contribution to the programme.

As an orator Brother McSherry has few equals and in the address of the evening he added to his laurels. While paying a deep and loving tribute to the memory of those of the order who had been taken away, he told of the cardinal principles of Elkdom and besought those before him to uphold them. If lived up to, he said, they are an aid to good citizenship, to patriotism and in teaching man his duty toward his fellows. To the audience he confided the fact that the members of Elkdom are "good fellows" but yet it is these very same who are always ready to reach down in their pockets and give a dollar toward a hospital or an asylum whenever it is needed.

"Many people," he continued, "have a mistaken conception of Elks, gained by observing a few such as are to be found in any fraternal organization. But they are not the whole, only a small part of it, and they are absorbed in the greater body which goes on gathering strength day by day and wielding a powerful influence for good in the community where it makes its home. The open Bible is in its lodge room and its sessions are opened with prayer and the men who have made it what it is today are men who believe in God and His precepts."

Mr. McSherry at times held the tense interest of his hearers with highly colored similes that were brought to strong climaxes, and again he had them smiling through the keen, subtle wit that he alone possesses.

The Casino was appropriately decorated for the occasion with a profusion of green foliage and plants. These harmonized with the soft decorative red of the auditorium and the combined coloring produced a subdued effect that was in keeping with the service. The front of the stage was banked solid with plants of all descriptions while others graced the alcoves and boxes.

The officers of the lodge who were on the stage and who took part in the

WATCHUNG HUNTERS RIDE TO WESTFIELD

ENJOYABLE GALLOP ALONG THE FOOT OF THE MOUNTAINS SATURDAY.

Starting from the picturesque grounds which border on J. E. Martine's property at Cedar Brook Farm, twelve members of the Watchung Hunt Club, oblivious of the damp chill in the air, participated in the weekly drag hunt Saturday afternoon. It was not the most perfect day for a chase, yet the usual enthusiasm was evidenced and the affair was thoroughly enjoyed by those who took part.

The route was a somewhat different one from former trips, covering the meadows at the foot of the mountains in the vicinity of Scotch Plains and Westfield. The hounds were thrown on the scent on Leland avenue, near the Netherwood station, and the huntsmen followed across the track and the brook through the meadows bordering on Mountain avenue, and thence to the foot of the Watchung hills. The first check was made at Scotch Plains, after which the riders galloped over the fields almost up to the Westfield golf course. From here they returned home by a route parallel with the old railroad track, arriving at their destination at about the same place as the starting point.

Among those who participated in the chase were Miss Leila Cruikshank, Miss Noe, of Westfield, Miss Holly, Dr. M. O'M. Knott, Mr. Chebbeare, George C. White, L. E. Waring, Chauncey Sayer, Harry A. Bourne and C. E. A. Bellows. Next week the hunt will start from the residence of John I. Holly, on Park avenue.

REV. MOORE SMITH TO SUCCEED REV. G. M. SHOTT

SCOTCH PLAINS BAPTIST CHURCH SELECTS NEW PASTOR.

After a month as acting pastor, Rev. Moore Smith, of Glasgow, Scotland, has been extended a call to become the regular pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. The congregation decided upon calling Mr. Smith at a business meeting held at the close of the morning service yesterday.

Several weeks ago, when Rev. Mr. Shott tendered his resignation as pastor, the church appointed a pulpit committee consisting of Dr. F. W. Westcott, A. D. Beekon, David Hand and Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks to consider the matter and arrange for pulpit supplies until a regular pastor was selected. Many expected that candidates would be heard, but the committee decided to call Rev. Moore Smith as temporary pastor.

Deacon David Hand, who acted as chairman of the meeting, yesterday said:

"The committee has decided unanimously upon presenting the name of Mr. Smith before you as a candidate. We have had the experience in the past of trying out candidates and you know when the ordeal is over and a selection made the church is always divided into several factions, as each candidate will leave friends behind who believe he is the only one to fill the pulpit. This we wished to avoid at this time, for this reason your committee decided upon a temporary pastor, so called Rev. Moore Smith. Our people seemed to have liked him and the time has now come for us to either extend a call to him or let him go and select another. The low spiritual life in the church demands that you select a man who will have the support of all. Your committee believe in Rev. Mr. Smith it has a learned man, one who can enter the field and be successful in raising the spiritual life of our church. So we have unanimously decided to recommend him to you."

The motion was then put and carried that the call be extended to Mr. Smith to become the regular pastor of the church.

The new pastor is a learned man, a graduate of one of the best colleges in Scotland, a forceful speaker and while only about forty years of age has held the pastorate of large churches in Scotland. This is his first pastorate in this country. His family is still in Glasgow but will probably come over in the spring and occupy the parsonage.

Mrs. Robert Lowry, of East Seventh street, has gone to Philadelphia, to visit friends.

STATE OFFICERS' VISIT

Members of Old Glory Council, D. of L., Entertain.

STATE GUIDE'S ADDRESS

Complimented the Members on the Initiatory Work—Old Glory Leads in Competition for Prize.

The official visit of the State officers to Old Glory Council, No. 62, Daughters of Liberty, Saturday night, was a most satisfactory one, and afforded a great deal of pleasure to all those present. The meeting was held in I. O. O. F. Hall, and the initiatory team conferred the degree upon forty-eight candidates, working for the first time under the new revised rules, and for the first time in their new uniforms.

With regard to the initiatory work, the lodge received a high compliment from the State Council Guide, Mrs. Francis Bullen, of Hightstown, who in the absence of State Councilor Mrs. Margaret J. Russell, officiated. In her remarks the State Guide said that in all the councils she had visited in the last ten years, she had never seen the work so well done.

The members of the local council have worked diligently in the effort to win the prize offered by the State Councilor for the council getting in the greatest number of new members, and their efforts seem likely to be rewarded. The State Guide announced that up to the present time, Winfield Council, No. 63, of Jersey City, has initiated twenty-eight candidates, and as it is near the end of the fiscal year, it is not likely that they will be able to catch up with the local council.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the visitors and local members adjourned to the banquet hall, where an elaborate repast was served by the good and welfare committee. Among the officers present were Fred Muir, of Rahway, and Walter Reinhart, of Cranford, also delegations from the following places: New York, Staten Island, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Cranford, Westfield, Dunellen, New Market and Plainfield.

MRS. IDA V. WOODBURY'S INTERESTING ADDRESS

TOLD OF MISSIONARY WORK AMONG THE MOUNTAIN WHITES.

An interesting address, at times witty and at times pathetic, was given by Mrs. Ida V. Woodbury, one of the secretaries of the A. M. A., of Boston, at the Congregational church last evening. The subject of the address was one in which Mrs. Woodbury has had personal experience, and concerned the missionary work of the Association among the Mountain whites.

Graphically and eloquently the life of these poor, patriotic dwellers of the Alleghanies, was described. Mrs. Woodbury pictured from her personal observation, the characteristics of the people, combining in an attractive manner, pathos with humor, as she spoke of the efforts of the young men, eager to learn, and of the comical anecdotes typical of the life at the Grandview School, in Tennessee.

At the conclusion of her address, Mrs. Woodbury referred especially to the work conducted by this school at Grandview, and of the great need for more dormitory accommodation. As the result of her appeal, the offering received was sufficient to furnish two rooms at the school, which means that four more applicants for schooling will be accommodated.

A Chance for All.

Besides assisting a worthy cause it will do your heart good to contribute to as well as attend the harvest home under the auspices of Muhlenberg Hospital to be held in the new Nurses Home on Wednesday afternoon. Now is the time to show your substantial appreciation of a good institution by helping it with fruits, vegetables or a good sized check.

Miss Smalley Will Entertain.

Miss Lizzie Smalley, of Craig place, will entertain a whist club tomorrow night. This club played last winter under the name of duplicate whist, but the members have decided to play straighs whist this season. This will be the first meeting of the club this year and afterward meetings will be held every two weeks at the homes of the various members.

POLICE AFTER AUTOISTS

Borough Authorities Active in the Barry Case.

VICTIM BADLY HURT

Attending Physician Declares Outcome Uncertain Until Lapse of Twenty-four Hours.

Working steadily since first apprised of the affair, the borough police have every reason to believe that the inhuman autoists who placed seven-year-old Francis Barry on a Somerset street porch after knocking him down, and then fled, will be in custody within a short time. Chief Weiss has followed up several clues and he is now convinced that the party consisted of four young men connected with an East Orange High School, who have been in this city several times with a football eleven. It has been learned positively that they had dinner at Pedefious' Hotel in the valley and that they were in a hilarious state on leaving.

The condition of the little victim is still very serious and according to Dr. Clawson, the physician in charge, it will be twenty-four hours yet before he can determine the outcome. In addition to the fractured collar bone and injuries about the head, it has been found that he has three ribs broken and almost certain internal hurts. An operation will have to be performed and only for the fact that he has a rugged constitution he would be unable to withstand it.

Residents of the borough and city also are greatly stirred up over the despicable act of the young men and sentiment is very much against them. Mrs. Wyckoff, on whose porch the boy was placed, had no intimation of the affair until they were hurrying back to the machine and going to the door discovered the victim. She had but a glance at the four and the machine but it will undoubtedly aid in the identification. Several other persons who saw the machine have informed the police and have aided in the investigation. Chief Weiss expects to go to East Orange today and locate the entire party. A similar affair occurred on a Long Island road two weeks ago and the culprits narrowly escaped being mobbed when arrested.

JUDGMENT RENDERED AGAINST AUTO GARAGE

JUSTICE HUFF DISPOSES OF ONE CONTRACT CASE.

Judgment was rendered by Justice Huff this morning in the contract case of Hand & Son against The Plainfield Auto Garage to the amount of $54 38, in favor of the plaintiff. This is one of a number of contract suits which are pending against the Garage, and which will come up in the near future. It is stated that several bills for considerable amounts will be filed with the receiver as soon as one is appointed.

The case tried before Justice Huff this morning was for amounts owed to Hand & Son for the transportation of goods, and in spite of the injunction, execution has been issued and a levy will be made this afternoon. William Newcorn represented the Plaintiff in the case, and R. P. F. VanMinden represented the Garage.

Among the other cases which concern the company is the contract case of A. M. Griffen against Joseph B. Lougbead for the amount of $50. Fred Huff will represent the defendant in this case, which will be returnable at Justice Smalley's court on December 9.

Alvah Clark Takes Law Partner.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, has taken Clarence E. Case, who has been connected with his offices some time, into partnership. The firm name will be Clark & Case. Mr. Case is an able young lawyer. He graduated from Rutgers College in 1900 at the head of his class. He had previously been editor-in-chief of The Targum, the college paper. He entered the New York Law School in 1900 and graduated with honor in 1902. In 1903 he was admitted to practice.

The date for Hope chapel's annual Christmas entertainment has been set for Wednesday evening, Dec. 28. The committee has planned to give several scenes from the "Bird's Christmas Carol" and rehearsals are to begin at once. The entertainment and decorations will be on a more elaborate scale than ever before.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Bethel Chapel Appropriately Celebrates the Event.

MANY ADDRESSES

Members of the Crescent Avenue Church and Other Chapels Assist in Exercises.

Interesting addresses and reports marked the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of Bethel Mission held in the chapel, yesterday afternoon, many active workers from the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Hope and Warren chapels being present and taking part in the exercises. Stephen A. Ginna, who has been superintendent of the mission Sunday-school since its inception, with the exception of the first two years, was in charge of the exercises, and addresses of a congratulatory nature were made by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. L. R. Howard, George A. Strong, superintendent of the Crescent Avenue church Sunday-school and Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of Bethel chapel, and there was special music by the choir from the Crescent Avenue church as well as by the Sunday-school.

One of the most interesting features was the history of the mission given by Mr. Ginna. He stated that it was started twenty-two years ago by Mrs. Ginna and two years later the Crescent Avenue church, took charge of this work and afterward maintained it. Of the original workers only three are now engaged in the work there. They are superintendent, S. A. Ginna; assistant superintendent, A. W. Duxbury, and Miss Lucy Everett, a teacher in the school. From a school of fifty-six teachers and pupils, who assembled in the little Dutch church standing upon the site of the present substantial structure, on December 7, 1884, the aggregate membership of all the missions now connected with the Crescent Avenue church has reached nearly 1,200 officers, teachers and pupils, and all, the outgrowth of the establishment of Bethel Mission.

BOYS' MEETING.

First of the Season Held at the Y. M. C. A. Yesterday Afternoon.

A large attendance marked the first boys' meeting of the winter at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The meeting was held in the small hall, and was very successful. The speakers were Walter Caldwell and Martin Stuteman. The meeting was led in a creditable manner by Theodore Gavett.

Martin Stuteman spoke in a forcible way on the subject of "Envy," while Caldwell's address was on the subject "Importance in Putting First Things First." Kenneth Robbie, the boys' secretary of the association, spoke after the other speakers, and in a few brief remarks of summary, brought out with emphasis the best things of the boys' speeches. George Rittenhouse, a member of the boys' department, played several piano selections.

Will Erect Handsome Residence.

A permit has been granted Mrs. G. R. Kelley, of Grant avenue, for the erection of a handsome residence on East Front street, opposite the home of Mrs. Charles L. Hyde. Louis Beck has been given the contract for carpenter work and Seaman Williams will do the mason work.

PLAINFIELD ARTIST'S MERITORIOUS WORK

JONAS LIE AWARDED SILVER MEDAL AT ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION.

Jonas Lie, a young artist and resident of Plainfield, has been awarded a silver medal at the St. Louis Exposition for his meritorious painting, "Sunlight and Shadow," exhibited last spring in the Society of American Artists, New York.

The prize winning picture is one of many painted in the heart of Plainfield; "Sunlight and Shadow" was painted on Harmony street, but a stone's throw from Somerset. Two other canvases, "A Mill Race" and "Reflections," also exhibited at the Exposition and at the National Academy of Design, New York, found their origin along the brook between Somerset street and Watchung avenue.

Mr. Lie is a native of Norway and a nephew of the Norwegian author of the same name. His career, although short, has been marked by much success and few exhibitions are held in the United States that do not include some examples of his work; he exhibits annually in the societies in all the large cities, including New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Pittsburg and Philadelphia, and frequently receives commendation for his virile handling and masterful touch. It was at these exhibitions that the veteran artist, William M. Chase, of New York, saw his work, and paid the greatest tribute a veteran can pay to a rising young artist by purchasing two of his works which he much treasures in his collection. Mr. Lie's studio is in the Babcock building, although most of his work is done out of doors.

DINNER IN HONOR OF REGENT DEBUTANTE

MISS GRACE KAUFMAN GIVES CHARMING AFFAIR AT THE PARK CLUB.

In honor of Miss Edith Fisk, daughter of Mrs. Chapman Fisk, of West Seventh street, who was presented to society on Friday afternoon at a reception given at her home and which was followed by a dance at the Casino, Miss Grace Kaufman, a member of the receiving party, gave a dinner at the Park Club on Saturday evening. The affair was a charming one, those present being numbered among the leaders of the younger society set.

There were two tables in the large dining room and the decorations were a feature. The color scheme was pink, many roses of that color being used to garnish the tables. The menu, an excellent one, was much enjoyed.

Among the guests were Miss Edith Fisk, Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Elsie Harman, Miss Helen Harman, Miss Grace Kaufman, Miss Georgiana H. Smith, of this city; Miss Elizabeth Richmond, of Scranton, Pa.; Miss Regis Smith, of Philadelphia; Miss Cole, of Hartford, Conn., and Miss Cahart, of Brooklyn; Frank O. Reinhart, Owen Fleming, Joseph T. Wadsworth, Augustus H. Fisk, Harvey Fisk, Effingham Pinto, Story Rowland, Willard Wadsworth, W. T. Kaufman, of this city; Mr. Kilmer and Mr. Truesdale, of New York, and Mr. Sparks, of London.

Following the dinner the young folks enjoyed a dance until nearly midnight, a feature being the music which was unusually good.

Plainfielders in the Sunny South.

There will be a good sized colony of Plainfielders at Daytona, Fla., this winter. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, formerly of this city, but late of Patchogue, L. I., Mrs. Moore and daughter, Miss Carrie Moore and Mrs. Moore's sister, Miss Ida Roeap, of this city, will spend the coming season in Florida. The members of the above party, with the exception of Miss Roeap are now at Daytona and she will sail tomorrow on the Steamship Comanche. A number of other Plainfielders are planning to go to Daytona during the cold weather.

P. H. S. Hockey Team.

Howard H. Craig, last year's captain of the hockey team, has been elected to serve in that capacity for the coming season. The prospects of a good team for the High School this year are bright, and with Craig as captain, a fast team ought to be turned out. There are several of the old players in the school, among whom are Jack Douglass, William Douglass, Stuart Freeman, Chester Briggs, Howard Lapsley. If the ice is good the candidates will be out for practice today.

PARK AVE. IMPROVEMENT

Trust Company Will Widen Block Fifteen Feet.

A NEEDED CHANGE

Work on Its New Building to Commence Early in the Spring.

The much-cherished hope of those interested in the welfare of the business section of the city will undoubtedly be realized in an improvement to be made in connection with the erection of the new bank building at the corner of Park avenue and Second street by the Plainfield Trust Company. It is the purpose of the company to do all in its power to widen Park avenue at that point and it is expected that eventually the widening will be continued as far as Front street.

In erecting the building on the corner of Park avenue and Second street, the structure will be set back five feet from the line of the present building and ten more feet in front will be given to the street, making fifteen feet in all. Charles W. McCutchen, who owns the other property on Park avenue adjoining that purchased by the company, and extending as far as the Estate of Boice, Runyon & Company, is in perfect harmony with the plans of the company to widen the avenue, and as soon as the leases expire on the buildings purchased by him he will at once plan to erect modern structures there and will give the same number of feet allowed by the trust company.

While the trust company has not yet definitely decided on its plans, they are gradually being approved and the structure will be one of the finest in the city. The lease on the corner property purchased by the company does not expire until April, 1905, and for that reason no attempt will be made to tear the building down until that time. The company hesitated to some exsent in purchasing this property owing to the narrowness of Park avenue, but when it was learned that it could be widened without detriment to the new building, the deal was made.

The advantages of widening Park avenue between Second and Front streets has been discussed more or less by those interested in the improvement. It has always been a matter of regret that the avenue was not allowed greater width when originally laid out, but the proposed improvement by the Plainfield Trust Company may prove an incentive to the other property owners to take steps toward widening the avenue at least as many feet as proposed by the trust company. This, the merchants say, would make the avenue one of the best for business in the city.

Smith, of Belvidere avenue, will give a dinner for both Miss Hegeman and Miss Fisk. On Thursday, December 15, Mrs. Francis deL. Hyde will give a dinner for Miss Hegeman. Miss Ursula Rowland, a member of the receiving party for both Miss Hegeman and Miss Fisk, will give a luncheon in their honor at her home on Monday evening, December 19. Mrs. Charles J. Fisk will give a dinner for Miss Fisk, but the date has not yet been decided upon and early in January Mrs. Frederick G. Mead will give a luncheon for Miss Fisk.

A Literary Treat

We have one for our readers in a new and exceptional serial story which begins in this issue. It is

D'ri and I

BY

IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden." "Darrell of the Blessed Isles." Etc.

It is a strong story of North Country made famous by Mr. Bacheller. In it he mixes in an entertaining way love and adventures of the days of the second war with England.

THE LONDON TIMES SAYS OF THE STORY:

"Mr. Bacheller is admirable alike in his scenes of peace and war. He paints the silent woods in the Fall of the year with the rich golden glow of the Indian Summer. He is eloquently poetical in the lonely watcher's contemplation of thousands of twinkling stars reflected from the broad bosom of the St. Lawrence, and he is grimly humorous in some of his dramatic episodes. Nor does anything in Crane's Red Badge of Courage bring home to us more forcibly the horrors of war than the between-decks and the cockpit of a crippled ship swept from stem to stern by the broadsides in an action brought 'a outrance' on Lake Erie."

The Opening Chapters of the Story Are in This Issue. Read Them

BANK OFFICIALS TO BE ARRESTED

Writ of Attachment Causes Mrs. Leroy S. Chadwick to Collapse—Check For $1,000 Returned From Cleveland Dishonored.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, the husband of Cassie L. Chadwick, whose financial troubles have been undergoing the thrashing out process for the past week, has come out with a brief statement from Europe. He has cabled to Philip Carpenter, Mrs. Chadwick's counsel, from some place abroad, the name of which Mr. Carpenter would not disclose, requesting that gentleman to "deny the published statements reflecting on Mrs. Chadwick's life and character."

"They are absolutely false," the cablegram reads. "I wish to have it understood that I stand by Mrs. Chadwick in every particular in her present troubles. I feel that she has been greatly wronged by the publications and that she is being persecuted by some of her creditors."

Dr. Chadwick cabled as soon as he saw the reports. Mr. Carpenter added: "All of the members of the doctor's family are also standing by Mrs. Chadwick loyally and are in entire sympathy with her.

"I know that Dr. Chadwick would be by his wife's side looking out for her if he was in this country.

"There is no doubt that all the claims against Mrs. Chadwick will be paid if her smaller creditors will only exercise a little patience. Bankruptcy proceedings and attachment suits do their promoters no good whatever, and creditors resorting to these and other harassing methods will certainly not hasten the settlement of their claims.

"Mrs. Chadwick has acted in the most honorable way in all her dealings that have come to my knowledge. One very good evidence of this is found in the unshaken confidence still reposed in her by her largest creditors and those who know her best."

A Cleveland special dispatch says that United States Marshal Chandler, with several deputies, has gone to Oberlin with warrants for the arrest of President Beckwith and Cashier Spear of the failed Citizens' National bank. The party was due at Oberlin last night.

It is reported that Mrs. Leroy S. Chadwick is in a state of almost total collapse in her apartment in the Holland House. Immediately following the service on her of papers in a writ of attachment obtained by Louise & Co., a Fifth avenue millinery establishment, because of the return from Cleveland of a check for $1,000 marked "No funds," she sent for Dr. A. A. Moore and spent the remainder of the day in bed.

To such an extent has the strain of her difficulties told on her that she became hysterical, and all plans that she had made to return to Cleveland have been for the time being abandoned. She had intended leaving on Friday night. As long as this attachment stands it will prevent her from taking any of the contents of her three large trunks or any of her personal belongings scattered about her apartments, except such as would be considered legally as necessaries of life. There is nothing, however, to prevent her from herself leaving whenever she pleases and going wherever she likes.

There has been frequent mention in the Chadwick case of a document at testing to Mrs. Chadwick's securities, supposed to be in the hands of Iri Reynolds, secretary and treasurer of the Wade Park Banking company. This is a copy of it:

"To Whom It May Concern.—I hereby certify that I have in my possession $5,000,000 in securities belonging to Cassie L. Chadwick and that neither myself nor the Wade Park bank nor any other person has any claim upon the same."

One of the most remarkable phases of this remarkable case is the apparent unconcern of Herbert B. Newton's attorneys over either the appointment of a receiver in Cleveland for all of Mrs. Chadwick's effects or the attachment of her belongings here.

George Ryall, attorney for Herbert B. Newton, said late last night:

"The attachment proceedings and the bankruptcy proceedings are not bothering us any. There is no question but that all those people will get their money. No definite time has been fixed for the payment of Mr. Newton's claim, but we are not in the least disturbed. We are resting on our oars. Our claim and the others will be paid. We are thoroughly satisfied with the situation."

No Justice to Preside.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The December trial term of the supreme court, which convenes here today, will probably be adjourned for one week or longer because there is no justice to preside. Judge Herrick would have presided had he not resigned. His successor has not been appointed.

TOGO'S SILENT MOVE

Japanese Fleet Prepare For Rojestvensky's Reception.

FIRST ARMISTICE AT PORT ARTHUR

Besiegers and Besieged Halt Six Hours to Bury Their Dead—Battle Developing South of Mukden.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Advices from Tokyo say that the first armistice between the combatants at Port Arthur has been declared for a period of six hours for the purpose of burying the dead.

It is the general opinion there that the Port Arthur fleet will attempt to make a sortie when the harbor becomes untenable or when the Russians' plans for escape mature. It is evident that most of the ships are badly damaged and unfit for service but some have fighting power. The Russians continue mine clearing operations, manifestly for the purpose of preserving an avenue of escape.

For three weeks there has not been a single Japanese battleship in the bay of Korea.

When it became certain that the Baltic fleet was really bound for the Yellow sea Admiral Togo silently took his battleships to Sasebo, where they went into drydock and received all necessary repairs.

It is extremely probable that now that Japan has been able to put four battleships in new fighting order these ships will take up a position outside Port Arthur until the first class cruisers are similarly refurnished and made as good as they were before war began. It is evidently the purpose of the Japanese admiral to meet the Baltic fleet where the sea of Japan and the Yellow sea meet.

A St. Petersburg report says that firing is constantly increasing in the country lying south of Mukden. Evidently a general engagement is developing. The Russians, having received large re-enforcements, feel quite confident.

Meanwhile the chunchuses have redoubled their activity in a provoking manner, destroying the railroad.

A Harbin dispatch says that General Gripenberg has arrived there to assume command of the second Manchurian army.

A large warehouse of the Red Cross society at Harbin has been burned, entailing a great loss of supplies.

Warships Cost Russia $35,000,000.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 5.—A report says that Charles R. Flint of New York arrived at Moscow under the name of Charles Ranlett. He proceeded on Wednesday by way of Warsaw and Odessa for Constantinople. It is reported that Mr. Flint brought a letter of credit on the Rothschilds for $35,000,000, the amount payable for the Argentine and Chilean warships, for the purchase of which Russia is said to be negotiating, and on his visit to Constantinople he will endeavor to arrange that these vessels when purchased should use the Turkish flag.

Barred English Coal For Russia.

CARDIFF, Dec. 5.—It is stated that the captain of the German collier Captain W. Menzell has been forbidden by the government to ship another cargo of coal from here. The foreign office took this action on proof that a former cargo taken by the Captain W. Menzell had been discharged to ships of the Russian second Pacific squadron off Dakar.

Big Drop In Cotton.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Figures of the government cotton crop estimate for the season's yield threw the entire cotton trade into complete demoralization when the bulletin from Washington was read indicating that the south would raise this year 12,162,000 bales, approximately 1,000,000 bales more than the greatest crop hitherto grown in the United States. The estimate exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the trade. As a result there was a severe break in prices, extending from 50 to 56 points.

Suspect Held In Dyer Murder Case.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Dec. 5.—Richard Farrell, a musician of Lowell, Mass., has been arrested here on suspicion in connection with the death of Herman C. Dyer of Milton, whose body was found last night on the railroad tracks near this station, where he was first supposed to have been killed by a train. Subsequent investigation developed that the body, which laid on the back between the rails, bore but one wound, a fracture at the base of the skull.

Fushimi at the Hub.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Fatigued by sightseeing tours and social functions in his honor, Prince Fushimi of the imperial family of Japan spent Sunday in his apartments at the Hotel Somerset. Last night the prince entertained a few Boston friends at an informal dinner in the private dining room connected with his apartments.

Valuable Horses Burned to Death.

IVORYTON, Conn., Dec. 5.—Seventeen valuable dray horses were burned to death in a fire which totally destroyed the livery stable of Blake & Burdick last night. The loss is about $10,000 and the cause of the fire unknown. Four buildings were destroyed.

Blew Out the Gas.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Charles Gravelle of Albany and Maurice Champagne of Sorel, Canada, were found overcome by gas in their room at a hotel here yesterday morning and were with difficulty resuscitated. The gas had been blown out.

CANAL ZONE PACT.

Secretary of War and President Amador Agree.

EXECUTIVE ORDER FROM TAFT.

Customs Duties Go to Panama Except For Goods In Transit Through Waterway, When Built, and For Material Used.

PANAMA, Dec. 5.—The differences between the United States and Panama, which made necessary the visit of Secretary of War Taft to the isthmus, were settled yesterday (Sunday) by the issuance of an executive order signed by Secretary Taft for President Roosevelt and assented to in a letter by President Amador of Panama.

The order provides that no trade for the canal zone or the republic of Panama can enter the ports established by the United States at either end of the canal, supplies for the construction of the canal and articles in transit being excepted. This turns the customs receipts of these ports over to the government of Panama.

Panama agrees to reduce her tariff from 15 per cent ad valorem to 10 per cent. This reduction applies to all goods except wine, liquors, alcohol and opium. Panama also agrees to reduce her consular fees and port charges to 60 per cent of the rates at present charged.

Absolutely free trade is to apply between the canal zone and the republic of Panama. Vessels entering the canal ports are granted free entry to the ports of Colon and Panama, and vessels entering the latter ports are extended the same privileges in the canal ports.

Complete jurisdiction is granted the United States in the harbors of Colon and Panama as to sanitation and quarantine regulations.

Panama reduces her rate of postage to 2 cents and is to furnish all stamps in the republic and in the canal zone.

The zone authorities are to purchase stamps from Panama at 40 per cent of their face value.

The order of Secretary Taft is to be ineffective unless Panama shall put into effect the gold standard, according to the currency agreement of June 20, 1904. It also makes a stipulation regarding citizenship rights of Panamans in the canal zone, and provision is also made in the order for maintenance by the United States of important highways, partly in and partly out of the canal zone, and also the building of a hospital.

Secretary Taft has received a letter signed by President Amador and Senor Guardia, secretary of foreign affairs, reading in part as follows:

"Aside from the wisdom and justice evidenced by this happy solution of the differences between the United States and the republic of Panama, permit me to express, in behalf of the republic and of myself and advisors, our gratitude for your gracious visit to Panama and your patient, judicial and statesmanlike consideration of the subjects involved."

Secretary of War Taft, President Amador and a party of 300 Panamans have gone by steamer to Pearl islands. A cordial indorsement by the people of Panama of the agreement on the points of difference regarding the canal zone government which has been reached by Secretary Taft and the Panama government will take the form of a popular street demonstration here tonight.

CHURCH BAZAAR TO BE GIVEN AT PARK CLUB

EVENT PLANNED FOR EVENINGS OF DECEMBER 14 AND 15.

A bazaar is to be held at the Park Club on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 14 and 15 the proceeds to go towards reducing the mortgage on the rectory of the Holy Cross church. A dinner is to be served both nights, consisting of three substantial courses. Mrs. Johnson, the club caterer, has charge of the kitchen, which insures a superior meal.

The general idea of the bazaar is to divide it up into booths; an art booth, fancy work, pillow booth, groceries, toys, candy, flowers, in fact everything that will interest Christmas shoppers. The stores in New York as well as those in Plainfield have, besides giving liberal donations, placed many attractive Christmas novelties to be sold on commission. A. A. Vantine is to have a booth entirely devoted to their beautiful Oriental things. Huyler's candies will be sold at one of the booths.

Forsyth will have a booth filled with latest styles of neckwear, collars, cuffs and gloves, which will appeal to men attending the bazaar. One of the leading importing wholesale houses of New York, has agreed to send an exhibit of Oriental rugs to be sold at unusually low prices. The bazaar is to have many attractions for amusements alone. The stage at the club is to be turned into a "Little Pike" with side shows, fake art gallery and very clever ventriloquist with his Punch and Judy show. Music has been secured for both nights and afternoon.

The bazaar will give every one in Plainfield an opportunity to do Christmas shopping easily, cheaply and help a good cause, beside having a good meal and a delightful time.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The poolroom, which was opened in the Goad building, near Taylor's Hotel, two weeks ago, has, to all appearances, proved to be a gambling joint since the night it started, and yesterday afternoon Mayor Wycoff assisted by Marshals Mohan and Swartz, went to the place and arrested the owner, William Douglass, (colored) usually known as "Dovy" Douglass. A warrant had been sworn out by George Bond, also colored, who was bodily thrown through one of the windows by the proprietor at 1:30 yesterday morning after a fight between the two persons. In the borough court yesterday afternoon it was found that Douglass was leagued with several poker sharks from New Brunswick who came to the place and fleeced anyone who would play with them. They divided the money up afterwards, and Bond, who was one of the persons who lost money there Saturday night, saw Douglass and the parties from New Brunswick dividing the spoils. After they had gone home and he was alone with Douglass and a friend he accused him of stealing his money and Douglass resenting this grabbed Bond, who, although being much smaller than his antagonist, fought like a fiend, but was at last thrown through the window. As soon as possible he swore out a warrant for the proprietor's arrest. Douglass told Justice Von Minden that he could get bail, which was fixed at $200, from a friend in New Brunswick. His trial has been set down for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Robert Maltbie is trying to organize a hockey team for the winter, and if such a thing can be done a series of games will probably be arranged with both New Market and Clinton Avenue. The latter team has lately been organized and is made up of old-time players and they will probably show what they can do Saturday in a game against New Market.

Another meeting of the Dunellen Field Club will be held in the room back of the postoffice this evening, at which time a manager and captain for the baseball team will be elected. The outlook for a successful baseball team is prosperous as all the old players will be in the game again.

The signal tower will go into commission tomorrow with Terry Ronayne as chief day operator.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The second week of the revival meetings being held in the Methodist church began last night. Evangelist Rev. George W. Coon, who has made many friends in town during his week's stay here, was greeted with a large and appreciative audience, much spiritual interest being manifested. The week's work has been most encouraging, a number having rose for prayers and new spiritual life has shown itself in the work. At last night's meeting, Samuel Valenzuel, of Chile, South America, played several violin solos. Something in this line is introduced at each meeting, either vocal or instrumental. The evangelist believes in short but pointed heart to heart talks with his audience instead of the old way of long drawn out tiresome sermons. This has much to do with his success in the work. No meeting will be held tonight but tomorrow night the meetings will be resumed and continue until Friday night.

The bowling match between the local and Scott's bowling team, which was to have been held on Lee's alleys Friday night, was cancelled by the visitors. The two teams will meet at a later date.

Rev. G. M. Shott was unexpectedly called to Freehold Saturday to occupy the pulpit of the Freehold Baptist church Sunday, on account of Rev. Mr. Lissenden being quite ill.

The third quarterly conference meeting was held Saturday night at the Methodist church. Presiding Elder Rev. Mr. Halloran, of Elizabeth, was in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kandelky and child, of Roselle, have been visiting Mrs. Kandelky's father, Thomas Whitenack, of Forest avenue.

Just a few of the members of the Brookside Club were out to the club's weekly clay bird shoot held Saturday afternoon.

The cold and disagreeable weather of Sunday made travel light on the trolley, especially on the through cars.

An interesting weekly B. Y. P. U. gathering was held Sunday night in the parlors of the Baptist church.

The monthly communion was held at the close of the morning sermon at the Baptist church Sunday.

John Miller had a valuable horse quite badly injured Friday night, by becoming cast in its stall.

The weekly Epworth League meeting was held as usual in the Methodist church last night.

Harry J. Manning was leader of the Baptist Christian Endeavor meeting last night, the subject being: "How to Worship in Spirit and in Truth." The attendance was good, nearly all members took part in response to the consecration roll call.

The Township Committee will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow to pay bills and transact other business which may come before it.

Mrs. T. C. Laing, who has been ill more than a week with peritonitis, is steadily improving.

Mrs. R. B. Manning sang a helpful solo at the Christian Endeavor service last night.

William Faulks is quite ill with a severe cold, bordering on pneumonia.

Special Musical Service.

Under the direction of Clifford Braider, organist, a special musical service was held at the First Presbyterian church, last night. There were several anthems by the quartette, and in addition there were solos by Robert D. Brown, tenor, of St. Bartholomew's church, New York, and soprano solos by Miss Etta Raybert. Mrs. S. H. Tugwell, contralto, rendered solo parts in the anthems. The service was called an evening with compositions of Harry Rowe Shelley and the selections given were by this noted composer.

UNHAPPY SANTO DOMINGO.

Uncle Sam May Be Compelled to Reorganize Republic.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The United States will not purchase, annex or even accept as a gift the republic of Santo Domingo. This may be stated on the highest authority. That the United States may find it expedient to take temporary charge of Santo Domingo, reorganize its government, pay off its indebtedness and replace intolerable conditions with a safe and sane government, precisely as was done with Cuba, is not only possible, but probable. It is also possible that in return for thus acting as Dominican receiver the United States may acquire the use of a coaling station on Samana bay.

Under an arbitral award of July 14, 1904, the United States was empowered in the event of default of certain prescribed payments on American claims to assume control, through a fiscal agent, of the ports of Puerto Plata, Sanchez, Samana and Monte-Christo. Puerto Plata has already been taken, and the others will be in the near future. The only remaining ports of the republic are Santo Domingo city and Macoris, the receipts from which are pledged in payment of bonds held chiefly by French and Belgian citizens.

The revolutions of such frequent occurrence in Santo Domingo are usually due to the efforts of the revolutionists to acquire possession of the ports which will soon be administered by the government, and American custody of these sources of revenue will therefore effectually prevent further revolution.

The assumption that the United States will after undertaking the administration of the four ports named go further and assume temporary charge of the entire Dominican administration with the hope of establishing it on a sound and businesslike basis is occasioned by the hopeless insolvency of the present regime, the tyranny of militarism which dominates the republic and the constant danger that European creditors may be driven to exasperation and their governments feel called upon to do the work which can be better done by the United States and which if performed by this country would be unattended by danger of foreign complications.

HOLBROOK'S BODY FOUND.

Wealthy Providence Manufacturer Missing Since Nov. 7.

LINCOLN, R. I., Dec. 5.—The body of Albert Holbrook, the wealthy manufacturer of Providence, who mysteriously disappeared from his home on Nov. 7, was found by Bertram Jenks, a boy who while skating on Stump Hill pond saw the body floating in the water under the ice. A hole was cut in the ice and the body recovered. There was nothing to indicate foul play.

Mr. Holbrook, who was the senior member of the firm of A. & C. W. Holbrook, manufacturers of cotton pickers, left his home late in the afternoon of Nov. 7 during the absence of his family and without leaving any word with the servants.

Since that time there had been no trace of him, and large sums of money have been spent in the effort to find him. A reward of $300 was offered for any information of his whereabouts. Mr. Holbrook had been a sufferer from nervous troubles and spent last summer in Nova Scotia. He was fifty-nine years of age and leaves a widow, daughter and one son, Herbert.

Another Star For the Flag.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—"The flag of our republic will not be complete until on its field of blue is placed the rising star of Oklahoma," says the annual report of Governor T. B. Ferguson of Oklahoma, just made public. The report adds, "With 700,000 people, $540,000,000 worth of property, the major portion of our public expenses bestowed upon our schools, unprecedented advancement along all lines of enterprise, it seems that congress should give us the authority to exercise in full the rights of American citizens."

Paper Napkin Mill Destroyed.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Dec. 5.—The plant of the Japanese Tissue Mill company at South Hadley, a three story wooden structure, has been burned here, causing a loss of $25,000 and throwing about 100 people out of employment. The owners, J. L. Perkins, J. Pope and W. H. Bond of this city, announce that they will rebuild immediately. The fire started from some unknown cause in the engine room. The work of the mill was to manufacture paper napkins.

Murder at Stone Cliff, W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 5.—At Stone Cliff, two miles above Thurmond, Sam Miller and an accomplice have murdered George Dane by beating out his brains with an iron bar. The two men then boarded a passing freight train and attempted to escape. Miller's accomplice was arrested, but Miller is still at large. It is said the motive was robbery, Dane having a small sum which the guilty pair coveted.

Honors For Archbishop Farley.

ROME, Dec. 5.—Archbishop Farley of New York has been appointed by Pope Pius X. to the dignity of assistant to the pontifical throne, which permits the prelate to sit with the college of patriarchs and archbishops and to assist at functions presided over by the pope.

Large Dairy Barns Burned.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The large dairy barns of ex-Sheriff Winfield S. Stone of this city have been burned together with thirty-one cattle and four horses. The loss is about $7,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE.

Twenty Thousand Saw Start at the Madison Square Garden.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Amid a roar of applause from nearly 20,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden the contestants in the twelfth international six day bicycle race responded to the crack of the starter's pistol, fired by Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan at exactly five minutes after midnight this morning. The garden was thronged for an hour or more before the start, and when the champions lined up every inch of room in the great building was occupied. The cheers that hailed the start continued until several laps had been reeled off, the backers of the various contesting teams shouting themselves hoarse in encouragement of their favorites.

A large force of police was present, and perfect order was maintained. The foreign contingent this year is the largest that has ever started in the race, and it was the general opinion of the experts who witnessed the start that the native champions will have a hard time in holding their own.

Eighteen teams started from the mark, the California team, consisting of the Downing brothers, being broken up, Carl Limberg of San Jose being substituted for Eurton Downing.

Auto Boat Race Arranged.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—An auto boat race across the Mediterranean from Algiers to Toulon has been arranged. No limits are prescribed as regards form or dimensions of the boats or type of motor, except that it must be a motor by explosion with instantaneous production of steam or electricity. The minimum speed must be twelve kilometers (seven and a half miles) an hour. No fuel supply can be taken on at sea.

A Roi d'Espagne Automobile.

MADRID, Dec. 5.—King Alfonso is delighted with his new twenty-four horsepower Panhard, which has just arrived from Paris. The new machine is intended for touring. With a body of the new victoria pattern it has side entrances and is to be known hereafter as the Roi d'Espagne type. The body is of wood, painted gray with red lines and fitted with all the latest niceties of luxurious automobiles.

EIGHTY BADLY HURT.

Broken Rail on the Missouri Pacific Caused Wreck Near Holden, Mo.

HOLDEN, Mo., Dec. 5.—A Missouri Pacific passenger train from St. Louis to Kansas City was wrecked at the waterworks bridge, two miles east of here, resulting in the injury of about 150 passengers, eighty of whom were seriously hurt. The accident was caused by a broken rail, which projected from the track, catching the coach behind the mail car, throwing it from the track down a twenty foot embankment and causing two other coaches, a Pullman and a dining car to follow it.

The broken rail was on the bridge, and the rear Pullman rolled off the bridge into the creek below, and the passengers inside were all seriously injured. Two aged women, imprisoned in this car, were taken out at the top after holes had been made with axes.

The engine, two baggage cars and the mail car passed the bridge in safety and remained on the track, but all the rest of the train was thrown off.

There were thirty members of the Warrensburg lodge, Knights of Pythias, on the wrecked train, and few of them escaped injury.

Bishop Potter at Wellesley College.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Dec. 5.—Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York spoke at the chapel services at Wellesley college on the topic "The Relation of the Old Testament to Practical Modern Life." He said among other things: "While there is much in the Old Testament that appears out of harmony with refined and sensitive modern ideas, the book should be judged in the light of the age and the conditions for which and in which it was written. What may be regarded as the barbaric touches in the Testament are really the evidences of the first step in the growth of ethical ideals and of a great religion which began with a primitive, barbarian people, but which saw a lofty development."

Three Burned to Death at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 5.—In a fire which was remarkable for its rapidity and awful havoc Mrs. Rock Perry and two of her children were burned to death last night here. Rock Perry, the husband, and his son Henry and daughter, Annie Perry, were forced to stand in the street and see the tragedy. The forceful though kindly efforts of the police kept them from rushing into the flames for their loved ones.

Cottonseed Plant Destroyed.

SELMA, Ala., Dec. 5.—The International Cottonseed Oil company's plant was partly destroyed by fire yesterday. The seed, hull and meal warehouses are a total loss. Between 3,000 and 4,000 tons of seed were lost. The total loss is estimated at $100,000, partly covered by insurance. Spontaneous combustion in the seed warehouse is the supposed origin of the fire.

Two Mates Dead.

RIO GRANDE DO SUL, Brazil, Dec. 5.—The British bark Providencia, Captain Symons, from Fernandina, Fla., Aug. 18, is ashore on the north bar of this harbor. The crew was landed, but two mates of the ship are dead.

Fatal Fire In Rooming House.

DENISON, Tex., Dec. 5.—Three persons have been burned to death in a fire that destroyed a rooming house here. Thirty-five guests escaped from the building by jumping from second story windows.

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

WHAT WILL BE WORN.

Materials and Accessories For the Up to Date Wardrobe.

One of the smartest materials of the season is a black amazon cloth embroidered in silk. It has a waved border, the pattern of which graduates from large to small designs and is punctuated with punched holes embroidered in buttonhole stitch very like the English embroidery so much used last summer.

Lace motifs are frequently edged with the narrowest laces, which increase their size and soften the edges, which are apt to show a crude outline when applied on a contrasting material.

There is a great demand just now for petticoats of chameleon taffeta in three distinct shades or tones. Another fancy of the moment is to have the under-skirt exactly match the gown and to ring the changes with each costume—a very dainty but expensive fashion, by the way.

The child's frock in the cut is made of old blue cashmere, with a lengthened bodice. Shaded velvet edges the plaited plastron and skirt. The yoke is of cream embroidery, and the velvet belt fastens at the side.

EVENING GOWNS.

Princess Effects Popular and the Old Fashioned Polonaise Revived.

For evening wear there is a revival of the polonaise and the old princess frocks. If well carried these styles are charming, but a frock of this sort cannot be put up by an amateur.

One of the ideal fabrics for evening frocks is velours mousseline, which takes the loveliest lights and shades. In the new bronze green this velvet is exquisite when trimmed with mechlin lace. For a matron a gown of this description is exceedingly handsome.

A flower dress which suggests a delicious scheme for a girl in her first season is composed of the palest water green chiffon mounted on white satin of rose leaf consistency which falls in clinging folds around the figure. The bodice is minutely tucked and gathered. Over the upper part of it is a bertha pointed back and front of latticework formed of pink tipped daisies with golden centers. The skirt is gathered and tucked to correspond with the bodice, the same tangle of daisies being repeated on the lower portion of the skirt.

An equally charming dress is one of pink chiffon gathered full around the waist in the style of the moment and adorned with graduated entre deux of lace dotted at intervals with tiny bunches of pink rosebuds, the pattern picked out daintily in crystal dewdrops. At the bottom of the skirt is a deep flounce of chiffon, widening at the back and adorned with little gathered ruches of chiffon edged with lace.

Soft ribbon fashioned into roses forms a favorite trimming on smart dance frocks arranged between festoons of the ribbon.

The illustration shows a stunning ball gown of sky blue mousseline de soie. Bands of white lace embroidered in rose motifs head the flounce on the skirt. The bodice is prettily made of rows of lace and gathered mousseline, with a puffing about the decolletage. The sleeves are shirred into puffs. The girdle and sleeve knots are of blue peau de soie.

CHAPTER I.

A poet may be a good companion, but, so far as I know, he is ever the worst of fathers. Even as grandfather he is too near, for one poet can lay a streak of poverty over three generations. Doubt not I know whereof I speak, dear reader, for my mother's father was a poet—a French poet, too, whose lines had crossed the Atlantic long before that summer of 1770 when he came to Montreal. He died there, leaving only debts and those who had great need of a better legacy—my mother and grandmother.

As to my father, he had none of that fatal folly in him. He was a mountaineer of Vermont—a man of steely sinews that took well to the grip of a sword. He cut his way to fame in the northern army when the British came first to give us battle, and a bloody way it was. I have now a faded letter from Ethan Allen, grim old warrior, in which he calls my father "the best swordsman that ever straddled a horse." He was a "gallous chap" in his youth, so said my grandmother, with a great love of good clothes and gunpowder. He went to Montreal, as a boy, to be educated; took lessons in fencing, fought a duel, ran away from school, and came home with little learning and a wife. Punished by disinheritance, he took a farm, and left the plow to go into battle.

I wonder often that my mother could put up with the stress and hardship of his life, for she had had gentle breeding, of which I knew little until I was grown to manhood, when I came to know also what a woman will do for the love of her heart. I remember well those tales of knights and ladies she used to tell me as we sat together of an evening, and also those adventures of her own knight, my good father, in the war with the British. My love of arms and of a just quarrel began then.

After the war came hard times. My father had not prospered handsomely, when, near the end of the summer of 1803, he sold his farm, and we all started west, over rough trails and roadways. There were seven of us, bound for the valley of the St. Lawrence—my father and mother, my two sisters, my grandmother, D'ri, the hired man, and myself, then a sturdy boy of ten. We had an ox-team and cart that carried our provision, the sacred feather beds of my mother, and some few other things.

We drove with us the first flock of sheep that ever went west. There were 40 of them, and they filled our days with trouble. But for our faithful dog Rover, I fear we should have lost heart and left them to the wild wolves. The cart had a low cover of canvas, and my mother and grandmother sat on the feather beds, and rode with small comfort even where the roads were level. My father let me carry my little pet rooster in a basket that hung from the cart-axle when not in my keeping. The rooster had a harder time than any of us, I fancy, for the days were hot and the roads rough. He was always panting, with open mouth and thoughtful eye, when I lifted the cover. But every day he gave us an example of cheerfulness not wholly without effect. He crowed triumphantly, betimes, in the hot basket, even when he was being tumbled about on the swamp ways. Nights I always found a perch for him on the limb of a tree, above the reach of predatory creatures. Every morning, as the dawn showed faintly in the tree-tops, he gave it a lusty cheer, flapping his wings with all the seeming of delight. Then, often, while the echo rang, I would open my eyes and watch the light grow in the dusky cavern of the woods. He would sit dozing awhile after the first outbreak, and presently as the flood of light grew clearer, lift himself a little, take another peep at the sky, and crow again, turning his head to hear those weird, mocking roosters of the timber-land. Then, shortly, I would hear my father poking the fire or saying, as he patted the rooster: "Sass 'em back, ye noisy little brat! Thet's right; holler. Tell D'ri it's time t' bring some wood 'fer the fire."

In a few minutes the pot and kettle would be boiling and the camp all astir. We had trout and partridge and venison a-plenty for our meals, that were served in dishes of tin. Breakfast over, we packed our things. The cart went on ahead, my father bringing the oxen, while I started the sheep with D'ri.

Those sheep were as many thorns in our flesh that day we made off in the deep woods from Lake Champlain. Travel was new to them, and what with tearing through thickets and running wild in every slash, they kept us jumping. When they were leg-weary and used to travel, they began to go quietly. But slow work it was at best, 10 or 12 miles a day being all we could do, for the weather was hot and our road like the way of the transgressor. Our second night in the woods we could hear the wolves howling as we camped at dusk. We built our fire near the shore of a big pond, its still water framed in the vivid green of young tamaracks. A great hill rose on the farther side of it, with galleries of timber sloping to the summit, and peopled with many birds. We huddled the sheep together in a place where the trees were thick, while father brought from the cart a coil of small rope. We wound it about the trees, so the sheep were shut in a little yard. After supper we all sat by the fire, while D'ri told how he had been chased by wolves in the beaver country north of us.

D'ri was an odd character. He had his own way of expressing the three degrees of wonder, admiration and surprise. "Jerushy!"—accented on the second syllable—was the positive, "Jerushy Jane!" the comparative, and "Jerushy Jane Pepper!" the superlative. Who that poor lady might be I often wondered, but never ventured to inquire. In times of stress I have heard him swear by "Judas Priest," but never more profanely. In his youth he had been a sailor on the lake, when some artist of the needle had tattooed a British jack on the back of his left hand—a thing he covered, of shame now, when he thought of it. His right hand had lost its forefinger in a sawmill. His rifle was distinguished by the name of Beeswax—"Ol' Beeswax" he called it sometimes—for no better reason than that it was "easy spoke an' had a kind uv a powerful soun' tew it." He had a nose like a shoemaker's thumb: there was a deep curve from its wide tip to his forehead. He had a large, gray, inquiring eye and the watchful habit of the woodsman. Somewhere in the midst of a story he would pause and peer thoughtfully into the distance, meanwhile feeling the pipe-stem with his lips, and then resume the narrative as suddenly as he had stopped. He was a lank and powerful man, six feet tall in his stockings. He wore a thin beard that had the appearance of parched grass on his ruddy countenance. In the matter of hair, nature had treated him with a generosity most unusual. His heavy shock was sheared off square above his neck.

"D'RI PULLED UP SUDDENLY—AND LISTENED, PEERING INTO THE DUSK."

That evening, as he lay on his elbow in the firelight, D'ri had just entered the eventful field of reminiscence. The women were washing the dishes; my father had gone to the spring for water. D'ri pulled up suddenly, lifted his hat of faded felt and listened, peering into the dusk.

"Seems t' me them wolves is comin' nearer," he said, thoughtfully.

Their cries were echoing in the far timber. We all rose and listened. In a moment my father came hurrying back with his pail of water.

"D'ri," said he, quietly, as he threw some wood on the fire, "they smell mutton. Mek the guns ready. We may git a few pelts. There's a big bounty on 'em here in York state."

We all stood about the fire listening as the wolves came nearer.

"It 's the sheep thet brings 'em," said my father.

"Quite a consid'able number on 'em, tew," said D'ri, as he stood cleaning the bore of his rifle.

My young sisters began to cry.

"Need n't be scairt," said father. "They won't come very near. 'Fraider of us 'n we are o' 'em, a good deal."

"Tow-w-w!" said D'ri, with a laugh. "They'll be apt t' stub ther toes 'fore they git very nigh us."

This did not quite agree with the tales he had previously been telling. I went for my sword, and buckled its belt about me, the scabbard hanging to my heels. Presently some creature came bounding over the brush. I saw him break through the wall of darkness and stop quickly in the firelight. Then D'ri brought him down with his rifle.

"Started him up back there 'n the woods a few mild," said D'ri. "He was mekin' fer this 'ere pond—thet's what he was dewin'."

"What for?" I inquired.

"'Cause fer the reason why he knowed he would n't mek no tracks 'n the water, ner no scent," said D'ri, with some show of contempt for my ignorance.

The deer lay floundering in the briers some 50 feet away. My father ran with his knife and put him quickly out of misery. Then we hauled the carcass to clear ground.

"Let it lie where 't is fer now," said he, as we came back to the fire. Then he got our two big traps out of the cart and set them beside the carcass and covered them with leaves. The howling of the wolves had ceased. I could hear only the creaking of a dead limb high above us, and the bellow of frogs in the near pond. We had fastened the trap chains and were coming back to the fire, when the dog rose, barking fiercely; then we heard the crack of D'ri's rifle.

"More 'n 50 wolves eroun' here," he whispered as we ran up to him. "Never see sech a snag on 'em."

The sheep were stirring nervously. Near the pen a wolf lay kicking where D'ri had dropped him.

"Rest on 'em snooked off when the gun hollered," he went on, whispering as before.

My mother and grandmother sat with my sisters in the cart, hushing their murmurs of fear. Early in the evening I had tied Rover to the cart-wheel, where he was growling hotly, impatient of the leash.

"See?" said D'ri, pointing with his finger. "See 'em?—there 'n the dark by thet air big hemlock."

We could make out a dim stir in the shadows where he pointed. Presently we heard the spring and rattle of a trap. As we turned that way, the other trap took hold hard; as it sprang we could hear a wolf yelp.

"Meks 'em holler," said D'ri, "thet ol' hetrap does, when it teks holt. Stay here by the sheep, 'n' I'll go over 'n' give 'em somethin' fer spraint ankles."

Other wolves were swarming over the dead deer, and the two in the traps were snarling and snapping at them. My father and D'ri fired at the bunch, killing one of the captives and another—the largest wolf I ever saw. The pack had slunk away as they heard the rifles. Our remaining captive struggled to get free, but in a moment D'ri had brained him with an ax. He and my father reset our traps and hauled the dead wolves into the firelight. There they began to skin them, for the bounty was $10 for each in the new towns—a sum that made our adventure profitable. I built fires on the farther side of the sheep, and, as they brightened, I could see, here and there, the gleaming eyes of a wolf in the darkness. I was up all night heaping wood upon the fires, while D'ri and my father skinned the wolves and dressed the deer. They had just finished when the cock crew.

THE ANNUAL EXECUTION

of Turkeys, Chickens, Ducks and Geese is enormous. We are careful in our selection of Poultry, and we never permit any "Old Birds" to come into our store. The we offer has been specially raised for food, and all that skill, care and knowledge could do has been done to make the meat tender, juicy and of fine flavor. Better make your selections of Poultry here.

MILES TO COMMAND.

Governor Elect Douglas Will Have Indian Fighter on Staff.

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 5.—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, retired, has accepted the appointment of adjutant general on the staff of Governor Elect William L. Douglas. This information has been made public by Mr. Douglas and is his first statement concerning the matter.

Mr. Douglas returned to his home in this city after a stay of two weeks in Hot Springs, Va.

"During my absence from the state," said Mr. Douglas, "I had consultations with Lieutenant General Miles about military affairs in Massachusetts. The ideas of General Miles and myself concerning these affairs are in exact accord, and General Miles will undoubtedly be my chief military adviser during my administration. I shall probably request the war department at Washington to detail General Miles to report to me under the provisions of a law recently passed by congress, and the general will undoubtedly accept the detail.

"General Miles will serve upon my staff, and his great ability and experience cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to the state and its organized militia."

General Miles was retired on Aug. 3, 1903. The fact that no word of eulogy or commendation came either from Secretary of War Root or from the president caused comment all over the country, and Miles' friends considered that he had been ill used.

The original cause of friction was said to be General Miles' attitude upon the policy pursued in the Philippines.

CONGRESS OPENS.

President's Message Will Be Brought Down Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—With half a hundred representatives prepared to sing their legislative swan song and surrender their seats to their successors chosen in the recent election and with many important governmental problems awaiting solution by the lawmakers, the Fifty-eighth congress has assembled for its second and final session today.

When the senate was called to order by Senator Frye, the president pro tem., and the house of representatives by Speaker Cannon, Washington has wakened up. Since April the government departments have been steadily grinding away at routine business, faithfully executing the mandates of congress. Senators and representatives have been at home safeguarding their political interests.

For a week they have been flocking to Washington with their plans, hopes and ambitions; their intrigues, enmities and jealousies. The stroke of the gavel at the opening was the signal to send them away in the race for political prestige. The president's message, which will be read to the assembled bodies tomorrow, will be the guide of those friendly to the administration, which means the immense Republican majority, and will serve as a target to the agressive minority.

The members of congress chosen at the last general election will not take office until after March 4 next.

Italian Crown Prince Baptized.

ROME, Dec. 5.—The infant crown prince of Italy was baptized at the Quirinal yesterday. The weather was showery, but this did not prevent a great crowd gathering at the palace to witness the ceremony and the distinguished guests. The ballroom of the Quirinal, used for the baptism, was transformed into a chapel and beautifully decorated. The crown prince behaved splendidly, his only outcry being when he felt the holy water upon his forehead. After the ceremony King Victor Emmanuel kissed his little son, and the queen made the round of the room to show the crown prince to everybody.

Two Bad Fires at Akron, O.

AKRON, O., Dec. 5.—This city experienced two fires, with an aggregate loss of more than $50,000. The first fire was in the yards of the Summit Lumber company, the loss being placed at $30,000. The second fire was in the barn of the Akron Transfer company, which, with several adjacent buildings, were burned. The loss on the transfer barns is placed at $25,000. Fifteen or twenty horses belonging to the National Biscuit company stabled in the transfer barns were burned to death.

His Own Steamer at Panama.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Cunard line steamer Etruria has arrived from Queenstown after a stormy voyage. Among the passengers were Right Hon. Earl Fitzwilliam, D. S. O., said to be one of the richest landowners in Great Britain. He is going to Australia and will be met by his own steamer at Panama, purchased for this trip and especially fitted up for the earl.

Watson Still on Stump.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 5.—A special from Lincolnton, Ga., says that Thomas E. Watson spoke there and at great length ridiculed Parker, Cleveland and other prominent Democrats. After the speech four members of the Democratic committee who had been Populists before the recent campaign returned to their old allegiance and were elected Populist committeemen.

Dead In Bed From Morphine.

MERIDIAN, Miss., Dec. 5.—Otto Mayer, district manager for Maas & Newburger, cotton brokers, was found dead in his bed here. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death from an overdose of morphine taken to induce sleep. He was a native of Manheim, Germany.

BASKET BALL.

The next game in the schedule of the Y. M. C. A. business men's team will be on December 13, when they will play the Edward Clark Club, of Elizabeth.

Arthur Spicer, captain and forward on the Y. M. C. A. business men's team, has decided to withdraw from the team. Mr. Spicer has not time to give sufficient attention to the game.

The opening game in the city interscholastic league, which will be played on Wednesday, will be between the Leal's team and the North Plainfield High School five, and not the Plainfield High School, as has been announced.

The losers in the juvenile basketball league, the Plainfield High School seconds and the Y. M. C. A. juniors will play on the association floor Wednesday. The former was defeated by the Leal's second team, and the latter was badly beaten by the Whittier School aggregation. The lineups of the two teams will be announced at a later date.

The Y. M. C. A. team will lineup as follows in the game with the Newark aggregation on the local gym floor this evening: Cahoone, center; Smith and Hand, forwards; Scull and Neal, guards. It is possible that some others will be substituted, but the above is the authoritive lineup. In weight the Newark and the local team are about equal, but the visitors have the reputation of being a faster team.

GOLF.

It has been noticed by those who follow the game of golf closely that the present day star players among the women have not made any too much improvement over the best women players of five years ago. On the other hand the improvement on the part of the men has been marked. Despite the fact that special events have been arranged for the women at both the Hillside Tennis and Golf club and the Park Golf Club, there has been an evident lack of interest. A limited number of entries have been received from time to time and at the time of play there has been very few to contest. Many reasons have been assigned for this, but probably one of the best is that the women do not like to travel over a long course alone or with a sister competitor, much preferring a male friend, and inasmuch as mixed foursomes are not frequently arranged the women do not have the opportunity to play with the men unless they engage in play outside of the regular competitions.

DIAMOND DUST

Plans for the formation of a State Baseball League were considered at a meeting of several managers of independent semi-professional baseball team held at Dover last week. Manager Mills, of the Orange A. C.; Manager Conkie, of the Chatham Field Club; the managers of the Stroudsburg, Newton, Dover and several other teams were present. It was proposed to form a league including some or all of these places and also include teams from Paterson, Elizabeth and Trenton. It is to be hoped that Plainfield will be able to get in the league, as the town is considered a good one and the fans would be able to see first-class ball. When the meeting adjourned it was decided to meet in Newark next week.

"LARRY" WALLACE AGAIN DISTURBS THE BOROUGH

LANDED IN JAIL AND FACES ANOTHER LONG TERM.

Released from the Somerville jail only last Tuesday after serving an eighty-one days' sentence, the irrepressible "Larry" Wallace, of this city, faces the prospect of going back for another long term. He was arrested after a struggle in the borough Saturday night and will be given a hearing before Recorder Doud this evening. It was he who inflicted the last sentence and Wallace's chances for clemency are slight in consequence.

"Larry" has been celebrating ever since he returned to town and he spent the greater part of Saturday evening in borough saloons. At closing time he was put out of a Somerset street place and immediately started a disturbance at Somerset and Race streets. Special Marshals Dooley and Meyers ordered him to desist and he replied by offering fight. There was a mix-up that lasted several minutes and at the close Wallace was landed in a cell. As he usually does, he made an attempt to wreck the jail and this charge will also be preferred against him.

CHINAMAN DRUNK

Lung Sing Aroused Whole Block by Yelling "Murder" at One A. M.

For the first time in many years, a Chinaman was a prisoner in the city court this morning, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He is Lung Seng, a laundryman, and was arrested on North avenue at 1 o'clock this morning after he and Joseph Packer had aroused the whole block by yelling "murder" at the top of their lungs. Neither one could tell what the trouble was but they both owned up to being jagged. Sentence was suspended in each instance.

Luigi Ciaci, arraigned for drunkenness, was fined $3, and James Emmons, arrested for disorderly conduct, was released with a $5 or twenty day suspended sentence.

A concert will be given in the Congregational church on Thursday evening under the auspices of the choir.

COURT'S RULING NOT LIKED BY GUARDSMEN

REMOVAL OF TAX EXEMPTION CAUSES WIDESPREAD DISCUSSION.

Notwithstanding reports to the contrary there is considerable talk among the National Guardsmen of this State about the recent opinion rendered by the court declaring the tax exemptions heretofore allowed soldiers and firemen, unconstitutional, and there is a possibility that many members of the various companies may retire in consequence. A member of Co. K, of this city, in speaking about the matter, said that the whole State Guard is incensed at the action of the State in taking away the small amount of exemption allowed and he ventured the opinion that it would not take much for whole companies to disband for this reason.

He furthermore stated that he thought the State had displayed a very mean spirit in the matter and that it was the only State in the Union that did not allow such exemptions. He severely criticized the manner in which the Guard is provided for by the State and said that its recent action was only in keeping with several others tending to maintain the Guard on the smallest possible appropriation.

As an argument in favor of continuing the exemptions, this member said that with a soldier he is liable to be called from one State to another in case of riots or any other similar trouble, and yet no provision is made for taking a man away from his work and providing for his family, it is only a case of go or be discharged from the company. This sort of thing, he said, was having a tendency to cause a feeling among the guardsmen against the State military authorities, as well as the Legislature, and the least the State can do is to allow the exemptions as before. It is well-known that there is considerable feeling in Co. K over the matter and some action would not be surprising.

WINS BEER CHAMPIONSHIP.

Germans Hold Drinking Match in Paris—Victor Absorbs 19 1-2 Pints of Beverage.

The Cafe de la Republique in Paris was besieged the other evening by a large number of Germans desirous of witnessing a beer-drinking competition between three of their compatriots. At seven o'clock each of the competitors started with an initial drink of one and three-quarters of a pint of Pilsener beer. At ten o'clock a man named Schnellman was three pints ahead of his rivals, having disposed of 11 pints of beer. An adjournment was then made for supper, which consisted of viands flavored with salt and vinegar—calculated to stimulate thirst. At 11 o'clock the contest was resumed and continued without intermission until 2:30 a. m., when Herr Schnellman having considerably increased his lead, his rivals gave up in despair. The victor had imbibed 19½ pints of beer in six and one-half hours. All three men presented an apoplectic appearance at the finish, and, although the winner looked less uncomfortable than the other two, he was, nevertheless, in a sad condition. Herr Schnellman received $100 as the result of his unenviable achievement.

Councilmanic Committee Reports Concerning Cause of Floods in East End.

TO REMOVE DAMS

Storm Overflow Sewers Also Suggested As Result of Thorough Investigation Into the Present Conditions—Text of the Report.

The anticipated report from the street committee of the Common Council regarding the petitions of residents in the East End asking for relief from floods in heavy rains, was presented at the meeting of the Common Council, last night, by Chairman W. L. Gleak, of that committee. Accompanying the report was a map, made by Street Commissioner Gavett, showing the improvements as proposed by the committee. Both the report and map were filed on Mr. Gleak's motion to be taken up by the new streets and sewer committee for next year. The full text of the report is as follows:

"Your committee on streets and sewers, to whom was referred the investigation into the causes of the overflow from Green brook, would respectfully report that we have made frequent visits to the locality affected, have conferred with residents and property owners in that section of the city, particularly with Messrs. Frank DeL. Hyde, Pierre Mali and L. V. F. Randolph. We have also had a map and profile prepared (which is filed herewith as a part of this report), showing the relative location and elevation of streets and brook.

"Our interviews have brought out wide differences of opinion as to the cause of the overflows, and we are convinced that no single cause exists, the removal of which alone would obviate the trouble complained of. We believe, however, that there are a number of improvements, which, if made, would probably prevent the recurrence of these destructive floods.

"The water shed of Green brook and of its tributary, Blue brook, embraces an area of six square miles above Fanwood notch, and it is estimated that the rainfall, if properly stored, would furnish nearly 3,000,000 gallons of water for every day in the year. These figures make it easier to realize what a vast quantity of water is poured into Green brook in times of severe storms.

"The amount of water has considerably increased in recent years, owing to the cutting down of trees by some of the property owners on the mountains; forest fires, started by mischievous or careless persons, have also tended to make the character of the flow more torrential; this effect being caused not so much by the destruction of the trees, as by the loss of the so-called 'forest floor' formed by the leaves and vegetation on the ground, which, acting as a sponge, holds back much of the water and tends to make the flow more even.

"When we also remember that Green brook, as it passes over the Hyde dam, is higher than East Front street at Farragut road, and that the intervening land is practically level, it will be seen that whenever the flow exceeds the capacity of the shallow brook, Front street must receive and distribute the surplus.

"From Terrill road to Netherwood avenue, a distance of about 4,400 feet, there is a fall of 15½ feet and the brook is free from dams, but it should be cleared of the fallen trees, rubbish and the like, which now obstruct the brook.

"It is desirable that the brook should be deepened; in places, as far east as Scotch Plains, and we suggest that the Common Council request the officials of the adjoining towns to undertake this improvement.

"At a point 1,000 feet west of Netherwood avenue there is a log dam maintained under an old mill right by the Hyde Estate on the property of Mrs. Frances J. Mali. Above this dam the brook is partially obstructed by sand and gravel. In times of floods the water of the brook leaves its banks at and above the dam, flows over the property of Mrs. Mali and out into Faragut road and East Front street. We recommend that negotiations be opened with the representatives of the Hyde Estate, looking to the purchase of the mill right and the

ASSEMBLYMAN EMBREE BORNE TO THE GRAVE

HOST OF FRIENDS PAY THEIR LAST RESPECTS TO WESTFIELDER.

Union County officials and those from the various nearby towns, as well as many prominent in the Republican affairs of the county, together with a large number of relatives and friends attended the funeral services of Assemblyman-elect George Hoffman Embree, held yesterday afternoon from St. Paul's Episcopal church, Westfield. The edifice was much too small for the great number that tried to attend the service. Rev. O W. Jarvis, the rector, officiated.

There were floral tributes from the Union County Republican Committee, as well as from individual officials and the several local organizations of which Mr. Embree was a member, completely hiding the casket from view.

Among those attending the obsequies were Hamilton Kean, Surrogate Parrott, County Clerk James O. Calvert, Registrar of Deeds Frank H. Smith, Assemblymen-elect Edward S. Coyne and Peter Tillman, Charles N. Codding, Freeholders J. F. Hubbard and William Westphal, Former Assemblyman William Newcorn, Mayor-elect J. F. Buckle and S. P. T. Wilbur from this city. The Union County Board of Freeholders was quite generally represented, as were also Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum, and other organizations in Westfield to which Mr. Embree belonged.

A strange co-incident remarked by many yesterday was that while Edward S. Coyne, of Elizabeth, was being nominated for the Assembly, he was very ill in the hospital and not expected to live. At that time Mr. Embree was at the convention in the best of health. Mr. Coyne recovered and was able to attend the funeral services of Mr. Embree.

Following the services the interment was made in Fairview Cemetery. The bearers were J. L. Delatour, M. Welles, W. J. Ajnera, J. O. Clark, C. N. Codding and Gerald Earle.

ROUTINE MATTERS.

City Board of Education Has But Little Business at Regular Monthly Meeting.

Practically nothing but routine business was transacted at last evening's meeting of the Board of Education. The medical inspectors reported examining 189 pupils, the custodonian reported a balance of $38,000 and Superintendent presented a check for $444 as tution fees from non-resident pupils for the fall term.

M. M. Mars, of New York, appeared in person before the Board and requested the use of class rooms in the various schools for the instruction of advanced penmanship. The matter was referred. Mr. Abbot reported progress in the work on the new High school and several applications for its janitorship were received

Fair Opens Tonight.

The fair under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., the largest which has ever been conducted for the benefit of the association, will begin tonight, lasting for three days. It will be in the Babcock building, which has been tastefully decorated for the occasion. All the plans for the fair are now finished and the eleven booths which will be arranged around the main floor of the building have been put in place. Plainfield Quartette Sang.

The musical features at the Perth Amboy Elk memorial service, Sunday evening, were furnished by a quartette from this city composed of Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Mrs. S. H. Tugwell, contralto; Elmer D Cutting, tenor and R. Wilson Derby, basso. They rendered several selections that were among the best numbers on the programme.

Wiltse's Good Record.

According to the report just given out by President P. T. Powers, of the Eastern League Baseball Association, Louis Wiltse, of this city, performed the best work during the past season. He was on the Baltimore pitching staff and lost only eight out of twenty-eight games he pitched. He was one of the greatest favorites in the league.

Bear It in Mind.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital, will be pleased to see you at the harvest home to be held at the new Nurses' Home tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock. Any donations may be sent to the hospital today or tomorrow and will be most acceptable.

COUNCIL'S ROUTINE WORK

Various Reports Presented and Referred.

ONE CLAIM MADE

Another Session to be Held Dec. 28, When Money Will be Borrowed in Anticipation of Taxes.

John Ross, owner of the building corner of North and Watchung avenues, presented a claim for $55 to the Common Council at the monthly meeting held last night, alleging that a workman in the employ of the city while engaged in working on the street with a pick struck a stone which flew against a large plate glass window in the drug store, breaking the same, and causing an expense of $55. The claim was presented to the Common Council through Charles J. McNabb, attorney for Mr. Ross. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh presented the legal papers in the sale of the plant of the Plainfield Sanitary Company, formerly owned by Mayor-elect J. F. Buckle, and the city, the new owner. The papers were filed.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of ninety-four sewer permits from September 28 to November 28 and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that he had granted twenty-seven building permits.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution authorizing the City Clerk to draw a check for $62,122.24, the city's share of the State and county tax. Another resolution offered by Mr. Daniel provided that when the Common Council adjourned it be to meet on Friday night, December 23, when the business for the year will be concluded as far as possible. At this meeting it will be necessary for the Common Council to borrow money in anticipation of taxes and at that time it will be possible for the finance committee to tell how much money it an safely borrow, the bulk of the taxes being paid by December 30. The final meeting of the present Common Council will be held on December 30.

During the evening President Tolles appointed Councilman Charles C. Randolph, the new member from the Fourth ward, to membership on the same committees left vacant by the resignation of Robert L. Lee. All of the members attended the meeting, excepting Councilman Frank DeW. Randolph. Mr. Tyler was present at the opening of the meeting, but he aked to be excused and the request was granted.

DUNELLEN JUSTICE SCORES GAMBLING JOINTS

CONVICTED KEEPER FINED AND YOUNG MEN WARNED.

Dunellen placed emphatic disapproval on gambling and gamblers, yesterday afternoon, when William Douglass, colored, well known in this city, was arraigned before Justice VonMinden on a charge of conducting a gambling joint. He pleaded not guilty but there were so many witnesses to testify to the opposite that the court had no difficulty in making a decision. Douglass was fined $20 and costs with the alternative of spending sixty days in jail. He secured the amount by pledging his pool table and on being released, hurried to New Brunswick to "carve" the man who preferred the complaint against him.

A large crowd witnessed the proceedings, which were held in the Goad building, and at their conclusion Justice VonMinden handed out a solemn warning to the younger element on the evils of games of chance. He declared with emphasis that anyone of them caught in a gambling joint or seeking to locate one, would be haled to court and sent to jail for the full term prescribed by law. The practice has been prevalent in the borough for several months and it is thought Douglass' conviction will give it a decided check.

Meeker Inn Threatened.

The old Meeker Inn at Union, which is conducted by Mrs. Illsley, formerly of this city, narrowly escaped destruction by fire Saturday. Sparks from an old-fashioned fire place ignited a mantle and the flames were spreading rapidly when discovered. Prompt action on the part of Mrs. Illsley and her daughter, Miss Stella Illsley, aided by neighbors, is all that saved the building.

AUGUSTUS FRAZEE DEAD

Originator of Express Messenger Service Passes Away.

FAMILIAR FIGURE

Aged Eighty-One—Member of Old Harmony Engine Co.—A Free Mason.

Augustus M. Frazee, for years a familiar figure about the city, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Euphemia Gulburg, in South avenue, this morning, at the age of eighty-one years. He was the originator of the "pony express" service in this vicinity and had many trials and tribulations in making it a success.

Mr. Frazee originated a special messenger service between here and New York fifty years ago or more when passengers on the Jersey Central were transferred from Elizabethport to New York by boat. He was the oldest commutor in the city. After the death of his wife fifteen years ago, Mr. Frazee retired from business, being succeeded by his son Whitney, who now conducts it. During the early stages of his messenger service, repeated attempts were made by the railroad company to prevent his carrying it on over its line, the company having leased the privilege to the Adams Express Company. Attempts were futile for Mr. Frazee rode on top of cars and hid in cars to carry on his business.

Some twelve years ago, he broke a leg while out driving, being thrown from his carriage. The leg was subsequently amputated and a wooden one substituted. Mr. Frazee was a member of the old Harmony Engine Company and later a member of Gazelle Engine Company. He lost a finger some years ago, while running to a fire, being thrown forward and breaking the member. The only fraternal organization with which he was identified was Jerusalem lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M. He was a member of the First M. E. church.

His father was the proprietor of the old Buena Vista Hotel, which stood on Front street, east of Patterson's tobacco store. Surviving Mr. Frazee are four children, George and Whitney Frazee and Mrs. Euphemia Gulburg and Mrs. Alexander Sergeant. He has two brothers living, James and Samuel Frazee. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

WANT INCREASE IN PAY

Board of Assessors Ask $500 Apiece Per Year.

PETITION COUNCIL

Claim That Increase in Valuations and More Work Are the Reasons for Request.

Believing that they are inadequately paid for their services as members of the Board of Assessors, this body, comprising Joseph F. Hubbard, H. O. VanEmburgh, Harry C. Runyon and Charles H. Hand, petitioned the Common Council for an increase in pay for 1905. The assessors ask that the salary of each be made at least $500.

In the petition the assessors say that their re-appointment next year was not considered in making the request, but they believe that whoever is appointed should receive an increase. The main reason given for this request is that when the board was appointed the city valuation was about $7,000,000 and today it is over 9,000,000 They cite the many duties required today in comparison with those when the board was first appointed.

The request for more money was anticipated by some who were on the inside and it was not a surprise, and it is the general opinion that Mayor-elect Buckle is quite likely to re-appoint all of the members with the possible exception of the member from the Third ward. It has been hinted that Harry B. MacDonald, of that ward, may be chosen to succeed Mr. Hubbard. There was some talk of this change a year ago, but Mayor Jenkins was relieved from any action on finding that Mr. Hubbard's time did ont expire at that time.

At present each assessor receives a salary of $300 and in addition ten cents for each dog, making the total average about $315 a year for each official.

IMPROVEMENT BLOCKED

Property Owners Prevent Needed Work Along Brook.

PLAN IS HELD UP

Idea of City is to Widen and Deepen Cedar Brook to Stop Floods Along It.

The question of widening and deepening Cedar Brook for the purpose of preventing an overflow of water along that street in heavy rains, was reported upon at the December meeting of the Common Council, last night, by Chairman Gleak, of the street and sewer committee, who explained why the matter is being held up.

He stated that the committee had spent five months considering this improvement and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh drafted an ordinance providing for a storm sewer in Richmond street. While about seventy per cent. of the interested property-owners signed a release for the improvement of Cedar Brook, the others refused to sign the agreement drawn up by the corporation counsel and in consequence the city can do nothing further at present. Mr. Gleak could not understand why all of the property-owners should not sign the agreement, inasmuch as they signed the original one some time ago.

The new agreement provides for the widening and deepening of Cedar brook and gives the city the right to enter the lands and do the work necessary for that purpose, on the condition that the improvement be made and the work done without assessment for benefits against the property-owners and likewise without compensation or assessment for damages to them.

Mr. Gleak explained briefly the great inconvenience resulting from floods in the Richmond street section, stating that he had travelled through that street for twenty years and some times was obliged to wade through a considerable depth of water. So far as this trouble was concerned Mr. Gleak said that he did not think Plainfield was up-to-date. Mr. Tolles added that it was more of a seashore resort.

Mr. Garrigues asked Mr. Gleak if it was not possible for the city to condemn the land needed to make the improvements along Cedar brook, so that the work could be taken up soon. Mr. Gleak said that such action was possible but he thought it might cost the city considerable, besides leading to a long and tedious delay in the courts, provided any of the property-owners desired to contest the action.

SAYS BROOKS CARSON DOESN'T TELL TRUTH

WILLIAM M'LAUGHLIN DECLARES APPOINTEE'S LETTER A FAKE.

The statement made by Brooks Carson in a communication to The Daily Press yesterday, that he was appointed a special marshal by the Borough Council without his consent or knowledge, was branded as false today by William McLaughlin, of Somerset street. The latter in speaking to a reporter for The Daily Press declared that he had talked with Carson about the appointment and that he was anxious to secure it. On the day of the Council meeting, he said he called Carson up by telephone and made arrangements to have him sworn in after the appointment was confirmed. It was McLaughlin who presented Carson's name to Mayor Smalley as a candidate for the position.

Carson's communication to the papers, a nicely worded typewritten article, has aroused much comment in the borough and his own friends are at a loss to understand his motive. In it he asserted that he had no intimation that he was being considered or that he knew of the appointment until he read the account of the Council's meeting.

PLANS FOR BUILDING OF VANZANDT & VOORHEES

NEW FEED STORE TO BE EQUIPPED IN MODERN FASHION.

Though not definitely decided upon, in general the plans for the new building of VanZandt & Voorhees, which will be started at an early date, are the best adapted to the purposes of a feed store. With the Central Railroad siding directly adjoining, it is not surprising that the price was $416 a foot.

This fact as well as the one that the location of the building will be near the place where the firm has conducted business for the last ten years, made the new site particularly desirable to the purchasers.

The plans call for the erection of a three story building, on the ground floor of which will be an office and eight large bins, each of which will hold a car load of grain. Connecting these bins with the railroad, there will be several chutes leading directly to the cars so that the grain may be unloaded without handling, and at the same time thoroughly screened. This saves an immense amount of manual labor, as do also the chutes and slides within the building, by which the bags may be filled by simply opening the chutes. In this manner the grain may be taken from the cars and delivered to the consumer without once being touched by hand.

Other bins for various kinds of grain will be situated on the second and third stories, and will be connected by chutes and provided with the most improved fanning mills, and appliances for cleaning. The machinery used in the operation of conveying grain from place to place will all be run by electricity.

In the rear of the main structure, a large one story brick building will be erected for storing hay. These buildings still leave about 150 feet of space at the rear which may be used for the erection of smaller outer buildings. An architect who makes a specialty of such buildings, is preparing plans for Messrs. VanZandt & Voorhees.

MADE GOOD CAPTURE

Newark Detective Lands Man Here Wanted for Possible Murder.

Just as he was about to board a trolley car on Watchung avenue, this morning, Guiseppe Capasso, wanted by the Newark police for a murderous assault on a man several days ago, was captured by Detective Thomas S. Audubato, of the Newark Second Precinct. The arrest was made so quickly that Capasso had no time to resist and he was at once placed on a train and taken to the State metropolis. The victim of the assault, John Spatoto, was terribly slashed with a razor and his death is expected.

Audubato is one of the best known detectives in the State and has a record excelled by few men in the service In addition to unravelling numerous mysteries he has captured five desperate murderers in as many years and prepared the evidence which secured their conviction.

MRS. B. R. FORCE DEAD.

Pneumonia Caused Her Death Early This Morning.

Following an illness of nine days with pneumonia, Mrs. Elizabeth Force, wife of Benjamin R. Force, died at her home, 263 East Front street, at 1:30 o'clock this morning. While her condition was critical, it was believed that she would recover, but during the night there was a turn for the worse and the best of medical skill was unavailing.

Mrs. Force was formerly Miss Elizabeth Todd, of Bedminister, where she was born and lived for a number of years. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and a faithful attendant at the services. The funeral services will be private.

Company K Elects Corporals.

At the regular drill of Company K last evening, James Niles and Lemuel Jennings were elected corporals to fill places made vacant by the removal from the State of Corporals Whitney and Harrell. The new officers will fill their positions at once. In addition to the election of these officers, it was decided to hold a shoot at the armory ever Saturday night, open to all comers. 23 calibre rifles will be used. The shoots will last through Saturday, December 24, the prizes being announced at a later date. A dance will be given at the armory a week from tomorrow, on Wednesday, December 14.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will meet Thursday night and elect officers.

T. O. DOANE EXONERATED

Building Committee Advises That Ordinance be Framed Against "Spite Houses."

REPORT IN FULL

Investigators Declare That Building Inspector Should Have Consulted Building Committee Before Acting on Marra's Petition.

Thoroughly aroused over the erection of numerous "spite-houses" in this city, there was a flood of petitions presented to the Common Council at the regular monthly meeting held last night. In all there were six petitions signed by prominent residents and property-owners from all parts of the city. The body of the petitions was alike in each case. It cited the "spite houses" on Hillside avenue, near Lake street, and the one on East Front street, protesting against the unseemly noises, the unsanitary condition about the places, the sawing and chopping of wood on Sundays, all of which was offensive to the eyes, ears and smell, as well as a detriment to the real estate interests of the city.

The petitions asked that Legislative action be secured, if the Common Council found itself unable to relieve the condition complained of. Among some of those who signed the petitions were Mason W. Tyler, Union County Investment Company, O. T. Waring, William Palmer Smith, Isaac L. Miller, John M. Whiton, J. V. Beekman, Dr. J. B. Probasco, Dr. Norman L. Probasco, Howard C. Tracy, W. E. Lowe, J. W. Murray, F. E. Kinsman, J. W. Jackson, Marion S. Ackerman and Charles A. Reed. Practically every section of the city was represented in these petitions.

Mr. Bullock moved that they be referred to the corporation counsel for an opinion as to what action can be taken, and this was done.

Supplementing the above protest the report of the fire and buildings committee, through the chairman, Mr. Bullock, presented its report concerning the petition of Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph on the same subject.

Report of the Fire and Buildings Committee of the Common Council in the matter of the communication of Mr. L. V. F. Randolph, dated September 25, 1904.

Your Committee has held a number of meetings, has gone fully into the alleged violation of the building ordinance, has consulted the corporation counsel in regard thereto, and has examined the property in question both with the building inspector, by special appointment with Mr Randolph, and individually. At the meeting of October 27 that portion of the above mentioned communication which bore upon the official action of the building inspector, both prior and subsequent to the granting of the permit in question, was fully discussed, and all parties directly interested were given opportunity to be heard. At said meeting Messrs L. V. F. Randolph, R. F. R. Huntsman, A. L. Marsh, Charles Opdyke, Building Inspector T. O. Doane, A. D. Jennings and William Townley gave evidence pertinent to this feature of the question.

(A copy of the report of this meeting is presented herewith.)

Having carefully considered the facts and the evidence thus variously obtained your committee respectfully reports as follows:

Late in May, last, Antonio Marra made application for a permit to erect a building on a lot he claimed to own on the southeast side of East Front street, about 700 feet east of Berckman street, known as 744 East Front street, and furnished a lead pencil sketch. The building inspector refused to accept the plan as offered, and told Marra to have plans drawn by an architect. Marra later substituted a set of blue prints showing the foundation plans, floor plans, and front, rear and side elevations. The building inspector granted a permit on April 6th, 1904, before the expiration of the ten days limited by the ordinance for passing upon the plans.

The inspector had no knowledge, other than the sworn statement of Marra, as to the title of the land upon which it was proposed to erect the building, and the committee does not consider that the inspector was derelict in this regard, as it was not within his line of duty to ascertain the ownership by other means than the sworn statement of the applicant.

Your committee has carefully considered all suggestions of incompetence and connivance on the inspectors part, both as set forth in Mr. Randolph's communication and as instanced at the hearing which was called for the purpose of listening to any further evidence along these lines.

At said hearing Mr. Randolph was given full opportunity to enlarge upon these suggestions, both personally and through the testimony of others, and stated at that time that there was no point at which he had charged Mr. Doane with collusion with anybody, but had pointed out possibilities which might suitably be said to be subjects of inquiry along lines of that sort.

Your committee has carefully reviewed these features of the case and finds no evidence to substantiate suggestions of incompetence or connivance on the part of the building inspector.

Mr. Doane inspected the building at various times while it was in course of construction, made suggestions to the man in charge of the work and stated to your committee that he found no violation of the ordinance.

The building inspector having grounds, we believe, for surmising the character of the building which it was purposed to erect upon the premises, could have referred the plans and application to the fire and buildings committee before granting the permit, and the committee would have advised with him gladly in reference thereto. However, your committee is strongly of the opinion that under the existing building ordinance the duty of passing upon plans devolves wholly upon the inspector, so that in the case under consideration, had the plans been submitted, the committee could have acted in an advisory capacity only.

At the suggestion of your committee the

AMUSEMENTS.

George M. Cohan and his "Little Johnny Jones" are playing to large audiences at the Liberty Theatre. This popular young star and his comedy company are giving great satisfaction and their New York engagement will prove one of the most successful of the current metropolitan season. The piece is a clever musical conceit, splendidly played. The character of the stranger with a slight "edge," played by Thomas Lewis, is a remarkably strong study. Every time Mr. Lewis comes on or leaves the stage he receives applause. Mr. Cohan has put very snappy and witty dialogue into the mouth of this role, which is one of the "fattest" comedy parts played in years. Mr. Lewis fits the part and it suits him, a combination greatly enjoyed by the audience.

"Higgledy-Piggledy" as presented by the Weber & Ziegfeld stock company, has proved the greatest laughing success in the history of the reconstructed playhouse now known as Weber Music Hall. People are turned away at every performance, not excepting the Tuesday and Saturday matinees, and already the catchy music of Maurice Levi is beginning to be heard in the land. The dainty witchery of Anna Held contrasts pleasingly with the more strenuous humor of Marie Dressler, while Joe Weber, Harry Morris, Charles A. Bigelow, Aimee Angeles, Bonnie Magin, Aubrey Boucicault and the sixty odd other members of the big company by their individual and collective efforts, combine to furnish an entertainment pleasing to the eye as well as the ear. Of the many song hits in the play, Anna Held's "Game of Love," "Nancy Clancy" and "In Gay Paree" have preference in popularity. Marie Dressler's "A Great Big Girl Like Me" and "In the Chorus," are more than merely mirth-provoking.

A GARAGE EXPLOSION

Standard Automobile Plant Destroyed by Fire.

TEN HURT, FORTY CARS IN RUINS

Little Electric Spark Caused Quarter of a Million Loss—Eleven Gasoline Tanks Blew Up—Employees Jumped From Second Floor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Following an explosion which was heard for blocks, a pillar of flame shot high in the air from the building of the Standard Automobile garage, in Thirty-ninth street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue. Many persons were burned, and others jumped from windows to save their lives. The flames spread with great rapidity.

Ten persons were injured and a quarter of a million dollars' worth of property destroyed as the result of a spark leaping from a gasoline machine on which a chauffeur was working in the garage.

Twoscore automobiles were destroyed or badly damaged, and so rapid was the progress of the fire that men working in the second story of the building had no opportunity to escape by way of the stairways and were forced to leap from the windows.

Five of the injured, Baptiste Magel, Louis Hoft, John Julius, John Erskine and Terence Redmond, were the most seriously hurt and were taken to various New York hospitals. The others of the injured have cuts and bruises, which are not serious.

The spark which started the fire communicated with a tank holding 100 gallons of gasoline. There were forty-five automobiles in the building, but the dense smoke prevented the rescue of the majority of them.

The 100 gallon tank exploded soon after the fire started and spread the flames to other tanks, and in a short time there were ten distinct explosions, filling the building with fire and smoke.

The garage is in the heart of the theater and hotel district of Broadway, and rumor spread that the Metropolitan Opera House and several of the big hotels were doomed. An immense crowd gathered, and the police reserves were summoned to keep the people out of danger.

The garage was practically destroyed, but little damage was done to nearby property.

Forty men were employed in the garage, but thirty of them escaped without injury. Most of the others were on the second floor and were forced to jump to the pavement below.

One automobilist was seated in his machine when the fire started. Realizing his danger, he put on full power and dashed through the half open doors, tearing part of them away.

GERMAN BANK CLOSED.

State Department Official Took Action Because of Run.

BUFFALO, Dec. 6.—The German bank of Buffalo was closed by State Superintendent of Banking Kilburn. This action was taken because of a run which began with the opening of the bank's doors and continued to grow in volume as the day advanced. A large crowd of excited depositors gathered in front of the German bank seeking information. Officers were placed at the door, and no one was allowed to enter. All this excitement had the inevitable result of sending nervous depositors hurrying to the German-American bank, which is located on the opposite side of Main street, a short distance to the south, and within a few minutes the counting room was thronged with men and women, and the run which began last week was renewed.

Soon after the announcement was made that the German bank had closed the Buffalo Clearing House association issued a statement to the effect that they would stand by the German-American bank and meet all demands made on it. It was also announced that President Emory and two of the directors of the German-American had resigned and that their places had been taken by three of Buffalo's wealthiest men. These two announcements had a reassuring effect, and several large deposits which had been withdrawn were again placed in the bank. Small depositors, however, continued to draw out their money, and at 3 o'clock nearly a hundred people were in line before the cashier's window. All of them were paid before the bank closed for the day.

The German bank was placed in charge of George S. Leonard of the state banking department. Superintendent Kilburn is of the opinion that the German bank will not resume business.

BECKWITH A DUPE.

Bank President Solves Chadwick Puzzle.

CARNEGIE NOTES WERE FORGERIES

Oberlin Bank Officials Indorsed Notes Signed "Andrew Carnegie" For $1,250,000—Money Raised on Them.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 6.—Numerous new angles have developed in connection with the affairs of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick and the troubles of the closed Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O. President C. T. Beckwith and Cashier Frank Spear of the latter institution were brought here from Oberlin by United States Marshal Chandler and a deputy. The bank officials were later arraigned before United States Commissioner Starek. Both pleaded not guilty and waived a preliminary hearing.

Seated in the office of the United States district attorney in Cleveland, O., President C. T. Beckwith of the failed Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., made a confession regarding the bank's transactions with Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick. Mr. Beckwith said: "I am either an awful dupe or a terrible fool. I guess there is no doubt about my being a fool. I know I have done wrong and, although crushed to the earth myself, I do not propose to be made a scapegoat to shield the sins of others. Further concealment of the truth cannot help any one. If I thought it could my lips would remain sealed as though I had been stricken dumb. The truth is that others also must be called to the bar to answer for their part of this terrible affair, and one of these whose answer must be had is Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick."

The banker spoke in broken sentences, and tears were streaming from his eyes. His acquaintance with Mrs. Chadwick began three years ago. The attorneys for Herbert D. Newton, the Brookline (Mass.) banker, have stated that their client loaned Mrs. Chadwick money only after a note signed "Andrew Carnegie" had been indorsed by the president and cashier of a national bank. The men who indorsed the note were President Beckwith and Cashier Spear of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O.

Relating this matter Banker Beckwith continued his story of the bank's transactions with Mrs. Chadwick as follows:

"Yes, we indorsed the note in addition to one other note for $500,000; but, oh, God, never for the purpose for which they were used."

"Do you mean to say that there are two $500,000 notes in addition to the note for $250,000?" was asked Mr. Beckwith.

"Yes; notes aggregating $1,250,000."

"It has not been generally understood that there were two notes for $500,000," was suggested.

"I know it, I know it, but the notes exist, just the same," said Mr. Beckwith. "One of them is in the hands of the receiver, and the other ought to be in the hands of Mrs. Chadwick. If she has disposed of it, she has done something which she swore she would not do. So please make it plain that a solemn oath was taken that the notes which bear our indorsement were never to be used by Mrs. Chadwick for the purpose of raising money, and she knew it."

"Mr. Beckwith, to correct any wrong impression, would it not be wise for you to state how Mrs. Chadwick induced you to place your signature upon the notes?"

"My God! I would like to if I thought it would make it clear. To tell the story would be to tell the tale of torture and transactions and transactions and torture covering a period of over a year. To tell it would take a good half day, and in my terrible condition I cannot attempt the task. I cannot tell the story before I go on the witness stand. I must seek advice."

At this point of the explanation of the old banker's affairs he leaped from the couch where he had been lying and paced around the room for composure. When he had controlled himself he resumed his story, saying:

"What will they think of me at my home town? Would to God I had been the only dupe instead of feeling the weight of condemnation from hundreds of depositors whose earnings have been swept away.

"Did we have the slightest suspicion that the notes carrying the name of Andrew Carnegie were not genuine? In heaven's name how could we have had suspicion? Mrs. Chadwick swore to both of us and one or more witnesses that she personally saw Mr. Carnegie sign his name to the notes she placed before us. But we said that we must be sure. How are we to know? The answer came in less than two days, when a New York attorney appeared in Oberlin, who said he was the attorney of Mr. Carnegie—his special agent. He vouched for the correctness of the claims made by Mrs. Chadwick. We had at least six conferences with this lawyer, two in Oberlin and four in Cleveland. Perhaps I am saying too much, but I must tell something more. In every way we attempted to make certain that we were engaged in a legitimate business transaction, the kind of a transaction a business man would enter upon with credit to himself."

"How about the attest held by Iri Reynolds? Did you see him?" Mr. Beckwith was asked.

"Yes, many times. And what did we understand? We understood by every word that everything was all right and that genuine securities were locked up in the vaults of the Wade Park bank. I don't know how. Why don't somebody find out? That is the question, why don't somebody find out?

"Just now I can see back to the first time I came to know Mrs. Chadwick in a business way. You know I have never in all this time been called a fool. It was something over a year ago that I learned that W. S. Fay and Henry Wurst of Elyria had had some dealings with Mrs. Chadwick. They were known as shrewd business men. I began to inquire. For a business man I wanted to exert effort to turn an honest dollar. I guess my inquiries reached the ears of Mrs. Chadwick in the light of events of the past two weeks. I guess Mrs. Chadwick was greatly interested the moment she learned that inquiries for business had been made by me. At any rate she came to Oberlin, and it was there the thing began. I began looking for legitimate business. Mrs. Chadwick? Well, you must judge for yourself. A second interview and I made a small loan. It was promptly met. In addition we secured considerable splendid business, all transacted in a business way. From there on the story leads into a maze, the end of which I wish to God I could now see. It leads on down to a time when I went down to New York. In my pocket I carried one of the notes signed with the name of Carnegie. When I started I had in mind an attempt to raise money on the paper to put funds in the bank. When I got to New York my heart failed me, for something told me that all was not right. I came back home without making any attempt to raise money on the note. And now everywhere I turn I hear the whisper, 'Why did you not reveal your suspicion?' What could I do? I had always been known as a fair and honest man. It seemed to me that the blood of depositors was on my hands. That was the thing that pressed at my throat. It was the conviction that everything must bend to saving money for my friends who had intrusted it to me. And so every move that was made was with the desire to save the bank if possible.

"Mrs. Chadwick had secured big loans from many other bankers. She had met these obligations. Would she not meet obligations to the Oberlin bank—my bank?

"We prayed that she would, and we thought she would.

"But now I guess the jig is up, and Mrs. Chadwick has reached the end of her rope. It is bitter, bitter, to think that everything is lost. Oh, the pinching and the squeezing of the last few months, all to get money! No one can ever know of the torture of it all. Personal property was swept away, the savings of years, but what of that if only the bank where my friends did business could be saved.

"I swore to my absolute faith in this woman. Yes, I swore to it, and I do not deny it. But that was the thing for me to do as long as there was an atom of hope. But look at me now. What have I got to do? I have got to go back among the people with whom I have associated and live. No one can deny me the right to live. But the rest of the people who have been parties to these transactions are not to go unnoticed. Let me tell you that not one-tenth part has been told. I have information which I am going to give. When I get my thoughts together I will make a statement, in which I will conceal nothing and in which all parties will be treated alike."

District Attorney Sullivan has declared that he had the note for $250,000 with Mr. Carnegie's signature in his possession and that it bore the name of Andrew Carnegie and was indorsed by C. L. Chadwick. A widely known banker, who requested that his name not be used, stated positively that he had seen the $500,000 note signed "Andrew Carnegie." This banker said he was not familiar enough with Mr. Carnegie's signature to state positively whether the signature was genuine or a forgery.

Receiver Nathan Loeser has filed his bond, thus making him the legal custodian of all property owned by Mrs. Chadwick.

It is stated that the approval of Mr. Loeser's bond ties up absolutely all of Mrs. Chadwick's property, and not a dollar of her debts can be paid out of the proceeds of her estate. All creditors, it is said, must share alike. This is supposed to apply to the Newton claim if there is an attempt to pay it out of any money that may be due to the estate.

Emil Chadwick, son of Mrs. Chadwick, has arrived here from New York and at once went to his mother's home at the corner of Euclid and Genesee avenues. The young man was deeply depressed. He refused to talk for publication.

Andrew Carnegie's secretary gave out another statement last night, in which the ironmaster insisted again that he did not know Mrs. Chadwick and had not signed any of her notes, in spite of the latest reports from Cleveland.

"Mr. Carnegie is very angry at the unwarranted use of his name and wants it stopped at once," said the secretary. "He states again that he never knew Mrs. Chadwick or any other such woman.

"He never signed any of her papers, and reports to the contrary are untrue. He asks that this annoyance cease at once."

Subpoenas have been issued against Beckwith and Spear and also Receiver Lyons of the Oberlin bank directing them to produce at the hearing before the grand jury all notes and collaterals in their possession or belonging to the bank "that purport to be signed by Andrew Carnegie and especially notes for $250,000 and $500,000 respectively." They are also ordered to bring into court "all checks and notes that bear the name of C. L. Chadwick or Cassie L. Chadwick, either as payee, maker or indorser."

Japanese Big Guns Dominate Port Arthur Harbor.

STOESSEL TRIES TO TAKE METER HILL

Defenders Have Landed Many Heavy Caliber Guns From War Vessels. Russian Victory Reported at Mukden.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—A dispatch from Chefu this morning says: "Heavy firing continues at Port Arthur. The Japanese are making most determined and persistent efforts to capture the northern forts."

Advices from the Japanese forces besieging Port Arthur say that the troops have mounted siege and naval guns on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill, the eminence west of the town which was captured last Wednesday night. With these they are heavily bombarding the Russian fleet in the harbor.

Thirteen shells have struck the Russian battleship Peresviet. Other warships of the squadron are in flames.

The Russians are still attempting to recapture Two Hundred and Three Meter hill. They are now apparently massing their forces in that direction from the eastern and northern forts. Evidently the position, though it was not a permanently fortified one, is considered worth the risk of diminishing the garrison to the utmost in attempts to recover it.

An officer who has just returned to Tokyo from Port Arthur says that when he left the Russians were landing the heavy guns from the ships of war in the harbor preparatory to blowing up the ships.

Tokyo advices say that preparations for meeting the Russian warships are progressing on a most extensive scale, particularly in the case of the navy, which is confident of solving the problem under fair conditions. The preparations of the army include the calculation that the Russians may attempt to cut the Japanese communications to the Liautong peninsula, but when the Russian vessels arrive the Japanese armies in Manchuria expect to be in a position to carry on the campaign for many months without the necessity of communicating with Japan. Commercial concerns anticipate a temporary disappointment in the matter of mail and maritime services when the Russian squadron arrives.

A special from Mukden says that the force of Japanese sent to turn General Rennenkampf's flank has been repulsed with great loss. The story is not yet officially confirmed. It is stated that General Rennenkampf, who knew the movement was maturing, awaited the Japanese at the mouth of one of the captured passes and that the Japanese turning force threw themselves unsuspectingly into the ambuscade, where after the fight the Russians collected 500 Japanese corpses. It is added that there are a thousand more Japanese corpses which it has been impossible to collect owing to the fire of the Japanese. This does not include the Japanese loss in wounded. The Russian loss, according to this account, was only thirty or forty men.

During the night the Japanese began a heavy artillery fire on Lone Tree hill, paving the way for an infantry attack. The Russian artillery answered vigorously for several hours and then slackened. The Japanese, imagining the Russian fire had been silenced, flung themselves in masses against the trenches, where they were allowed to come within close range, and then were met with withering volleys and a counter charge with the bayonet. The Japanese fled, having sustained enormous losses.

The attack by the Japanese on Lone Tree hill was probably due in part to a wish to distract attention from sapper operations on a neighboring hill near the village of Shakhe, but these operations were discovered and repulsed, and the Japanese fled. It is said that General Kuropatkin may make a great flank movement from Fushun, thirty miles east of Mukden, via Haicheng. Marshal Oyama's answer to this would be an attack on Mukden. Anticipating this, 20,000 of the best of the fresh Russian troops have just been sent south from Kulinho, west of Mukden.

The reports that France has given adhesion to Russian overtures for a modification of the treaty of Paris so as to permit the Black sea fleet to pass through the Dardanelles are officially denied.

Fushimi at Yale.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Prince Fushimi has returned to this city after a visit to Boston and Yale college. He was met by the Japanese contingent of Yale college at the depot. A brass band had been engaged, and his welcome was made most enthusiastic. President Hadley entertained the royal visitor at luncheon at the Graduates' club, after which they inspected the campus and other places of interest.

Hicock is a farmer and had made the sausages himself.

First Trackless Trolley.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—The first trackless trolley street railway has begun operation in Berlin and is apparently a success. The vehicles resemble electric omnibuses, but derive their power from an overhead trolley. They have a speed of ten miles an hour. They are equipped with a special type of wheels to prevent stoppages by snow.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 6, 1904

Though New Jersey is among the smallest of the states, her senators were favored with the largest bouquets at the opening of Congress yesterday.

Again the agitation is revived for filling the position on the Board of Assessors held by Joseph F. Hubbard by the appointment of another. Harry MacDonald, who is said to be slated for the berth, is in every way competent to discharge the duties of an assessor. In fact no better selection could be suggested if a change is to be made, but why the change?

Governor-elect Stokes' preference will be followed by Governor Murphy in filling the vacancy in the Chancery clerkship and we hope he will see his way clear to name Charles N. Codding for the place. Among the list of aspirants already mentioned there is none more competent or deserving than the Westfield man who has served his party well and worked hard for its success year in and year out. Through the adroitness and energy of Mr. Codding to a great extent is due the big majority the Republicans have in Union County. He's the man for the place.

To the public generally, and especially to property-owners, the report on the "spite house" nuisance, submitted to the Common Council last night, cannot fail to be most satisfactory. Naturally it is impossible for the present Councilmanic organization to take the necessary steps to abate the mischief, and the recommendation that the re organized body pass an ordinance to cope with the evil is the only proper move that can be made at this time. Knowing the character of the Councilmanic organization, with which Plainfield is ordinarily blessed, there is not the least doubt but that the solution of the vexing subject will be brought about early next year. Until then, the public may rest assured that no more permits will be granted for the erection of structures not in harmony with a given neighborhood.

MAY DEEPEN GREEN BROOK

removal of the dam: The obstructions should also be removed and the brook deepened above and below the dam

"At the easterly side of Farragut road there is a stone dam owned by Mrs. Mali; there is a diversity of opinion as to whether this dam causes any of the overflow, but we think it probable. In case the measures already suggested should fail to prevent the floods, we think that, as the next step, the Mali dam should be moved back about 18 feet, so as to give an overfall or crest line more than double its present length, and thus proportionately lessen the height of water passing over it. The present location of the dam, close to the bridge, is very unfavorable.

"A further precaution would be to place sluice-gates of ample capacity in the dam, so constructed as to be operated from a bridge; they could then be opened at any stage of the water. Similar gates should be placed in the Hyde dam, in case it remains.

"There is a stone dam about two hundred feet west of Farragut road belonging to Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph. It is possible that this dam does not contribute to the overflow, and its consideration may be deferred for the present. The storm water running through Faragut road in ordinary storms is carried into the brook through two pipes, one 12 inches and the other 24 inches in diameter, emptying under the bridge. In times of freshets the water is said to flow back through the pipes into the street; if this does occur, the water under the Farragut road bridge would be at least five feet higher than the crest of the Randolph dam.

"The flooding of East Front street has no doubt been increased since the land on the southwesterly side of Farragut road was raised, as the water formerly passed over the road near the brook and across Mrs. Randolph's property into the brook again.

"It has been suggested that large pipes be placed at the lowest point in Farragut road, running under Mrs. Randolph's land to a point below her dam, in order to carry the water finding its way into Farragut road to the brook instead of to Front street.

"It has also been suggested to us that a storm overflow sewer, about four feet in diameter, be constructed on the north side of the brook from the upper dam to a point near Norwood avenue; this sewer would be at least 2,400 feet long, and would cost about $12,000.

"We desire to extend to Mr. Frank DeL. Hyde, to Mr. Pierre Mali and to Mr. L. V. F. Randolph our appreciation of their expressions of willingness to co-operate with the Common Council in making such improvements as promise to be of service in preventing the overflows; to Mr. Mali for his promptly starting the construction of a levee along the brook above and below the Hyde dam, and for his work, now in progress, of deepening the brook through the Mali property; also to Mr. Hyde for his offer to arrange the gates in the Hyde mill pond below Farragut road in such a way that the mill race will flow to its full capacity during freshets, and reduce, by that amount the flood water above Farragut road.

"Respectfully submitted, W. L. Gleak, chairman; J. Stephen Higham, William S. Tyler, Theodore D. Wilson, committee."

Here it is only a few weeks before Christmas and I am not half ready for it. Just tired to death. These are expressions invariably heard when women meet each other at the beginning of the holiday season. Everything is left till the last moment, then there is a grand rush, and oft times in the hurry and bustle a gift is bought which will prove of no value or comfort. T. O. DOANE EXONERATED corporation counsel had an interview with the building inspector and advised him that hereafter at any time he had cause to suspect any ulterior object or purpose in a request for a permit—as a possible "Spite house" or blackmailing scheme—or if the granting of such permit should in any way seem to add to the fire risk or seem likely to give rise to future nuisance, he should report the matter to the fire and building committee and await its decision. To this suggestion the inspector has very willingly assented.

In case a permit should be refused the committee would confer with the corporation counsel in the matter and if the cause for refusal seemed just would uphold the inspector. Should a mandamus then issue to compel the inspector to grant the permit the city would defend the suit and indemnify said official.

The committee finds that the granting of the permit and the erection of the building are not the principal causes of injury, but that the action of the occupants of the property are the more objectionable features.

Mr. Randolph's strong stand in this entire matter, as also against the grossly improper conduct and demeanor of the tenants of the building (which conduct and demeanor seems to your committee to be the fundamental reasons for complaint) is praiseworthy and greatly beneficial to the interests of the city at large, but the remedy for these acts does not lie within the control of the building inspector or of this committee. Neither the Common Council, the fire and buildings committee nor the building inspector can control the size, cost or architectural appearance of a building, and this is as it should be. Much as we would like to have the architectural appearance of all buildings conform to high standard which would tend to beautify our city, still the man of small means has a perfect right to construct a home within the limits of his means and to enjoy life therein undisturbed so long as he complies with the law, regardless of the fact that its size and external appearance may not harmonize with the surroundings.

Mr. A. L. C. Marsh, an eminent architect of this city, when before the committee expressed views similar to those last mentioned, he himself speaking particularly with reference to the erection on Hillside avenue, adjacent to land owned by him, of buildings similar in style and construction to the one to which Mr. Randolph's communication relates.

Your committee has examined the plans and specifications embodied in the application for the permit to erect the building in question, and find that such application was in the usual form and provided for the erection of a structure permitted by the ordinance, save perhaps in respect to the roof, which was of a material permitted to be used within the fire limits, and as the ordinance has been universally construed, elsewhere as well, but by strange anomaly not permitted in outlying districts. for Sec. 11 of the ordinance provides "The roofs of all permanent new wooden structures are to be covered with metal, clay, tile or slate." A literal interpretation of the ordinance would prohibit all shingle roofs.

Your committee has examined with care the existing ordinance, and believing that a revision of the same would be advantageous to the city, had hoped with this report to submit a draft revision of the ordinance, collating in an orderly way provisions relating to buildings within and without the fire limits, and to buildings of wood and of stone construction and embracing the specific provisions in reference to the duties of the building inspector, including the provisions (which your committee regard as excellent) suggested in the communication from ex-Mayor Gilbert to the effect that whenever the inspector shall have reason to believe that an applicont for a permit to erect a dwelling house intends to erect what is commonly known as a "spite house" or any other building which shall seem likely to be detrimental, it shall be his duty to refuse a permit for the same and refer the applicant to the Common Council.

The work of your committee has been interrupted by reason of the resignation from the Council of the late chairman, on whom had devolved much of the labor incident to this examination, and your committee has therefore been unable to frame the proposed revison in season for action thereon by the present Council, and recommend that the final preparation of such an ordinance be left to the Council of 1905.

Dated Nov. 28, 1904.

Respectfully submitted,
on behalf of the committee,
W. S. BULLOCK, Chairman.

LITERARY.

The two infinities of Kant did not chill or hurt him, but his fearlessness is shared by few. Only for a short instant, at best, will most persons consent to look open-eyed at any clear image of fate or of infinity. Scarcely a friend of mine will look steadily at the clear midnight sky for a minute in silence. The freezing of the heart follows, the appalling shudder at the dread contemplation of infinity, which may be called cosmic horror, is more than can be endured. If those stars are absolutely and positively infinite, then there is no up or down, and they knew no beginning, will have no ending. With any such staring gorgon of fatalism the surcharged attention is shaken, and the hemistry of common life seizes upon the liquid crystals with avid hunger.—George M Gould, M. D, in the December Atlantic.

This privilege is due to the energy and public spirit of Miss Elizabeth Lamson and Miss Sibyl Anderson, two promising young violinists of this city, whose efforts are deserving of every encouragement.

Tickets may by obtained at Truell Inn, the Woman's Exchange, Randolph's drug store, or from any of the patronesses, and all persons are urged to be in their seats early, as the music will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

The following is a list of the patronesses: Mrs. E. Tracy, Mrs. A. D. Shepard, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. A. F. H. Streuli, Mrs. H. D. Hibbard, Mrs. H. C. Tracy, Mrs. C. A. Marsh, Mrs. R. H. DePew, Mrs. Paul T. Brown, the Misses Tweedy, Mrs. G. P. Mellick, Mrs. D. W. Hyde, Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Mrs. A. Phelps, Bound Brook, Mrs. S. D. Lounsbury, Mrs. S. B. Merwin, Mrs. C. Wharton, Jr., Miss Hubbie, Mrs. L. Calkins, Mrs. D. F. Ginna, Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. D. C. Ivins, Mrs. G. A. Strong.

Wedded Thirty-Three Years.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Grobes, of 407 Plainfield avenue, celebrated the thirty-third anniversary of their marriage, yesterday, and last night a number of well-wishers from the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church gave them a surprise party. During the evening there were musical selections by Alfred White, William Henry and Edward Blair. A feature was the presentation to the bride and groom of handsome bouquets by Mrs. E. B. Maynard and Miss Fanny Holden. Before the guests returned to their homes, a bountiful supper was served.

Company K Heads the List.

According to the report of Inspector-General Bird W. Spencer of the New Jersey National Guard, Company K, of this city, stands at the head of the list in figure of merit for rifle practice. It secured a total of .81 and the officer commends it highly for its work. The result is very pleasing to the members as they sought hard to exceed the other companies and many of them went to the range at a sacrifice of time and money.

New Grocery Store.

Mack Scudder Co. have opened their grocery store at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, and have filled the same with all fresh and new goods and are now in a position to supply the wants of the public in their line. HAS HAD RAPID RISE

FRANK W. HIGGINS STARTED IN BUSINESS AS A BOY.

Career of Possible Governor of New York Shaped by Chicago Girl Who Induced Him to Come to the West.

New York Special.

Frank W. Higgins, republican candidate for governor of New York, was born in Rushford, Allegheny county, August 18, 1856, and was educated at Pike seminary and at the Riverview military academy on the Hudson. He became engaged in business at the early age of 19 years at Stanton, Mich. For the last 15 years he has been interested in pine lands in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and also in iron mines. He has a business office in Duluth, Minn., and also in Olean, where he resides.

Mr. Higgins has always been a republican since he began voting. He was a delegate to the republican national convention of 1888 held at Chicago. As a republican candidate for senator in 1893 he received 19,346 votes, and had a majority of 8,346 over Urban Prescott, who had the support of the populists, socialists, democrats and progressive republicans. In 1894 and 1895 he was chairman of the committee on taxation and retrenchment, of the committee on grievances, of the committee on joint library and was also a member of the committee on finance and the committee on insurance. Two years ago he was elected lieutenant governor of the state.

Rumor has it that the influence of a young and pretty Chicago girl proves to have been the leading factor in shaping Mr. Higgins' career.

The young woman in the case was Miss Kate C. Noble, and when she first met Mr. Higgins he was only a boy and she was still younger.

She went to visit some friends in Olean, where young Higgins was a clerk in his father's general store.

Miss Noble told him what a lively place Chicago was and how the great west was the place to go and make a fortune.

Young Higgins was undecided until the young woman ended her visit in

FRANK W. HIGGINS.
(Republican Nominee for Governor of the State of New York.)

Olean and went back to Chicago. Then he was sure Chicago was the only place for him to go.

He resigned his place in his father's general store at Olean and went to Chicago.

It speaks well for the youngster's energy, address and power to convince others of his business ability that, although he was only 19, he secured the western agency of the Binghamton Refining company, which was one of three concerns that were undertaking to make lubricating oil out of petroleum.

He established headquarters in Chicago, where he could attend both to lubricating oil and love making; and at 21 he married the Chicago girl. Higgins stayed out west for a few years, going to Denver for awhile, and then going into business for himself at Stanton, Mich.

Then his roving days were over for life and at 24 he went back to Olean and started to grow into a solid business man of that section.

Thanks to the freedom of the west, which he absorbed when he was young, the man who may be governor of the Empire state is an agreeable man to meet. There is an unaffected simplicity about him that puts his visitors instantaneously at ease and arm's length conversation is out of the question.

He is a little man and he is as plump as a partridge. He could not be called roly poly in shape, but he resembles an egg.

Mrs. Higgins can be depended upon to carry off the honors of the executive mansion if her husband is elected.

Boy Chopped Off His Finger.

Master Henry Hall, the little son of Matthew Hall, who lives near Nashville, Tenn., took heroic measures to prevent disaster from the bite of a big rattlesnake which had crawled into his bed and bit him on the finger just after he had retired. The fangs of the reptile were sunk into the index finger of the right hand. As soon as he realized what had happened the lad jumped from the bed, and, grabbing a chop ax, cut the finger off above the bite. He lost some blood from the crude operation, but has suffered no injury as a result of the snake bite. It is supposed the snake came in through the door in the afternoon while the family was busy in the fields. It crawled under the top cover of the bed, and was not seen when the family went to retire. Young Hall tumbled into bed in much the same manner as all youngsters do, and threw his hand over the snake, making it mad and causing it to strike at once. The fangs were buried in the flesh of the finger.

ROBBED EXPRESS CAR.

Wells-Fargo Messenger Fatally Shot Near Daggett, Cal.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—A Wells-Fargo express car on an Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe overland passenger train, westbound, was entered somewhere between Needles and Daggett, and Evan O. Roberts, express messenger, was shot and probably fatally wounded. The way safe was rifled, but the main safe, said to contain $200,000 in pension money, was not robbed, so far as known. Officers of the express company say the robber secured about $400 and that the main safe was not opened.

The robbery was not discovered until the train reached Daggett. Conductor Hawes opened the door of the express car at Daggett and found Messenger Roberts lying on the floor semiconscious. The contents of the rifled safe were scattered about the car. Roberts was so seriously wounded that he was unable to tell much about the robbery. He said that he had discovered some one on the blind baggage shortly after the train left Needles and had been about to open the door when a man, whom he took to be a negro, broke open the door and entered.

Before the messenger could draw his revolver the bandit opened fire, wounding Roberts, probably mortally. The bullet struck Roberts in the left breast, passing through the body. Roberts fell to the floor, and the robber immediately went to the open way safe and took what he wanted. He then opened the door and jumped out. Roberts was so severely hurt that he was unable to make an outcry.

The bolt on the door at the end of the express car was broken, showing that the robber had used force in gaining entrance.

The interior of the car indicated that the messenger had made resistance and grappled with the robber before being overpowered and finally shot by him.

After rifling the safe the robber leaped from the car while the train was running at fast speed.

FIRED ON OWN SHIPS.

Rojestvensky's Statement Throws Light on Dogger Bank Incident.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 6.—An official statement issued from naval headquarters gives Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's latest account of the Dogger bank affair and explains how the Baltic fleet fired on their own ships. The statement is as follows:

"According to supplementary information from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky concerning the North sea incident, after the Kniaz Souvaroff ceased firing two searchlights of the Dmitri Donskoi and Aurora suddenly appeared on the left of the ironclad division. The Dmitri Donskoi showed night signals, whereupon, fearing projectiles from the hindmost ships of our division should hit our own vessels, either direct or by ricochet, a general signal to cease fire was made from the Souvaroff. The order was at once obeyed. The whole firing lasted less than ten minutes. Communications by wireless stated that five projectiles struck the Aurora, some ricochetting and others hitting direct. Three were seventy-five milimeter and two forty-seven milimeter shells. The chaplain of the Aurora was seriously injured and a petty officer was slightly wounded. The chaplain subsequently succumbed at Tangier."

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 1,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MILLINERY VAGARIES.

A Substitute For the Bandeau—Buttons That Are Fashionable.

An important innovation in winter millinery is a substitute for the bandeau which is worn underneath the brim of the fashionable hat. It is either placed at the back, at one side or around the entire crown, according to the shape treated and the style of the wearer. Now instead of the bandeau a few persons in the flight of fashion are wearing a kind of little lace cap consisting of a center of about three inches across of net or some soft material, with a rather thick quilling or ruching around the edge. The tiny construction is pinned on the hair, and over this the hat is tilted at a becoming angle.

Over a pretty and youthful face a dainty little lace cap or colored ruching coquettishly placed adds a certain charm to the wearer.

Buttons of velvet and cloth are included in the list of smart trimmings, and others with velvet centers and leather rims.

A charming demitoilet gown in white taffeta has a double row of small coral buttons decorating the waistcoat, two larger specimens being repeated on the basque at the back.

The charming hat in the cut is of pale blue beaver, with a band of darker velvet inserted, with embroidery encircling the double crown. Two shaded blue tips droop over the crown at the back, and a third falls over the hair under the brim.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FRILLS AND FRIPPERIES.

Ombre Effects Popular For Millinery. New Embroideries For Blouses.

One of the newest ideas both for gowns and millinery is to use rich colors in shaded effects. In some of the season's tones these are very effective, a new green being especially attractive.

Ombre velvet is made into the most charming blouses either in green, violet or rose shading from dark to pale.

YELLOW SILK TEA GOWN.

A lace yoke and front emplecement with cuffs make the necessary light relief.

In hat ribbons the ombre effects are much in evidence in some of the schemes, different colors even being introduced.

A chiffon frock is delightful if it shades from palest pink to deep red at the hem. There is an infinite capacity for the expression of artistic and poetical ideas by means of these shaded effects.

Embroidery is playing such an important part in the world of dress that women who cannot afford to buy the expensive and elaborate embroideries so fashionable just now are making every effort to excel in the art of needlework. Silk embroideries and ribbon work decorate the fronts of muslin blouses, and Arabian work is very smart as a trimming worked in soft silks and gold threads on collars and revers for coats and blouses.

The tea gown illustrated is a stunning affair of yellow silk made with a deep gathered ruffle of white silk muslin strapped with cream lace. This lace forms a square trimming about the low Dutch neck, and on the sleeves there is an insertion of the same. The embroidered straps are of red linen, and the girdle is of yellow velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

"Holler, ye gol-dum little cuss: D'ri shouted as he went over to him. "Can't no snookin' wolf crack our bones fer us. Peeled 'em—thet's what we done tew 'em! Tuk 'n' knocked 'em head over heels. Judas Priest! He can peck a man's finger some, can't he?"

The light was coming and he went off to the spring for water, while I brought the spider and pots. The great, green-roofed temple of the woods, that had so lately rung with the howl of wolves, began to fill with far wandering echoes of sweet song.

"They was a big cat over there by the spring las' night," said D'ri, as we all sat down to breakfast. "Tracks bigger 'n a griddle! Smelt the mutton, mos' likely."

"Like mutton?" I inquired.

"Yis-sir-ee, they dew," said he. "Kind o' mince-pie fer 'em. Like deer meat, tew. Snook eroun' the ponds after dark. Ef they see a deer 'n the water they wallop 'im quicker 'n lightnin'; jump right in k'slap 'n' tek 'im."

We were off at sunrise, on a road that grew rougher every mile. At noon we came to a river so swollen as to make a dangerous ford. After dinner my father waded in, going hips under where the water was deep and swift. Then he cut a long pole and took my mother on his shoulders and entered the broad stream, steadying himself with the pole. When she had got down safe on the other side, he came back for grandmother and my sisters, and took them over in the same way. D'ri, meanwhile, bound up the feather beds and carried them on his head, leaving the dog and me to tend the sheep. All our blankets and clothing were carried across in the same manner. Then I mounted the cart, with my rooster, lashing the oxen till they took to the stream. They had tied the bell-wether to the axle, and, as I started, men and dog drove the sheep after me. The oxen wallowed in the deep water, and our sheep, after some hesitation, began to swim. The big cart floated like a raft part of the way, and we landed with no great difficulty. Farther on the road became nothing better than a rude trail, where, frequently, we had to stop and chop through heavy logs and roll them away. On a steep hillside the oxen fell, breaking the tongue, and the cart tipped sidewise and rolled bottom up. My rooster was badly flung about, and began crowing and flapping as the basket settled. When I opened it he flew out, running for his life, as if finally resolved to quit us. Fortunately, we were all walking, and nobody was hurt. My father and D'ri were busy half a day "righting up," as they called it, mending the tongue and cover, and getting the cart on its wheels and down the steep pitch.

After two days of trail travel we came out on the Chateaugay road, stopping awhile to bait our sheep and cattle on the tame grass and tender briars. It was a great joy to see the clear road, with here and there a settler's cabin, its yard aglow with the marigold, the hollyhock and the fragrant honeysuckle. We got to the tavern at Chateaugay about dusk and put up for the night, as becomes a Christian.

Next afternoon we came to rough roads again, camping at sundown along the shore of a noisy brook. The dog began to bark fiercely while supper was making, and scurried off into a thicket.

D'ri was stooping over, cooking the meat. He rose and listened.

"Thet air dog's a leetle scairt," said he. "Guess we better go 'n' see whut 's the matter."

He took his rifle and I my sword—I never thought of another weapon—making off through the brush. The dog came whining to D'ri and rushing on, eager for us to follow. We hurried after him, and in a moment D'ri and the dog, who were ahead of me, halted suddenly.

"It's a painter," said D'ri, as I came up. "See 'im in thet air tree-top. I'll larrup 'im with Ol' Beeswax, then jes' like es not he'll mek some music. Better grab holt o' the dog. 'T won't dew fer 'im to git tew rambunctious, er the fust thing he knows he won't hev no insides in 'im."

I could see the big cat clinging high in the top boughs of a birch and looking calmly down at us. The tree-top swayed, quivering, as it held the great dun beast. My heart was like to smother me when D'ri raised his rifle and took aim. The dog broke away at the crack of it. The painter reeled and spat; then he came crashing through the branches, striking right and left with his fore paws to save himself. He hit the ground heavily, and the dog was on him. The painter lay as if dead. Before I could get near, Rover began shaking him by the neck. He came to suddenly, and struck the dog with a front claw, dragging him down. A loud yelp followed the blow. Quick as a flash D'ri caught the painter by the tail and one hind leg. With a quick surge of his great, slouching shoulders, he flung him at arm's-length. The lithe body doubled on a tree trunk, quivered, and sank down, as the dog came free. In a jiffy I had run my sword through the cat's belly and made an end of him.

"Knew 'f he got them hind hooks on thet air dog he'd rake his ribs right [illegible]," said D'ri, as he lifted his hat to scratch his head. "Would n't 'a' left nothin' but the backbone—nut a thing—an' thet would n't 'a' been a real fust-class one, nuther."

When D'ri was very positive, his words were well braced with negatives.

We took the painter by the hind legs and dragged him through the bushes to our camp. The dog had a great rip across his shoulder, where the claws had struck and made furrows; but he felt a mighty pride in our capture, and never had a better appetite for a meal.

There were six more days of travel in that journey—travel so fraught with hardships, I wonder that some days we had the heart to press on. More than all, I wonder that the frail body of my mother was equal to it. But I am writing no vain record of endurance. I have written enough to suggest what moving meant in the wilderness. There is but one more color in the scenes of that journey. The fourth day after we left Chateaugay my grandmother fell ill and died suddenly there in the deep woods. We were far from any village, and sorrow slowed our steps. We pushed on, coming soon to a sawmill and a small settlement. They told us there was neither minister nor undertaker within 40 miles. My father and D'ri made the coffin of planed lumber, and lined it with deerskin, and dug the grave on top of a high hill. When all was ready, my father, who had always been much given to profanity, albeit I know he was a kindly and honest man with no irreverence in his heart, called D'ri aside.

"D'ri," said he, "ye 've alwus been more proper-spoken than I hev. Say a word o' prayer?"

"Don't much b'lieve I could," said he, thoughtfully. "I hev been t' meetin', but I hain't never been no great hand fer prayin'."

"'T would n't sound right nohow fer me t' pray," said my father, "I got s' kind o' rough when I was in the army."

"'Fraid it'll come a leetle unhandy fer me," said D'ri, with a look of embarrassment, "but I don't never shirk a tough job ef it hes t' be done."

Then he stepped forward, took off his faded hat, his brow wrinkling deep, and said, in a drawling preacher tone that had no sound of D'ri in it: "O God, tek care o' gran'ma. Help us t' go on careful an' when we 're riled, help us t' keep er mouths shet. O God, help the ol' cart, an' the ex in pertic'lar. An' don't be noway hard on us. Amen."

CHAPTER II.

June was half over when we came to our new home in the town of Madrid—then a home only for the foxes and the fowls of the air and their wild kin of the forest. The road ran through a little valley thick with timber and rock-bound within a mile of us, all comfortably settled in small log houses. For temporary use we built a rude bark shanty that had a partition of blankets, living in this primitive manner until my father and D'ri had felled the timber and built a log house. We brought flour from Malone—a dozen sacks or more—and while they were building I had to supply my mother with fish and game and berries for the table—a thing easy enough to do in that land of plenty. When the logs were cut and hewn I went away, horseback, to Canton for a jug of rum. I was all day and half the night going and coming, and fording the Grasse took me stirrups under.

Then the neighbors came to the raising—a jolly company that shouted "Hee, oh, hee!" as they lifted each heavy log to its place and grew noisier quaffing the odorous red rum, that had a mighty good look to me, although my father would not hear of my tasting it. When it was all over there was nothing to pay but our gratitude.

While they were building bunks I went off to sawmill with the oxen for boards and shingles. Then, shortly, we had a roof over us and floors to walk on and that luxury D'ri called a "pyaz," although it was not more than a mere shelf with a roof over it. We chinked the logs with moss and clay at first, putting up greased paper in the window spaces. For months we knew not the luxury of the glass pane.

That summer we "changed work" with the neighbors and after we had helped them awhile they turned to in the clearing of our farm. We felled the trees in long, bushy windrows, heaping them up with brush and small wood when the chopping was over. That done, we fired the rows, filling the deep of heaven with smoke, as it seemed to me, and lighting the night with great billows of flame.

By mid-autumn we had cleared to the stumps a strip half down the valley from our door. Then we turned to on the land of our neighbors, my time counting half, for I was sturdy and could swing the ax to a line, and felt a joy in seeing the chips fly. But my father kept an eye on me, and held me back as with a leash.

My mother was often sorely tried for the lack of things common as dirt these better days. Frequently our only baking-powder was white lye, made by dropping ash-cinders into water. Our cinders were made by letting the sap of green timber drip into hot ashes. Often deer's tallow, bear's grease, or raccoon's oil served for shortening, and the leaves of the wild raspberry for tea. Our neighbors went to mill at Canton—a journey of five days, going and coming, with an ox team, and beset with many difficulties. Then one of them hollowed the top of a stump for his mortar and tied his pestle to the bough of a tree. With a rope he drew the bough down, which, as it sprang back, lifted the pestle that ground his grain.

But money was the rarest of all things in our neighborhood those days. Pearlash, black-salts, West India pipestaves and rafts of timber brought cash, but no other products of the early settler. Late that fall my mother gave a dance, a rude but hearty pleasuring that followed a long conference in which my father had a part. They all agreed to turn to, after snowfall, on the river-land, cut a raft of timber, and send it to Montreal in the spring. Our things had come, including D'ri's fiddle, so that we had chairs and bedsteads and other accessories of life not common among our neighbors. My mother had a few jewels and some fine old furniture that her father had given her—really beautiful things, I have since come to know—and she showed them to those simple folk with a mighty pride in her eyes.

Business over, D'ri took down his fiddle, that hung on the wall, and made the strings roar as he tuned them. Then he threw his long right leg over the other, and, as he drew the bow, his big foot began to pat the floor a good pace away. His chin lifted, his fingers flew, his bow quickened, the notes seemed to whirl and scurry, light-footed as a rout of fairies. Meanwhile the toe of his right boot counted the increasing tempo until it came up and down like a ratchet.

Darius Olin was mostly of a slow and sober manner. To cross his legs and feel a fiddle seemed to throw his heart open and put him in full gear. Then his thoughts were quick, his eyes merry, his heart was a fountain of joy. He would lean forward, swaying his head, and shouting "Yip!" as the bow hurried. D'ri was a hard-working man, but the feel of the fiddle warmed and limbered him from toe to finger. He was over-modest, making light of his skill if he ever spoke of it, and had no ear for a compliment. While our elders were dancing I and others of my age were playing games in the kitchen—kissing-games with a rush and tumble in them, pues-in-the-corner, hunt-the-squirrel, and the like. Even then I thought I was in love with pretty Rose Merriman. She would never let me kiss her, even though I had caught her and had the right.

My mother gave me all the schooling I had that winter. A year later they built a schoolhouse, not quite a mile away, where I found more fun than learning. After two years I shouldered my ax and went to the river-land with the choppers every winter morning.

THE TIME WILL COME.

When the Advice of This Plainfield Resident Will Help You.

Very few people are entirely free from backache. It does not take much to derange the kidneys. A little cold, a strain, stopping positions, hard work overtakes those delicate organs and many aches and pains promptly follow. A Plainfield citizen tells your here how every kidney ill can be relieved and cured. Read about it:

C. E. Hepburn, of 128 Duer street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement for they cured me of a long standing case of backache which annoyed me very much, especially if I took cold, for at such times I was in pretty bad shape. I heard different people speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, concluded to try them, got a box from my druggist, L. W. Randolph, and used them according to directions with the above results. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement of a preparation like Doan's Kidney Pills."

SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE.

Contestants Making About Twenty Miles an Hour—Honors Easy.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The six day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden has settled down to a steady grind, a series of sprints and loops and vain attempts of the riders to steal a lap by a trick, for all efforts depending in mere speed have been fruitless.

About twenty miles an hour are being reeled off by the racers, who have not yet begun to feel physically the effects of the grind.

Once during the day twenty-six miles was done, but this was a record for an hour's riding and is not likely to be made again.

Mentally the men are showing the effect of the strain under which they are laboring. There have been frequent quarrels as to the nights when they shall appear on the track, and many falls have resulted on account of these bickerings.

So far the riders have been particularly fortunate as to injury, and except for Keegan, laid up early in the day with a broken nose, none are the worse off for their tumbles. Hooper and Caldwell, one of the four teams to lose a lap in the morning record breaking sprint, are making terrific efforts to make up the lost ground, and they apparently have a chance to do so.

Late last night all the contesting pairs had made 493 miles each, some a few laps more.

Hachmeister's Neck Broken.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 6.—Jockey Hildebrand's mount in the first race at Ascot, Hachmeister, fell shortly after the start. Hildebrand was badly shaken up and bruised. Hachmeister's neck was broken, and he died in a few minutes. Mary's Gallant, with M. Lynch up, fell over Hachmeister, but neither the jockey nor the horse was hurt. Gold Rose has demonstrated that she is a horse of the first class. She won the third race from Tramotor, Golden Boy and Belle Kinney, stepping the five furlongs in one minute flat and winning by half a dozen lengths, pulled up to a canter.

Racing at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—Ogonts, Kleinwood and Merry Acrobat were the beaten favorites here. The weather was cloudy and the track very heavy. Judge Himes and Joe Lesser were both well backed and each made show of his field. Merry Acrobat's defeat was a blow to the talent.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Adjournment Taken by Senate and House In Memory of Late Members.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The senate was in session thirteen minutes and the house fifty-three minutes. The time of both bodies being devoted entirely to the usual formalities of opening day. There were the greetings between members, the great floral display and the hundreds of visitors with beautifully gowned women predominating. The gavels of Senator Frye, president pro tem. of the senate, and Speaker Cannon of the house fell exactly at 12 o'clock. The opening prayers were made by the chaplains, Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., in the senate, and Rev. H. N. Conden in the house.

In both the senate and house the committees were appointed to wait on the president and inform him that congress was ready to receive any communication he had to send. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Senators Hoar of Massachusetts and Quay of Pennsylvania were adopted by both houses, and the adjournments taken were in further tribute to their memory. The only business outside of the usual first day routine was the adoption of a resolution in the house extending until Jan. 25, 1905, the time within which the merchant marine commission may make its report.

NAN PATTERSON TRIAL.

Second Trial in Young Murder Case Opened at New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Pale and wan and showing the effects of her illness and long confinement in the Tombs, Nan Patterson, former "Florodora" girl, was led into the criminal branch of the supreme court to face another trial on charge of the murder of Caesar Young, a wealthy bookmaker, who was shot in a cab on June 4 last.

So weak was the girl apparently that she had to be supported by the keepers. She was seemingly much cast down over the ordeal before her and the fear that the trial might result in another fiasco.

Judge Davis, who presided at the first trial, was again on the bench as the fair prisoner took her old place and affectionately greeted her father, who again took a seat by her side and will give her comfort and consolation during the trial.

Unusual precautions will be taken by her counsel this time to secure a jury of strong men, so that illness will not spoil this trial, as it did the last.

Haitian Exiles at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 6.—The German steamer Adirondack, which has arrived here, brought several Haitian exiles, one of whom had sought refuge in the house of a French Methodist missionary. Soldiers entered the house in pursuit of the Haitian and struck the clergyman. The French consul has formally protested to the Haitian government. The exiles were escorted to the steamer by the American and German consuls.

Greek Band on Rampage.

SALONIKA, Dec. 6.—A Greek band on Dec. 3 murdered twenty-four Bulgarians in the village of Aitos, near Sorovitch. An order was issued for the mobilization of sixteen battalions of Monastir Redifs.

BASKET BALL.

Two league games will take place on the Y. M. C. A. floor tomorrow afternoon. The first game in the interscholastic league will be played and the regular juvenile league game will be between the Plainfield High School seconds and the Y. M. C. A. juniors. The North Plainfield High School and the Leal's basket ball teams will start off the interscholastic league. The line up of these two teams will probably be as follows: Leal's, Chapman and Manning, forwards; Wyckoff, center; Strong and Jewet, guards. North Plainfield High School, Mueck and Steiner, forwards; Mundy, center; Hand and VanArsdale, guards. In the juvenile league the teams will go on the floor in the following line up: Plainfield High School seconds, Doane and Lambert, forwards; Caldwell, center; Freeman and Mackey, guards. Y. M. C. A., Line and Doeringer, forwards; Stern, center; Steiner and Stuart, guards.

In spite of the fact that the rules of the Y. M. C. A. physical department make it impossible for the association basketball team to play any but Y. M. C. A. teams, a determined effort will be made for a meeting between the local Y. M. C. A. and the Hope Y. M. A. five. The Hope and the first team of the Y. M. C. A. are without question the strongest teams in the city, and a game between them to decide the city championship, would not only be interesting, but would be of immense satisfaction to both teams. If the team should play under another name, independently of the Y. M. C. A., a game could be arranged, but no official record could be made. It is possible that when the Y. M. C. A. schedule is over, Physical Director Henckel may permit a game to be played to decide the city championship, and it is greatly hoped that such a contest will be arranged.

COUNCILMAN'S NEGLECT.

Mr. Murphy Failed to Make a Report.

Because of his failure to make a report on the petition of residents asking the Common Council to place an arc light at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue, President Tolles called upon Mr. Murphy, chairman of the lights and trees committee, for an explanation, at the monthly meeting held last night. Mr. Murphy had no excuse to offer, except that when he heard that Woodhull & Martin were about to locate four arc lights in front of their building on East Front street, he thought the city might possibly be spared the annual expense of $90 for an arc light on the corner, as these lights might answer the purpose. He afterward learned that Woodhull & Martin would not burn their lights all night.

Mr. Murphy stated that he would try and make another report on the matter this month.

"BAD MAN" GOES BACK TO SOMERVILLE TO SERVE TIME.

All manner of promises to behave himself and pleadings for leniency were made by "Larry" Wallace when arraigned before Recorder Doud in the borough court last evening, but they fell on deaf ears. Charged with drunkenness, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest he was fined $20 and seven days in each instance. Not having the money it makes a total of eighty-one days which he will have to spend in the Somerville jail, exactly the same term which he completed last Tuesday.

Wallace's aged mother, who has paid his fine in the city court many times, attended the hearing and made every attempt to have the sentence lessened. When she failed in this she sought to raise the amount of the fines and is still seeking it.

CHILDREN THEIR SUBJECT

Plainfield Clinical Society Listens to Subject Discussed.

BACKWARD CHILDREN

Dr. Grossman, Dr. Maxson, John Leal and Kenneth Robbie Speak at Society's Banquet.

Departing from its usual custom of holding its meeting for members only, the Plainfield Clinical Society entertained the Elizabeth Clinical Society, to the number of sixteen, together with several well-known educators, at its regular meeting held at the Casino, last night. The society also invited Dr. Maximillian P. E. Grossmann, of this city, asking him to present a paper on the subject of antipathetical or backward children and treatment for the same. Dr. Grossmann conducts a home on Johnston's Drive for the treatment of these kind of children and the local physicians having become interested in his work planned to have the doctor tell them something about it. The object of the meeting was thus explained by Dr. F. C. Ard, who had charge of the arrangements.

Dr. Grossmann in telling of the treatment of backward children, displayed a number of illustrations of writing by children in his home, showing the various methods employed by these children in expressing their ideas. A marked improvement was noted as the treatment was continued. As expressed by one of the speakers later in the evening, the subject is in its infancy in this country and one about which few persons know anything. This thought was also presented by the doctor. He explained the exercise of patience, the carefulness in noting the condition of the children and giving them treatment according to their special needs, and then described many of the peculiarities of children, some being capable of one thing and some another. He cited many interesting incidents and cases which had come under his observation where children had become strong and useful members of society through proper training and were able to compete with other children in studies and business.

Following Mr. Grossmann, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools, was asked by Dr. Ard to open the discussion. Dr. Maxson began by saying that his experience had not been with backward children and that the problem in the local schools had been to care for the normal children. He appreciated fully the work of which Dr. Grossmann spoke and realized that there is a field for it. He said that the per centage of backward children in the city schools was small.

John Leal, who conducts a school for boys here, was the next speaker. He said that the subject under discussion was one of which he knew but little, yet he denied that Dr. Grossmann has a corner on backward children. He mentioned several personal cases of very poor comprehension and bad spelling among boys who are normal. He, too, spoke highly of the work of training backward children according to their special needs, concluding with the remarks that as he was not versed in the subject presented he preferred not to discuss Dr. Grossmann's paper.

One of the interesting addresses was given by Hugh F. Fox, president of the State Board of Children's Guardians. He spoke of the condition of the feeble-minded and backward children to be found in the State institutions, presenting many individual cases that were unique. He believed that any expenditure made to care for and treat the feeble-minded was a wise one.

Kenneth Robbie, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was asked to tell briefly of his observations among the boys he is brought in contact with in his work, and he explained the objects of the association as being chiefly to throw the best influence about boys and help them to become useful men. He told of the contrary dispositions of boys and how difficult it is to hold their attention and train them. He mentioned instances of where some boys were very saint-like when surrounded with good influences only to be the reverse when brought in contact with evil influence. It is this condition that the association is trying to meet.

The last speaker of the evening was Dr. Wilson, of Elizabeth, who gave a few interesting facts to prove the value of the proper training of backward children. He said that in his profession there were many opportunities of correcting defects in children which helped to make them bright and intelligent.

This concluded the discussion of the evening and a social hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served.

Y. M. C. A. FAIR A SUCCESS

Great Crowd Attend the Opening of Women's Undertaking.

ELEVEN BOOTHS

Auxiliary's Bazaar to Close Tomorrow Night—Supper a Feature of Affair Tonight.

Pretty decorations, picturesque booths, and attractive saleswomen, combined in making the Y. M. C. A. fair which opened at the Babcock building yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary, one of the most elaborate and in every way successful events of the season. In the front window of the building, evergreen branches, are strewn on the floor sprinkled with artificial snow flakes, while a large Christmas tree, tastefully decorated, occupies a recess in the window. Throughout the entire interior of the building the walls are attractively covered, and the booths present an appearance which does credit to those in charge.

Large crowds of interested spectators and buyers frequented the fair yesterday afternoon and especially last evening. A bountiful supper was served from 6 to 9 o'clock last night under the direction of the women of the Seventh-Day Baptist, Congregational and Methodist churches. The committee in charge last night were Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. George Rittenhouse and Mrs. Beekman. Throughout the evening, the Y. M. C. A. orchestra rendered an excellent musical programme.

Though all the booths were tastefully arranged, and prettily decorated, the most attractive was the Japanese booth, at which tea, and Japanese articles were for sale. This booth was presided over by Mrs. Roger Murray, who with her assistants, was appropriately costumed. There were eleven booths in all on the ground floor, which were arranged and presided over as follows: Japanese—Mrs. Roger Murray; aprons—Mrs. F. C. Harder; candy, Mrs. Walter Freeman; dolls—Mrs. Frank Hubbard; fancy work—Miss Lena Bass; brushes and brooms—Mrs. Stephen Cahoone; handkerchiefs—Mrs. A. G. Jenkins; paper booth—Mrs. Wheaton Lowry; country store—Mrs. S. M. French; lemonade—Miss Edith Cairns; children's table—Mrs. E. A. Edgar.

At these various booths many useful and ornamental articles were for sale, the variety of purchasable goods being extensive, and thorough. The fancy work and country store booths were in the greatest demand last night, and many of the articles were disposed of yesterday. Lemonade, ice cream and cake were continually on sale. The doll booth was another feature, adding to the general good appearance of the fair. The dolls were all daintily dressed, and arranged so as to be prominently noticable. One doll in particular which was perfectly dressed in every detail to represent a bride attracted a great deal of attention.

The fair will re-open this afternoon at 3 o'clock, remaining open till 10, and for the same time tomorrow. Tonight, the supper will be in charge of the women from the Crescent Avenue, Park Avenue, and Grace M. E. churches, the committee being composed of Mrs. Howard Runyon, Mrs. Most, and Mrs. D. M. Runyon. On Thursday evening, the First Presbyterian, Trinity, First Baptist and Episcopal churches will have charge. These women will be in charge of the affair tomorrow evening, Mrs. Howard Pope, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Mrs. Scofield and Miss Helen Pfender.

J. P. NORTHROP IS UPHELD

Court Holds That He is Not Liable for Payments.

OPINION REVERSED

Vice Chancellor Bergen Declares That Executors Acted Within Their Powers in Administering Estate.

Vice-Chancellor Bergen, acting as vice-ordinary of the Prerogative Court, has just decided the appeal taken by the executors of the Woolsey estate from the decree made by Judge Blair in the Hudson County Orphans' Court, holding them liable to the estate in the amount of $37,016 85. One of the executors is James P. Northrop, of this city.

There were other provisions in the will to the effect that the amounts to be paid to the legatees annually should be paid out of the income of the estate, other than that dervised from the O. A. Woolsey Paint and Color Company, and only so much should be taken from the company as might be needed to make up any deficiency. The Woolsey Company was adjudged insolvent in January, 1903.

The estate came into court and Charles E. Hendrickson, Jr., was appointed Master. In his report last January Master Hendrickson charged that the terms of the will had been disregarded and that the money ordered to be invested had not been so applied, and that interest and annuities paid had come out of the corpus of the estate.

The Orphans' Court refused to allow the executors credit for the sums which they had paid to heirs and legatees for annuities and interest, although there was no question that the money had been paid. Judge Blair held that the executors were responible in the sum of $27,016 85.

Vice Ordinary Bergen reverses the decree and thus comments upon this action:

"To say, as the Orphans' Court has said, that these accountants should be liable personally for that large sum paid to the persons entitled to it out of the fund provided by the testator for that purpose, is manifestly incorrect."

The Vice-Ordinary says further: "It should also be borne in mind that it is not alleged that these accountants have not charged themselves with all the money that came to their hands. Every dollar is accounted for, and the principal contest is over the question whether they had the right to pay annuities from the surplus fund. In my judgment, they had the rights to use this surplus fund toward the payment of these annuities, at least as far as the payment of the legacies would permit.

"The account which by the decree of the Orphans' Court is approved is radically defective, and the decree should be reversed."

WHITTIER SCHOOL TO GIVE XMAS CANTATA

"THE KORONATION OF KING KRIS KRINGLE" TO BE PRODUCTED.

The pupils of the Whittier School are preparing for the rendition shortly before the holidays of an attractive Christmas cantata entitled "The Koronation of King Kris Kringle," being a sort of miniature opera. The characters which take part in the pretty little plot are about thirty in number, and will be represented by members of the school. In addition there will be a chorus of the entire school which will sing the musical numbers in the cantata, while the play will be acted by the members of the cast. Charles L. Lewis, musical instructor of the public schools, is training the pupils for the production, assisted by Miss Addie Parker Jackson.

The part of Kris Kringle, the same old traditional character, will be taken by Roy Woodhull, while the Fairy Queen will be Miss Mary Mann. The soloists are Leslie Westphal, Miss Bessie Alpaugh, Miss Agnes Dunham, and Miss Mary Mann. The date for the production, which will be given in the evening in Franklin Hall, has not yet been decided upon.

—A drawhead on a passenger coach attached to the 8:02 train to New York pulled out at the North Avenue Station, this morning, and after losing about twenty minutes trying to repair the damage, it was finally necessary to side-track the car, the passengers going to the other coaches.

COUNCILMAN MURPHY MAKES EXPLANATION

DEFENDS HIS FAILURE TO MAKE COMMITTEE REPORT.

Councilman Clarence L. Murphy, in speaking about the arc light petitioned for by residents in the vicinity of East Front street and Watchung avenue, states that he asked former Superintendent W. A. McClurg for a figure as to the cost of this light and that he never received a report. Mr. Murphy says that the arc light on Front street at the head of Park avenue costs the city $100 a year and he is not sure that another such light can be secured at Front street and Watchung avenue for the same price.

He also says that other electric wires at this corner may not permit the location of a light there. These and other things must be considered before any action is taken, he says. Besides he adds that there are members of the Common Council who do not favor the proposed arc light, knowing that it means that many incandescent lights will be cut out.

Another point against favorable action on the arc light Mr. Murphy says is that the light committee has reached the limit of its appropriation, and it would be unwise to recommend such an expenditure as this light would cost at this time of the year. Again, Mr. Murphy says that persons living near Watchung avenue and Front street are willing to lose some of the incandescent lights now there in case the other light is installed and he does not think that the city can afford to have both burning there when other parts of the city are asking for lights.

PLACES TO BE FILLED BY MAYOR-ELECT BUCKLE

TO SELECT THREE FOR HEALTH BOARD AND FOUR FOR BOARD OF ASSESSORS.

Among the appointments to be made by Mayor-elect James F. Buckle the first of January will be three members of the Board of Health to succeed Charles J. Fisk, president; Dr. B. vanD. Hedges and Charles H. Dunham, whose terms expire. All three will be re-appointed. There will also be the re-appointment of an overseer of the poor to succeed Alex. Ayers and his retention in office seems to be assured.

Other appointments will be the entire Board of Assessors, one from each ward. It is believed that the members from the First, Second and Fourth wards will be re-appointed, but doubt is expressed as to whether Mr. Buckle will continue the present Third ward member. Among those mentioned for the office of tax collector to succeed F. H. Smith was Harry B. MacDonald, of the Third ward, but it is understood that he declined to be a candidate. This leads many to believe that he will again be a candidate for assessor from his ward and that he will succeed.

There will also be a number of minor appointments, as well as the selection of the various committees which Mr. Buckle will announce at the first meeting of the 1905 Common Council on Monday night, January 2, when that body will meet to organize for the coming year.

Dentists His Prey.

Chief Kiely today notified local dentists to be on the lookout for a thief who has been operating throughout the county and who is supposed to be the fellow who worked his games in Westfield yesterday. His plan is to engage the victim in conversation about doing some work and while letting him examine his teeth locate the places where the gold fillings were kept. He would then contrive to get the dentist out of the room for a short time and steal the gold and costly implements.

N. Y. STATE LOSES SUIT AGAINST PLAINFIELDER

JACOB V. BOOTMAN NOT GUILTY OF VIOLATING GAME LAWS.

By a decision of the New York Court of Appeals at Albany yesterday, in the case of the people against Jacob V. Bootman, of this city, and another the State loses its last chance to recover over $1,000,000 penalties for alleged violation of the game laws. The court affirmed the action of the lower courts dismissing the complaint of the State game authorities.

Mr. Bootman and Howard R. Robinson, of New York, were charged with violating the Forest, Fish and Game law by having in their cold storage warehouses between May 23 and June 1, 1901, a quantity of game birds. The total amount demanded was $1,168,315.

The defendants base their case on the claims that they had no knowledge of the exact contents of the cases of game which were stored with them by the owners, and that none of the birds were killed in the State. Former Governor Frank S. Black argued the case for the State.

FOWLER ON THE TARIFF

Advocates Board of Tariff Commissioners.

CURRENCY VIEWS

Points to Reform in Funding National Debt and Urges Asset Currency and Bank Branches.

"There is no more urgently needed reform in the legislative branch of this government than a change in the sessions of the Congress of the United States," said Representation Charles N. Fowler, of the Fifth New Jersey district, at Washington, yesterday.

"What I mean is this: At present all our progressive and important legislation is had at the long sessions immediately preceding the national elections. Statues are enacted so shortly prior to the voting that there is no time to test their merit, and with only a partial and often incorrect knowledge of their utility the people go to the polls and cast an adverse verdict.

"What I contend for is that these laws should be enacted in the interval between the expiration of an old Congress and the assembling of a new one, so that the country would have a chance to view legislation in its merits after it had been given sufficient time to note its workings. In other words, our short and long sessions should change places."

"Have you any opinion as to the proposed extra session for revising the tariff?"

"The doctrine of a protective tariff is now the established and permanent policy of this country, and even the more intelligent of the opposition acquiesce in it. To enter into the task of revising the tariff at a called session would be a step fraught with danger and disaster.

"This government of ours is the most gigantic affair, viewed simply as a business proposition, in the world, and it is high time the tariff question should be dealt with in a scientific way. No law affecting the tariff should go into effect until a year had passed after it had been decided upon, so that the business interests of the nation could be adjusted to the coming change.

"My views on this question have been set forth in a bill introduced in several Congresses. I would eliminate it from partizan politics by the appointment of a commission of experts composed of the ablest men to be had, who would master all the intricate details of the subject by study at home and travel abroad, and who would, from time to time, report to Congress such changes as should be made in the schedules. This body would come to have the dignity and importance of a high tribunal, and its advice to Congress would have the respect due a commission clothed with such great responsibility. Of course, the final enactmen of any proposition would rest with Congress."

"What of currency legislation?"

"Reforms in this as in all other important affairs move slowly. I was one of only three Republicans who openly advocated the gold standard in the Fifty-fifth Congress and spoke in its favor. After this, though opposed by Secretary of the Treasury for three years, I worked for the funding of the national debt by the issue of two per cent. bonds, and finally the Secretary agreed that this should be done and the debt was funded. Remembering these reforms, I have faith that the plan of asset currency and branch banks will yet be adopted and I expect to live to see it an accomplished fact. It is the only sensible and easy way to avoid the periodical money famine that distresses the nation with every recurring harvest. The idea that a solvent Western bank must send to New York for currency with which to meet local demands for moving the crops is so nonsensical that in years to come it will be ridiculed. There is no more reason for it than for a man who has a bank account in Washington sending money to a debtor in Baltimore instead of a check known to be good. We do not need any financial seasons in this country and money should be just as easy in October and November as it is in May or June," said Mr. Fowler.

F. H. Jacobs Coming.

THE CLIMAX NOT YET

Federal Officer Did Not See Andrew Carnegie.

MRS. CHADWICK LEAVES HER HOTEL

Mysterious Box Said to Have Arrived at New York Containing Securities Valued at $5,000,000—Lawyers Do Not Fear Arrest.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The expected has not happened in the Chadwick case and all predictions proved at fault when at a late hour it was announced that no conference between federal officers and Andrew Carnegie had been held at the latter's home.

This turn was surprising, for Mr. Carnegie had announced in the course of the day that he would be glad to receive a federal officer, and it was supposed that F. F. Oldham, representing the comptroller of the treasury, would meet him last night and that the matter of the Chadwick notes, alleged to have been given Iri Reynolds of Cleveland and said to bear the name of Andrew Carnegie, would be discussed.

Stories of a possible arrest in the case were still current this evening, but so far as known no warrant has been issued.

That the Chadwick case is rapidly nearing a climax is the conclusion reached by those interested, and new and startling developments are shortly expected. A dispatch from Elyria, O., says:

"Judge Washburn has called a special grand jury at the request of Prosecutor Lee Stroup of this (Lorain) county to inquire into the Oberlin bank failure. The jury will be drawn tomorrow morning. An effort will be made to discover if any crimes were committed which come within the jurisdiction of the court. It is reported that the action of Prosecutor Stroup was taken upon the request or complaint of Andrew Carnegie. Subpoenas have been issued for President Beckwith and Cashier Spear of the closed Oberlin bank to appear before the grand jury to testify."

There arrived in this city almost simultaneously Iri Reynolds, secretary and treasurer of the Wade Park Banking company of Cleveland, O.; Andrew Squire, a lawyer of Cleveland; Robert Lyons, receiver for the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., and F. F. Oldham, an attorney connected with the government banking bureau.

Mr. Reynolds is supposed to have with him a mysterious box containing $5,000,000 in securities. He declined to talk regarding his mission. Mr. Lyons, it has been reported, has in his possession two notes, one for $500,000 and another for $250,000, alleged to bear the signature "Andrew Carnegie." He was noncommittal when asked if he intended to see Mr. Carnegie. Messrs. Reynolds and Lyons held an earnest consultation.

Mr. Carver, counsel for H. B. Newton, the Brookline millionaire, who was to leave for Boston, has deferred his departure because of unexpected developments which he says have just taken place.

Edward W. Powers, Mrs. Chadwick's lawyer, spent an hour with his client at the Holland House and when asked later if he had ever seen the note for $500,000 said to be signed "Andrew Carnegie" declined to answer.

He admitted he had been to Oberlin, O., with Mrs. Chadwick and that he knows C. T. Beckwith, president of the Citizens' National bank of that place, but declared he is not the New York lawyer referred to in Beckwith's confession.

Mr. Powers said he hadn't thought about Mrs. Chadwick's arrest. He said all her debts would be paid in full and that she has more than $1,000,000.

Beckwith says he was induced to give Mrs. Chadwick more than $500,000 on notes bearing the name of Andrew Carnegie.

Mr. Carnegie when seen reiterated his denial that he had signed any notes and added, "If any United States government official will come to see me he will receive a very gracious reception."

Mrs. Chadwick left her apartments at the Holland House at 10 o'clock last night and took up quarters at the New Amsterdam hotel, at Fourth avenue and Twenty-first street. She was closely followed by two secret service men. Her son and maid accompanied her. Apparently she was in good health.

George W. Ryall, also of the Newton counsel, returned to his home in Passaic, N. J., last night after a day of conferences with those interested in the case in New York. He said he had seen Mrs. Chadwick twice, but as to the subject of their talk he refused to make a statement.

He also said that he knew nothing regarding the notes bearing Andrew Carnegie's name nor of any conference in connection with them.

Mr. Ryall said that Mrs. Chadwick showed no apprehension of arrest or in regard to the outcome of her difficulties.

Frederick F. Oldham, representing the office of the comptroller of currency in the Chadwick case, returned to Washington last night from this city, where he spent the day in connection with the case. Mr. Oldham will make a report to Comptroller Ridgely today.

Denies Dissatisfaction at Awards.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7.—In a reply to the letter of Thomas H. Carter, president of the national world's fair commission, mailed last night, Major J. G. Pangborn, president of the United Exhibitors' association, declares that no intimation of dissatisfaction with the findings of the juries on awards had come to his notice.

ARBITRATION PACT.

Anglo-American Peace Treaty Far Reaching.

NATIONS SHOCKED BY WAR'S HORRORS

Sir Thomas Barclay, Prominent English Worker For Peace, Gives His Views of Present Conditions.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—In discussing the prospect of the Anglo-American arbitration treaty Sir Thomas Barclay, who has been prominently identified with the work of promoting amity between nations, has stated as follows:

"It is quite possible that the treaty under consideration will be more far reaching than the Anglo-French treaty. The treaty of 1897 provided for the settlement of all difficulties between Great Britain and the United States without exception by arbitration. It need hardly be expected that the new treaty will be in exactly the same terms as that signed by the late Lord Pauncefote and Secretary Olney, but it is most desirable that a treaty between peoples speaking the same language and having practically the same form of procedure should go a step further than the Anglo-French treaty. A good loan from the treaty of 1897 would be the clause providing that if one of the parties raises the objection that national honor or vital interest is involved the arbitrators should consist of an equal number of the nationality of the parties involved and that if the decision is given by a bare majority it should become final if not protested within three months. The reference to arbitration of the Alaskan question showed that some such clause is quite workable.

"The treaty of 1897 was defeated by twenty-six senators, many of whom were influenced by Michael Davitt to believe that such a treaty would delay the solution of home rule for Ireland. Today no one can possibly couple the question of home rule with the question of adopting peaceful, businesslike methods for dealing with international difficulties. If the majority of the United States senate should thwart the progress of arbitration today, when the minds of all men are shocked by the horrors of the war in the far east and when all realize how indispensable it is to promote pacific methods of settlement of difficulties between nations, there would be an outcry throughout the world, and the senate would be disgraced in the eyes of all mankind. I know positively that several senators who voted against the treaty of 1897 will now vote for the treaty of arbitration. I would cite the case of Senator Morgan of Alabama, who told me he had altered his views since 1897. I am perfectly sure that Senators Money and Bacon are now good friends of the treaty."

Burglars Blow Up Bank Safe.

METAMORA, Mich., Dec. 7.—With five heavy charges of nitroglycerin a party of six or eight burglars wrecked the safe in the Bank of Metamora. The explosions wakened citizens of the village, and a number of them rushed out armed with revolvers. Several of the robbers were on guard outside the bank, and as the citizens approached they gave the alarm and, with the men in the building, started for the railroad tracks. A number of shots were exchanged between the robbers and citizens, and one of the robbers is supposed to have been wounded, as a trail of blood was found along the route that followed the tracks. The men boarded a passing freight train and escaped. No money was secured.

Think They Have "Mr. Dove."

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The South Chicago police believe they have the mysterious Mr. Dove, or Hugg, supposed to be the slayer of Chauffeur Bate. William Knight and Marion Knute were arrested on a charge of stealing two automobiles, and it is said that Knight not only fits the description of the man wanted for murder, but that he operates in the same manner. According to the police, Knight and Dove, or Hugg, are of the same height and weight and are alike in every respect save in clothes.

Roumanians Accept Peace Proposals.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Dec. 7.—Speaking in the senate, the foreign minister announced that the government had received from the United States with much sympathy an invitation to partake in a second peace conference at The Hague and that the Roumanian government only awaited details of the programme and the place and time of the meeting to give full adherence to the proposal.

Want a Million and a Half.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The estimates of appropriation submitted for the territory of Hawaii by Governor Carter and forwarded to congress by Secretary Shaw are as follows: Dredging Honolulu harbor, $250,000; refunds to territory, $175,022; federal building for Honolulu, $1,000,000; federal building at Hilo, $100,000.

Wescott Was Released.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Dec. 7.—Medical Referee A. B. Carr, who has been holding an inquest on the death of Mrs. Fannie A. Davis, whose body was taken from a burning tenement house here, has returned a verdict of death from natural causes. Bert Wescott, who has been held as a witness in the case, was released.

SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE.

Thirteen Teams Leading Last Night, With 905 Miles Covered.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Thirteen teams tied for the lead in the six day race at the garden are riding like madmen to retain their places. The four teams one lap behind are making just as streneous efforts to make up the lost ground, and all in the race is developing into almost a continuous sprint.

The fast pace of the opening day is again being followed, and while there is no hope of ever catching up with the record the contest is becoming fast and gruelling.

Called from the track for a few minutes, the thirty-four cyclists at Madison Square Garden saw Willie Fenn clip three-fifths of a second from the world's record for one-fifth of a mile.

Fenn negotiated the two times around the track in 20 1-5 seconds, unpaced.

After the record breaking ride of Willie Fenn, Margaret Gast and Madeline Bayard rode a pursuit race. The former woman won in less than half a mile.

Frank Kramer also rode an exhibition mile. Kramer again equaled his world's record of 24 4-5 seconds.

At a late hour last night the teams had covered 905 miles and some laps four teams being behind one lap.

Military Man Was the Best.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Good going prevailed at Oakland, and there were some close finishes, three events being won by narrow margins. In the six and a half furlongs handicap Military Man was the best, but Helgesen in attempting to follow rating orders pulled him back from first to last place. The colt went around his field, but in a drive Letola, the favorite, beat him a nose.

Favorites Beaten at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—Halcyon Days, Brooklyn and Tom Shelley were the beaten favorites. Vouch was crowded out in the first race and pulled up. Lucy Young could not shoulder her impost in the heavy going and finished in the ruck. Gregor K. might have won his race, but reared up and became entangled in the barrier at the start.

Texas Judge Scored Jerome.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 7.—Charles F. Dodge, whose writ of habeas corpus has been dismissed by the United States supreme court declared he would not return to New York. Meanwhile detectives watch his movements. Officers Herlihy and Josse of New York, who were placed under arrest Monday, were released by District Judge Kittrell after the court had expressed an opinion concerning District Attorney Jerome of New York and his assistants. The court said the action of Mr. Jerome in sending detectives to Houston to hound Dodge's footsteps after he had given bail was a gross insult to the state of Texas, and it was to be regretted that Dodge had not resented the "shadowing" in a forcible manner. Dodge will remain here, it is said, until the mandate of the supreme court arrives.

Land Fraud Prisoners Guilty.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 7.—The jury in the land fraud case, which has been occupying the attention of Judge Bellinger's court for over two weeks, brought in a verdict of guilty for all the defendants, with the exception of Miss Marie Ware, after forty-five minutes' deliberation. No recommendations as to punishment were made. Miss Ware was acquitted as the prosecution had admitted that she was not sufficiently implicated in the present case to warrant her conviction.

Found With Hole In His Head.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 7.—The body of Charles Goldstein, a former resident of Dallas, who came here on a visit from Alaska, was found near the Santa Fe railroad tracks. A bullet hole in his head and the fact that a diamond stud he is known to have had was gone indicate murder and robbery. A peculiar feature of the case is that Goldstein was in a room of the St. George hotel, which was partially wrecked by a dynamite explosion last Sunday.

Colon Merchants Pleased.

COLON, Dec. 7.—The mercantile community and others are highly pleased with the solution which has been reached of the difficulties between the United States and Panama regarding the government of the canal zone. Dr. J. H. Carter of the United States marine hospital service has arrived here on board the steamer Seguranca. The same vessel also brought sixty laborers from Fortune island for work on the railroad.

A Family Dinner at Rome.

ROME, Dec. 7.—At a family dinner at the Quirinal, where Italian and foreign royal princes were present, Queen Helena announced that she had received a telegram from the queen of Portugal, who has arrived at Turin on a visit to her sister, the Duchess of Aosta, saying the doctors considered the duchess out of danger unless new complications should arise.

Warner a Candidate For Senate.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 7.—Major William Warner of this city and United States district attorney for western Missouri, in a dispatch from Washington, has announced his candidacy for the office of United States senator to succeed Senator Francis M. Cockrell.

A. A. Allan Held at Windsor, Ont.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 7.—Albert A. Allan has been arrested here by Detective Harrigan of a detective agency of Chicago for the alleged murder of Mrs. Haskins, said to have been committed in Chicago.

JAP CRUISER SUNK

Russian Fleet Being Destroyed by Meter Hill Fire.

NEXT ASSAULT TO END THE SIEGE

Vladivostok Reports Sinking of Adzuma North of Miaotao Islands. Russia Denies Loss of Three Thousand.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A special dispatch from Vladivostok says that the Japanese armored cruiser Adzuma has been blown up and sunk by a mine north of the Miaotao islands in the Liaoti channel.

Advices from Tokyo say: "Our heavy guns mounted on Meter hill continue to bombard the enemy's ships. The battleship Peresviet has been struck twice, and two more shells lodged in other ships. A vessel of the Poltava type was observed to be on fire, sending up a great volume of smoke.

"The battleship Pobieda was struck six times, a vessel of the Retvizan type was hit eight times, and on other ships sixteen shells took effect.

"Later, following the same plan, the Pobieda was hit seven times, the Poltava eleven times and the Retvizan eleven times. One of our shells struck a magazine south of Peiyu mountains, causing a heavy explosion. The conflagration which followed was not extinguished for two hours.

"The attacking operations against the Sungshu mountain forts eastward are carried on day and night. Two thirty-six milimeter quick firers were captured in a half moon fort defending a counterscarp on Rihlung mountain.

"The Russians are nightly attacking Meter hill in a determined endeavor to retake the summit of the ground in contention.

"We are increasing our defenses on the position and have succeeded so far in repelling all the assaults. The Russians have suffered the heaviest losses, and it is estimated that they have sacrificed 3,000 men in an effort to recapture the ground, which we are confident of our ability to hold.

"Observations indicate that the garrison is feeling the shortage of men. The works against the forts on Sungshu mountain eastward are progressing speedily, and all indications point to an early general assault, although the date when it will begin is kept secret.

"It is expected that the next general assault will result in the fall of Port Arthur."

Advices from St. Petersburg this morning say that, although the war office and the admiralty are still without late direct news from Port Arthur, confidence in the ability of the fortress to hold out continues to be expressed.

The Tokyo estimate that the Russians lost 3,000 men in the attempt to recapture Two Hundred and Three Meter hill is declared to be absurd, and it is pointed out that such a loss would imply the virtual crippling of the resistance, yet the reports from Tokyo admit that General Stoessel continues to make counter attacks.

Emperor Nicholas will start on Dec. 14 on a ten day trip to Minsk, the Caucasus and the Don to bid farewell to troops ordered to the far east.

A Mukden dispatch says:

"The report that General Rennenkampf has administered a heavy defeat to the Japanese continues to circulate among the Russian troops, but has not yet been officially confirmed. To the earlier rumor mentioned above there is added the report that the Russians have succeeded in carrying off twenty-four guns, which they captured in the rout of the Japanese, but were at first unable to remove owing to a cross fire from the Japanese forces."

Russian Cruisers Leave Tangier.

TANGIER, Morocco, Dec. 7.—The Russian cruisers Oleg and Izumrud sailed, going eastward.

Triple Murder and Suicide.

Mrs. Morrison Burned to Death.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 7, 1904

On what ground can Chief Marshal Wise, of North Plainfield, excuse his neglect in making no arrest in the Barry case? The facts are before him and the inhuman automobilists from South Orange have not been brought to justice. They ran down a little fellow in Somerset street last Friday night and after taking the victim of their recklessness to a nearby porch abandoned him, and he was found in an unconscious condition. It is reported that the inactivity of the Chief Marshal is based on a request of the boy's parents that no criminal action be brought until a civil case is made out, but this is no excuse. North Plainfield's Councilmanic police committee should investigate the matter without delay.

It is a relief to find that a President has not filled his annual message with department statistics. President Roosevelt's letter to Congress yesterday is an instrument which will afford instruction to every American citizen. It is lofty in tone and typical of the man. In it the Chief Executive disclaims on behalf of the American people that this country proposes to play the part of land-grabber in the Western hemisphere. He urges Federal laws to prevent corruption and bribery in elections and rigid child-labor and factory inspection laws and protests against rebates on the highways of commerce. One of the strongest features of the document is the recommendation that the National government alone fight to eliminate the abuses in great business corporations. Only second to this is the President's plea for a stronger navy in the interests of peace. As for the Philippines, he announces that within two years an elective lower house in its Legislature will be tried as an experiment.

AMUSEMENTS.

Lyric Theatre, 42d street, west of Broadway—James K. Hackett, in the romantic melodrama "The Fortunes of the King" Matinee Saturday.

Princess Theatre, Broadway and 29th street—Robert B. Mantell in "Richard III." Matinee Thursday.

Casino, Broadway and 39th street—"The Baroness Fiddlesticks" Matinee today.

Robert B. Mantell playing "Richard III" to packed houses at the Princess and his interpretation of the title roll in this famous Shakespearian production compares favorably with that done by great actors of the past. Later he will play "Othello" at the same theatre. James K. Hackett is appearing in "The Fortunes of the King," a powerful melodrama, produced under the management of Shubert Brothers at the Lyric. "The Baroness Fiddlesticks" is still holding popular favor at the Casino.

Ethel Barrymore has scored the triumph of her career in "Sunday," the new play in which she is now appearing at the Hudson Theatre, New York. She has surpassed all her previous records for New York business, and she has succeeded also in making the heroine of the picturesque melodrama, whose love story is so charmingly and convincingly told, take place by the side of the most popular of her previous stage creations. "Sunday," as portrayed by Miss Barrymore, appeals in the strongest way to her audiences, being a very human and winsome girl of the far Western type; breezy, slangy, courageous and ready for every emergency that arises, but with all as sweet and wholesome a young creature as ever stepped out of a border romance. Miss Barrymore employs her exquisite art most effectively in presenting this character and she deserves the great triumph she is achieving in it.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Edward Baker, of Watchung avenue, who was critically ill for some days is now convalescing and hopes to be about the house soon.

Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, of Elmwood place, is detained at home the result of a fall which she had a few days ago. She sustained an injury to her side which will prevent her going out for some days.

SIN CAUSES DISEASE SAYS FORMER JUDGE

ARGUMENT OF CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST WHO SPEAKS AT CRANFORD.

Ex-Judge Septimus J. Hanna, who represented the Christian Scientists at the World's Congress of Religions, at the Chicago Fair, delivered a lecture at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in New York, Monday night. In discussing the cause of sickness, he said in part:

"It is apparent that Christian Science teaches that sickness is the result of sin, in its broad definition as human error. Let me briefly explain. Lust and the excessive use of intoxicating liquors are among the grosser sins of morals. They are admitted by all to be wrong. They are the cause of more sickness than all other causes. Remove them, and you have taken away a percentage of the source of sickness that would reduce its aggregate to an amazing extent. But these are not all there is that produces sickness. Sorrow, grief, the multiplied forms of disappointment, discouragement and depression, these mental conditions act upon the physical and bring about many of the disorders and complications which are called physical diseases.

"Now, my friends, let me ask you, Can these multi-form mental causes of sickness be cured by any other than moral and spiritual means? Will material medicines reach and destroy mental conditions and moral defects? In other words, and more plainly, Can inanimate drugs destroy sin? The soporific effect of a drug may stupefy the mind so as to produce temporary relief, but cure it cannot; heal, finally and effectually, it does not, for it has dealt, at best, only with effect; it has not reached root cause. Nor can the surgeon's knife cut out mental conditions or moral defects. The utmost it can do is to remove the physical effects of these."

Judge Hanna will speak at the Cranford Opera House tomorrow evening.

Two more lights have been aded to the electric light circuits in town, one being placed in front of the new town building on Forest avenue, the other being on Hunter avenue in front of the Italian colony. TALKED ON POTTERY.

George Warrin's Subject at Meeting of Men's Club of Congregational Church Last Night.

George Warrin, of North Plainfield, addressed the Men's Club, of the Congregational church, at its regular meeting last night, and spoke in an interesting manner on the subject of "Pottery."

Mr. Warrin described the methods used in making pottery in the early ages and at the present time, telling of some of the more remakable master pieces in the construction of clay. He also detailed the uses to which pottery serves. Mr. Warrin's father, who has been a decorator for forty years, also made a few remarks which were equally interesting and instructive.

HAS BEST CATTERY KNOWN

Founder of English Feline Club Owns Some of the Choicest Breeds in Existence.

Lady Marcus Beresford, of London, who founded England's cat club, is said to have the best cattery known, and it contains over 150 felines. She has, of course, the choicest breeds—rare Persians, chinchillas with their bushy tails, and Manx cats without any tails whatever. She has a cat cottage where every provision has been made for comfort and cleanliness, ventilation and warmth. In this cottage is a room for the woman who cares for the cats, and there is a little kitchen in which the meals are prepared for them. The food is served in bowls and on plates enameled white, and these when not in use are arranged in racks fastened to the walls. The menu of the cats is by no means restricted and during the summer vegetables are served with their meat, which is often minced. Fish and rice are another dish. Swiss milk is served in abundance and milk from goats kept on the premises is fed to delicate kittens. Another of her catteries is covered with rose vines and has three rooms provided with shelves and many things for the amusement of the animals. Each Thomas cat has his own sleeping space, closed in with wire opening on a large grass plot, where he exercises daily in solitary state, it being the rule that two Thomas cats be not allowed to meet for fear of a repetition of the famous Kilkenny fracas.

HAS HERBS FOR EVERY PAIN

Greenwich, N. Y., Shop Supplies Vegetable Curatives for Almost Any Known Malady.

In Bettune street, where Greenwich village, N. Y., seems to tie itself into a knot of tangled thoroughfares, there is an oldtime herb shop. Fifty years or so ago there were many of them in New York, but there are very few now, says the Times. The sign over the door reads: "A herb for every pain." On the shelves and counters are 300 kinds of herbs for the cure of human ills, and bottles with fluid extracts made from nearly half of that number, or combinations of them. Customers with old-fashioned ideas about health and sickness go there for bugle-weed for consumption, sumach for sore throat, wintergreen for rheumatism, and extract of oats to cure drunkenness. At this season of the year there is a constant call for catnip, sassafras, chamomile, horehound, yellow dock, cherry bark and mandrake. Boneset tea is brewed as a cure for colds and served hot in little china cups. Lobelia is sold as an emetic when persons living in the neighborhood have taken poison, either by accident or otherwise. Some of the herbs are deadly poisons, and are sold under the same restrictions as other poisons. Strangers to the herb doctor are served with great caution.

THE PEASANTS HATE WAR.

Though Russian Press Claims That They Volunteer Willingly, Rustics Seem Averse.

"Count Tolstoi," said S. Osgood Pell recently, at Saratoga, N. Y., "is right in his statement that the Russian peasants are averse to war, and go to war unwillingly. If these peasants could have had their way, there would have been no trouble with Japan. The Russian press, of course, claims that the plain people are supporting the government heartily, and that on every hand enthusiastic volunteers pour in. But that is not true. A friend of mine in Moscow wrote me the other day of a joke that is being quietly circulated, and this joke shows pretty clearly the different views that the government and the common people take of the war. Two men, according to the story, were out walking, when they saw a crowd jostling and shoving, while from the crowd came loud sobs, cries of pain, oaths and blows.

"'What on earth is the matter?' said the first man.

"'Oh,' said his companion, indifferently, 'it is only a government officer forcing a peasant to turn volunteer.'"

Indian Caves Cut from Rock.

Among the interesting sights of Hindustan are the Karle caves of India, artificial temples of worship which were cut out of solid rock a century before the Christian era, it is claimed.

WITH ENGLISH EYES.

London Paper Calls President "Police Constable Roosevelt."

LONDON, Dec. 7.—"We may see in this message the words of Police Constable Roosevelt of the international police," says the Daily Chronicle in an editorial article this morning, the sentence concentrating the aspect of the message of the president of the United States, which most forcibly presents itself to that journal.

On the whole, the press of London regards the message as a statesmanlike, highly courageous and notable document, which the Morning Post ventures to think "will do more than any public utterance of recent years to increase sympathy between Britons and Americans," following this expression with the passage from the message where President Roosevelt speaks of his foreign policy as one for which the English speaking world will now and hereafter be thankful.

A majority of the newspapers editorially approve of President Roosevelt's advocacy of a strong army and navy in order to preserve "the peace of justice" and acquit Mr. Roosevelt of any jingo aims. Some, on the other hand, consider the message injurious to the ideals of disarmament and arbitration. The Daily Graphic, for example, thinks the message "will strengthen the advocates of bloated armaments in every country."

DISABLED VOLUNTEERS.

Board of National Home Called on President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The annual meeting of the board of managers of the National Home For Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, with branches throughout the country, was held here. The members of the board called on President Roosevelt, who, as a member of the board, requested them to record him as present. The board appointed the Rev. Dr. Burrage of Portland, Me., who is now the chaplain in chief of the military order of the Loyal Legion, the chaplain of the National home at Togus, Me., to succeed the Rev. Dr. Sawyer, deceased.

The question of filling the vacant governorship of the Marion (Ind.) Soldiers' home was deferred to a subsequent session. Ex-Representative G. W. Steele of Indiana, a member of the board, has been urged for this place, and if he accepts he will be appointed governor.

On the recommendation of Bishop Spalding of Peoria the Rev. Moore of Illinois was appointed the Catholic chaplain at the Danville home in Illinois, vice Rev. Duffy, resigned. The board completed its annual report, and it will be submitted to congress today.

FEW TAKE CARE OF RAZOR

Tonsorial Artist Gives Advice to Average Shaver—Rest Is Good for Instrument.

"The average man who shaves himself, doesn't know how to take care of his razor, despite all the advice that has been given to him in the public prints from time to time," said an expert barber to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat man.

"He will get a good razor, and use it day after day, then wonder why at the end of a short time it loses its edge, even though he strops it most carefully. A razor needs brief intervals of rest, or it will grow dull, no matter what efforts are made to keep it sharp. If you have a good razor, and it appears to be losing its edge, just try to rest it instead of having it sharpened up again. The chances are that when you put it into use again, at the expiration of three or four days, it will prove as sharp as if it had been carefully honed. A man who shaves himself ought to have at least two razors, and use these on alternate mornings; then, if his razors are all right, he will have but little trouble with them. It is also possible to strop a razor too much. It should not be stropped for more than half a minute before shaving, and care should be taken never to bear heavily on the strop while doing this. Let the razor rest lightly on the leather and the best results will be gained. After finishing a shave, strop the razor once more for a few seconds and this will insure a much better condition for it."

DEEP SEA LEVEL RISES.

Changes Observed from Several Points Along Mediteranean Show Increase in Depth.

Changes in the level of the sea are well shown in the case of the Mediterranean. M. Ph. Negris, in a recent lecture presented to the Academy of Science, furnishes interesting information on this point, it being apparent that the sea has greatly increased in depth as compared to ancient times. Formerly a bridge 3,000 feet long united Leucate to the continent. To-day it is submerged, but the foundations of the work were discovered 11 feet beneath the furface. It may, therefore, be concluded that since the construction of the bridge the sea has risen at this point over nine feet. In the bay of Amphissa, Greece, there has been observed a mole that is also over nine feet beneath the surface. At Rhenee there has been found a completely submerged dock, evidently of Roman construction, the depth of the sea above the dock being at places fully nine feet. From all of these facts one may conclude that there has taken place an important increase in the depth of the sea since the Roman period, the Mediterranean having risen at least nine feet in about 2,000 years.

HORSE HAS A HAPPY FACE.

Chicago Equine Driven to Grocery Wagon Is Dear Friend of Numerous School Children.

Said the man whose equine acquaintances outnumber the humans he knows intimately, and who seems glad of it, according to the Chicago Inter Ocean:

"There is a wise old horse belonging to a grocer in Wentworth avenue, and he might appropriately be called the children's friend. The store is close to a schoolhouse, and this horse friend of mine spends much of his time standing in front of the store when his wagon is not in commission. He has a habit of standing with his forefeet on the sidewalk gazing into the store. At such times the children fairly swarm on him. They jump into the wagon and hold the reins; they climb on top of and walk underneath the kindly animal, and he looks benignantly down upon them, and is often rewarded for his good nature with bits of sugar and candy and other things that horses like. There are few happier faces in town, if you know how to read horse faces, than this of my four-legged friend. May he live long and always be as happy."

EASY TO BE EXPERT SHOT

Cavalry Captain Tells How One May Become a Crack with Pistol in a Short Time.

"Any man with ordinary nerve can become a fair shot with a revolver from the saddle with a few weeks' practice. I believe in a short time a man can become sufficiently expert to make 95 out of 100 shots," says an army officer. "You see, it is all in learning when to shoot. The aiming is a small part of pistol and revolver shooting. The aiming is just like pointing your finger. A man naturally can point his finger at an object accurately. If he can do that he can aim a gun by simply throwing it out in the same way. The reason an unpracticed marksman is no marksman at all is that he stops to aim and gets off the mark or becomes unsteady in pulling the trigger. He must learn his gun, so he will know the exact instant when it goes off, just how much and how long a pull he must make to snap the trigger. When he learns so that it is second nature to shoot just as he points the gun, he will hit any ordinary mark within reasonable range."

Food of the Future.

"Man will eat 200 or 300 more foods in the year 2000 than he eats now," said a chemist. "A movement is on foot among the world's governments to increase the varieties of our foods, as every week from somewhere or other new vegetable or fruit or nut is added to the international bill of fare."

The Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 1,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MODES FOR WEE FOLKS.

Brown a Favorite Color For Girls Boys Will Wear Green.

The latest fashion in millinery for wee girls is the large white felt or colored beaver hat trimmed with clusters of velvet or silk roses. These roses match the color of the little silk pelisse or coat. This particular trimming fashion possesses a definite advantage, the roses being much easier to match than the headgear itself, while a single hat can be made by a change of flowers to do duty with two or three tollets.

Brown is much worn by the nursery folk, and smart little long, loose coats of onion color have shoulder capes of white cloth elaborately braided with black. The deep turned back cuffs are carried out in the same manner. The coat is lined with a soft white peau de soie or taffeta silk.

Little boys' brown hats are frequently trimmed with wide tartan ribbon. Leather is very much used on the small boy's costume, and a Russian blouse suit of hunter's green piped with tan suede is one of the season's favorite designs.

The little frock illustrated is for a girl of twelve years. It is carried out in a rather good sized checked material of a pale clear tan color. The skirt is very original, made up in alternate panels of box plaits with a contrasting one fashioned from a flounce of side plaits bordered and banded with stitched cloth. The waist is laid in three deep plaits running from neck to shoulder and blouses over a brown kid belt fastened with a dull gold buckle. Bullet buttons of gold fasten the waist up the center and meet a tiny chemisette and turned back collar of stitched brown cloth.

The sleeves have a deep cuff of the check and a small divided turned back one of brown cloth. The neckband is of folded white mull.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

New Styles In Hats—The Corday Toque—Smart Velvet Blouses.

Charlotte Corday hats are a fashionable fad. They are exceedingly becoming to the right kind of model with their full plaited, undulating brims of soft silk or chiffon. The Tam-like crowns are usually of velvet tied about with a twist of ribbon finishing in a long, full bow in front.

Perhaps the newest Corday is a toque shape, the brim banded with velvet edged top and bottom with a narrow plaiting of silk. This trimming is a modish way of bringing a last season's toque up to date if the owner can stand the rather bizarre adornment.

A light felt tricorne may do duty beautifully for a theater hat if turned up with stiff roses or camellias.

Velvet blouses are very dressy and becoming to wear with fine face cloth skirts and are newer and more becoming than silk. The latest fancy is to trim them with straps of cloth. To be smart the blouse and skirt must match in color.

The simple blouse in the cut is fashioned from crepe de chine or soft silk. Corded shirrings form the deep, round yoke and make a pretty finish for the sleeve at the elbow, where a high, tight cuff fastens with small bullet buttons. Over the yoke is an empiecement of stitched material fastened down the yoke depth with buttons. The collar is a high double turnover.

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

My father was stronger than any of them except D'ri, who could drive his ax to the bit every blow, day after day. He had the strength of a giant, and no man I knew tried ever to cope with him. By the middle of May we began rolling in for the raft. As soon as they were floating, the logs were withed together and moored in sections. The bay became presently a quaking, redolent plain of timber.

When we started the raft, early in June, that summer of 1810, and worked it into the broad river with sweeps and poles, I was aboard with D'ri and six other men, bound for the big city of which I had heard so much. I was to visit the relatives of my mother and spend a year in the College de St. Pierre. We had a little frame house on a big platform, back of the middle section of the raft, with bunks in it, where we ate and slept and told stories. Lying on the platform there was a large flat stone that held our fires for both cooking and comfort. D'ri called me in the dusk of the early morning, the first night out, and said we were near the Sault. I got up, rubbed my eyes, and felt a mighty thrill as I heard the roar of the great rapids and the creaking withes, and felt the lift of the speeding waters. D'ri said they had broken the raft into three parts, ours being hindmost. The roaring grew louder, until my shout was as a whisper in a hurricane. The logs began to heave and fall, and waves came rushing through them. Sheets of spray shot skyward, coming down like a shower. We were shaken as by an earthquake in the rough water. Then the roar fell back of us, and the raft grew steady.

"Gin us a tough twist," said D'ri, shouting down at me—"kind uv a twist o' the bit 'n' a kick 'n the side."

It was coming daylight as we sailed into still water, and then D'ri put his hands to his mouth and hailed loudly, getting an answer out of the gloom ahead.

"Gol-dum ef it hain't the power uv a thousan' painters!" D'ri continued, laughing as he spoke. "Never see nothin' jump 'n' kick 'n spit like thet air, less it hed fur on—never 'n all my born days."

D'ri's sober face showed dimly now in the dawn. His hands were on his hips; his faded felt hat was tipped sideways. His boots and trousers were quarreling over that disputed territory between his knees and ankles. His boots had checked the invasion.

"Smooth water now," said he, thoughtfully. "Seems terribly still. Hain't a breath uv air stirrin'. Jerushy Jane Pepper! Wha' does thet mean?"

He stepped aside quickly as some bits of bark and a small bough of hemlock fell at our feet. Then a shower of pine needles came slowly down, scattering over us and hitting the timber with a faint hiss. Before we could look up a dry stick as long as a log fell rattling on the platform.

"Never seen no sech doin's afore," said D'ri, looking upward. "Things don't seem t' me t' be actin' eggzac'ly nat'ral—nut jest es I'd like t' see 'em."

As the light came clearer, we saw clouds heaped black and blue over the tree-tops in the southwest. We stood a moment looking. The clouds were heaping higher, pulsing with light, roaring with thunder. What seemed to be a flock of pigeons rose suddenly above the far forest, and then fell as if they had all been shot. A gust of wind coasted down the still ether, fluttering like a rag and shaking out a few drops of rain.

"Look there!" I shouted, pointing aloft.

"Hark!" said D'ri, sharply, raising his hand of three fingers.

We could hear a far sound like that of a great wagon rumbling on a stony road.

"The Almighty's whippin' his hosses," said D'ri. "Looks es ef he was plungin' 'em through the woods 'way yender. Look a' thet air sky."

The cloud-masses were looming rapidly. They had a glow like that of copper.

"Tryin' to put a ruf on the world," my companion shouted. "Swingin' ther hammers hard on the rivets."

A little peak of green vapor showed above the sky-line. It loomed high as we looked. It grew into a lofty column, reeling far above the forest. Below it we could see a mighy heaving in the tree-tops. Something like an immense bird was hurtling and pirouetting in the air above them. The tower of green looked now like a great flaring bucket hooped with fire and overflowing with darkness. Our ears were full of a mighy voice out of the heavens. A wind came roaring down some tideway of the air like water in a flume. It seemed to tap the sky. Before I could gather my thoughts we were in a torrent of rushing air, and the raft had begun to heave and toss. I felt D'ri take my hand in his. I could just see his face, for the morning had turned dark suddenly. His lips were moving, but I could hear nothing he said. Then he lay flat, pulling me down. Above and around all the noises that ever came to the ear of man—the beating of drums, the bellowing of cattle, the crash of falling trees, the shriek of women, the rattle of machinery, the roar of waters, the crack of rifles, the blowing of trumpets, the braying of asses, and sounds of the like of which I had never heard in! pray God I may not hear again, one and then another dominating the mighty chorus. Behind us, in the gloom, I could see, or thought I could see, the reeling mass of green ploughing the water, like a ship with chains of gold flashing over bulwarks of fire. In a moment something happened of which I have never had any definite notion. I felt the strong arm of D'ri clasping me tightly. I heard the thump and roll and rattle of logs heaping above us; I felt the water washing over me; but I could see nothing. I knew the raft had doubled; it would fall and grind our bones: but I made no effort to save myself. And thinking how helpless I felt is the last I remember of the great windfall of June 3, 1810, the path of which may be seen now, 50 years after that memorable day, and I suppose it will be visible long after my bones have crumbled. I thought I had been sleeping when I came to; at least, I had dreamed. I was in some place where it was dark and still. I could hear nothing but the drip of water; I could feel the arm of D'ri about me, and I called to him, and then I felt him stir.

"Thet you, Ray?" said he, lifting his head.

"Yes," I answered. "Where are we?"

"Judas Priest! I ain' no idee. Jes' woke up. Been a-layin' here tryin' t' think. Ye hurt?"

"Guess not," said I.

"Ain't ye got no pains or aches nowhere 'n yer body?"

"Head aches a little," said I.

He rose to his elbow, and made a light with his flint and tinder, and looked at me.

"Got a goose-egg on yer for'ard," said he, and then I saw there was blood on his face.

"Ef it hed n't been fer the withes they 'd 'a' ground us t' powder."

We were lying alongside the little house, and the logs were leaning to it above us.

"Jerushy Jane Pepper!" D'ri exclaimed, rising to his knees. "'S whut I call a twister."

He began to whittle a piece of the splintered platform. Then he lit a shaving.

"They 's ground here," said he, as he began to kindle a fire, "ground a-plenty right under us."

The firelight gave us a good look at our cave under the logs. It was about 10 feet long and probably as high. The logs had crashed through the side of the house in one or two places, and its roof was a wreck.

"Hungry?" said D'ri, as he broke a piece of board on his knee.

"Yes," I answered.

"So 'm I," said he, "hungrier 'n a she-wolf. They's some bread 'n' venson there 'n the house; we better try t' git 'em."

An opening under the logs let me around the house corner to its door. I was able to work my way through the latter, although it was choked with heavy timbers. Inside I could hear the wash of the river, and through its shattered window on the farther wall I could see between the heaped logs a glow of sunlit water. I handed our ax through a break in the wall, and then D'ri cut away some of the baseboards and joined me. We had our meal cooking in a few minutes—our dinner, really, for D'ri said it was near noon. Having eaten, we crawled out of the window, and then D'ri began to pry the logs apart.

"Ain't much 'fraid o' their tumblin' on us," said he. "They 're withed so they 'll stick together."

We got to another cave under the logs, at the water's edge, after an hour of crawling and prying. A side of the raft was in the water.

"Got t' dive,' said D'ri, "an' swim fer daylight."

A long swim it was, but we came up in clear water badly out of breath. We swam around the timber, scrambling over a dead cow, and up-shore. The ruined raft was torn and tumbled into a very mountain of logs at the edge of the water. The sun was shining clear, and the air was still. Limbs of trees, bits of torn cloth, a broken hay-rake, fragments of wool, a wagon-wheel, and two dead sheep were scattered along the shore. Where we had seen the whirlwind coming, the sky was clear, and beneath it was a great gap in the woods, with ragged walls of evergreen. Here and there in the gap a stub was standing, trunk and limbs naked.

"Jerushy Jane Pepper!" D'ri exclaimed, with a pause after each word. "It 's cut a swath wider 'n this river. Don't b'lieve a mouse could 'a' lived where the timber 's down over there."

Our sweepers and the other sections of the raft were nowhere in sight.

CHAPTER III.

We left the logs and walked to Cornwall, and took a sloop down the river. It was an American boat, bound for Quebec with pipe-staves. It had put in at Cornwall when the storm began. The captain said that the other sections of our raft had passed safely. In the dusk of the early evening a British schooner brought us to.

"Wonder what that means?" said the skipper, straining his eyes in the dusk.

A small boat, with three officers, came alongside. They climbed aboard, one of them carrying a lantern. They were armed with swords and pistols. We sat in silence around the cockpit. They scanned each of us carefully in the light of the lantern. It struck me as odd they should look so closely at our hands.

"Wha' d' ye want?" the skipper demanded.

"This man," said one of them, pointing to D'ri. "He's a British sailor. We arrest him——"

He got no farther. D'ri's hand had gone out like the paw of a painter and sent him across the cockpit. Before I knew what was up, I saw the lank body of D'ri leaping backward into the river. I heard a splash and a stroke of his long arms, and then all was still. I knew he was swimming under water to get away. The officers made for their boat. My blood was up, and I sprang at the last of them, giving him a hard shove as he was climbing over, so that he fell on the boat, upsetting it. They had business enough then for a little, and began hailing for help. I knew I had done a foolish thing, and ran forward, climbing out upon the bowsprit, and off with my coat and vest, and dived into the dark water. I swam under as long as I could hold my breath, and then came up quietly, turning on my back in the quick current, and floating so my face only was above water. It had grown dark, and I could see nothing but the glimmer of the stars above me. My boots were heavy and dragged hard. I was going fast with the swift water, for at first I had heard a great hubbub on the schooner; but now its voices had grown faint. Other sounds were filling my ear.

After dark it is wierd business to be swimming in strange water—the throne of mystery, of a thousand terrors. It is as if one's grave, full of the blackness of the undiscovered country, were pursuing him and ever yawning beneath his body. And that big river is the very tiger of waters, now stealing on pussy-footed, now rushing with cat-like swiftness, hissing and striking with currents that have in them mighty sinews. I was now companion of those cold-mouthed monsters of the the river bottom, many of which I had seen. What if one should lay hold on me and drag me under? Then I thought of the rapids that might smother me with their spray or dash me to hidden rocks. Often I lifted my ears, marvelling at the many voices of the river. Sometimes I thought I heard a roaring like that of the Sault, but it was only a ripple growing into fleecy waves that rocked me as in a cradle. The many sounds were above, below, and beside me, some weird and hollow and unearthly. I could hear the rocks rolling over in their sleep on the bottom, and, when the water was still, a sound like the cropping of lily-pads away off on the river margin. The bellowing of a cow terrified me as it boomed over the sounding sheet of water. The river rang like a mighty drum when a peal of far thunder beat upon it. I put out my hands to take a stroke or two as I lay on my back, and felt something floating in the water. The feel of it filled me with horror. I swam faster; it was at my heels. I knew full well what my hand had touched—a human head floating face downward: I could feel the hair in my fingers. I turned and swam hard, but it still followed me. My knees hit upon it, and then my feet. Again and again I could feel it when I kicked. Its hand seemed to be clutching my trousers. I thought I should never get clear of the ghastly thing. I remember wondering if it were the body of poor D'ri. I turned aside swimming another way, and then I felt it no more.

In the dead of the night I heard suddenly a kind of throbbing in the breast of the river. It grew to a noisy heart-beat as I listened. Again and again I heard it, striking, plashing, light a footfall, and coming nearer. Somehow I got the notion of a giant, like those of whom my mother had told me long ago, striding in the deep river. I could hear his boots dripping as he lifted them. I got an odd fear that he would step on me. Then I heard music and lifted my ears above water. It was a voice singing in the distance—it must have been a mile off—and what I had taken for a near footfall shrank away. I knew now that it was the beat of oars in some far bay.

MRS FORCE.

MRS. GILBERT BURIED.

Notable Gathering of Prominent Social and Theatrical People.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. G. H. Gilbert, one of the best known and most charming of the older school of American actors, took place at the Bloomingdale Reformed church, Broadway and Sixty-eighth street.

Long before the hour set crowds began to gather about the edifice till the crush at the entrances to the church necessitated a call for the reserves of the West Sixty-ninth street station.

By this time the church was so crowded that over a hundred arrivals had to be turned away. The onrush of the curious public had been such that many players were excluded.

The members of the "Granny" company, including the acting, executive and mechanical departments, came to the church en masse and occupied a section of pews set apart for them.

The floral contributions were superb and included a giant wreath of white carnations bearing the inscription in gold upon purple ribbons, "From the Company;" another wreath, ordered by cable, from Mr. and Mrs. Kendall and other beautiful pieces.

The mourners present included every individual of rank in the dramatic and musical profession who is now engaged in the east, Annie Russell and S. Oswald Yorke, her husband; William Faversham, Julie Opp, Robert Mantell, Fritzi Scheff, Lillian Russell, Mme. Rejane, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Cecilia Loftus, May Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Gray Fiske, John Drew, Heinrich Conreid, Nahan Franko, Julia Marlowe, E. H. Sothern, Edna May, Edna Wallace Hopper and many others of equal prominence being present.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

After Listening to the President's Message Both Houses Adjourn.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The senate was in session for more than two hours and, in addition to listening to the reading of the president's message, received a preliminary report from the merchant marine commission, witnessed the induction of Senators Knox and Crane into office and in executive session referred the presidential nominations to the proper committees. The session was characterized by an extension of greetings among senators.

The reading of the commissions of the two new senators attracted more attention than usual in such cases on account of their prominence, and senators generally did not fail to note the peculiar wording of Governor Pennypacker's communication.

After listening to the reading of the president's annual message to congress the house adjourned. During the first ten minutes of the session two minor routine matters were disposed of.

A large batch of nominations were sent to the senate by the president, many of them recess appointments, which included four cabinet positions, as follows:

Attorney general, William H. Moody of Massachusetts.

Postmaster general, Robert J. Wynne of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of the navy, Paul Morton of Illinois.

Secretary of commerce and labor, Victor B. Metcalf of California.

Important postoffice nominations sent to the senate included William R. Willcox, at New York; Andrew R. McGill, St. Paul, Minn., and John A. Merritt of New York, at Washington.

Six Hurt in Trolley Crash.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The brakes of a work car loaded with iron on a trolley road between Jersey City and Hoboken failed to work as the car was passing down a steep grade on a trestle 100 feet above the street level in Hoboken, and the heavy car chased a car loaded with passengers down the grade and finally crashed into it, injuring six persons, none fatally.

Higgins Would Not Talk.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Mr. Frank Higgins, governor elect of New York state, said he had not conferred with Governor Odell and that he would leave the city today, returning next week. Mr. Higgins declined to comment on the New York senatorship situation further than to say that, while he had a preference, he would not announce it.

Now Countess de Rougemont.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Miss Edith Devereux Clapp, daughter of Mrs. N. Devereux Clapp, of this city was married in St. Francis Xavier's church here to Count Rene du Temple de Rougemont, nephew of Mr. Desrorte de la Fasse, first secretary of the French embassy at Washington.

Shot His Daughter.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 7.—John Wainwright of 981 Southbridge street shot and killed his daughter late yesterday and also sent a bullet through his wife's neck. It is thought she will live. Wainwright has been arrested.

Dickinson Elected Mayor.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 7.—Alderman Frank W. Dickinson, Republican, was elected mayor over Patrick J. Marshall, Democrat, by 724 plurality, the vote being 4,905 to 4,181. Four Republican aldermen were elected.

Gasoline Explosion at Perrysburg, O.

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 7.—The explosion of a can of gasoline in a dentist's office started a dangerous fire in Perrysburg, ten miles south of here. Three business houses were burned and two offices; loss, $20,000.

Hairy Ainus For Home.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7.—The hairy Ainus from northern Japan, who were brought to the world's fair seven months ago, left St. Louis on the long journey homeward.

LOCAL LUNCH MEN TO MOVE IN NEW BUILDING

CHANGES PLANNED IN BUSINESS AT TROLLEY TERMINUS.

Jesse Hetfield and Thomas A. Garthwaite have leased the new store with two flats in the building now being erected by Hand and Homan on Watchung avenue, near the trolley stand and the work on the store is being rapidly pushed toward completion. Mr. Garthwaite, Mr. Hetfield's son-in-law, will occupy it with a first-class quick-lunch business and he will give up his present store, the sidewall of which will have to be set in two feet eight inches to get it off of Hand and Homan's property. The building to be occupied by Mr. Garthwaite is the first one, next to the lane.

Jesse Hetfield, who has been successful and very popular in the quick-lunch business, will occupy a new building at Rahway Junction to be erected for him by the Public Service Corporation. He purposes to open up before Christmas. In addition to serving lunches, Mr. Hetfield will sell The Daily Press and other newspapers.

Owens, the former representing the plaintiff, and the latter the defendants, will file briefs.

DRAWS SNUG SALARY

HEAD OF ENGLISH CHURCH NEED NEVER GO BEGGING.

Receives $75,000 Per Year and Lives in a Gorgeous Palace—Now on a Visit to United States and Canada.

New York Special.

Rt. Rev. Dr. Randall Thomas Davidson, archbishop of Canterbury, is now on a visit to the United States, the first official visit ever made overseas by an archbishop of Canterbury during his term of office.

Mr. Davidson is the ninety-fifth archbishop of Canterbury, dating from the foundation of the see, in A. D. 597. He was born in Edinburgh on April 7, 1848. His parents were pure Scotch, and on his mother's side Dr. Davidson descended from King Robert III. of Scotland. His father was a professional man in moderate circumstances, and the son was sent to Harrow. From Harrow he went to Trinity college, Oxford, where he was graduated in 1871. He was ordained in 1874 and for three years was curate of a small church at Dartford, in Kent. Shortly after leaving college Dr. Davidson was accidentally shot while hunting, an accident that threatened to wreck his whole career, but which proved, however, to be a happy accident. The young man's misfortune aroused the sympathy of Archbishop Tait, of Canterbury, and he was invited to become the archbishop's chaplain and private secretary. In 1878 the young chaplain married Miss Edith Tait, the primate's daughter. Archbishop Tait died in 1882, when Dr. Davidson received from Queen Victoria the appointment of dean of Windsor. He was a great favorite with Queen Victoria, and when Archbishop Benson died she expressed the wish that Dr. Davidson should become his successor. Dr. Davidson, however, requested permission to decline the honor, and Dr. Temple was nominated to the see of Canterbury. In 1889 Dr. Davidson was appointed to the see of Rochester, and in 1895, his health being poor, he accepted the see of Winchester, where his residence was in Farnham castle, situated in one of the most beautiful and salubrious spots in England. On the death of Archbishop Temple, Dr. Davidson was again offered the see of Canterbury, and this time accepted.

The salary of the archbishop of Canterbury is $75,000 per year. This salary is derived from the treasury of the church, the income of which is estimated at $40,000,000. The archbishop's official residence is at "Lambeth Place," which is situated on the banks of the Thames, almost opposite the houses of parliament at Winchester. In this palace the archbishop entertains in great state during the London season. Dr. Davidson is described as a "plain-looking man, neither decorative nor impressive." He is said to have a keen sense of humor, and, like all men of humor, he is exceptionally broad-minded, which is shown by his intimate friendship with the clergy of different religious denominations. The archbishop of Canterbury enjoys many prerogatives. The most important is that of heading the commission of dignitaries of the realm who form a council of regency in the event of an interregnum. The last occasion on which the primate of all England was called upon to fill this office was on the death of Queen Anne. Several days elapsed before her successor, George I., reached England from Hanover. The archbishop also enjoys the privilege of ranking next to royalty, and on all state occasions he takes precedence over all others in the king's domain. Curiously enough, the wife of the archbishop of Canterbury has no official rank whatever, and is addressed the same as any lady in private life.

Defies God and Falls Dead.

Consternation reigned in the little town of Allen, in southern Maryland, over the strange death of Walter M. Whitney, a pronounced atheist, but one of the most popular residents of the place. One Sunday night Whitney was conversing with some friends, when he suddenly exclaimed: "I defy the Almighty to strike me dead." Instantly Whitney fell to the floor, and when those about him picked him up, he was dead. The tragic manner of Whitney's death not only cast a gloom over the community, but his defiance is looked upon as a sudden judgment from the Almighty. While Whitney frequently expressed no belief in God, he was a general favorite, and was much sought after as a companion.

Stole Piano Tuner's Teeth.

A mean rogue lately figured in a rascally deed in Potsdam, Prussia. A piano tuner strolling along a lonely road was knocked down by a footpad, who rifled his pockets of all his cash, amounting to about 60 cents. The rascal then removed three of the victim's teeth to get the gold with which they were filled.

HARVEST HOME SUCCESS

Muhlenberg Hospital's Annual Affair Well Attended.

MANY DONATIONS

Reception in Charge of Woman's Auxiliary Board—Decorations a Distinctive Feature.

Responding nobly to the institution's call for needed supplies, Plainfield residents made yesterday's annual harvest home of Muhlenberg Hospital one of the most successful that has ever been conducted by its Woman's Auxiliary. Held in the new nurses' home near the main buildings it was attended by 500 people while the contributions were so numerous as to fill room after room. Canned goods and preserves, cereals, farm products and linens were to be seen in endless profusion and the whole will provide for the needs of patients for many months to come.

The donations were divided into different groups with the idea of showing their extent. In one room were canned goods, in another preserves and jams, further on farm products, mostly donated by the local schools and again, delicatessen articles. One of the features of the display was the donation of linens made by the Needlework Guild, numbering 612 pieces, in charge of Mrs. Hyatt and Mrs. Corlies.

Conspicuous also were the decorations which were simple and yet effective because of their appropriateness. The Red Cross colors, red and white, predominated, and they were to be seen in nearly every room. At the entrance of the building was an arch made by the intertwining of the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes, while sheaves of wheat and autumn foliage graces convenient nooks and corners. Palms and plants were used in the reception room.

As the visitors entered the building they were taken in charge of Mrs. Samuel Huntington, president of the Auxiliary, who provided for their being shown about. Her direct assistants were Miss Elizabeth Cook and Mrs. D. M. VanBuren. Concluding the inspection, the guests were served with tea, cake and almonds. The receiving committee consisted of Mrs. A. E. Barclay, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Murphy, Miss Marion Bowen, Mrs. W. C. Kinney, Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde, Miss Edith Clark and Miss Barclay. In addition there was an entertainment committee composed of Mrs. John B. Dumont, chairman, Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. M. D. Warren, Mrs. E. M. VanBuren, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. A. D. Gibbs and Miss Florence Waring.

The decorations were arranged and executed by Mrs. Benjamin B. Drake, Miss Martine, Mrs. Bittle, Mrs. Harry Hall, Mrs. W. T. Pelletier and others. The large number of donations were partly due to the efforts of Mrs. Walter Gaston who visited the city and borough schools in behalf of the auxiliary and Mrs. George A. Chapman who notified the local churches. Mrs. W. L. Glenney had charge of the printing and postage and assisted in the arrangement of the preliminaries.

CASE DISMISSED.

Assault and Battery Trial in Justice Hand's Court Yesterday, a Hot Contention.

As an aftermath to the quarrel in a tailor shop between Charles Rogoff and Leslie M. Cobbs, which occurred Monday morning, both appeared before Justice Hand yesterday afternoon. Rogoff brought a charge of assault and battery against Cobbs, and when the testimony had been heard the case was dismissed.

The testimony showed that Cobbs went to Rogoff's shop three times on Monday for some clothes that the latter was making for him, and that on the third trip he assaulted Rogoff, hitting him on the head with a pair of shears. On the other hand, the proprietor of the shop locked Cobbs in his place while he called for the police. It was on this ground that the court based its decision.

William G. DeMeza represented the plaintiff in the case, and J. P. Owens appeared for the defendant.

"TUNE" PREDICTS VICTORY

"Mayor" Melick Sees Democratic Success in 1908.

SKETCH OF THE MAN

Familiar Figure in Plainfield—His Looks Are Deceiving, for in Fact He's Shrewd.

Hardly a man in the business section of Plainfield, to say nothing of the great majority of farmers throughout Somerset County, needs any introduction to "Tune" Melick. His "don't it beat all," repeated three times in succession, is familiar to all. Melick seldom says anything without saying it twice over again in rapid succession, and that's how he came to reiterate again and again to a reporter for The Daily Press yesterday that "We're after them in 1908. Parker was a lame one but there'll be a good hoss on the track next time." Mr. Melick voted the Democratic ticket just as early as he was able to put a ballot in the box and he takes his ticket like he does his favorite beverage.

Tunis J. Melick was born in 1849 in Hunterdon County. He has resided in Somerset County for the past fifteen years and now lives on one of the most fertile and prolific farms in the heart of Pluckamin a short distance from the Kenilworth farm. His father lives on a farm near Germantown, Hunterdon County. "Tune," as he is always called, has an interesting family of grown children who are well educated. There are four girls and two boys. These children are decidedly smart and above the average in that direction, considering the limited educational means that the country in which they were reared afforded.

"Tune" knows the value of a dollar and it is a clever man who bests him in a deal. He can be seen at almost all the Democratic gatherings that take place in New Jersey—such as State, Gubernatorial, Congressional and at all county conventions that assemble in Somerset, his benign countenance and fog-horn voice with his hearty laughter accompaniment, is to be heard. His voice is the sign-post that has made him famous. A sound hearty laugh follows all his remarks. He usually repeats two or three words when he wishes to emphasize. For instance "Tell 'em, tell 'em, tell 'em boys! We're going to win, we're going to win. Ha ha ha!" is a way that attention is first drawn to him. That fog-horn voice of "Tune" Melick's sings out in forceful notes way above the average speaker and has often nettled an old campaigner who was addressing an audience on the hustings.

Melick does a huckstering business in an agricultural way and he can be seen almost every week either in Somerville, Bound Brook, Plainfield, Elizabeth or Newark, looking for the best prices on live stock. He takes to market turkeys, chickens, shoats, guinea hens, in fact, almost anything that a nimble sixpence can be realized on that is produced from a farm.

He knows the State pretty thoroughly, the central portion of it particularly. Known in every one of the twenty-one counties of New Jersey he possesses a pretty accurate knowledge of public men, especially those who have been in the public notice for a score of years or so. A firemen's parade is not complete in central New Jersey unless he is present. A great big awkward farmer he first appears to be but afterward he is beheld as a man brimful of fun with an eye to business. He never sleeps; is always on the lookout to attract attention or make a business deal.

Such is the personality of Tunis J.

TO REMOVE LIGHT PLANT

Report That P. S. C.'s Local Electric Department is to Go.

POWER FROM METUCHEN

Rumor That Corporation Will Have a Central Plant at Metuchen to Furnish Surrounding Towns.

Work that will eventually lead to the location of the electric light plant of the Public Service Corporation in this city at Metuchen is now underway, employes of the company being employed to string the necessary wires to Metuchen. While this change will not be made immediately it is the purpose of the company to effect it as soon as convenient. The idea of moving the local electric light plant is chiefly because the company will be able to save a considerable sum in taxes and besides it will be more centrally situated to light Rahway, New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Amboy and other towns and cities, including Plainfield and the country districts.

The tax on the Plainfield plant is a heavy one and figured on the rate of $2.52 aggregates a considerable sum. In Metuchen the rate is much lower and is sure to be for some years to come. Some time ago there was talk of centralizing the electric interests of the company and plans for its consummation are about complete. Of course the electric machinery in the plant here would be moved to Metuchen where it is proposed to erect a large modern structure particularly adapted as a power station. It is said that a portion of the power needed for the operation of the trolley cars will be furnished from the station at Menchen, while the power from the Cranford station will be used as at present. This change would necessitate the city making other arrangements for the blowing of the fire alarm, but there has been more or less talk about doing away with this whistle.

CITY DEFEATS BOROUGH, SIXTY TO TEN THE SCORE

IN ONE-SIDED CONTEST P. H. S. BASKET BALL TEAM WINS FIRST GAME.

What might have been a basket ball game at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon between the North Plainfield and City High Schools, turned out to be a long sweet song for the city players, who warbled it to the tune of 60 to 10. It took just fifteen seconds for Captain Thompson and his quartette of assistants to get into the game, and after that it was only a case of how many discords would be credited to North Plainfield, and how many goals for the Plainfield aggregation.

Never in the local gymnasium has such a one sided basket ball game been played, and it shows not only the superiority of the Plainfield team over the borough five, but the fastest team work which any local school organization has ever put up. Thompson and Freeman delighted the hearts of the rooters by their goal shooting. For the North Plainfield High School, Mundy, Steiner and Webster were conspicuous by an occasional attack on the ball. The lineup and detailed score was as follows: P. H. S.—Smith, Thompson and Vail, forwards; Freeman, center; Stutsman and Gavett, guards. N. P. H. S.—Mundy, Nischwitz, forwards; Steiner, center; Hand, Webster and Mueck, guards. Goals from the field, Smith 3, Thompson 12, Freeman 9, Stutsman, Gavett 4, Nischwitz 3, Mundy, Steiner. Referee, Henckel; umpire, Strong.

LOYAL LEGION BANQUET.

Plainfielders Attend Function at Delmonico's.

W. D. W. Miller, S. C. Peck, Dr. F. S. Weiss, M. C. Debbins and Walter C. Debbins, Plainfield members, attended the quarterly meeting and banquet of the New York Commandery, Military Order Loyal Legion, held at Delmonic's, last night. A feature of the banquet was the presentation of Prince Ladanaru Fushimi and his party from Japan, who have been making a tour of this country. The Prince being unable to speak English, he responded through an interpreter.

One of the interesting addresses was by Baron Kaneko, who explained the issues in the war between Japan and Russia. The chief address was by Dr. Seaman, who recently returned from Japan, and he told of the elaborate preparation for war made by the Japanese prior to hostilities.

DEATH ROBS NUPTIALS

Her Wedding Date Set, Miss Aiken Succumbs to Illness.

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

Former Scotch Plains Girl Passes Away in Washington Valley —Funeral Today.

Returning home from Chicago with an illness that steadily grew worse, Miss Sarah Aiken, daughter of the late Thomas and Mary Aiken, formerly well known residents of Scotch Plains, died Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. James Boyle in Washington Valley.

Miss Aiken was but twenty-one years old, beautiful and accomplished, and was to have been married next month to Joseph M. Johnston, of 208 East Seventeenth street, New York.

She was very well known in Plainfield, having frequently taken part in concert work.

There are no relatives but one brother who is in the West. Her fiance arranged for the funeral and will bear the incurred expense. It will take place from Mrs. Boyle's home this afternoon and will be in charge of Rev. G. M. Shott, of Scotch Plains.

ELKS TO PROVIDE FEAST FOR 300 CHILDREN

CHRISTMAS DINNER TO BE GIVEN TO BOYS AND GIRLS.

Aided by Miss Sarah VanBoskerck, of the Organized Aid Association, Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., is making arrangements to treat at least 300 Plainfield boys and girls to a turkey dinner. It will be given Saturday, December 24, at a place yet to be designated, and will be on a sumptuous scale. The plans are now in the hands of a committee and the details will be perfected before next week's meeting of the lodge.

In previous years, the Organized Aid Association has given the poor children of the city and borough a Christmas tree entertainment at which each received a present. It is possible this affair will be merged with the Elk dinner and Miss VanBoskerck is proving invaluable in preparing the plans.

CELEBRATE JUBILEE OF IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

OBSERVANCE ORDERED BY PONTIFF AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Beginning with a mass at 5:30 this morning, the parish of St. Mary's church began the observance of the golden jubilee of the Immaculate Conception. The initial mass was largely attended, including nearly the entire membership of the Children of Mary. Other masses were held at 7 and 9 o'clock.

This evening a special service will be held at which Rev. Father A. M. Egan will preach a special sermon on the Immaculate Conception. Special music will be a feature and the Children of Mary and the Immaculate Conception will attend in a body.

Similar services were held this morning in St. Joseph's church and this evening at 8 there will be a special sermon and music by the choir.

Evangelistic Services at 'Plains.

The special evangelistic services being held in the Scotch Plains M. E. church, under the direction of Rev. George W. Coon, of Boston, evangelist, have steadily increased in interest and attendance. The short, pointed and helpful preaching by the evangelist has caused an awakening such as not been seen in Scotch Plains in several years. The singing has been a feature of these services and nearby churches have been uniting with good results. This evening the Monroe Avenue church, of this city, will be represented and Mr. Coon will preach. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. The services are held every evening at 7:45, with the exception of Mondays and Saturdays.

Had No License.

W. W. Dexter, of Newark, was arraigned in the city court yesterday afternoon, on a charge of selling gas mantles without a license. He claimed to manufacture them himself but pleaded guilty to the charge. Sentence was suspended on his promise to retire from the local field.

VAN NESS CASE GOES OVER

Defendant in Suit Brought by G. W. Marsh Fails to Appear.

OVER A MORTGAGE

Witnesses Impeach Van Ness' Reputation for Veracity—He Raises a Disturbance.

Vice Chancellor Emery in the Court of Chancery at Newark yesterday, after about a dozen witnesses had been heard in rebuttal in the suit brought by George W. Marsh against John K. VanNess for the foreclosure of a mortgage for $6,000, granted a continuance till January 19, on account of the absence of the defendant, who is still to be cross-examined.

The mortgage which the complainant is seeking to foreclose was for a loan made by the complainant's father to the defendant in 1891, and it is alleged that no interest has been paid on the mortgage since 1893. In the subsequent settlement of the Marsh estate the complainant acquired the mortgage in question upon the payment of $1,000. The contention of the defendant is that substantial payments were made both on account of interest and principle, for which no acknowledgment was made.

The witnesses put on the stand yesterday, were all called to impeach the defendant's reputation for truth and veracity.

The defendant, it is alleged, on the day of the hearing last week, assailed a number of witnesses for the complainant, whom he fell in with in the Broad Street Station of the New Jersey Central Railroad, with abusive language for having impeached the character of Samuel Allen, who had testified in his behalf.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE ON TWENTY-THIRD

AFTER APPROPRIATE EXERCISES PUPILS WILL HAVE CUSTOMARY HOLIDAYS.

In accordance with the usual custom at the holiday season, the city and borough public schools will close for the Christmas vacation on Friday, December 23 to reopen on Tuesday, January 3. This will give in all ten days for a vacation which is about the usual time.

In all of the schools, exercises, either musical or in the nature of an entertainment, will be held on Friday to celebrate the Christmas season. At the Plainfield High School, the usual pranks will be played, and the senior and junior classes will have their customary good natured rivalry. There will also be a musical programme arranged. In the Borough High School, the time of the pupils is largely taken up at present with preparations for the school play, which will be the most elaborate which the school has ever given. Music and recitations will mark the occasion on Friday, however, and appropriate exercises will take place at the assembly.

The most extensive affair of the kind which the school has ever attempted will be the production of a miniature opera and cantata by the pupils of the Whittier School. It is entitled "The Koronation of King Kris Kringle," and will be given by a select cast and chorus of the entire school in Franklin Hall on the evening of December —.

The other schools throughout the city, including the Bryant, Franklin, Washington, Irving and Lincoln, will observe the season in the customary manner, and where the exercises are not by the entire school in the assembly hall, the significance of the occasion will be dwelt upon in the classrooms.

P. H. S. Scrubs Win.

The junior league basket ball game at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon between the Plainfield High School seconds and the Y. M. C. A. Juniors resulted in a victory for the former team by the score of 13 to 9. It was a close game and an interesting one. Line and Stern were the best players for the Y. M. C. A. team and Caldwell and Doane played well for the scrubs. The line-up was as follows: Y. M. C. A.—Line and Mortimer, forwards; Stern, centre; Steiner and Doeringer, guards. Plainfield High Schol Seconds—Doane and Caldwell, forwards; Mackey, centre; Leggett and Freeman, guards.

GODDING'S CHANCES GOOD

But if Named Chancery Clerk, Another Fight is Likely.

KEAN-FOWLER CLASH

Westfield Man Considered Chief of Staff of Voorhees—Fowler Republicans.

Among the handfull of lawmakers that was about the State House at Trenton yesterday there was a strong impression that the matter of a new clerk in Chancery to succeed Governor-elect Stokes when he resigns the clerkship was about settled, and that Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, deputy clerk of the Supreme Court, was slated for the place.

When Mr. Codding was first discussed in connection with the place there was a disinclination to take his candidacy seriously, especially when he himself evinced a disposition to make light of the matter. The first intimation he had of the affair, he said, was when he saw his name mentioned as one of the candidates in the newspapers on Monday. He did not know whether he wanted the place or not. His present position in the Supreme Court clerk's office, he said, suited him very well, and he had two years to serve there. But later in the day, when it became known that Mr. Codding had had a long conference with Frank O. Briggs, the chairman of the Republican State committee, who can be looked upon as an ambassador of the Governor-elect for such purposes, the frequenters of the State house opened their eyes and began to see a light.

Then later in the day, when an official, who occupied a prominent position on the State committee during the last campaign, came along and whispered to some of his friends that he had reason to know that Chairman Briggs and Mr. Codding were talking over the Chancery clerkship, and that Mr. Codding could have the office if he wanted it, many concluded that Mr. Codding would be the new clerk in Chancery.

This was further strengthened when it was recalled that Mr. Codding was one of the stanch supporters of the Fowler-Voorhees faction in the troubles of the Union Republicans, and would have exerted in his behalf all the influence which the former Governor, Foster M. Voorhees, will have with the new administration, and no one would deny that that influence would be very potent.

Notwithstanding all this there were those who doubted that there was anything whatever in the gossip, because of the family row the appointment of Mr. Codding would be sure to kick up in the Republican party. In Union, it was pointed out, he is considered the chief of staff of the Fowler-Voorhees branch of the family, and after a bitter fight the chairmanship of the county committee was wrested from him by Hamilton F. Kean, the astute brother of the United State Senator.

Notwithstanding the apparent harmony in the ranks of the Republican party in Union during the last campaign, and the satisfactory result of the election, it was said, the old fires of animosity between the Kean and Fowler forces in the county were by no means quenched, but simply had been banked for the Presidential election and were still smoldering beneath the surface in good shape to break out as fierce as ever at the first opportunity. It was not to be supposed, the doubters went on to say, that the Kean people would submit without a struggle to placing in a position of influence one of the ablest leaders of their opponents, and that they would exercise all the power they could command to prevent the appointment, and if they should fail in that they would charge up a heavy item on the debit side of the ledger against the new administration.

It was also recalled that Mr. Codding was a supporter of William Riker, Jr., of Orange, under whom he serves in the Supreme Court clerk's office, and it was declared that it would take much pressure to induce Major Carl Lentz, of Newark, to sit quietly by and see one of Mr. Riker's stanch supporters carry off such a desirable prize.

Southern Couple Wed.

Miss Mary Coles, of Chatham, Va., and Grant Goosby, of Scottsville, Va., were married last evening at 642 West Third street, by Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Garfield Goosby, of New York, a brother of the groom, was the best man, and Miss Rosa Phillips, of this city, was bridesmaid. A reception and supper followed the ceremony.

MISSES IN BURNT CORK

Nine Lincoln Young Women to Give Minstrel Show.

FOR CHARITY'S SAKE

No Men to Take Part, Yet the Southern Darky in a Happy Mood to be Depicted.

Hiding their pink and white complexions beneath a deep coat of burnt cork and discarding reserve for the time being, nine of the prettiest young women in Lincoln are soon to appear on an improvised stage in the Sunday-school building and entertain the residents with an old-fashioned, southern levee style of a minstrel show. They will sing and perhaps dance, bang tambos and rattle the bones, crack jokes at the expense of the middlewoman and otherwise tread the boards all for the sake of sweet charity. The great event has been announced for Friday evening, December 16, and the town is undergoing more excitement than it has experienced since S. D. Drake retired from its management. The place boasts of numerous talented young men who have eagerly come forward with preferred suggestions and services but all such have been politely but firmly waved away with edict that "man, mere man" is not wanted except to buy tickets.

The Sunday-school at Lincoln is one of its foremost institutions and at times the expense of conducting it has proven a serious problem. Since its inception the treasury has been replenished from time to time by strawberry festivals and dime socials, but the male element that generally furnished the proceeds has gradually been tiring of these affairs and lately the net receipts haven't paid the light bills. What to do to arouse interest in the money end has been the topic for discussions at all the Wednesday afternoon sewing circles and hammertests, but nothing seemed worth trying until a minstrel show was suggested. The idea was quickly seized upon and the nine volunteers were soon deep in the plans, but it was only yesterday that fathers and brothers were let into the secret.

According to one of them who spoke to a Daily Press reporter this morning, after much hesitation and blushing, the nine enthusiasts will provide the entire show. It will be divided into the regulation two parts with opening and olio, while one young miss has undertaken to compose words and music of several "coon" songs and furnish jokes. Nearly all play the mandolin and banjo and there is one who has pledged herself to contribute a violin selection and double in the orchestra.

As to costume—yes, honestly, abbreviated, and the blouses will match them in color. Each will differ from the other and will fit the name of the wearer as adopted for the occasion, as follows: "Priscilla Lavender," "Rose Perkins," "Carnation Johnson," "Columbia Wallace," "Violet Thompson," "Lucy Green," "Lillian Orange," Bertha Lemons" and "Louise Blue." Each one has declared she will resign from the troupe if her real name gets into print and for that reason they are being held sacred by those who are in a position to know.

The plans have the sanction of the Sunday-school officials and rehearsals are now in full swing with the exception of the dancing numbers. Just what steps to give is the one question that is mooted but it is probable that all will come out all right in the end. The more conservative favor a Louis XIV minuet but as one of these was never seen in a minstrel show before the chances are that the liberality inclined will find a place on the programme for a few darky shuffles.

"Larry" and the Handcuffs.

In taking "Larry" Wallace to Somerville, Tuesday, to begin his eighty-one days' sentence, Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough, received a surprise from the well-known character from which he has yet hardly recovered. On leaving the borough, the officer tightened the handcuffs on Wallace's wrist up to the last notch, so much so that it made him wince. Arriving at the county jail Weiss proceeded to unlock them when "Larry" exclaimed, "never mind, George, don't bother yourself," and with that he deftly drew his hand through the steel bracelet. How he did it is a mystery in one sense of the word and when the mystified officer asked him, "Larry" replied with a knowing chuckle.

BOOK NEWS.

The Library's Periodicals.

The Public Library has just brought out in its series of class lists an important list of its periodical publications. This is provided with an Index showing just what periodical literature the Library contains on a given subject. An idea of the extent of the Library's resources in this line is gained by a brief examination of this list, which shows that 107 subjects are covered by 395 periodicals. Of these 171 are currently received, an unusually large number for a town library of this size.

Further examination brings out that though many sets are incomplete, there is an excellent proportion of completed sets, of which many are of great value. Thus the Library not only has complete set of the more popular magazines as Atlantic, Century, Cosmopolitan, etc., but others which are becomingly increasingly valuable and difficult to procure, as for example Nature, Popular Science Monthly, Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and of Mining Engineers, American Journal of Science and Arts (which begun in 1818), American Society of Civil Engineers, and of Mechanical Engineers, British Association for the Advancement of Science, Cassier's Magazine, Forum, Journal of the Franklin Institute, Journal of the Iron and Steel Institute, Mineral Industry, Political Science Quarterly, and many others which might be mentioned. Many of these are not to be found except in the very large city libraries, or in libraries of special subjects.

As not only much of current interest appears in the periodical form, but also much of the greatest scientific value appears practically only in that form, it is very necessary that the modern library should carry a large subscription list, while many of the sets being indexed in periodical indexes these files make additions of permanent value to the reference department.

Not only are the wants of the general reader considered by the supply of such periodicals as the Century, Scribner, Atlantic, Harper, etc., but attention is also paid to those of the professional man or woman, the teacher, the bookish reader or the lover of art or social worker as is shown by the names of such periodicals as American Architect, Lancet, Educational Review, Athenaeum, Dial, Journal of School Geography, American Chemical Journal, Engineering and Mining Journal, Art Journal, Musical Times, Publications of the American Economic Association, etc.

These are but a few of the instances of the Library's efforts to supply the best periodical literature on the subjects for which there is demand.

Of especial interest and value to engineers, is the Library's rich collection on the subject of Engineering, a collection made possible by the Babcock bequest. This collection exceeds in importance that of any other public library in the State.

But while the Library has cause to congratulate itself on both the quality and quantity of its periodical literature, as the list show here is yet much to be done in the way of completing sets.

To those known to be interested in the Library, and to others making application, copies of these lists will be given, and those receiving them it is hoped will give some examination to the list with a view of assisting the Library in the completion of its sets.

It should be said here, that of the popular illustrated magazines the Library can often make use of several copies, so although those may not be noted as wanting, they will nevertheless be very acceptable, and if the Library should be overstocked with these, it is in the way of knowing of other institutions which would care for them.

Many instances have been brought to the attention of the Librarian of periodicals and books being given where they would be of little or no value, and of their being destroyed, because their perplexed owners have not known what to do with an ever increasing and space consuming collection of periodicals.

The Library is already greatly indebted to its many friends who have from time to time made additions of value to its periodical collection. Among these may be noted, in addition to the various societies the following persons: Miss L. S. Blanchard, Miss Laura Boorman, W. R. Cock, Andrew Gaveit, Hugh Hastings, A. V. D. Honeyman, Miss M. L. Hotchkiss, E. S. Hyatt, Mrs. M. L. Kellogg, Rev. K. P. Ketcham, Mrs. R. C. Leonard, Mrs. S. Milliken, Appleton Morgan, J. K. Morse, Rev. T. L. Murphy, Dr. W. H. Murray, F. B. O'Connor, C. F. Opdyke, J. O. Osgood, Miss Louise Patten, E. C. Pearson, Mrs. R. H. Radford, W. L. Saunders, Col. Julian Scott, Miss Julia Scribner, Miss Mary and Miss Florence Tweedy, Mason W. Tyler and Miss L. Vaughan.

Notice. The Library notes will appear in the Monday issue of The Daily Press hereafter, instead of the Thursday issue, as heretofore.

THE TIME WILL COME.

When the Advice of This Plainfield Resident Will Help You.

Very few people are entirely free from backache. It does not take much to derange the kidneys. A little cold, a strain, stopping positions, hard work overtakes those delicate organs and many aches and pains promptly follow. A Plainfield citizen tells your here how every kidney ill can be relieved and cured. Read about it:

C. E. Hepburn, of 128 Duer street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement for they cured me of a long standing case of backache which annoyed me very much, especially if I took cold, for at such times I was in pretty bad shape. I heard different people speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, concluded to try them, got a box from my druggist, H. L. W. Randolph, and used them according to directions with the above results. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement of a preparation like Doan's Kidney Pills."

TO WAIT ON ODELL.

Governor Will Be Asked to Appoint a Resident as Judge.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 8.—In view of rumors that Governor Odell might appoint some one outside the county to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Supreme Court Justice D. Cady Herrick the Albany County Bar association adopted resolutions requesting the governor to select a resident of Albany county. A committee of five of the county's best known attorneys, headed by Surrogate George H. Fitts, was named to present these resolutions to the governor.

The resolutions declare that Albany is the most important legal center in the Third judicial district and since the adoption of the constitution of 1846 has always had one and often two resident justices. Since Justice Herrick resigned to become Democratic candidate for governor the lawyers of the county have been greatly inconvenienced by the lack of an active trial justice here. Marcus T. Hun, miscellaneous court reporter, tried to have the resolutions amended so as to request only that the justice appointed should become a resident of the county, but failed.

At the close of the meeting Surrogate Fitts, who has been mentioned as a candidate, formally announced that under no consideration would he take the appointment.

Officers Hurt by Big Gun Explosion.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 8.—Lieutenant Colonel J. H. Willard of the United States Engineer corps and First Lieutenant Frank W. Rawlston of the United States coast artillery were injured by the premature explosion of a ten inch gun at Fort Wetherell, Jamestown, which guards Newport harbor and the entrance to Narragansett bay. Both officers had their eyesight and hearing affected and faces cut. The explosion blew the parapet away, lifted the gun from its carriage and threw it back on the trunnions, partly wrecked. Twenty artillerymen were thrown to the ground, but were not injured.

Inexcusable Brutality Charged.

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—A request that the police board order charges preferred against Captain Hall and patrolmen of his command alleged to be responsible for the clash between the police and students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was made by Counsel Hill, representing the students. He said that he believed the officers should be dismissed or properly punished. Mr. Hill claimed that he had shown conclusively that the police were guilty of inexcusable brutality.

Cuba Honors Maceo's Memory.

HAVANA, Dec. 8.—President Palma, members of the cabinet and congressmen observed the anniversary of the deaths of General Maceo and the son of General Gomez by attending exercises at the mausoleum erected to their memory. The Americans of the Isle of Pines, who now comprise the bulk of the population and own two-thirds of the land, profess renewed confidence that the United States senate will not ratify the treaty ceding the sovereignty of the isle to Cuba.

Victim of Express Robber Dead.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 8.—The chances of bringing to justice the man who shot Messenger Roberts and looted the Wells-Fargo safe of $300 on the Santa Fe train at Daggett, Cal., are materially lessened by the death of Roberts, who never revived sufficiently to furnish more than a very meager description of the bandit. Two suspects, a negro named Williams and a white man named Fitzpatrick, are under arrest.

Farmers Smoked Robbers Out.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Dec. 8.—Six men believed to have participated in an attempt to rob the People's bank of Jolley were captured by a farmers' posse near Yetter and placed in jail in Rockwell City. The robbers were found in a hay stack, which it was necessary to fire before they would emerge. A horse and buggy stolen from a farmer near Jolley were found near where the men were hidden.

Lake Shore Freight House Burned.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Fire has destroyed several loaded freight cars and the freight house of the Lake Shore Railroad company here together with their contents and all records. The building has been used as a transfer house in connection with the Jamestown, Chautauqua and Lake Erie railroad. The loss is $12,000.

FIVE TEAMS QUIT.

Crack Bicycle Riders Suspended by Association.

BARRED FROM ALL NATIONAL RACES

Trouble Arose From Disputing Judges' Decision as to Lap Gained by Foreign Wheelmen—Small Riot Ensued.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Ten of the best bicycle riders in the country were indefinitely suspended here by the National Cycling association for withdrawing from the six day race at Madison Square Garden. The charge against them is insubordination, and unless the officers of the National Cycling association rescind their action the ten riders, including Bobbie Walthour, the champion of the world, will be barred from all tracks in the United States and Europe until the annual meeting of the association next February.

The riders upon whom the ban of suspension has been placed are Walthour, Bennie Munroe, Maya and Newkirk, the Bedell brothers, Nat Butler, Jimmy Moran, Jimmy Bowler and Hugh McLean. All left the track after they had lost a lap to Root and Dorian and Vanderstuyft and Stol. They disputed the lap of Vanderstuyft and Stol, although they admitted that Root and Dorian had made the gain.

As the riders would not give in and threatened to quit the race President Powers told them they could do as they pleased, and immediately Walthour, Munroe, Maya, Newkirk, Bedell brothers, Nat Butler and Jimmy Moran pulled on their bathrobes and left the track, and went to their quarters, while their trainers followed them, carrying their wheels on their shoulders.

It was an uncalled for act on the part of the riders and was roundly hissed by every one of the 5,000 persons in the garden. The truth of the matter is the lap was honestly gained, and it seemed as though the five protesting teams did not have the heart to try and overcome the handicap.

Persuasion and argument on the part of the management and the National Cycling association officials having the race in charge failed to get the men back on the track. A. G. Batchelder, president of the National Cycling association, and R. F. Kelsey of Boston, chairman of the board of control, were sent for. The testimony they gathered was unanimous in favor of the scorers who had given the foreign team a lap, and the orders of suspension followed.

All the protesting riders were put out of the garden along with their trainers, and the doorkeepers were instructed not to admit them under any circumstances.

A small sized riot followed the eviction notice to the riders. The notorious Paul Kelly gang and Nat Butler, one of the cyclists who quit, were mixed up in it. The Kelly gang took it upon themselves to aid in the eviction of the riders.

During the eviction the argument became so warlike that some frightened person sent to the West Thirtieth street station, and ten police reserves were sent to the garden. When they arrived most of the riders and helpers had gone and the excitement was over, so no arrests were made.

Since the sensational sprint when Root and Stol each gained a lap the pace has been slow, with only occasional sprints, but at that the men are ahead of last year's record, although over a hundred miles behind the best mark for the race.

At an early hour this morning eight teams had completed 1,307 miles, the four behind having made two or three laps less.

Ananias Won at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—A mile handicap was the feature of the card at Oakland. It resulted in a victory for Ananias, the favorite, who led practically all the way. Vesuvian raced with him for a time, but tired, and Gateway secured the place. San Nicholas was plunged on to land the fifth, but was bumped into at the start by Oro Viva, losing much ground. Mansard, at 7 to 1, led Romaine and Sad Sam home.

Lord of the Valley at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—Lord of the Valley, who was run up to $1,200 after his race and sold to W. M. Walker, and Extol were the only winning favorites here. Judge Himes' defeat in the handicap was a blow to the talent. Dusky was run up to $900 and sold to W. M. Walker. Bishop Poole was run up to $800 and bought by R. E. Watkins.

Five Favorites Won.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 8.—Five favorites won at Ascot, and the winner of the sixth race was a heavily played second choice. There were several close finishes, but no particular feature of the day's sport.

CHADWICK CLIMAX.

Wonderful Woman Financier Arrested Last Night.

CHARGE ABETTING EMBEZZLEMENT.

Her Arrest Has Been Under Contemplation For a Week, Said District Attorney at Cleveland—Carnegie to Testify.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 8.—A special dispatch from New York says that Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was placed under arrest at 6:25 o'clock last night by United States Marshal Henkle and Chief Flynn of the secret service. The arrest was made at the instigation of the federal officials of Cleveland, and the warrant was issued by Assistant District Attorney Baldwin. The charge is "aiding and abetting a bank official in an embezzlement."

When the warrant was read to Mrs. Chadwick her young son and maid were present. When the reading was finished she fainted and fell on the bed. She quickly revived and said she was innocent of the charge.

Her condition was such that it was decided to leave her in the hotel during the night under guard of secret service men.

It was with a great sigh of relief that United States District Attorney Sullivan received the dispatch announcing Mrs. Chadwick's arrest. He appeared before the waiting newspaper men a moment later with the news, and then, calling them into his private office, gave them the particulars of the way the case had been handled for the last week:

"Mrs. Chadwick's arrest has been under contemplation for the last week," he said. "I was going to cause her arrest Sunday when the warrants for Beckwith and Spear were sworn out, but I thought it well to go slow in the matter and delayed action. In Toledo United Stated Marshal Chandler appeared before United States Commissioner Brough and swore to an affidavit charging Mrs. Chadwick with aiding and abetting in the misapplication of the funds of a national bank. It was specifically stated in the affidavit that Mrs. Chadwick had aided President Beckwith and Cashier Spear of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., in the misappropriation of $12,500 on Aug. 26, 1903, at which time the woman received from Cashier Spear a certified check for the amount stated. This affidavit was sent in the mail by special delivery to United States District Attorney Burnett of New York with instructions to issue a warrant upon it and arrest the woman forthwith. It was a great relief.

"At my request the attorney general caused secret service officials to be placed on guard at the Holland hotel with instructions not to let her get out of their sight for a minute. I also advised District Attorney Bennett to have additional surveillance placed upon her, and he has acted as I requested. If this espionage had not been maintained she would probably have escaped us, as is shown by the report of her sensational attempt to get away in New York yesterday afternoon. I do not know what the New York authorities will do with Mrs. Chadwick, but today she will be arraigned before a United States commissioner and will be asked to plead. She can either ask for a preliminary hearing or waive an examination and be bound over to the action of the United States grand jury, which meets the first Tuesday in February in Cleveland. She may ask for a continuance of the preliminary hearing, which may thus be delayed for some weeks. If she cannot give bail she will be brought to Cleveland and lodged in jail.

"I am not quite sure as to the witnesses we will summon in the case. We can only name one of them at present. This person will be Irving Belford, now clerk of the United States court for the northern district of Ohio, who in 1890, in Toledo, defended Joseph Lamb, who was arrested, with Mme. Devere, for forging $40,000 worth of notes, Lamb being acquitted on the ground that he was held in the woman's power and did not knowingly commit a crime. Mr. Belford will be asked to identify Mrs. Chadwick as Mme. Devere, which he declares he can do. As to the rest of the case which we have prepared I cannot talk at present. The notes signed with the name of Andrew Carnegie will enter into it, I suppose, and we may try to prove forgery, but I think we can go ahead with the case without the element of forgery being proved. As to whether forgery can be proved I am not now prepared to state."

Regarding the arrest of Mrs. Chadwick by the federal officials, the receiver of the Chadwick property, Nathan Loeser, said that it need not necessarily interfere with the bankruptcy petitions; that she can be proceeded against in bankruptcy and her assets distributed among her creditors.

Application has been made in the United States district court for the summoning of Cassie L. Chadwick, Ira Reynolds and the son of Mrs. Chadwick for purposes of examination in bankruptcy proceedings. The petition was filed by Nathan Loeser, receiver for the Chadwick estate. The petition recites that, although reasonable effort has been made, the receiver has thus far been unable to secure possession of the property of Mrs. Chadwick.

Receiver Frank Lyon of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin said last night that the arrest of Mrs. Chadwick merely came "in the natural course of events."

Andrew Squire, who came here from Cleveland with Ira Reynolds, secretary and treasurer of the Wade Park Banking company, was one of Mrs. Chadwick's early visitors after her arrest. He had a half hour's conference with her, at the conclusion of which he said:

"The arrest of Mrs. Chadwick does not in any way affect the holding we have of her securities, and it does not change the legal proceedings necessary in the further evolution of the case."

Mr. Squire further said that he did not know the present whereabouts of Mr. Reynolds, who is said to have in his possession the $5,000,000 in securities belonging to Mrs. Chadwick.

County Prosecutor Keeler will send to Andrew Carnegie to find out if his name has been forged. Successful in this, Mr. Keeler will call upon Mr. Carnegie and request his presence in Cleveland as a witness.

Carnegie Won't Prosecute.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Andrew Carnegie declared that he had not the slightest intention of prosecuting Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick nor anybody else for forging his signature to notes aggregating about two millions of dollars even if it is shown by further investigation of Mrs. Chadwick's tangled financial affairs that such forgery has been committed.

CANFIELD PLEADED GUILTY.

Owned Up to Keeping a Gambling House—Fined $1,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Richard A. Canfield pleaded guilty before Judge Cowing to an indictment charging him with keeping a gambling house and was discharged upon the payment of a $1,000 fine. His manager, David Bucklin, entered a similar plea and was fined the same amount. The recommendation for this action was made in each case by District Attorney Jerome, who has spent many thousands of dollars in the fight against Canfield, which is thus brought to a close.

Both indictments were returned by the grand jury. Canfield was charged with maintaining a gambling house in East Forty-fourth street and Bucklin with being his manager. The place in question is said to be the most exclusive gambling house in the country.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Senate Will Vote on Philippine Bill Dec. 16.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The senate has reached a decision to vote on the Philippine civil government bill providing for the construction of railroads in the islands on the 16th inst. and in addition transacted considerable other business.

Mr. Platt (N. Y.) created something of a stir by introducing a bill providing for a reduction of the congressional representation of the southern states on the ground that many of the citizens of those states are deprived of their right to vote, and Mr. Scott plunged the senate into an exceptionally early debate by attempting to secure the passage of the bill granting pensions to the telegraph operators of the civil war.

A large number of bills and joint resolutions were introduced, and many petitions were presented. The discussion of the time for voting on the Philippine bill brought out the fact that there is a general understanding that the Christmas holiday recess will begin on the 19th inst.

Czar Is Intensely Interested.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 8.—The council of the empire and the council of ministers by the emperor's direction are considering the memorial presented by the council of zemstvoists, which was recently held here. It can be stated authoritatively that the emperor has shown intense interest in the questions raised and that, while it is impossible that the idea of a direct legislative body can be entertained, he has nevertheless signified to Minister of the Interior Prince Svietopolk-Mirsky his approval of a number of the principles laid down in the memorial and is now awaiting the recommendations of the two councils.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Officers of the state agricultural department appeared in this city without warning and opened anew the shotgun quarantine that was suspended some time ago owing to a difference of opinion between the sheriff and the deputies. Czar Orders Third Armada to Far East.

POLTAVA SUNK BY METER HILL FIRE

Russian Battleship Retvizan Badly Damaged and Bayan Aground at Port Arthur—Japs Take Akasaka Hill.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—According to a St. Petersburg dispatch the emperor has decreed the dispatch of a third large squadron to the far east, comprising the battleships Paul I., the Slava, which will be completed as speedily as possible, five older battleships, with five cruisers and forty torpedo boat destroyers.

Tokyo advices say it is officially announced from Japanese headquarters that the Russian battleship Poltava has been sunk in the harbor of Port Arthur as a result of the Japanese bombardment and that the battleship Retvizan has been seriously damaged.

The armored cruiser Bayan, a report from General Nogi's headquarters says, is aground.

The Japanese troops have occupied Akasaka hill, fronting on Port Arthur.

The commander of the Japanese naval guns in front of Port Arthur, telegraphing, says:

"The turret ship Poltava is sunk, and the battleship Retvizan is listing heavily to port.

"Since Dec. 2 we have daily bombarded the enemy's fleet lying south of Peiyu mountain. From that point only the masts and funnel tops of the battleships Pobieda, Retvizan or the cruiser Pallada could be seen, and it was impossible to count the number of our shells taking effect.

"On other ships explosions, resulting from our shells, could be seen, but owing to their positions behind hills it was difficult exactly to identify them.

"Seven shells struck the battleship Pobieda, and a big explosion was observed south of Peiyu mountain, resulting from the effects of our shells evidently on a powder magazine.

"Owing to the plunging fire from Meter hill the enemy has withdrawn to Akasaka hill.

"Our forces have occupied the entire position at Meter hill. Subsequently our forces, after dislodging the enemy, occupied an eminence north of Suerhkou and two eminences north of Sanlichiam."

Advices from St. Petersburg this morning say that the report of the Japanese having succeeded in mounting heavy guns on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill are regarded as seriously significant and have created a deep depression at the war office. If the reports of the sinking of the Russian warships in the harbor of Port Arthur are confirmed, it destroys the last hope of sortie, and when the end comes nothing remains but to sink those that remain in deep water to prevent them falling into the hands of the enemy. The war office is unable to identify Akasaka hill. Evidently it is a Japanese name. The importance of Meter hill to the garrison is evidenced by General Stoessel's desperate efforts to recapture it.

German Ship a Lawful Prize.

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—A dispatch from Tokyo reports that the prize court at Sasebo has declared the German ship Veteran, which was captured near Port Arthur, a lawful prize. The officers and crew of the Veteran have been released.

Camden Man Drowned.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 8.—Charles B. Richter, secretary of the Ritchie Electric company and a leading Camden business man, was drowned near here in the Delaware river. Mr. Ritchie was about to step aboard a private yacht when he made a misstep and fell into the river. Although rescuers were prompt, he was past recovery when his body was taken from the water.

Further Test of Electrical Engine.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Although the tracks of the six mile course of the New York Central were covered with snow, the big electrical locomotive built by the American Locomotive and General Electric companies made sixty miles an hour with eight cars loaded with sand. A party of visiting engineers rode in the cab and witnessed the test.

"Slugger" Held as Suspect.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—John J. Gallagher, who has been accused of being a union labor "slugger," is under arrest charged with having fired the shot that killed Constable Julius F. Biedermann in a Blue Island saloon here. Gallagher was arrested as he was running from the saloon, and he carried a revolver. He denies complicity in the tragedy.

Held For Eight-year-old Forgery.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Arthur G. Bennett of Rome, N. Y., charged with committing forgery in this city eight years ago, but who was not arrested until recently, has pleaded guilty in the supreme court. Petitions stating that Bennett had reformed and become a good citizen influenced Justice Forbes to suspend sentence.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 8, 1904

If the North Plainfield police are unable to make an arrest in the Barry case, on the ground that the names of the party from South Orange are not known, we will be glad to furnish the information. As yet no steps have been taken by the borough officials to bring the reckless and inhuman automobilists to justice, though they are aware of the fact that a little fellow was run down and injured on a public highway in North Plainfield. He was left in an unconscious condition. Why this inaction?

Bird S. Coler, president of New York's civil service commission, is gunning for men on the city's pay-roll who live in Jersey, taking the stand that "it does not seem exactly right for a man to draw his pay from the people of the city of New York and spend it all in New Jersey." His first move was to give two city engineers who had removed to Elizabeth the alternative of establishing their residence again in New York or get out. They resigned. Now the former Controller is making an investigation. He declares that "there should be some regulation providing that a city employee must maintain a bona fide residence in New York." This seems but reasonable but if it is insisted upon, Jersey is going to lose a lot of good citizens. There are a number of them in this city and in surrounding towns and they compose a class of men desirable as residents in every way.

Melick. He is a person that has no doubt, that is so far as known.

Mr. Melick only a few weeks ago returned from an extended trip to the World's Fair at St. Louis, where he went as the guest of a party of Jerseymen who were bent on having a jolly time and brought him along as general funmaker to the party. He fulfilled that duty to their entire satisfaction. A writer under the non de plume of "A Tilden Democrat" in one of the Somerset County papers some years ago frequently used the name of "Mayor" before Mr. Melick's name and from that time he has been best known as "Mayor Melick of Finckamin, New Jersey."

Tunis J. Melick had a brother who was a stock raiser in the Indian Territory. A few years ago he came to Chicago with a train load of cattle. After he had sold the same and procured the money he was waylaid and sandbagged. He never recovered his mind from that time and is now at the State Hospital at Morris Plains.

—In the big vegetable display at Neuman Brothers' that is replenished daily there is to be seen Boston head lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, green and wax beans, celery, spinach and Brussel sprouts. Special prices prevail.

Congregationalists' Concert.

A concert of unusual merit will be given at the Congregational church this evening, when Hal Merton will appear in his novel entertainment, "A Trip to Wonderland," "The Realm of the Impossible." In addition there will be a fine musical programme presented by Miss Cornelia Miller, soprano; Mrs. Ralph K. Miner, contralto; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; J. Halsey Sanford, tenor; Fred R. Cutler, bass; Mrs. H. T. Barnes, accompanist, together with Miss Edith Davies, popular reader and contralto soloist of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York.

STATE'S NATIONAL GUARD

Jersey Figures Prominently in Secretary of War's Report.

STRENGTH IS 4,335

State Gets $23,937.24 of the $1,000,000 Provided As Military Fund for the States.

New Jersey figures rather conspicuously in the annual report of the Secretary of War. Estimates for the road to Fort Mott, N. J., for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, amount to $10,000.

The strength of the organized militia of New Jersey is as follows: General officers, one; general staff officers, thirty-nine; regimental officers, eighty-five; company officers, 179; total commissioned officers, 304; non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, 4,335, aggregating a total strength of 4,639.

New Jersey gets $23,937.24 of the $1,0000,000 provided as an appropriation for the militia and apportioned to the States, Territories and District of Columbia, and also a representation of twelve out of a total representation of 476.

Under the provisions of Section 6 and 13 of the militia act of January 21, 1903, there has been issued to each of the States and Territories a sufficient number of magazine arms and equipments pertaining thereto to fully arm the organized militia of the State or Territory, according to the strength of that militia on the date of the approval of the militia law. New Jersey has received 4,860 rifles and 206 carbines.

The great benefit already derived from the application of the provisions of the militia law can be understood when it is noticed that since September 1, 1903, number of States and Territories have drawn upon the government for funds from the annual appropriation provided by the revised statutes, as amended, for the purpose of paying either in whole or in part the expenses of pay, subsistence and transportation of such portions of their organized militia as were designated to participate in actual field or camp service for instruction. In several cases the funds so obtained were utilized for the purpose of paying the expenses of State and Territorial rifle teams, which participated in matches at Sea Girt and other places. New Jersey drew funds for encampment purposes in 1904 as well as for the expenses for State rifle teams.

The number of officers and enlisted men in New Jersey present at and absent from the special inspection of the militia organizations were as follows: Present, 256 officers and 3,911 enlisted men; absent, thirteen officers and 305 enlisted men. This was a percentage in absenteeism of 7.02 in 1904 as against a percentage of 8.49 in 1903. Only three States made a better showing in attendance last year than New Jersey, namely: Rhode Island, New York and Minnesota. Colorado made the banner record in absenteeism, 45.21 per cent. of men and officers failing to answer roll call.

The appropriations in New Jersey for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, are as follows: For a powder depot at Dover, $55.985 43; for proving grounds, Sandy Hook, $223,386; for sea walls at Sandy Hook, $74,000.

CHRISTMAS MAILS WILL BE HEAVY THIS YEAR

POSTOFFICE AUTHORITIES WILL BE PREPARED FOR THE USUAL RUSH.

Considering the increase in ordinary mail matter which the records show between November of 1903 and 1904, the authorities at the local postoffice are expecting an extra heavy Christmas mail this season, though as yet it has been only slightly felt. The reports of a year ago show a decided increase in the amount of all kinds of mail handled by the local department, and if the increase in Christmas material is in proportion, the workers in the office and the carriers will have their hands full in every sense of the word.

The amount of extra labor which the Christmas season means to the postoffice is not always appreciated by those not connected with Uncle Sam's business. When it is known that last year three additional clerks were at work continually in the office for the four days preceding Christmas, and several of the carriers were virtually expressmen, as wagons had to be used for delivering the packages, some idea may be gained of the vast amount of increase work with which the authorities have to contend at Christmas time.

The rush this year will likely come about the twentieth of the month and will continue until the twenty-sixth. The local department will be especially prepared to handle the surplus mail matter, as three assistants will be added to the force. All of the six substitute carriers will be employed and all other available help kept in readiness.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dec. 11: "Good and Bad Habits." Rom. viii, 1-15.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES.

We rarely or never realize how much we are the creatures of habit. We of necessity become accustomed to certain acts until they become by frequent repetition almost automatic. A new exertion requires thought and exercise of will, but each succeeding time we do the same operation it requires less of thought and care. So acts crystallize into habits and habits settle into character which becomes the unchangeable basis of destiny.

Habits may acquire a strength which it is difficult to break even before we realize that we have formed them, unless we are constantly careful not to act in any new way unless we are sure we are in the right way.

"There are no trifles in the moral universe of God." A careless compliance with a solicitation to something not quite right commits one to a like course when again asked. Each time it becomes harder to say no. It is always more difficult to get out of a wrong road than to avoid entering it at first.

We can never afford to form a habit we will need to soon break up. At the very best we have no time or strength or capital to waste. We need all our exertions directed to acquiring the helpful. Failure to be strong in the course we ought to hold may prove fatal to all our prospects at some moment when the unexpected crisis comes.

Two things need to be kept in mind: observe the danger signals and never run by them; also watch the safety signs and make the best speed possible when you have a clear track.

We should ever avoid everything which injures us in body, mind or moral life. Harm to one part of our nature injures all parts. Symmetrical development of all is best. Eating should never run into gluttony since it hurts not only body, but mind and spirit also. On the other hand, every spiritual wrong reacts on the intellectual powers and on the body. Make the body the best possible instrument for mind and spirit, and keep it in its place. Its appetites must ever be held under by reason and right. They must never as lusts overbear the reason and right or ruin follows.

We must acquire right habits of body, right habits of thought and right habits of soul.

All this requires practice long continued. We will be apt to form habits of value for health and mental strength easier than for religious life. Therefore we ought to give the most earnest heed to our soul life lest we let it slip.

Worship and Preaching.

Vinet says, "Preaching is framed into worship, but is not worship." Why is this? Because worship is the answer of man in heart and voice to the entire revelation which God has made of Himself in creation and redemption. Worship in the Bible is never anything that passes from God to man, but always something which proceeds from man to God. Preaching is a very desirable or even indispensable adjunct, for religion must have both the truth of God and the answer of man, and the one is as important as the other. Still it must be borne in mind that, strictly speaking, singing, prayer and the reading of Scripture are the exercises by which we "give unto the Lord the glory due to His name." These constitute worship. And yet how many forget this and make the sermon the principal thing, treating all else as only incidental or preparatory? Yet what can be a more imperative obligation or a more uplifting exercise than the rendering of homage to Almighty God in view of what He is and of what He has done? Rightly rendered, it brings heaven to earth and fits the soul for the everlasting anthem on high.—Christian Intelligencer.

God's Diamonds.

There is a way in which a lapidary tells whether a diamond is genuine or not. He breathes on it, and if the breath lingers there it is a false diamond; if the breath immediately vanish, it is a real diamond. Then he has a grinding process after. So you can tell God's jewel. If the breath of temptation comes on it and soon vanishes, it is a real diamond; if the breath lingers and continues to blur it, it is a false diamond. But better test than all is the grinding machine of affliction. If a soul can go through that and keep bright, it is one of God's jewels.—T. De Witt Talmage.

Where We Are Going.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift, nor lie at anchor.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Prayer of Life.

Lead me, O God, in life's brave early day,
While skies are clear and all the world is gay.
So many hurtful blooms my vision greet!
So many paths diverge to lure my feet
Far from the peaceful, sinless road astray!

And when the morning can no longer stay,
And songs are mute and noontide's fervent ray
Upon the weary track must fiercely beat,
Lead me, O God!

Nor leave me when the eventide shall lay
Upon life's happy field its vapor gray;
Clasp my hand in Thine more close and sweet
Than Thou hast ever held it, and, while fleet
The night is falling, down the unknown ways
Lead me, O God!

—Henry Jerome Stockard in News and Observer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 11.

Topic.—How to break bad habits and cultivate good ones.—Rom. viii, 1-15.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

The breaking of bad habits and the cultivation of good ones are most desirable achievements. It is, after all, the sum of the practical results aimed at by Christianity. Christ's kingdom exists to dethrone evil and to enthrone the good, and the millennium will be ushered in when all evil has been overthrown and all the good exists. This was man's original condition when before the fall God looked upon the works of His hands "and behold it was very good." Moral as well as physical goodness was included in this verdict.

The Bible frequently emphasizes the two phases of this topic together. "Cease to do evil, learn to do well," was the injunction in Isaiah to ancient Judah, and we may take it to ourselves. Paul commands, "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit." And in the lesson the apostle speaks of Christians as those who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit, the flesh standing for evil and the spirit for good.

But how are we to live a spiritual life instead of a carnal, sinful life? How are we to put out the evil and put in the good in our lives? Dependence upon self is not a sure remedy. Personal power is often great in exalting good and dethroning evil, but no man can make himself a perfectly good man or free himself from all sinful habits. Hence we must look beyond human power for that which is successful, and we find the remedy in the power of God, in Christ. "For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and for sin condemned sin in the flesh, that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit." Conversion is the first step in the substitution of good habits for bad. The soul must be regenerated. Convicted of sin, we must seek forgiveness for our sins, and then, by the grace and power of God, "die unto sin and live unto righteousness."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xx, 1-17; Deut. xi, 22-28; Josh. xxiv, 14-28; Ps. xxxiv, 12-14; xxxvii, 27; Prov. iii, 1-10; Isa. i, 16-20; Rom. xii, 9; I Thess. v, 21, 22; Heb. xii, 1, 2.

Its Militant Friends.

The following extract is from a recent timely editorial in a Boston weekly:

"From the start Christian Endeavor has been a movement of and within the churches, officered in all its unions mainly by the pastors and controlled by them in every particular of pledge, constitution, committees and methods. The pastors that believe in interdenominational young people's work, in definite and distinct young people's work and in young people's work based on the solid verities of Christ are many and influential. They have recognized it as their battle, the battle for wise, liberal, progressive, Christian methods of training the young for Christ.

"Never, we think, as during recent months has this friendship of the great body of the pastors been shown so powerfully, readily and helpfully. Readers have noticed in how many directions Christian Endeavor has lately been attacked. But always defenders have arisen in the very denomination from which the attack comes. If it is a speech there are a dozen indignant speeches in reply. If it is a newspaper article the editor is bombarded with letters of refutation. And these replies have always been spontaneous, not prompted in any way by the United society office.

"This is as it should be. Christian Endeavor stands for principles that are worth defending. Its fall would mean infinite loss to the church. Its continual progress and wise evolution will mean the progress of the church, because it will mean the progress of her young. The advocates of narrow sectarianism are many, and the workers at Christian Endeavor headquarters are very few, but the friends of Christian Endeavor are very many, and upon them we rely for continued victory."

Never Better Than Today.

Now and then a local Endeavor society gives up the ghost, as it ought to. There are churches where an Endeavor society is as much out of place as a thrashing machine would be in a girls' dormitory. But the movement was never represented by so many societies or so many members as today. And these members were never doing such practical, definite work for Christ and the church as they are doing today. Aye, Christian Endeavor is "passing." Let friends of youthful energy and progress fall in. Others may stand aside and see it "pass."—Rev. Dr. David James Burrell.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MODISH CONCEITS.

A Hint as to Afternoon Gowns—Some Pretty Winter Petticoats.

A very charming afternoon "at home" toilet consists of a little velvet jacket in a pale shade of turquoise blue. It is tight fitting, with elbow sleeves of the leg of mutton variety, which are cut into tabs over frills of lace. The basque of the coat is cut in the same fashion, the fronts being exquisitely embroidered in a Japanese flower design in pale yellow, blue and orange. The skirt worn with it is of white mousseline de soie decorated with ruches of taffeta forming a kind of scroll pattern.

Some of the prettiest petticoats are of black taffeta with accordion plaited flounces of black chiffon adorned with a colored flower design. Others in burnt copper taffeta are toned down with embroidered motifs of black chiffon and lace.

Petticoats in subdued tartans are still to be seen, the brighter plaids being little used for this purpose.

The attractive hat in the picture is of light tan mousseline laid in soft folds and edged about the brim with dark green velvet. A twist of the mousseline encircles the crown, at the top of which is another band of the green velvet. Under the brim is a wood colored rose, a most unnatural though artistic decoration. Through the crown at one side is stuck an exquisite long green plume. JUDIC CHOLLET.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Trimmings For Costumes—The New Muff—A Novelty in Velvet.

Very lovely evening gowns are made of black chiffon adorned with medallions of lace, which are further beautified with silver sequins. A pretty fancy is to outline the medallions with beads or paillettes, these latter laid on one over the other in a continuous circle.

Tucks in a variety of different widths from the minutest "pin tucks" are very much used on the gowns of today. The wide religieuse tuck is to be seen on a number of taffeta frocks, and in cases where the taffeta is changeable the tucks are cut on the cross and applied separately. This cutting gives them a different coloring from the rest of the dress, and the effect is very striking.

Some of the newest muffs are almost in the shape of a tea cozy, being very large and soft and opened underneath, where the fur is lined with chiffon or satin. The muff itself is hidden behind bows of soft colored ribbon.

A novelty among the smartest silk velvets is an embossed satin spot about the size of a pea, which is of a darker shade than the groundwork. In some cases it is of quite a different color from the velvet and is outlined with a narrow rim of white.

The chic dancing dress pictured is of blue chiffon taffeta. About the skirt is a plaited ruffle, finished at the bottom with wide satin ribbon. Heading the ruffle is a band formed of tucked silk edged with black lace insertion. The banded effect is further emphasized by two graduated pieces of lace applied above the band. The bodice waist is gathered in to a girdle and is strapped with lace and blue ribbon. A novel effect is gained by shirring the taffeta over the shoulders and for four inches down each side of the front. The sleeves are shirred and banded with the black lace.

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

A long time after I ceased to hear it, something touched my shoulder and put me in a panic. Turning over, I got a big mouthful of water. Then I saw it was a gang of logs passing me, and quickly caught one. Now, to me the top side of a log was as easy and familiar as a rocking chair. In a moment I was sitting comfortably on my captive. A bit of rubbish, like that the wind had sown, trailed after the gang of logs. I felt it over, finding a straw hat and a piece of board some three feet long, with which latter I paddled vigorously.

It must have been long past midnight when I came to an island looming in the dark ahead. I sculled for it, stranding on a rocky beach, and alighted, hauling the log ashore. The moon came out as I stood wringing my trouser legs. I saw the island rose high and narrow and was thickly wooded. I remember saying something to myself, when I heard a quick stir in the bushes near me. Looking up, I saw a tall figure. Then came a familiar voice:

"Thet you, Ray? Judas Priest!"

I was filled with joy at the sight of D'ri, and put my arms about him and lifted him off his feet, and, faith! I know my eyes were as wet as my trousers. Then, as we sat down, I told him how I had taken to the river.

"Lucky ye done it!" said he. "Jerushy Jane! It is terrible lucky! They'd 'a' tuk ye sartin. Somebody see thet jack on the back o' my hand, there 'n Cornwall, 'n' put 'em after me. But I was bound 'n' detarmined they'd never tek me alive, never! Ef I ever dew any fightin', 't ain't a-goin' t' be fer England, nut by a side o' sole-leather. I med up my mind I'd begin the war right then an' there."

"That fellow never knew what hit him," I remarked. "He did n't get up for half a minute."

"Must 'a' swatted 'im powerful," said D'ri, as he felt his knuckles. "Gol-dum ther picturs! Go 'n' try t' yank a man right off a boat like thet air when they hain' no right t' tech 'im. Ef I 'd' 'a' hed Ol' Beeswax, some on 'em 'd 'a' got hurt."

"How did you get here?" I inquired.

"Swum," said he. "Could n't go nowheres else. Current fetched me here. Splits et the head o' the island—boun' ter land ye right here. Got t' be movin'. They'll be efter us, mebbe—'s the fust place they 'd look."

A few logs were stranded on the stony point of the island. We withed three others to mine, setting sail with two bits of driftwood for paddles. We pulled for the south shore, but the current carried us rapidly down-river. In a bay some two miles below we found, to our joy, the two sections of the big raft undergoing repairs. At daybreak D'ri put off in the woods for home.

"Don't like the idee o' goin' int' the British navy," said he. "'D ruther chop wood 'n' ketch bears over 'n St. Lawrence county. Good-by, Ray! Tek care o' yerself."

Those were the last words he said to me, and soon I was on the raft again, floating toward the great city of my dreams. I had a mighty fear the schooner would overhaul us, but saw nothing more of her. I got new clothes in Montreal, presenting myself in good repair. They gave me hearty welcome, those good friends of my mother, and I spent a full year in the college, although, to be frank, I was near being sent home more than once for fighting and other deviltry.

It was midsummer when I came back again. I traveled up the river road, past our island refuge of that dark night; past the sweeping, low-voiced currents that bore me up; past the scene of our wreck in the whirlwind; past the great gap in the woods, to stand open, God knows how long. I was glad to turn my face to the south shore, for in Canada there was now a cold welcome for most Yankees, and my fists were sore with resenting the bitter taunt. I crossed in a boat from Iroquois, and D'ri had been waiting for me half a day at the landing. I was never so glad to see a man—never but once. Walking home I saw corn growing where the forest had been—acres of it.

"D'ri," said I, in amazement, "how did you ever do it? There's ten years' work here."

"God helped us," said he, soberly. "The trees went over 'n the windfall—slammed 'em down luk tenpins fer a mild er more—an' we jes' burnt up the rubbish."

CHAPTER IV.

April was near its end. The hills were turning green, albeit we could see, here and there on the high ledge above us, little patches of snow—the fading footprints of winter. Day and night we could hear the wings of the wild fowl roaring in the upper air as they flew northward. Summer was coming—the summer of 1812—and the war with the British. The president had called for a hundred thousand volunteers to go into training for battle. He had also proclaimed there would be no more whipping in the ranks. Then my father told me that, since I could have no peace at home, I should be off to the war and done with it.

We were working near the road that day. Thurst Miles came galloping out of the woods, waving his cap at us. We ran to meet him—my father and I and the children. He pulled up a moment, his horse lathered to the eyes.

"Injuns," he shouted. "Git out o' here quick 'n' mek fer the Corners! Ye'll be all massacreed ef ye don't."

Then he whacked the wet flank of his horse with a worn beech bough, and off he went.

We ran to the house in a great panic. I shall never forget the crying of the children. Indians had long been the favorite bugbear of the border country. Many a winter's evening we had sat in the firelight, fear-faced, as my father told of the slaughter in Cherry Valley; and, with the certainty of war, we all looked for the red hordes of Canada to come, in paint and feathers.

"Ray," my father called to me, as he ran, "ketch the cow quick an' bring 'er 'long."

I caught her by the horn and brought her to the door quickly. Mother was throwing some clothes in a big bundle. Father met me with a feather bed in his arms. He threw it over the back of the cow and bound it on with a bed-cord. That done, he gave me the leading-rope to tie about her horns. The hoofs of the flying horse were hardly out of hearing when we were all in the road. My mother carried the baby, and my father his sword and rifle and one of the little ones. I took the three older children and set them on the feather bed that was bound to the back of the cow. They clung to the bed-cord, their hair flying, as the old cow ran to keep up with us, for at first we were all running. In a moment we could hear the voices of people coming behind. One of the women was weeping loudly as she ran. At the first cross-road we saw Arv Law and his family coming, in as great a hurry as we. Arv had a great pike-pole in his hand. Its upper end rose 20 feet above his head.

"What ye goin' t' dew with thet?" my father asked him.

"Goin' t' run it through the fust Injun I see," said he. "I 've broke the lock o' my gun."

There was a crowd at Jerusalem Four Corners when we got there. Every moment some family was arriving in a panic—the men, like my father, with guns and babies and baskets. The women, with the young, took refuge at once in the tavern, while the men surrounded it. Inside the line were youths, some oddly armed with slings or clubs or cross-guns. I had only the sword my father gave me and a mighty longing to use it. Arv Law rested an end of his pike-pole and stood looking anxiously for "red devils" among the stumps of the farther clearing. An old flint-lock, on the shoulder of a man beside him, had a barrel half as long as the pole. David Church was equipped with ax and gun, that stood at rest on either side of him.

Evening came, and no sign of Indians. While it was growing dusk I borrowed a pail of the innkeeper and milked the cow, and brought the pail, heaped with froth, to my mother, who passed brimming cups of milk among the children. As night fell, we boys, more daring than our fathers, crept to the edge of the timber and set the big brush-heaps afire, and scurried back with the fear of redmen at our heels. The men were now sitting in easy attitudes and had begun to talk.

"Don't b'lieve there 's no Injuns comin'," said Bill Foster. "Ef they wus they'd come."

"'Cordin' t' my observation," said Arv Law, looking up at the sky, "Injuns mos' gen'ally comes when they git ready."

"An' 't ain't when yer ready t' hev 'em, nuther," said Lon Butterfield.

"B'lieve they come up 'n' peeked out o' the bushes 'n' see Arv with thet air pike-pole, 'n' med up their minds they hedn't better run up ag'in' it," said Bill Foster. "Scairt 'em—thet's whut's th' matter."

"Man 'et meks light o' this pole oughter hev t' carry it," said Arv, as he sat impassively resting it upon his knee.

"One thin' 's sure," said Foster; "ef Arv sh'u'd cuff an Injun with thet air he'll squ'sh 'im."

"Squ'sh 'im!" said Arv, with a look of disgust. "'Tain't med t' squ'sh with. I cal'late t' p'int it at 'em 'n' jab."

And so, as the evening wore away and sleep hushed the timid, a better feeling came over us. I sat by Rose Merriman on the steps, and we had no thought of Indians. I was looking into her big hazel eyes, shining in the firelight, and thinking how beautiful she was. And she, too, was looking into my eyes, while we whispered together, and the sly minx read my thoughts, I know, by the look of her.

Great flames were now leaping high as the timber-tops at the edge of the clearing. A dead spruce caught fire as we were looking. The flames threw over it a lacy, shimmering, crackling net of gold. Then suddenly it burst into a red, leaping tower. A few moments, and the cavern of the woods, along the timber side, was choked with fire. The little hamlet had become a spring of light in the darkness. We could see the stumps and houses far afield, as if it had been noonday. Suddenly we all jumped to our feet. A wild yell came echoing through the woods.

"There they be!" said Asher Eastman, as he cocked his gun. "I tol' ye so."

As a matter of fact, he had told us nothing of the kind. He was the one man who had said nothing.

Arv Law stood erect, his pike-pole poised in both hands, and we were all ready for action. We could hear the rattle of many hoofs on the road. As soon as the column showed in the firelight, Bill Foster up with his musket and pulled the trigger. I could hear the shot scatter on stump and stone. Every man had his gun to his eye.

"Wait till they come nearer," said Asher Eastman.

The Indians had halted. Far behind them we could hear the wild hallooing of many voices. In a moment we could see those on horseback go galloping off in the direction whence they had come. Back in the house a number of the women were praying. My mother came out, her face whiter than I had ever seen it before and walked to my father and kissed him without ever saying a word. Then she went back into the house.

"Scairt?" I inquired, turning to Rose, who now stood beside me.

"I should think I was," she whispered. "I 'm all of a tremble."

"If anything happens, I 'd like something to remember you by."

"What?" she whispered.

I looked at her beautiful red lips. She had never let me kiss them.

"A kiss, if nothing more," I answered.

She gave me a kiss then that told me something of what was in her heart, and went away into the house.

"Goin' t' surround us," said Arv Law—"thet 's whut 's th' matter."

"Mus' be ready t' rassle 'em any minute," said Asher Eastman, as he sidled over to a little group.

A young man came out of the house and took his place in line with a big squirt-gun and a pail of steaming-hot water.

The night wore on; our fires burned low. As the approaching day began to light the clearing, we heard a sound that brought us all to our feet. A burst of bugle notes went chasing over the timber-land to the tune of "Yankee Doodle." We looked at one another in surprise. Then came a thunder of hoofs in the distance, the ragged outline of a troop of cavalry.

"Soldiers!" said Arv, as he raised his pike.

"The British?" somebody asked.

"Dunno," said he. "Ain, no Injuns, I don't b'lieve."

A troop of cavalry was approaching at a gallop. They pulled up a few rods away and jammed into a crescent of rearing, trampling horses. We could see they were American soldiers. We all lowered our guns.

"Who are you?" one of them shouted.

"Citizens," my father answered.

"Why are you armed?"

"To fight Injuns."

A chorus of laughter came from the cavalry.

They loosed rein, letting their horses advance.

"My dear man," said one of them, a big shako on his head, "there ain't an Indian 'tween here an' St. Regis. We thought you were British, an' it 's lucky we did n't charge in the dark; we 'd have cut you all to pieces before we knew who you were."

A body of infantry was marching down the pike. They were the volunteers of Capt. Darius Hawkins, on their way to Ogdensburg, with an escort of cavalry from Sackett's Harbor. The scare was over. Women came out, laughing and chattering. In a few moments they were all in the road, going home—men, women, and children.

I enlisted with Capt. Hawkins, and hurried to the house and packed my things, and bade them all good-by.

CHAPTER V.

I followed the camp and took my place in the ranks at Ogdensburg. We went immediately to the barracks—a structure long and low and weather-stained, overlooking the St. Lawrence. There was a fine level field in front of it, and a flag waving at the top of a high staff. The men cheered lustily that afternoon as they passed it, where stood Gen. Jacob Brown, his cocked hat in his hand—a splendid figure of a man. My delight in the life of a soldier began that hour, and has never left me.

FURNISH HELP TO GOTHAM

New York Has Over Three Hundred Intelligence Offices — Vary Widely in Character.

The intelligence office, as distinguished from employment bureaus, is one which furnishes household help exclusively, is the distinction in Atlantic. Such offices are of great number and variety. New York has more than 300 such offices, and other cities proportionately, while many others combine this with other kinds of employment. They range from well-furnished, adequately equipped houses or suites of rooms in desirable localities, with good business methods and systems, down to a single room in a tenement, which is the kitchen, dining-room, parlor and office by day, and by night the sleeping quarters, not only of the family, but of any unplaced girls. It is not unusual in such rooms to find at night from five to ten people. The office with brownstone front frequently does less business than the saloon or underground offices. The former secures its employes by attractive advertisements, keeps records, gives receipts; the latter have runners with pockets full of cards, who accost girls on the streets, steal their pocketbooks, until they agree to go to the address furnished, and fight with each other over girls they claim to have discovered, until the police interfere.

LAY BLAME ON NORTH WIND

South Americans Say Breeze Is the Cause of Diseases, Distemper, Insanity and Murder.

In the neighborhood of Buenos Ayres in South America there is a north wind which sweeps over plains covered with marshes and becomes overcharged with moisture, according to the Chicago Daily News. The effects produced in the human body are in general lassitude and relaxation. The pores of the skin are opened, inducing great liability to colds, sore throat and all consequences of check of perspiration. The damp wind of La Plata seems to affect the temper and disposition of the inhabitants. The irritability and ill humor it excites in them amounts to little less than a temporary derangement of their faculties. It is a common thing for men among the better classes to shut themselves up in their houses during its continuation and lay aside all business until it has passed; while among the lower classes it is always remarked that cases of quarreling and bloodshed are more frequent during the north winds than at any other time. Even murderers are said to lay to it the blame of their foul deeds. No sooner, however, does the southwest wind, blowing from the dry and snowy summits of the Andes, set in than health and comfort and peace are restored.

INDIANS INTERPRET VISIONS

Red Men Give Queer Solutions for Visions—Flying Taken to Mean Short Life.

According to Charles Gibson this is the interpretation Indians give to certain dreams: If you are a young man or woman and dream of flying it is a sure sign you are short-lived and it is time you were preparing your business to do your flying at some other place. If you dream of flying among the housetops or just above, you will reach the 50 or 60 notch. If you dream that you are away above the treetops, then you are good to live up into the nineties, and if you dream that you are bumping the stars with your gourd-head, then you will reach the century-notch. To dream that you are solid with a black-eyed beauty is a sure sign that you will kill a fine buck deer before you sleep again. To dream of blood means also meat in the pot. To dream of your would-be mother-in-law breaking a bow over your head is a sure sign that you will not be her dear beloved son-in-law. If you dream of eating sofky with a deceased friend, make your will before another sun goes down.

COW ASSISTS AT WEDDING

Shohola, Pa., Bovine Remains in Kitchen and Thirsty Guests Are Made Happy.

A strange wedding celebration took place at Shohola, Pa., recently. Herman Hipsman married Miss Christina Kulm. After the ceremony the couple went to the bridegroom's home, a stock farm, where all the neighborhood had congregated. The stock of beverages gave out and Hipsman brought one of his best Jersey cows into the kitchen. Each person who desired a drink had only to go to the cow. She was a good representative of her stock and did not go dry, although one man was kept busy doing the milking.

Oldest Fishes.

The oldest inhabitants of the New York aquarium are the striped bass, which have been there for ten years, having been placed in one of the floor pools before the building was opened to the public. In May, 1894, 55 specimens, weighing from a quarter of a pound to four pounds, were secured, 37 of which have survived. Most of those that were lost died in the first year, and in the last four years not one has died.

New Use for the Shark.

The shark, which is so abundant in the waters of Central America, is to be utilized in commercial products. A company has been formed which converts sharks' fins into jelly and tinned soup, makes fine machinery oil from their livers, handsome leather, equal to alligator's, from their skins, walking sticks from their backbones, and numerous articles from their jawbones and teeth.

DANGER IN HIS JOB.

FARLEY TALKS OF HIS LIFE AS A STRIKE BREAKER.

Love of Adventure Caused Him to Take Up His Queer Occupation—Is Hated by Union Workmen Everywhere.

New York Special.

James Farley, acknowledged head of an army of experienced strike-breakers, is now in New York, whither he was called by the officials of the elevated road systems which were threatened with a strike. When asked about himself Farley said:

"It was an accident, in a way, that made me take up the business of breaking strikes. During the car strike in Brooklyn, in 1895, I was employed as sort of foreman over a small number of non-union men. That was the first time I ever had anything to do with fighting a strike. The excitement pleased me, and when the strike was broken 15 of the men who had gone with me on cars through the crowds asked me to take their names and addresses and call upon them again the next time I was mixed up in a strike. This request showed me that there are a large number of men always ready to go a long ways simply to get into a fight.

"Since then my records show over 30,000 men have worked with me at strike-breaking in the last nine years. A great many of these men, of course, have married and settled down and now lead quiet lives. They are out of the strike-breaking business."

The most vicious mobs he had encountered, he said, were in Waterbury and other New England towns, but the most deadly were met with in Pennsylvania and Virginia. When asked to describe his narrowest escapes, he said in his quiet way to the New York World reporter:

"The closest shave I ever had was when I went to Scranton, Pa., a few years ago to end a strike. We started to run a car past a place called Mudtown, a mining village. We were told that we never would get the car through Mudtown, because the miners would hang us, if necessary. I took a force of 35 Italians to clear away the obstructions that I knew would be piled on the tracks. When I set the gang to work one of the citizens of Mudtown, a big miner, who declared he was a justice of the peace, arrested the foreman of the gang on a charge of obstructing the highway.

JAMES FARLEY.
(Street Car Operator Who Makes Strike Breaking a Business.)

"Then the crowd set up a yell for Bob McKenna. McKenna, I was told, had been a member of the Molly McGuires, and when the superintendent of the car company heard the yell for McKenna, he, knowing the man, told me to get back to Scranton as fast as I could. I told him that we would run the car to the end of the line.

"The crowd by this time was yelling: 'Lynch Farley!'

"When we got a short distance out of Mudtown I saw the mob crossing a bridge, evidently to head me off. I jumped into a bunch of laurel bushes alongside the track, to hide my footprints in the snow, and started up the mountain. When I got to the top I saw two mobs converging toward me, each one coming up opposite sides of the hill. Each mob began to shoot, but their bullets didn't reach me.

"I kept going ahead until I found the hill ended in a bluff that went straight down to the river. For a minute or two I thought it was all up with Farley. Finally I saw a little railroad along the side of the bluff used for taking coal out of a mine. I made a jump of ten feet and reached the road in time to board a passing train of coal cars. On this I rode a mile until I saw a trolley car, which I found was in charge of some of my men.

"I told the motorman to get out of the place as fast as he could. But McKenna, knowing where I would leave the coal train, had taken a peddler's team and with three of his gang had driven by a short cut to head me off. Just as we were starting the car, he drove up at a gallop. With a pistol in each hand he told me to surrender. Some of my guards leveled their shotguns at him and he lacked the nerve to shoot, but, driving his wagon ahead, he pulled around squarely across the track. Still pointing his guns at me, he told us to surrender.

"The motorman was quick-witted. He swung the controller all the way around, giving the car every ounce of power in the wire, and then jumped back into the car to get out of the way of the smash-up. The car hit the wagon, throwing it high into the air and tossing McKenna and his men over a fence."

MANY ATTRACTED BY FAIR

Woman's Auxiliary Bazaar Draws Crowds.

SAGAMORES PLAY

Other Features Make the Second Day of the Affair a Record Breaker—Supper Enjoyed.

Steadily increasing in popularity, the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary fair at the Babcock building is drawing a larger crowd hourly, and when at its height last evening, the brightly lighted interior, with its tastefully arranged booths, and attractive pink, green and white decorations, was a scene well worth viewing, and one which hundreds of people enjoyed.

Without question, last evening was the most successful of the two nights, both in attendance and from the financial point of view. From the reports at present, the sales will net a large sum of money. One feature of the evening's programme for a time drew away the buyers from the booths. It was when the Sagamore Musical Club struck up the strains of a popular air, that the crowds gathered around the group at the top of the stairs overlooking the dining room, and joined in hearty applause at the conclusion of the well rendered selection. The young musicians furnished several numbers and did themselves great credit. The members of the club who appeared are Chester Biggs, leader, Monroe Long, Theodore Gavett, mandolins; William Briggs, Gurth Williams, banjos; Herbert Smith, Charles Eoff, William Gaston, violins, and Erving Martin, pianist.

The "Mouse in the Cheese" was equally as much of an attraction yesterday, and whenever he made his appearance with a nickel's worth of a "nibble," there was always a congregation of children to greet him. The mice yesterday were Roger Stuart, in the afternoon, and Walter Kennedy and Earl Lynn, in the evening.

The rest room at the rear of the main floor is one of the popular features of the fair. It is presided over by Mrs. Harry Runyon, and is delightfully decorated and comfortably furnished. In contrast to the decorative scheme of the main floor, the basement or dining room is adorned with flags and bunting, every part of the wall being covered by the red, white and blue.

The supper last night was served as usual between 6 and 9 o'clock, and the tbles were well filled during those hours. This feature of the fair was in charge of the women of the Crescent Avenue, Park Avenue Baptist and Grace M. E. churches. The committee was Mrs. Howard Runyon, Mrs. Most and Mrs. D. M. Runyon. This evening the committee in charge of the supper will be Mrs. Howard Pope, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Mrs. Schofield and Miss Helen Pfender, assisted by waitresses from the First Presbyterian, Trinity, First Baptist and Episcopal churches.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASKET BALL.

The next game of the Whittier School basket ball team, which is now ahead in the juvenile league, will be next Wednesday afternoon with the Plainfield High School second team on the Y. M. C. A. floor. These two teams have not yet met in the league, though in a practice game before the season began, the Whittier school was defeated.

The Newark Y. M. C. A., the team which defeated the local association basket ball five in the game on Monday evening, has one of the hardest schedules to play, and has run up against some of the strongest teams in the eastern section. They have met with nought but victories so far this season, an the fact that they defeated the Y. M. C. A. is not at all discouraging to the local players.

The Plainfield High school's victory over the North Plainfield High school team at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, marks the city team as a likely winner of the interscholastic championship. They are undoubtedly stronge than the N. P. H. S. five, and though they have not yet played Leals it is generally conceeded that they are superior to them. The Leals team is crippled in the league this season, by the fact that their strongest players graduated last year, while the P. H. S. team is practically the same as in the season of 1903 and 1904. Another fact which adds to the chances of the city team is that they were without the services of Collier their crack forward in the contest yesterday. Collier who is down in scholarship will undoubtedly be able to play by the time that another game comes along.

MRS. STEVENS WINS.

Judgment Obtained by Mr. Kingston Reversed.

The case on appeal of Mrs. Mary E. Stevens, of Watchung avenue, against Joseph Kingston, of East Second street, was tried before Judge Vail at Elisabeth, yesterday, and upon the presentation of a precedent case to the court by S. S. Swackhamer, Esq., counsel for the plaintiff, the court decided that there had been a payment of the bill in question and gave judgment for his client.

The matter in dispute was the difference of a sum of money paid to Mr. Kingston by Mrs. Stevens, who in October, 1903, employed the former to vault a grave. The bill for the work amounted to $30, but as Mrs. Stevens claimed Mr. Kingston owed her $19.20 in another matter, she offered him the difference, which she said he accepted and receipted for. Six weeks ago Mr. Kingston sued Mrs. Stevens for $19.20. A decision was given against her in Justice Nash's court and the case was appealed to the Common Pleas court. V. W. Nash, Jr., Esq., represented Mr. Kingston.

UNITARIANS HOLD FAIR

Christmas Bazaar Opened Auspiciously Yesterday.

ATTRACTIVE FEATURES

Large Attendance Marks First Day of Annual Sale—Will Close Today—Those in Charge.

Christmas greens beautifully festooned about the walls of the parlor of the Unitarian church in addition to other tasteful decorations, made an appropriate and attractive background for the Christmas fair conducted by the women of the church, which opened yesterday afternoon. The room was well filled at all times with interested spectators and buyers, and the many articles, useful and ornamental, which were offered for sale, were most tempting. As far as the financial success of the affair is concerned those in charge have cause to be much gratified, and by the time that it is concluded, which will be this afternoon and evening, a neat sum will no doubt be realized for the benefit of the church fund.

Fancy work of all varieties, beautiful hand embroidered articles, and other serviceable pieces of needle work were attractively arranged on one side of the room, while on other tables were to be found toys, things to appeal to the children, and chinaware. Candy was on sale in an anteroom near the large parlor, and in the evening supper was served. A feature of the fair were the pictures painted by Jonas Lie, a member of the church, and an artist whose work received a medal at the St. Louis Exposition.

These are the women who are in charge of the various departments of the fair: General committee of arrangements, Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Mrs. Gates Willard, Miss Leonard; supper committee, Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, Mrs. T. J. Nicholl, Miss Conklin, Miss Huntington, Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Mrs. E. W. Conklin, Miss Montague; useful articles, Mrs. E. B. Smith, Mrs. R. C. Leonard, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. David P. Hall, Miss H. M. Angell and Mrs. Harold Durar; candy table, Miss Laura Osgood, Miss Clara Buckie, Miss Louise Nicholl, Miss Grace Otterson, Miss Inez Tolles, Miss Juna Tolles, Jonas Lie, Harold Brownell, William Durar and H. W. Durar; art committee, Miss Caroline Haviland, Mrs. C. D. Sperry, Miss Alice Thompson and Miss Ryder; stationery, Mrs. P. V. R. VanWyck, Mrs. L. P. Starkweather and Miss Howell; children's table, Mrs. Stephen Haff, Mrs. J. O. Osgood, Mrs. W. H. Riley, Miss Wells, Mrs. C. L. Riley; fancy articles, Mrs. W. W. ARCANUM ELECTION.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, R. A., Chooses Officers for the Ensuing Year.

Three applications were received and three persons initiated by Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, at the regular meeting held last night. The membership is constantly increasing and will surely reach the three hundred mark by December 31, as planned by the Council. It was announced that the Grand Regent and staff would attend the next meeting on Thursday night, December 22, and a reception will be given to them.

These officers were chosen last night for the ensuing year:

Regent, Robert H. Lowry; vice regent, Armstrong Mulford; past regent, Clarence Goss; secretary, Fred'k J. Pope; treasurer, D. W. Littell; collector, E. T. VanWinkle; orator, H. A. Todd; chaplain, C. M. Wilson; guide, W. R. Townsend, warden, W. T. Carr; sentry, A. Devine; representative to Grand Council, Clarence Goss; alternate representative, E. T. VanWinkle; trustee for three years, R. C. Treadwell.

Miss Campbell Heard From Again.

Miss Elizabeth C. C. Campbell, who arranged for a concert at the Casino and then failed to give it after disposing of a large number of tickets, has been heard from in a similar way at Seneca Falls, N. Y. She was to give a musical entertainment at a hall in that city and after the seat sale had progressed nicely Miss Campbell called it off because of an attack of "tonsilitis." The newspaper accounts do not state that Miss Campbell returned the money and it is hardly likely as she forgot to do it in Plainfield.

—St. Stephen's church fair will be at 813 Webster place on Saturday, December 10, from 2 to 10. Gypsy encampment a feature. 12 6 5

MUSIC, MIRTH AND MAGIC PLEASE A LARGE AUDIENCE

VARIED PROGRAMME GIVEN IN THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Nearly every seat was taken when the quartette began the programme of the entertainment combining music, mirth and magic at the Congregational church last evening. The talent was for the most part local, with the exception of Hal Merton, a magician and ventriloquist.

Without doubt the cleverest of the performers, and the one which was most applauded was Miss Edith Davies, who in a rich contralto voice sang several pleasing selections, and recited a number of winning sketches. Miss Davies possesses a wide range of voice, together with a firmness and a rich quality of tone, which captivated her hearers last evening and made them most appreciative of her artistic style and musical talent. As a reciter Miss Davies was also good.

The quartette composed of Miss Cornelia Miller, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes and Mrs. R. K. Miner, contraltos; Fred S. Cutter, bass, and J. Halsey Sanford, tenor, was good in chorus and in solo work, and their numbers as well as the selections by Miss Miller, Mr. Sanford and Mr. Cutter were worthy of mention. Features of the programme were a contralto solo by Miss Jessie Haynes, and Miss Davies' recitation of "The Happy Little Cripple."

The audience was transferred into the world of magic in a thoroughly delightful manner by Hal Merton, who in two numbers displayed some clever experiments in sleight-of-hand. Mr. Merton's manner was humorous, and his "medley of mysteries" were indeed mystifying. As a ventriloquist Mr. Merton is exceptionally good, and his number on the programme was one which was much enjoyed.

THOUGHT PAPER CAP WAS INFERNAL MACHINE

EXPLOSION IN LINCOLN'S POSTOFFICE FRIGHTENED S. D. DRAKE.

Silas Dewey Drake, "Mayor" of Lincoln, town founder and postmaster, was busily engaged Wednesday for a half hour or so attending to postoffice matters. After glancing over his voluminous correspondence he started to cut the leaves of a monthly magazine addressed to him. At the time the postmaster's feet rested on the edge of his desk.

Swish went the paper-cutter, when suddenly there was a report like that of a pistol. A moment later the "Mayor" was trying to gather his wits about him, he having the impression that an infernal machine of some sort or other had exploded under him.

Postmaster Drake soon got his mental arrangements connected, and then made the discovery that the wicked publishers of the magazine had put some sort of an explosive cap arrangement between the leaves for an advertisement. In the investigation he was aided by Miss Ethel Emery, the clerk, and several persons who had called to chat with the postmaster. Mr. Drake says he wasn't scared, that all that he was afraid of was that his eyes might be hurt and he wouldn't know a good thing when he saw it.

RECEPTION AND TEA.

Affair Given by Mrs. Garrigues and Miss Maxwell.

Mrs. William A. Garrigues and her sister, Miss Eleanor Maxwell, gave a reception and tea yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at their home, 721 Watchung avenue, the affair being largely attended by society folk from this city and the borough. The home was appropriately decorated with holly and Christmas greens, the prevailing colors being red and green.

Mrs. A. G. Maxwell, mother of Mrs. Garrigues and Miss Maxwell, assisted with these women in receiving: Mrs. Frederick Wills, Mrs. T. S. Davis, Miss Jennie Harriott, Mrs. J. Sheridan Zelie, Mrs. A. T. Slauson and Mrs. P. S. Sullivant. The young women assisting in the dining room were Miss Anna Davis, Miss Helen Davis, Miss Katherine Stewart, Miss Ida Stewart, Miss Anna Murphy, Miss May Tennant and Miss May Rodman.

JUDGE HANNA'S ADDRESS

Explains Teachings and Aims of Christian Science.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK

Attentive Audience at Cranford Opera House Listens to a Subject Which is Growing in Favor.

Before an audience of interested persons at the Cranford Opera House, last evening, Former Judge Septimus J. Hanna, C. S. D., member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, delivered an exhaustive address on "Christian Science," dealing with its origin, precepts and teachings, and also of Mrs. Eddy, its recognized head. Judge Hanna is a speaker of wide prominence and his remarks bore out the fact.

He said in part:

"Ladies and Gentlemen—In appearing before you for the purpose of speaking on the subject of Christian Science I will say at the outset that, in the space of a single discourse, I can only touch some of its leading phases, and hint, as it were, at its teachings, its aims, and its purposes.

"If I were here to discourse upon any ordinary subject, claiming to have something new to present with reference to it, you would naturally expect me to tell you somewhat of my authority for so speaking, and if there was a text-book upon the subject you would wish to know something of that text-book as well as to hear, at least briefly, of the life and character of the author.

"Acting on this assumption, I beg your attention while I speak briefly of the Christian Science text-book—for there is such a book—as well as of the life and character of its author.

"A few words, then, as to the text-book. This book, of which the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy is the author, was first published in 1875. It bears the title of 'Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures,' and contains the entire text of Christian Science. It is a treatise on healing through the power of God, or the divine Mind. Or, as we claim, it is a thorough exegesis of the Scriptural method of healing all manner of diseases, and of curing all manner of sin through the understanding of God, as all-present, all powerful, all-wise, and universal Mind. In short, it is a spiritual interpretation of the Bible; hence its title: 'Key to Scriptures.'

"And what of the life and character of one who has established such a religious movement? I am sure a few words in reference to these will be welcomed by every sincere inquirer.

"Born amid the beautiful but rugged hills of Bow, near Concord, New Hampshire, of sterling and strictly religious parents, descended from a long line of worthy and distinguished ancestors, Mrs. Eddy was favored by nature with advantages which fitted here for her future career. Her early environments were such as to nurture and enlarge her inherited gifts. She was a student by natural bent and intuition. This native trend was strengthened by careful training in schools and academies, as well as by competent private tutors, among whom was her brother, Albert Baker, a graduate of Dartmouth College, and a distinguished lawyer, although he died when a young man. Among her other instructors were such well known New England educators of a past generation as Mrs. Sarah J. Bodwell Lane, Mr. Corser, of Sanbornton Bridge Academy, and Prof. Dyer H. Sanborn, author of Sanborn's grammar. This early training has been supplemented by long years of careful and thorough research and study. She is, from every point of view, a woman of sound education and liberal culture.

"It may not be amiss for me to say that for nearly ten years, as former First Reader in the Mother Church in Boston and editor of the official periodicals, I have had opportunities which enable me to speak intelligently of Mrs. Eddy's life and character as well as of her labors and literary attainments.

"Speaking from this vantage ground, I can truthfully say that, intellectually, she is one of the most alert persons I have ever known; that she labors incessantly and unselfishly for the cause to which she has devoted her life, and that, notwithstanding her years, she performs an amount of labor each day which, it known, would seem incredible, even if done by one yet in the adolescence of life. As to her religious character, I speak my profoundest conviction when I say I believe it to be in accord with the highest standard of Christian living.

"Yet, notwithstanding her highly

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT GREEN BROOK IMPROVED

WILL ENDEAVOR TO GET OBJECTORS, CONSENT TO THE PLAN.

The question of widening and deepening Green brook to prevent the flooding of the eastern section of the city in the vicinity of the stream is being widely discussed by those interested in the proposed improvement. As there are only two affected property-owners who object to the work, refusing to sign the agreement prepared by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, every effort will be made to secure their consent. This the property-owners feel is their duty, inasmuch as petitions were presented to the Common Council asking that the stream be widened and deepened.

In view of the proposed improvement of conditions along Green brook, whereby that section of the city will be relieved of a surplus of water in heavy rains, the work on Cedar brook seems almost an absolute necessity. It now looks as though the Green brook work is an assured thing and the street committee from the Common Council would like to fix Cedar brook at the same time, and this is the object in view. According to the terms of the agreement, which all but two of the property-owners have signed, the city is given permission to enter upon the lands to do the work and there is no expense to the property-owners, neither are they to be assessed for benefits or damages. The property-owners hope to have a favorable report on the matter before the end of the year so that the Common Council can take it up early in the new year.

KEAN WANTS ANOTHER U. S. JUDGESHIP FOR N. J.

BILL INTRODUCED IN CONGRESS FOR A SECOND JURIST.

Senator Kean has introduced a bill providing for an additional judge of the District Court of the United States for the district of New Jersey. It has, for some time, been felt that the volume of business in that district is so large that one judge cannot properly attend to it, hence the provision for the second judge.

The President yesterday sent to the Senate the name of James Johnston, of New Jersey, to be Consul-General at Hankow, China.

Representative Ira W. Wood, of the Fourth district, introduced a bill appropriating $100,000 for the enlargement of the postoffice building at Trenton.

MRS. MUNGER'S TEA.

Delightful Reception in Honor of Daughter-in-Law.

The first of a series of two receptions and teas was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. H. Raymond Munger, of Washington avenue, for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Max Munger. During the hours from 4 to 6 o'clock the house was thronged with society people from Plainfield and the borough. The decorations were pink and green.

Mrs. H. Raymond Munger and Mrs. Max Munger were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. W. E. Lowe and Miss Weber. The receiving party was assisted by Miss Virginia Hegeman, Miss Helen Weir, Miss Marjorie Fleming and Miss Elsie Harman. The second reception and tea will be held this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

HORSE'S MAD RUN.

Collided With Second Rig Turning It Completely Around.

After running madly for about two blocks, a horse attached to one of Scheuer's grocery wagons, ran full force into another wagon on West Front street, this morning, narrowly escaping a serious smash up. The horse stared on East Front street, near police headquarters, and ended up with the wheels of the delivery wagon jammed into the back of another vehicle which was standing in front of Warnock's bakery. As the runaway crashed into the standing wagon, the rear wheels clinched, and turned the wagon completely around, horse and all, so that it faced in the opposite direction. The force of the collision took all the run out of Scheuer's horse, and the animal was easily subdued.

Y. M. C. A. BAZAAR CLOSES

Women's Auxiliary Fair Has a Profitable Conclusion.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS

A Large Sum Was Raised for the Benefit of the Y. M. C. A.—Articles Well Disposed Of—Committee.

After three days of unprecedented success the Y. M. C. A. fair under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary in the Babcock building, closed last night, when one of the largest crowds assembled at the scene of the bazaar. Financially as well as socially successful, the labors of the women who had charge and who assisted in the fair, were rewarded in a most gratifying manner.

A decided change was noticable to one who compared the appearance of the tables on Tuesday afternoon when the fair opened, and their aspect last evening at the close of the bazaar. Though the decorations remained, making the general effect the same, the absence of the articles on the fancy work, art and novelty tables was noticable.

During the three days of the fair, 250 women have assisted in carrying on the work, both in connection with the various booths, and in supplying and serving the supper. The supper was one of the features of the bazaar, being ample in variety, and tastefully served. Last night the committee in charge of this feature was Mrs. Howard Pope, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Mrs. Scofield and Miss Helen Pfender, representing the First Presbyterian, Trinity Reformed, First Baptist and Episcopal churches.

These were the women who had charge of the eleven booths during the fair: Japanese, Mrs. Roger Murray; aprons, Mrs. F. C. Harder; candy, Mrs. Walter Freeman; dolls, Mrs. Frank Hubbard; fancy work, Miss Lena Bass; brushes and brooms, Mrs. Stephen Caboone; handkerchiefs, Mrs. A. G. Jenkins; paper booth, Mrs. Wheaton Lowrey; country store, Mrs. S. M. French; lemonade, Miss Edith Cairns; children's table, Mrs. E. A. Edgar.

The executive committee in charge of the general managering of the fair were these women: Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, chairman; Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett, Mrs. L. M. French, Dr. Martha Stillman and Mrs. F. C. Harder. These women have had the greatest amount of planning, and arranging to do in the fair, and much of the success of the bazaar is due to them.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS NEW RURAL DELIVERY ROUTE

WILL COVER TERRITORY FROM WATCHUNG TO BEYOND GALLIA.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird this morning received word from Washington that the new rural free delivery route, petitioned for by residents in Watchung, Union Village, Smalleytown and adjacent places, would be started Monday, January 16, and that he would be informed in a few days the result of the examination recently held for carriers. Three applicants took the examination and if all passed it successfully, it will be up to Postmaster Bird to make the selection.

The new route will start at Watchung and continue to Union Village, to Smalleytown, to Gallia, to Zerkibel's residence, and then retraces to Gallia postoffice to Kirch's corner a mile and half beyond Warrenville, where one of the oldest postoffices in this part is located and which will not be affected by the new route. From there it continues down Stiles' hill to Beeching's corner and to Watchung.

The route covers seventeen miles, ninety-three houses and reaches a population of five hundred people. The successful applicant for the position of carrier will receive about $600 a year. If the route was twenty miles in length he would receive $60 a month. There will be one delivery and one collection. The carrier will leave the postoffice at 7:30 in the morning and reach there on the return trip at 12:30 in time to catch the 12:35 mail. The people living along the new route are much pleased with the prospects of being able to receive their mail regularly. In many cases they will get mail as early as those in Plainfield do on the first delivery in the morning.

John Gjoelsen, of Watchung avenue, is detained at home by illness.

HOME REMEDIES SURE CURE FOR "HOOKEY" PLAYING

FOND MOTHER'S MEDICINE RECOMMENDED AS "TRUANCY PANACEA."

Possessing the inherent trait of "playin' hooky" that is born in all boys, one West End young man who is a pupil in the Irving School tried it for the first time yesterday but will think several times before he does it again. His initial attempt met with punishment that was all the more severe because of its being inflicted unconsciously and his companions in crime are trembling lest they be subjected to the same ordeal.

Skating on Compton's pond appealed to the young man yesterday morning and slipping his skates out of the house he started for it to the exclusion of school. He and several other boys enjoyed the sport keenly for about two hours and when the fun began to wane he found he was cold. A hastily built fire failed to give him warmth and finally in desperation he decided to go home at about 11:30.

His appearance at that time excited his fond mother and when she inquired the reason he declared that he had been excused because of illness in the region of his "tummy." Instantly the anxious mother hustled him to his room, placed him in bed and despite vociferous yells that he was already feeling better, began prescribing home remedies. He stood for hot lemonade, vaseline on his throat, a mustard plaster on his chest and divers other anti-sick affairs but when it came to pills and castor oil, he poured out a confession. It was then a case of "out of the frying pan into the fire" as the astonished and indignant parent laid hold of a handy cat-o'-nine tails and applied it externally and without any dilution. Mr. Truant is home today but because he finds it more comfortable to stand than sit down and not on account of yesterday's illness.

CENTRAL LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS FOR NEXT YEAR

TO BE INSTALLED AT FIRST SESSION NEXT MONTH.

In addition to the election of officers for the coming year, business of great importance to the organization was transacted at the meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., last evening, in Firemen's Hall. There was a large attendance, and those were the officers which were nominated and elected: Past Grand Workman, Walter Bradford; Grand Workman, A. C. Curtis; foreman, Theodore Mason; overseer, Robert Ellis; recorder, Harvey R. Thorn; financier, William Newcorn; receiver, Charles H. Randolph; guide, Adam Herlich; inside watchman, Louis Alpaugh; outside watchman, William H. Lunger; representatives to Grand Lodge, William Newcorn, Walter Bradford and Harvey R. Thorn; alternates, Clark T. Rogers, L. C. Spicer and John A. Wilson; trustee for three years, William H. Lunger; pianist, Theodore Mason; medical examiners, Doctors C. L. Jenkins, M. J. Whitford and W. J. Nelson.

The Deputy Grand Master Workman has been notified that these officers will be installed at the first January meeting. There will be services appropriate to this occasion, and an interesting programme will undoubtedly be arranged.

After the execution of the regular business and election of officers last evening, a pleasant social hour was spent, and a short musical and recital was arranged for the event. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

LAID AT REST.

Body of Augustus M. Frazee Placed in Evergreen Cemetery After Service at His Late Home.

Attended by a large gathering of his former associates, relatives and friends, funeral services were held yesterday over the body of Augustus M. Frazee at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Guliberg, of South avenue. They were in charge of Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church. Two solos, "Homeland" and "Rock of Ages," were sung.

Interment was afterward made in Evergreen cemetery, the pall bearers being the following exempt firemen: T. O. Doane, L. K. Barkalew, U. B. Crane and Guillermo Thorn. The floral tributes were profuse and included several large set pieces.

ALL TALENTED MUSICIANS

Richard Arnold String Sextet Entertains Large Audience.

FINE PROGRAMME

Artists Warmly Applauded and Many Encores Given — The Patronesses of the Affair.

An audience that was thoroughly appreciative of classic compositions, rendered in true style by artists of exceptional ability, almost filled the Casino last evening to hear the Richard Arnold Sextet, assisted by Joseph McIntyre, pianist. It was in every sense of the word an assemblage of musical lovers. For over an hour the audience was delightfully entertained with a programme of excellence and encores were generously given in response to hearty applause.

Perhaps, the distinctive features of the concert was the violin playing of Richard Arnold and that of Joseph McIntyre on the piano. There was a charm about their renditions that called for genuine appreciation, while the work of the other members of the sextet left nothing to be desired.

Mr. Arnold displayed that mastery of the violin for which he has long been noted. In his rendition of "Romance" and Rondo Elegant by H. Wieniawski, he was vigorous, yet his fine delicate touch of the stringed instrument gave a finish that was enjoyed to a high degree. The same was true of Mr. McIntyre. He gave Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 8," and "Variations in Theme by Donizetti," by Thalberg, together with selections in a lighter vein for encores. He had complete mastery of the piano, the harmony and touch being perfect.

The opening number of the programme was entitled "Russian Suite," by Richard Wuerst; (a) Vorspiel, (b) Traumerei, by the sextet. Liszt's composition by Mr. McIntyre then preceded the violin solo by Mr. Arnold. Two very delightful number were Bach's "Aria," and Ostbuika's "Fly Minuett," by the sextet. Other renditions by Mr. McIntyre were followed by the concluding number by the sextet. This was Jadassohn's "Serenade.—Op. 80," and was an appropriate ending to the programme, bringing out all of the possibilities of the stringed instruments.

The sextet was comprised of Richard Arnold, Herman Keann and Sebastian Lueudner, violins; Carl Binbach, viola; Arthur Severn, violoncello, and August Kalkhof, double bass.

The concert, a subscription affair, was given under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Lamson and Miss Sibyl, two talented musicians of this city. The patronesses were Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury, Mrs. Paul Taylor Brown, Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. R. Henry Depew, Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. Samuel Merwin, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. Arthur S. Phelps, Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, Miss Hubbell, Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde, Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, Mrs. S. Durel Lounsbury, Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., Mrs. Alfred N. Streuli, Mrs. George A. Strong, Mrs. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. Howard C. Tracy and the Misses Tweedy.

FRANK M. CLUTE, OF NEW YORK, IS THE PURCHASER.

The Julia Peck property on North avenue, occupied by the Plainfield Cab Company, was sold on Wednesday by Sheriff Coriell at Elizabeth, under foreclosure proceedings. Frank M. Clute, of New York, attorney for Mrs. Peck, was the purchaser and he paid $30,000 for the property. Robert Hazeltine, of Jersey City, held a claim for $17,000 against the property and the obligation has now been paid.

The building was erected several years ago by Dan. S. Roberts, who used the first floor as for a livery stable and the upper floor for living rooms. Those interested in the sale were the mortgagee, Mrs. J. H. McVey, and Woolston & Buckie, the last named firm being part owners in a partition wall.

TAKEN TO THE TOMBS

Mrs. Chadwick, Failing Bondsmen, Behind Prison Doors.

IS MME. DEVERE, SAYS "SISTER."

Prisoner Would Not Comment on Statement That She Was the Notorious Mme. Devere Nor on Carnegie Notes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Shortly before 9 o'clock last night Philip Carpenter, counsel for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, charged with aiding and abetting in an embezzlement, returned to Commissioner Shield's office after an unsuccessful attempt to secure a bondsman for his client. Mrs. Chadwick was then removed by Marshal Henkel to the Tombs.

Mrs. Chadwick was interviewed last night as she lay on a couch in the office of United States Marshal Henkel waiting for her counsel to obtain bondsmen for her. She and her nurse and son were in the office with a deputy marshal. The nurse and boy sat beside the weeping woman and were trying to comfort her. Mrs. Chadwick's face was inflamed, and she had all the appearance of a woman suffering greatly from nervousness.

Mrs. Chadwick's son Emil was asked if he had seen the statement made by Mrs. York of San Francisco relative to his mother's past life. He said he had.

"Do you know Mrs. York?"

"Yes. It is true that I have stayed at her house and that I was taught as a boy to call Mrs. York's boy my cousin," the boy answered.

"Will you ask your mother if she will see a reporter on that statement made by Mrs. York?"

Emil went to his mother, talked to her in a low tone for a few seconds, and then came back and said his mother would say something about it.

Lying on the couch and interrupted at intervals by slight nervous tremors Mrs. Chadwick said in reference to Mrs. York's statement:

"I have not read all of it, but I will leave it to public opinion and to refined and educated persons what conclusion they might draw when one sister makes a statement like that against another sister. Tonight in the presence of the marshal I said to my little boy, 'Emil, have you read Aunt Alice's statement?' He said, 'Yes.' I was in hopes he had not, and I said to him, 'What do you think about that, dear?' And he replied, 'It is nothing more than I expected from her.'"

"Mrs. Chadwick, is Mrs. York your sister?"

"No. She is neither my sister nor my half sister nor my sister-in-law. We were raised together."

"Will you say anything about her statement that you are Mme. Devere?"

"I have made absolutely no statement about this Mme. Devere business from beginning to end. Out of justice to my little boy I would not do it at the present time. I don't think that any responsible person would pay any attention to a statement made by Mrs. York. If I had a sister or a brother who was in trouble, no matter what their past might have been, if I could not do him or her good I certainly would shield him or her from harm. It is unkind and unfair of any person to give such a statement for publication, and I question whether she gave it unless she was paid for it. There must have been some inducement.

"For the benefit of the newspapers and the public I would suggest that the newspapers send to two or three responsible people in Cleveland and who know Mrs. York and ask them what they think of her statement—that is, if her word would be taken—how much reliance they would put in her word. Everything will work its way out all right for me, and I don't want to say anything against Mrs. York at all. I shall make a statement here in the very near future and also one in Cleveland. The newspapers possibly have written up a great sensation, but I wish you to say that Mme. Devere's whereabouts and everything else in connection with this case will be shown in a very short time.

"In justice to my child I don't think it right to make any further statement at this time. My boy's devotion to me and his loyalty to me is marvelous for one only nineteen years old. His every thought is for my comfort and to shield and protect me against any worry. He will not retire at night until he thinks I have gone to sleep. He is up first in the morning to see how I am. There is nothing the child can think of for my comfort that he does not do. He is the first at my side and the last to leave me."

"Mrs. Chadwick, it is intimated in some of the afternoon papers that this young woman you have here with you is not your maid, but a relative of yours, possibly your daughter."

The young woman was sitting beside her, and she spoke up immediately, saying: "I am not related to Mrs. Chadwick in any way; neither am I her maid. She has a French maid, who is not with her. I am her nurse. I am a graduate from the Nurses' institute in Stockholm, Sweden, and I am Swedish by birth. I have been in this country seven months, and I have been with Mrs. Chadwick six months. I could speak English before I came here."

Mrs. Chadwick referred to the publication which intimated that the lawyers who had come here from the west were her enemies and not her friends.

"I think there is nobody I am more friendly with than with those lawyers," she said. "Not one of them came here with any thought of prosecuting me. I don't think the public quite understands this situation. Mr. Newton brought this lawsuit against me on Monday. On Tuesday and Wednesday they had a run on the Wade Park bank. Of course that frightened the people because of the enormous amount of the lawsuit, $210,000. That was a very large amount in a little city of only about 400,000 inhabitants. That amount of money attracted attention. The depositors of the Wade Park bank became alarmed that the bank was going to be ruined, when in reality I only owed the bank $17,000, and it was one of the best and most conservative banks in Cleveland.

"No, I am wrong. It was Friday the run commenced on the Wade Park bank. Then followed that one of Mr. Newton's notes was in the Oberlin National bank. On Saturday evening the Oberlin bank opened to receive deposits, according to its custom, from 6 to 8 o'clock. The depositors in that bank read in the penny press the sensational story that I owed the Oberlin bank. They rushed into the bank on Saturday night and instead of making deposits commenced to draw their money out. It was a small country bank and only had on hand $11,000 or $12,000 in cash. The other money belonging to the bank was in the Cleveland bank, and it being Saturday night they were closed up.

"The depositors drew heavily that night, and some one came in with a check—I think it was for $2,800 or $3,800—that they didn't have money enough to pay. Therefore they had to close the bank. They could not open it again then and notified the bank examiner. They said they could not demand the loan against me because I was down here in New York. The story had gone out that the bank had failed, and it was too late then for anything to be done. Mr. Miller of Canton, the bank examiner, had to be sent for. He got to Oberlin on Sunday, and they went into conference Sunday afternoon. Mr. Miller found the bank was in such a condition that it had to be closed, because the depositors had become so exercised about the reports that they drew out, and nothing would quiet them. If it had only happened differently the bank would not have had to fail, because the obligation would have been paid. I would not like to live a minute if I did not think I could pay these poor people back. I have asked Emil, my son, if anything should happen to me that he would do everything to see that the obligations were paid."

"Mrs. Chadwick, those alleged Carnegie notes have figured so largely as a sensational feature in this case that no doubt the public would like to know what you have to say in relation to that."

"Whatever is said about those notes must be said by my attorney, Mr. Carpenter. That is an entirely different matter," she replied.

"But you already have been quoted as denying that Mr. Carnegie had anything to do with your business affairs or that you had any notes of his."

"As I said before, you will have to talk to Mr. Carpenter about that," the woman answered.

Mrs. Chadwick seemed to be especially grieved that any one should construe her removal from the Holland House to the New Amsterdam hotel and from the New Amsterdam hotel to the Hotel Breslin as a flight from the secret service men.

"It is perfectly absurd," she said. "I did not like my quarters in the New Amsterdam hotel, and I told the secret service men that I would stay there only until the next day. At that time they were informed that I intended to go to the Hotel Breslin."

At this juncture Mrs. Chadwick had another attack of nervousness, and she terminated the interview.

Receiver Lyons of the Oberlin bank, which recently closed its doors, said last night that he would leave for Cleveland this morning, where criminal proceedings will be taken against Mrs. Chadwick. He said he had been in communication with Prosecutor Sullivan of Cleveland and that developments in the bank's case against Mrs. Chadwick might be looked for. As to the exact nature of these he declined to make a statement. Asked if any communication had been held with Mr. Carnegie here in this city, he admitted that certain communications had been passed.

This same authority said that the Ohio proceedings would be in the nature of action on the charge of forgery.

It has been learned on the best authority that in the communications in New York between Mr. Carnegie and representatives of the Oberlin bank Mr. Carnegie denied absolutely that he had signed the notes which have figured in the case as the Carnegie notes and denied that he knows or ever saw Mrs. Chadwick.

Inquiry made as to whether the charges of forgery would be based on the Carnegie notes, the reply was that they would be made on these and some other papers given as securities for loans.

Mrs. Chadwick is occupying one of the scantily furnished cells in the Tombs, as after a fruitless search for bail her attorneys gave up the fight.

An Elyria (O.) dispatch says that the grand jury adjourned last night after indicting Mrs. Chadwick on the charge of having obtained money under false pretenses in Lorraine county. Oberlin is in Lorain county.

President Beckwith is said to have made a secret confession, further implicating Mrs. Chadwick.

Says She Is Mme. Devere.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Alice M. York, who lives at 1030 Geary street, says she is a sister of Mrs. Chadwick. She declares Mrs. Chadwick is the notorious Mme. Devere and in former years was known under many aliases, and at one time, while unmarried, was tried on a charge of forgery and acquitted. Mrs. York is a widow with two daughters and has been living in this city for the past eighteen months. She came here from Cleveland, which for many years was her home. She frankly admitted her relationship to Mrs. Chadwick.

Bresie's Identification.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—William R. Bresie of Chicago, superintendent of the Pacific Express company, who was employed by that company in Toledo, O., when Mme. Devere was tried for forgery in 1890 and who has been summoned as a witness in the Chadwick case, said: "Cassie L. Chadwick is the same person who in 1890 as Mme. Devere was sentenced to serve nine years in the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus. Of that I am certain."

SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE.

Root and Dorlon and Vanderstuyft and Stol Now Lead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A sensational turn given to the six day bicycle race, when five teams lost a lap, materially changed the positions of the twelve teams remaining in the race.

Root and Dorlon and Vanderstuyft and Stol remain in the lead, but in second place two teams instead of six are now tied. Gougoltz and Breton and Samuelson and Williams have the coveted place.

Five teams are now on even terms in the third division. Krebs and Folger, by staying with the leaders when the lap was gained, have pulled up so they have a fighting chance to get inside the money.

A terrific spurt put all the riders on edge, and last night they were watching each other closely and are prepared for any emergency. The big crowd on hand enthusiastically urged the riders to repeat the stirring burst of speed.

Eddie Root has the fever, and systematically pulls the riders around the track at a heartbreaking pace. Keegan and Limberg are showing unmistakable signs of weakening.

At an early hour the two leading teams had made 1,642 miles.

Racing at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 9.—Jockey Hildebrand resumed riding at Ascot for the first time since his bad fall on Hachmeister last week. He piloted two mounts to victory and was second on two others. Three favorites won. The best race of the day was the third, at seven furlongs. Tim Payne ruled a redhot favorite, with Ascetic, Golden Light and Dolly Welthoff well played. Nothing but a perfect ride landed Payne a winner by a head from Golden Light after a long stretch drive between the two. Dolly Welthoff was third.

Ketcham Not Guilty.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—George H. Ketcham of Toledo, O., was found not guilty of establishing a fraudulent record for his trotting stallion Cresceus at the Wichita (Kan.) track on Oct. 19, 1903, after a hearing of the case before the board of appeals of the American Trotting association here last night. The board declared that the evidence fell short of sufficiency in establishing criminal participation in the claimed fraudulent agreement for an illegitimate record so far as Mr. Ketcham was concerned.

ENTIRE FAMILY DEAD

Planter, Wife and Children Found In Burned Home.

MAY BE MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Conditions Surrounding the Crime Point Strongly to Hughes, the Father, as the Guilty Person.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 9.—Ben B. Hughes, a wealthy merchant and planter of Trenton, S. C., and entire family has been murdered and the house burned. At 5 o'clock in the morning the fire was discovered by residents living near the Hughes home, who raised an alarm. Members of the family could not be found. Investigation revealed the fact that unknown parties, believed by the tracks found to be three men, entered the house through the rear door, murdered Mrs. Hughes in her room with an ax, then went to the room occupied by the daughters, Emma, aged nineteen; Hattie, aged fourteen, and murdered them in like manner without the girls awakening.

A special train was sent to Columbia for bloodhounds to trail the murderers. Citizens are guarding the ground about the back door of the house where the tracks were found to prevent disturbing the only means of arriving at a clew.

The highest state of excitement prevails through the community.

Citizens of the town were aroused at 5 o'clock in the morning by a fire at the Hughes house, and upon reaching the scene the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to enter the burning building, and not until the fire had burned itself out and the walls had collapsed was it discovered that the family was dead.

The bodies of the two young ladies were found in their bed with the heads of both crushed in. The body of Mrs. Hughes was found in a room across the hall. Her head also was crushed, and a pillow lay over it, while the body of Hughes lay near the door with a bullet wound through the left temple. A pistol with one empty chamber lay near his right hand.

Hughes was a merchant and farmer, supposed to be prosperous. There is no reason known why he should have been murdered as he was on good terms with the white and colored people of the community. The conditions surrounding the crime all point more strongly to Hughes as the murderer of his entire family and to a subsequent suicide.

The charred remains will be placed in coffins and taken to the Baptist church of the village, where a quadruple funeral will be held.

Pure Food Bill In Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The senate held only a short session and adjourned until Monday. An attempt to secure consideration of the pure food bill was defeated by a demand of Mr. Aldrich that the bill be read at length, which brought an objection from Mr. Tillman, who did not want the time consumed. Mr. Tillman brought the case of William D. Crum, the colored man nominated for collector of Charleston, S. C., into prominence by asking for a report from the committee on judiciary as to the status of recess appointments.

Senator and Congressman Wanted.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 9.—United States Senator Mitchell has continually refused to appear in this city as a witness in the land fraud cases in answer to the requests of the prosecutors for the government. The names of Senator Mitchell and Congressman Hermann have been very prominently mentioned in connection with the cases, and to force their attendance in this city subpoenas have been issued commanding them to return to Portland from Washington to act as witnesses.

Two Brothers Drowned.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Dec. 9.—Two brothers, Charles and Carl Chisholm, aged twelve and fourteen years respectively, were drowned while skating on Salmon Falls river, and Andrew Redlow, aged fourteen, was saved from the same fate by Edward Tibbetts, who went to the lad's assistance with a long pole. Soon after Redlow had been rescued he lost consciousness and at a late hour last night had not recovered. His condition is believed to be critical.

Williamsport Banker Found Dead.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 9.—J. V. Brown, one of the wealthiest men in this city, president of the Williamsport Water company and also president of one of the local banks, was found dead in bed. He had been ill for several months. Heart disease is supposed to have caused death.

New Jersey Girl Gets a Title.

FLORENCE, Italy, Dec. 9.—Miss Martina Potter Jones, daughter of Dr. J. D. Jones of New Jersey, was married to the Marquis Lanza d'Ajeta. The bride was accompanied to the altar by her mother and her brother.

Soldier Found In River.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 9.—The body of Thomas White, a soldier, who was assistant custodian of Memorial hall at West Point, was found off the wharf at Highland Falls. He disappeared last Saturday night.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 9, 1904

Attracting attention isn't necessarily attracting trade. The claims that clinch the bargain—the talk that sells because of its earnestness is the quality that counts. The ad that forgets cleverness; forgets the greatness of the firm name; forgets everything but the merit of the goods it proclaims, is the ad that fills its mission.—Ex.

It may not be amiss at this time to call the attention of Congressman Fowler to the fact that Plainfield needs a suitable postoffice building. Senator Kean introduced a bill at the last session asking for an appropriation of $100,000 for the erection of a government building here. His Plainfield constituents expect him to use due diligence in bringing up the measure at an early date and it is to be hoped that Congressman Fowler will interest himself in the matter.

OFFICERS NOMINATED FOR IONA COUNCIL

WILL BE ELECTED DECEMBER 21 AND INSTALLED AT JANUARY MEETING.

At a meeting of Iona Council, Wednesday evening, the usual business was transacted and these nominations were made, from which officers will be elected on December 21: Prophetess, Miss Mamie Clark; Pocohontas, Mrs. George Newton; Wenonah, Mrs. William Newcorn, Miss Viola Hallard and Miss Mary Fitzsimmons; keeper of records, Miss Lavinia Holstein; collector of wampum, Mrs. Sadie Bowman; Powhatan, Mr. Samuel Montrose; trustee, Miss Ella Sebring.

Arrangements were begun and a committee appointed for the public installation, and celebration of the fourteenth anniversary of the order on January 4. On this occasion the officers elected on December 23 will be installed and appropriate exercises to the anniversary will take place. An interesting programme is being arranged to which the public is welcome.

AMUSEMENTS.

There remains but little opportunity to see Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company in Ibsen's fascinating drama, "Hedda Gabler," which will end its limited run at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, tomorrow, and be succeeded on Monday, by a new drama, "Leah Kleschna," which for some time has been in preparation, and which is looked forward to as one of the most notable events of the season in New York. This new play, which is by C. M. S. McLellan, is a drama of modern life, with scenes laid in Paris and near Neustadt, Austria. In it Mrs. Fiske will play the role of a young woman, the daughter of a criminal, brought up by him to follow in his footsteps. She is the heroine of a strange romance which ends happily. It is a strong objective drama, and is not of the problem type, although its story incidentally illustrates a theory for the solution of a social question of prime interest. Purely as a play, "Leah Kleschna," according to those who know of it, is bound to excite great attention for its originality of treatment and exceptional dramatic power. The part that Mrs. Fiske will play, as may be imagined, is absolutely unlike any other part of the many in which she has been seen.

Mr. and Mrs. George Whitley, of Essex street, have returned from several days' stay in New York.

GAME BOARD LIKELY TO REMIT A $20 FINE

SECRETARY JOHNSON SO WROTE REGARDING MARTIN CASE.

In a letter received by former Senator Charles A. Reed from Percy H. Johnson, secretary of the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission, it is explained that without doubt a resolution will be passed by the board at its next regular meeting remitting the fine of $20 imposed on Mr. Reed's client, Theodore J. Martin, for keeping in captivity three squirrels.

Mr. Johnson's letter also included a declaration concerning L. U. Wyckoff, of this place, who, as deputy fish and game warden, had arrested Martin for keeping the squirrels. Wyckoff, at a later date, had caused to be published a story that he was tired of serving as a deputy and had tried to resign, but could not get Warden Charles M. Hawkins to accept his resignation. Wyckoff said he wanted to give public notice that he would no longer act as an officer.

Referring to his claim, Mr. Johnson, in his letter to Mr. Reed, said that Wyckoff never sent his resignation to Hawkins, and that Wyckoff's commission had been revoked by the commission. Mr. Johnson referred to the arrest of Martin in an uncomplimentary manner, so far as Wyckoff was concerned in it.

The criticism, it is believed, was due to the fact that half the fine imposed upon prisoners goes to the deputy making the arrest. Martin, it seems, got the pet squirrels from Mrs. James Negley. Martin knew of the law against keeping them, and thinking that the change of ownership removed the immunity from the law's provisions, consulted Mr. Reed, who advised him that the law was not aimed to cover his case. It was then that Wyckoff arrested Martin.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Smith Watson, engineer of the 4:18 afternoon train to New York, has just purchased an automatic piano-player and a few nights ago he invited the members of his crew to his home to hear the instrument. All were much pleased with the programme of music. Mr. Watson has been in the employ of the New Jersey Central over twenty-five years and for many years he has run the same train. He is popular with railroad men. At his home he has one of the best gardens in the State and during the summer time devotes his spare minutes in raising vegetables.

Sigurd Brauner, the humorist, who gave an entertainment in the chapel of the Presbyterian church, last evening, was liked by everyone. The chpael was crowded and Mr. Brauner kept them laughing all the time. He took the part of all the characters in Rip VanWinkle to perfection and the few short stories after this were also very comical.

A petition has been made out and sent to the Central Railroad by some property-owners living near the Chestnut street crossing that gates be placed at that crossing as it is now used a great deal by the employes of the Levering & Garrigues plant, and not having gates makes passing over the crossing dangerous.

Mrs. Robert S. Pierce will entertain the Friendship Circle at her home in New Market next Wednesday afternoon.

Holy baptism will be held in the Presbyterian church at the Sunday morning service.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Even more successful than its predecessors, if such a thing was possible, was the third of the series of the K. O. G. Club's winter dances, which was held last night in the Fanwood fire house. From 9 o'clock until a late hour the club members and their friends enjoyed the mazy waltz and two step, the only intermission being a short hour at midnight, when refreshments were served. Friends were present from Plainfield, Westfield and the village. The music, which was enjoyed so much, was furnished by Suhr's orchestra.

Tonight marks the closing of the week night meetings of the two weeks' revival services which have been held in the Methodist church. No meeting will be held tomorrow night. Last night's meeting was well attended, the spiritual interest which has been awakened in the church and town by Rev. Mr. Coon's work is most encouraging, and a number have signified their intention of leading a better life and become identified with the church and its work.

Anyone looking for bargains in holiday goods in the fancy work line, should attend the cake and fancy goods sale to be held by the women of All Saints' church at The Homestead tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 10.

The weekly reading and study meeting of the Amity Club was held last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Great improvements have been made in the property purchased recently by F. O. Lounsbury from Lewis Meeker. Besides grading the lawn and building a modern porch on the north and west sides of the house, Mr. Lounsbury has also erected a pigeon house and henery, also an extensive apiary.

The Royal Arcanum has grown rapidly in New Jersey under the leadership of Grand Regent Washburne. November 1 there were 23,184 members. The grand regent has asked the members to make it 25,000 by the end of his term, March 31, 1905. Branches of the order are located in nearly every State in the Union and throughout Canada. November 1 there were 2,125 councils with a total membership of 308,597. During the twenty-seven years of the order's existence, it has paid out more than $80,000,000 in the beneficiaries of deceased members, and the reseve fund now amounts to $2,063,757.31.

The Ideal Outing Place.

The soil of Lakewood, which consists mainly of porous sand and gravel, besides rendering the air delightfully dry and healthful, makes it possible by furnishing an almost perfect system of natural drainage, to keep the roads in and around the town in unsurpassed condition. Delightful drives lead to Point Pleasant, ten miles distant, Toms River and the Deserted River of Allaire. In another direction is a drive to Pine Park which is excelled by few places in attractiveness. Multitudes of walks and rambles also have careful attention. Dry and well kept gravel walks, with rustic bridges and resting places at frequent intervals, skirt the borders of Lake Carasaljo and the circuit of the lake is one of the most charming walks in the vicinity. The many facilities for out-door sports and recreations, together with its mild and pleasant winter climate have made Lakewood justly popular. An interesting descriptive booklet on Lakewood, containing information as to the rates and accommodations at the numerous hotels and boarding houses, has been published by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and may be had for the asking. Write to C. M. Burt, General Passenger Agent, 143 Liberty street, New York city.

With 300 members of the Children of Mary in attendance, beside many other parishioners, the observance of the golden jubilee of the Immaculate Conception was concluded with a service at St. Mary's church last evening. It was an impressive one from several points of view, particularly the appearance of the Children of Mary, who were gowned in white and marched into the edifice in a body. The altar was appropriately embellished for the occasion.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Father Egan and related to the Immaculate Conception spiritual nature, she is withal an intensely practical person. She keeps close watch of current affairs and acquaints herself with the world's doings. She is, moreover, a patriotic citizen of her native State and of her adopted city, contributing generously of her means toward their material welfare and upbuilding.

"I pass now to a consideration of the precepts and principles of Christian Science.

"So far as Christian Science has a creed, it is found in the Tenets of the Mother Church, which constitute its declaration of faith. All who become members of this church must solemnly subscribe to these tenets. They are as follows:

"1. As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life.

"2. We acknowledge and adore one supreme and infinite God;—we acknowledge one Christ—His Son, Christ Jesus; the Holy Ghost or divine Comforter; and man as his image and likeness.

"3. We acknowledge God's forgiveness of sin in the destruction of sin, and the spiritual understanding that evil is unreal, hence not eternal. But the belief in sin is punished so long as it lasts.

"4. We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine, efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Wayshower.

"5. We acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life, and Love as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in the healing of the sick and the overcoming of sin and death. Also, that the crucifixion of Jesus and His resurrection served to elevate faith and understanding to perceive eternal Life—the allness of Spirit and the nothingness of matter.

"6. We solemnly promise to strive, watch, and pray for that Mind to be in us which was also in Christ Jesus; to love one another; and to be meek, merciful, just, and pure."

(Copyrighted and used by permission of Reverend Mary Baker G. Eddy, the author.)

"I will say with reference to the third tenet that the sense in which evil is here defined to be unreal is briefly this, that it is not created by God. He never sent it into the world. It has no place in the eternal realm of infinite Truth where all is pure and holy. Therefore Christian Science places it on the human plane. On this plane it is real. So real that the Bible was sent to awaken the world out of its sinful condition. So real that Jesus Christ was sent to redeem the world by pointing the way out of sin. Sin is real as a human belief, but not as a divine fact. It is temporal because subject to destruction. If it were real in the sense that it is eternal it never could be destroyed, in which case mankind would be in a hopeless plight. In this sense and this sense only is sin here defined to be unreal.

"Mrs. Eddy is the author of these tenets. No one can read them without becoming aware that every person who subscribes to them adopts the Bible as his guide and as the Word of God. It cannot, therefore, be truthfully charged that Christian Scientists are unbelievers in the Scriptures. The fact is, they are ardent believers in the Bible, reading and studying it daily, and making it their constant companion. An intelligent perusal of these tenets leads to the following clear deductions: The absolute supremacy of God; the divinity of the Christ; that there is but one Christ; the foregiveness of sin through the destruction of sin; the atonement for sin and all of its consequences through unity with God the Father; or in other words, through obedience to His divine law; salvation from sin, sickness and death; that this salvation is free to all; that the spiritual man, as God's universal and eternal son, occupies a relationship to God that can never, in any true sense of that relationship, be severed or destroyed; that this man as God's image and likeness can no more be destroyed than can God Himself be destroyed; that if this man could be destroyed, he would not be the image and likeness of God in any correct sense of the meaning of these words, and the declaration of Genesis that God made man in His own image and likeness would hence be a falsity.

"The sixth and last tenet comprehends all the preceding tenets. The solemn admonition to strive and pray for the Mind of Christ is a call to live the highest possible Christian life. He who attains to that altitude of living wherein he has in him the same Mind that was in Christ Jesus is surely a Christian. He who earnestly strives and prays for that Mind is surely, to that extent and in that sense, leading a Christian life, though he may yet have to travel a long way before reaching the high goal. Step by step, he may climb the ladder whose top marks the full measure of the stature of manhood in Christ Jesus.

"This tenet is a re statement in almost exact words of Paul's injunction to the Philippians, wherein he commanded them to have in themselves the same Mind that was also in Christ Jesus.

"I now wish to speak of Jesus' teaching with reference to healing sickness. He sent forth the twelve to preach and to heal the sick. He gave them a commandment, called by some Bible commentators his Great Commission. In Matthew 10th, this commandment is thus recorded:

" 'Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into the city of the Samaritans enter ye not; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

" 'And as ye go preach, saying, The Kingdom of heaven is at hand.

" 'Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.

" 'Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses,

" 'Nor yet scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves; for the workman is worthy of his meat.'

"This commandment is a unit. It is not two commandments. There is in this language no warrant for any attempt to separate the commandment by declaring that the part relating to preaching was to be perpetuated, but the part relating to healing the sick was to be put aside, as having reference only to the time in which, and those to whom, it was given. After his resurrection and just before his ascension Jesus gave to the same disciples to whom he gave his first great commandment (excepting Judas Iscariot who had betrayed him) a final commandment. This constitutes the two last verses of the Book of Matthew:—

" 'Go yet therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

" 'Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.'

"This language is broad and unqualified. It comprehends all the commandments previously given to his disciples, and this, of course, includes his first great commandment. According to Mark's gospel he commands his disciples to preach this gospel to 'every creature.' This is a plain and unmistakable direction or instruction. Let me plainly ask: When was it ever repealed, countermanded, qualified, or changed in any manner, by Jesus or any one else of those having biblical authority to teach or preach? Where is the record thereof? We declare, therefore, on the most explicit biblical authority, that the part of the great commandment relating to healing the sick was as imperative as that pertaining to preaching. Healing sickness is, then, an essential and indispensable part of Christ's gospel. No right exists for the effort to put aside Jesus' commandment to heal the sick and to heal according to his teachings and his methods of healing, without drugs, surgery or any material remedies or appliances. The same divine power that healed in Jesus' time heals today, so far as it is understood and practiced. There is but one Truth, and that Truth is eternal, unchangeable. The healing Christ never withdrew himself from the world. Jesus declared as the solemn and awful conclusion of his final commandment: 'And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.'

"May I not, then, appeal to all good people, of every belief or sect, to aid us in spreading this healing and saving Gospel? May I not deeply, earnestly, and in the most fraternal spirit, ask you to rejoice with us that God in these latter days, is sending around the world a mighty current of healing truth, and may I not ask you to unite your voice with ours in pleading for a higher and more general recognition of God as all-power, and of all that is opposed to Him as baseless and impotent before His almightiness?

"May I ask if the day has gone by when God should cease to be almighty? when human error—sin—should no longer be overcome and destroyed? when sickness, sorrow, misery, and distress, should not longer be striven against until they are annihilated? I ask, in all sincerity and candor, has the healing and saving Christ been withdrawn from human reach because there is no longer need of such a Christ? And, in this sense, has the day of healing miracles passed because there is now no necessity for them? As Christian Scientists we maintain, however, that divine healing is miraculous only as it is not understood. All true healing is done through the understanding of ever-operative law.

"I will close by asking your attention while I read a brief extract from the preface to our text-book, as it aptly epitomizes what I have endeavored to say:—

" 'The physical healing of Christian Science results now, as in Jesus' time, from the operation of divine Principle, before which sin and disease lose their reality in human consciousness, and so disappear as naturally and necessarily as darkness gives place to

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

There was a lot of horse-play that night, in which some of the green boys were roughly handled. They told me, I remember, that all new recruits had to fight a duel; but when they gave me the choice of weapons I was well content. I had the sure eye of my father, and the last time I had fenced with him, there at home, he said my arm was stronger and quicker than his had ever been. Indeed, I was no sooner tall enough to swing a sword than he began teaching me how to use it. In the wood back of the barracks that night, they learned I was not a man to be fooled with. The tall sergeant who stood before me saw his sword go flying in the gloom the second thrust he made at me, and ran for his life, amid roars of laughter. I had no lack of friends after that day.

COME ANOTHER STEP AN' I'LL LET THE MOONLIGHT THROUGH YE.

It was a year of surprises in the northern army, and D'ri was the greatest of all. That long, wiry, sober-faced Yankee conquered the smartness of the new camp in one decisive and immortal victory. At first they were disposed to poke fun at him.

"Looks a little tired," said the sergeant of the guard.

"Needs rest—that's what 's matter o' him," said the captain.

"Orter be turned out t' grass a leetle while," the adjutant suggested.

The compliments he failed to hear soon came to him indirectly, and he had much to put up with. He kept his temper and smoked thoughtfully, and took it all in good part. The night after he came they put him on guard duty—a greenhorn, with no knowledge of any orders but gee and haw. They told him he should allow nobody to pass him while on duty, but omitted to mention the countersign. They instructed him in the serious nature of his task, adding that his failure to comply with orders would incur the penalty of death. D'ri looked very sober as he listened. No man ever felt a keener sense of responsibility. They intended, I think, to cross the lines and take his gun away and have fun with him, but the countersign would have interfered with their plans.

D'ri went to his post a little after sundown. The guard was posted. The sergeant, with his party of six, started back to the guard-house, but they never got there. They went as far as D'ri. He stood with his gun raised.

"Come another step," said he, "an' I'll let the moonlight through ye."

They knew he meant it, and they stood still.

"Come for'ard—one et a time," said D'ri "Drop yer guns 'n' set down. Ye look tired."

They did as he commanded, for they could see he meant business, and they knew he had the right to kill.

Another man came along shortly.

"Halt! Who comes there?" D'ri demanded.

"Friend with the countersign," he replied.

"Can't fool me," said D'ri. "Come up here 'n' set down 'n' mek yerself t' hum. Drop yer gun fust. Drop it, er I 'll drop you."

He dropped his gun promptly and accepted the invitation to sit down. This last man had some arguments to offer, but D'ri stood sternly and made no reply.

At 11 o'clock Capt. Hawkins sent out inquiries for the sergeant of the guard and his relief. He could find nobody who had seen them since dark. A corporal was also missing. The captain sent a man to look for them. He got as far as D'ri and sat down. They waited for him in vain. The captain stood looking into the darkness and wondering about his men. He conferred with Adjutant Church. Then he set out with two men to go the rounds. They got as far as D'ri.

"Halt! Who comes there?" he demanded.

"Grand rounds," was the answer of the captain.

"Lay down yer arms," said D'ri, "an' come up here 'n' set down.

"Have n't time," said the captain, failing at first to grasp the situation.

"You tek time, er I 'll put a hole 'n yer jacket," said D'ri.

One of the privates turned quickly and ran. D'ri sent a shot after him, that only grazed a leg, and he kept on. Then D'ri gave all attention to his new prisoners. They could see no amusement in dodging bullets; they threw their arms on the side-hill and sat down with the others.

The captain swore as he submitted.

"Don't rile yerself," said D'ri, "you need rest."

"No, I don't, nuther," said the captain.

"Ye 'll hev t' hev it, anyway," said D'ri.

"This beats h—!" the captain answered, with a laugh.

A feeling of alarm began to spread. The adjutant was standing in a group of men at headquarters soon after midnight. They were ears under in the mystery. The escaped soldier came running toward them out of the dark. He was breathing heavily; his leg was bleeding and sore.

"Wall, what is it?" the adjutant demanded.

"D'ri!" the man gasped, and dropped down exhausted.

"D'ri?" the officer inquired.

"D'ri!" the man repeated. "It 's thet air man they call D'ri. He 's roped in everybody thet come his way. They 're all settin' on the hill up there beside him. Won't let a man move when he gits him."

The adjutant snikered as he spat an oath. He was made of iron, that man Church.

"Post a guard around him," said he, turning to an officer. "The dem fool 'd tek the hull garrison ef we did n't. I 'll go 'n' try to pull him off his perch."

"He 'll lay ye up," said the returned private, baring his bloody leg. "Eff ye try t' fool with him ye 'll limp. See what he done t' me."

The adjutant swore again.

"Go t' the hospital," he commanded.

Then he strode away, but he did not return that night.

The moon was shining as the adjutant came in sight and hailed the group of prisoners.

"What ye settin' there fer?" he shouted.

"You 'll know 'n a minute," said one of them.

"Halt! Who comes there?" D'ri demanded.

"Friend with—"

"Don't ye purten' t' be my friend," D'ri answered. "'T won't work. Come up here 'n' set down."

"Stop foolin' man," said the adjutant.

"I ain't a-foolin'."

"He ain't a-foolin'; he means business," said one of the prisoners.

"Don't ye tamper with me. I 'll teach you—" the adjutant threatened.

"Ain't a-goin t' tamper with ye a minute," said D'ri. "If ye don't set down here quick, I 'll put a hole in ye."

"Lunatic! wha' d' ye mean?"

"I mean t' turn ye out t' grass a leetle while," D'ri answered soberly, "Ye look tired."

The officer made at him, but in a flash D'ri had knocked him down with his musket. The adjutant rose and, with an oath, joined the others.

Dunno but he 'll tek the hull garrison 'fore sunrise," he muttered. "Let 'em come—might es well hev comp'ny."

A little before daylight a man sick in the hospital explained the situation. He had given D'ri his orders. They brought him out on a stretcher. The orders were rescinded, the prisoners released.

Capt. Hawkins, hot to his toes with anger, took D'ri to headquarters. Gen. Brown laughed heartily when he heard the facts and told D'ri he was made of the right kind of stuff.

"These greenhorns are not nice to play with," he said. "They 're like some guns—loaded when you don't expect it. We 've had enough skylarking."

And when the sick man came out of hospital he went to the guard-house.

After we had shown our mettle the general always had a good word for D'ri and me, and he put us to the front in every difficult enterprise.

CHAPTER VI.

We had been four months in Ogdensburg, waiting vainly for some provocation to fight. Our own drilling was the only sign of war we could see on either side of the river. At first many moved out of the village, but the mill was kept running, and after a little while they began to come back. The farms on each side of the river looked as peaceful as they ever looked. The command had grown rapidly. Thurst Miles of my own neighborhood had come to enlist shortly after D'ri and I enlisted, and was now in my company.

In September, Gen. Brown was ordered to the western frontier, and Capt. Forsyth came to command us. Early in the morning of October 2, a man came galloping up the shore with a warning, saying that the river was black with boats a little way down. Some of us climbed to the barracks roof, from which we could see and count them. There were 40, with two gunboats. Cannonading began before the town was fairly awake. First a big ball went over the house-tops, hitting a cupola on a church roof and sending bell and timbers with a crash into somebody's dooryard. Then all over the village hens began to cackle and children to wail. People came running out of doors half dressed. A woman, gathering chips in her dooryard, dropped them, lifted her dress above her head, and ran for the house. Unable to see her way, she went around in a wide circle for a minute or two, while the soldiers were laughing. Another ball hit a big water-tank on top of the lead works. It hurled broken staves and a big slop of water upon the house-tops, and rolled a great iron hoop over roofs into the street below, where it rolled on, chasing a group of men, who ran for their lives before it. The attack was an odd sort of a comedy all through, for nobody was hurt, and all were frightened save those of us who were amused. Our cannon gave quick reply, and soon the British stopped firing and drew near. We knew that they would try to force a landing, and were ready for them. We drove them back, when they put off, and that was the end of it.

light, and sin to reformation. Now, as then, his mighty works are not supernatural, but supremely natural. They are the sign of Immanuel, or 'God with us'—a divine influence ever present in human consciousness, and repeating itself, coming now again, as was promised foretime.

"'To preach deliverance to the captives (of sense),

And recovery of sight to the blind,

To set at liberty them that are bruised.'—Page xi.

"I read also the closing paragraph of this preface as showing the Christly spirit in which this book was given to the world:—

"'In the spirit of Christ's charity,—as one who 'hopeth all things, endureth all things,' and is joyful to bear consolation in the sorrowing, and healing to the sick,—she commits these pages to honest seekers for Truth.'"

HEROES OF GRIDIRON AT CITY HIGH SCHOOL

THOSE WHO HAVE PLAYED AND WHO WILL PLAY NEXT YEAR.

As far as can be learned the Plainfield High School will have the strongest team on the gridiron of any of the local schools next year. No material is in sight for a team at North Plainfield High School and the Leal's eleven will be a light one, while the P. H. S. players will all be in the game next season with the exception of Harry Brager, the right guard, and Emil Jann and George Bentley, the two tackles.

William Douglass will captain the team next season. He has made a capable engineer this year, and will undertake the position again next season. He played a fast game behind the line, and with his brother, Jack Douglass, and Ralph Taylor, made up a back field which was hard to stop when they got going. At quarterback, Williams was in the game all the time and he ran his team with a great deal of discretion. Freeman, at guard, was one of the strong points of the team, as was also Bogart at center. Both will be in the game next year. The ends were the weakest points on the line. Though they were good tacklers, their weight was against them in breaking up interference, and with the exception of Rockwell, who is a good runner, they were slow.

The school will have to find two new tackles, and a guard, next year, but with the exception of these players, the line up will be practically the same. Lindsay Best, of the faculty, has been coaching the eleven for the last season, and his work has been appreciated and effectual.

Speaking in general of the work of the Plainfield High School football team, it may be said that their strong point was end runs, the result of excellent interference. In line plunges, Ralph Taylor did great work, but when long distance was needed it was the two Douglass brothers who were called upon. The line as a rule held well, and it was very infrequently that the team was carried off its feet by superior weight, and speed.

TWO SENATORS WANT RED BANK RESERVATION

HAVE INTRODUCED SIMILAR BILLS BEFORE CONGRESS.

Senator Dryden and Representative Loudenslager have introduced similar bills in the U. S. Senate and House regarding the military reservation at the site of the Red Bank battlefield. A practically similar bill has been introduced at other sessions of Congress. The bill proposes to grant to the county of Gloucester "so much of the land, not exceeding twenty acres, with the appurtenances and appendages thereto belonging, situated on the south bank of the Delaware river, in said county, comprising such portion of the United States military reservation of Red Bank, N. J., as can be plainly shown and identified by the Historical society of Gloucester County as being the site of the battlefield of Red Bank, and the relics and ruins of Fort Mercer, of Revolutionary fame, where General Greene, with a force of about 450 American troops, on October 22, 1777, successfully routed the assault of Count Carl Donop, commanding a force of 2,500 Hessians, be and is hereby granted and conveyed to the said county, through the Board of Freeholders, to have and to hold as a public park in commemoration of said historical event."

It will be remembered that under the present law the Secretary of War has authority to make such grants to historical societies, but not to counties, so it has been found necessary for the passage of a special act such as is proposed in the bills named.

Senator Dryden has filed a petiton from the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian church of Metuchen, asking for the unseating of Senator Smoot. He has also filed petitions from the political study clubs of Montclair and Short Hills, asking for the striking out of the word "sex" in the omnibus statehood bill.

Representative Wood, who succeeded Judge Lanning, has recommended the re-appointment of Reuben Abel as postmaster at Bernardsville, Somerset County.

COLORED FLOCK EJECTED

Alex. Kane Gets Possession of Fillmore Baptist Church.

SHERIFF CORIELL ACTS

Congregation Loses Its Furniture—Other Colored Organizations Want the Edifice.

Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, Deputy Sheriff Peter V. Weaver, five truckmen with two furniture vans furnished by William Hand & Son and Alex. Kane, owner, appeared at the Fillmore Baptist church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock for the purpose of dispossessing the colored congregation that has met in the edifice for some time. The suit of ejectment was started in the Supreme Court at Trenton and Sheriff Coriell was directed to take action yesterday. The writ was served on Harry Connett, treasurer of the church, but aside from notifying Deacons Robinson and Randolph of the intended action, he took no part in the proceedings.

Alexander Kane, the owner of the property, who previously gave the congregation time to remove the furnishings, afterward secured an attachment for debt and yesterday the furniture was moved to the Kelly house across the street from the church, where it will remain for the present.

Mr. Kane says that since purchasing the church property he has never received a penny from the congregation and he was forced to foreclose. He was represented in his action by Coddington & Swackhamer. Yesterday the key of the church was turned over to him.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, was present and intimated that he might arrange to lease the building and start a branch of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Mr. Kane has another offer from the Seventh Day Rising Sun Baptists, a new religious organization here.

A pole twelve feet long, and six inches in diameter, extending from the floor to the ceiling of the church, was the object of much curiosity. It was afterward said that the members of the congregation were frequently required to climb this pole as one of their religious duties and that this act would tend to lead them to a higher life.

Sheriff Correll carried out the first chair and Alex Kane followed him carrying the Bible. Harry Hand, under the direction of the Sheriff took charge of moving the rest of the furnishings. This is about the concluding chapter in the history of the congregation and no plans have been made for the future meeting of the members.

UNITARIAN FAIR WAS CROWNED WITH SUCCESS

WOMEN'S CHRISTMAS BAZAAR A PROFITABLE UNDERTAKING.

Well repaid for their efforts, the women of All Souls' Unitarian church have reason to be greatly gratified over the result of their Christmas fair which came to a successful close yesterday afternoon. Tasteful decorations, attractive articles, and interested buyers combined in making the bazaar one of the best social and financial events of the season.

All yesterday afternoon the rooms were well filled and the many useful and ornamental articles contributed by the members of the church were disposed of. Between $300 and $400 was realized by their sale and from the proceeds of the supper which was served Thursday evening.

The committee in charge of the fair consisted of Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Mrs. Gates Willard and Mrs. Leonard.

Two Adjourned Council Sessions.

There will be two adjourned meetings of the 1904 Common Council this month. The first will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 23, and the other one on Friday evening, Dec. 30. It is hoped to conclude all of the remaining business for the year at the meeting on the thirtieth.

Coming Nuptial Event.

The engagement is announced of Miss Amelia Bremmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bremmer, of Greenbrook road, and Robert Laramour, of West Sixth street, this city. The wedding will be celebrated in January.

HOOLEY NOT FIGHTING LAWSON, HE DECLARES

PLAINFIELD BROKER SAYS HIS HOUSE IS ON FRIENDLY TERMS WITH HIM.

Following the copper slump early in the week, Wall Street was greatly stirred yesterday through a published statement quoting the president of a prominent copper company, issued by Hooley, Learned & Co., of which Edwin S. Hooley, of this city, is the senior member. It was as follows:

"Without entering into any questions at issue between Mr. Lawson and Mr. Rogers, it is a fact that Mr. Rogers has introduced into the management of the Amalgamated Copper Co., the Standard Oil Co's. methods. For this reason Amalgamated Copper is making more money now than at any time in its history. I believe that the company will have on hand, January 1, 1906, including its cash assets and the profits for the coming year, substantially $33 per share, which is the price at which Mr. Lawson says the stock will sell."

Mr. Hooley's house has always transacted a great deal of business for Thomas W. Lawson and it was on more than friendly terms with him. Brokers accepted the statement as a significance that it now opposes him on copper matters and that their friendly relations have ceased.

Mr. Hooley, however, spoke as follows in an interview yesterday: "My firm are brokers doing business for both bulls and bears. We have no interest in the market whatever other than the execution of orders given us by our customers. I communicated with my partner, Mr. Learned, in Boston, and was requested by him and Thomas W. Lawson to say that the friendly relations that have existed for over twenty years still continue."

FAIR ESTATE'S SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY

ABRAM G. NELSON AND "MAYOR BILL" SMITH MAKE PURCHASES.

At a sale of furs and laces of the personal property of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, in the Knickerbocker Art Galleries, New York, yesterday afternoon, $4,460.20 was realized. A silver tray was sold for $330. A broad tail jacket of Mrs. Fair's brought $160.

Among the buyers were Judge Dugro, ex-Judge W. M. K. Olcott, Mayor "Bill" Smith, a Fair heir, who bought a mink scarf for $132.50, and Abram G. Nelson, a brother of Mrs. Fair, who purchased silver candelabra for $340.

The diamonds and pearls in the collection will be sold today.

DOUBLE SURPRISE PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester B. Dennis Hosts at Jolly Gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester B. Dennis, of Westervelt avenue, succeeded in a delightful manner, in surprising each other last evening on the occasion of Mrs. Dennis' birthday. Both had planned independently of each other, a surprise party, and when the two parties met, the surprise was genuine, not only to the host and hostess, but to those invited. In all there were about fifty guess present.

Mr. Dennis had a birthday about two weeks ago, and his wife, thinking the surprise would be more successful, decided to hold the affair on her own birthday. The husband, entirely unaware of his wife's intention sent out other invitations, many of the guests receiving invitations from both Mr. and Mrs. Dennis.

The event last night was a thoroughly enjoyable one, and music, vocal and instrumental, made the evening pass in a delightful manner. Naylor's orchestra furnished a pleasing programme of popular selections. Refreshments were served in the latter part of the evening.

For State Teachers' Certificates.

Twenty-eight candidates for State teachers' certificates presented themselves at the opening of the examinations at the State house at Trenton Thursday. There are in all about 150 appointed candidates. The examinations are for first, second and third grades and special certificates. The subjects taken up were plain and solid geometry, chemistry, botany and literature.

NO ACTION IN BARRY CASE

F. C. Hinni, Jr., Says He Guided the Auto.

BLAMES THE VICTIM

Man Declares That Lad Darted in Front of Auto—No Suit to be Brought.

A partial denial of the facts surrounding the automobile accident to Francis Barry and the happenings immediately afterward, was made to Chief Marshal Weiss yesterday, by Frederick C. Hinni, Jr., of East Orange, who was guiding the machine when it ran the boy down. He called at borough police headquarters for the first time since the affair and declared that he remained away upon the advice of counsel, no charge of any kind having been preferred against him.

Hinni said that he was sending the auto along at a moderate pace on Somerset street and that near Greenbrook road he attempted to pass a slow-going wagon. As he was abreast of the horses, the Barry boy darted in front of them, directly against his machine, and was thrown down. Hinni and a friend picked him up and at the time he did not appear to be as badly hurt as he was.

The boy, Hinni said, told them he lived in a house directly opposite and they took him to it, leaving him on the porch. There was no attempt to escape the consequences of the affair, Hinni said, and he regretted the fact that he did not discern the severity of the boy's injuries.

Before leaving town, Hinni conferred with William Barry, the father of the boy, and it is understood that no proceedings, either criminal or civil, will be started against him. The borough police are powerless to act unless Barry prefers formal charges.

R. R. ESCAPES TAXES AT ELIZABETH 'TIS SAID

JERSEY CENTRAL HIT AT TAXATION COMMISSION HEARING.

Newark, Orange and Elizabeth interests were represented yesterday at a meeting in Newark, N. J., of the New Jersey Equal Taxation Commission, and the trend of the arguments was that unjustifiable discrimination against private citizens and in favor of railroads exists. All the speakers urged that there should be one rate for all property in the various municipalities of the State.

Heading the Elizabeth delegation was Mayor Patrick J. Kyan. The chief argument was made by for Judge Patrick H. Gilhooley, who read a brief which had been approved by the city Council and officials of Elizabeth. He showed that in 1884 the State Board of Assessors placed a tax valuation of $1,261,630.85 upon the second class property of the Central Railroad in Elizabeth. In 1903 the same Board valued the same property at only $768,659, a decrease of $493,-961.85. In the latter year and in 1903 the railroad built extensive shops and other works in Elizabethport, and in 1903 the entire assessed valuation was $1,169,482, or $92,138.85 less than in 1884, despite the addition of land and buildings acquired by the company since 1884.

No Turkey Supper at Trinity.

Contrary to their usual custom, there will be no turkey supper at Trinity church this year. Those in charge of the affair have decided to raise money by a chain method, in which all the members of the church who have aided in making the supper a success in former years, will take part. It is thought that by this method, more money can be raised than by the turkey supper. The money will be for missions.

Whist Club Entertained.

The Bridge Whist Club was entertained last evening at the home of George W. VanBoskerck, of West Seventh street. There were four tables and prizes were won by Mrs. A. F. H. Streuli and Edward M. Van Buren. The club meets every two weeks.

WORK FOR LEGISLATURE

Important Measures to be Considered at the Session.

CONVENES JANUARY 10

Automobile Bills and Charity Association Propositions—State Institutions.

Nothing in connection with the presidency of the Senate, the speakership of the House and the leadership of both branches of the Legislature, except the formal placing in nomination of Senators Cross, of Union, and Bradley, of Camden, and Assemblymen Avis, of Gloucester, and Duffield, of Essex, by their respective caucuses remaining to be done, interest is beginning to centre in prospective legislation.

Among the many measures to be ground in the legislative mill this coming session, starting January 10, the one of most interest to Philadelphians and New Yorkers is an amendment of the present automobile speed law. It has been found that New Yorkers and Philadelphians are great violators of the provisions of this law, and Assemblyman Scovel, of Camden, will introduce several amendments.

Scovel is father of the present law, and when it was enacted he gave way on some points to the Automobile Club of America. Now that so many violations have occurred, the law may be more drastic.

Among the many amendments proposed is one giving any constable the right to arrest without a warrant any automobilist thought to be violating the speed regulation. Heretofore a warrant has been necessary.

Automobilists will be compelled to take off all numbers but those of New Jersey licenses while traversing the State. Continued violation of the speed limitations will be followed with revocation of license.

The State Charities' Aid Association is preparing to descend upon the Legislature with some measure affecting the work in which it is engaged. Prominent among these is a plan for the abolishment of the fee system of paying sheriffs and other State and county officials. The association believes that the system which pays a county official according to the number of prisoners committed to and confined to a county jail encourages those officials to keep as many persons as possible in the prisons under their care.

The association also wants a law enacted providing for the formation of a "Governor's advisory commission," to investigate, on behalf of the governor, and report for his information and that of the committee on appropriations, the needs of the various State homes and institutions.

It also wants a law to help the families of those incarcerated to workhouses for thirty or sixty or ninety days, whereby they will be put to work and their wages sent home for the support of their families.

Another "Hangtown" bill will likely make its appearance in the Legislature, providing for one central point where all putting to death of murderers may occur. Probably with this measure there will appear another bill to make capital punishment by electricity.

The effort this year will not be directed to make the State Prison the place of execution, as Headkeeper Osborne has forestalled this move by recommending that a central plant be fixed at some lonesome place, and away from any penal institution, because of the bad affect on the prison discipline.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

Mrs. Isabelle Simonson and J. Worth Coddington Surprise Their Friends.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Isabelle Simonson, of Duer street, and J. Worth Coddington, of Somerset street, which was celebrated Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Simonson's cousin on Staten Island. Immediately after the wedding the bride and groom left for the South, where they will spend a month.

The couple is well-known in the borough. Mrs. Coddington was the widow of Albert Simonson. Her daughter, Miss Evelyn Simonson, was one of the victims of the Westfield wreck on January 27, 1903, and her death occurred a few months ago. Mr. Coddington is a brother of Former Councilman Harrison Coddington, is a veteran of the Civil War and a member of Winfield Scott Post, No 73, G. A. R.

CO. K LOSES THE TROPHY

Plainfield Military's Colors Lowered by Co. L.

REGIMENTAL SHOOT

Sergeant Hort Wins the Col. Collins' Medal for Best Individual Work on Range.

Official word was sent to Plainfield by Captain Martin today, that Company K has lost the bronze statuette trophy won by it in competition at Sea Girt last year. Through the shooting of the local militiamen on the range the past summer it was confidently expected that the trophy would remain in this city but the figures just issued show that it should now go to Company L, of Princeton. The latter secured a total percentage of .56 in the competition while Company K's is given as .53.

Company K and Company L have long been rivals in the competitive shoots and rifle work at Sea Girt and in the eyes of the State they stand even, leading the other companies. According to the official figures given in the State report both have a percentage of .81, made last summer. This is especially gratifying to Company K members inasmuch as the members have not had the experience the others have and their high standing was gained by merit alone.

Captain Martin's local report today also announced that the gold medal offered yearly by Colonel Collins, for individual high standing in range shooting, is awarded to Sergeant Nathaniel Hort, of Company K. Lieutenant A. Gibbey Spencer, of Company M, Somerville, is to get the National Rifle Association affiliated medal. He is a great favorite with the Company K boys and the news that he has been thus successful will be welcomed by them.

THOMAS WEARREN HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

HEARING IN SUIT OF BOICE, RUNYON & CO., YESTERDAY.

Thomas Wearren, who was sued by Boice, Runyon & Company, through their representative, H. H. Todd, for the value of building material purchased on October 12, 1903, is now held on $300 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The criminal case was heard at Justice Moffett's court yesterday afternoon, William Newcorn representing Mr. Wearren, and George V. Moy appearing for the State.

The evidence brought out through the two witnesses for the State, Mr. Todd and H. O. Newman, shows that on the date mentioned Wearren ordered lumber and other matreial from Boice, Runyon & Company, valued at $1,100, for which he subsequently turned over in partial payment certain property owned by him on Columbia avenue, for which he held an equity of $800. For the balance, which amounted to $300, Wearren gave his note.

Mr. Newman swore that Mr. Wearren had paid for purchases amounts equal to $3,000. The plaintiffs will attempt to prove that it was with the direct intention of swindle that Wearren made the terms with the firm on October 12. Mr. Wearren was released on bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

POLICE AFTER SCOUNDREL.

Young Colored Scamp Annoying Girls in West End.

Complaint has been preferred to the local police of the actions of a young colored man who has a habit of accosting women in the early hours of the evening at Spooner avenue and West Third street. He was especially noticeable last night in catching hold of a young girl and following her almost to her home after she screamed and ran. On telling of her experience at home a search was made for the assailant but he had disappeared.

The police have a good description of the fellow and he will be picked up on sight.

Bowen for Mexican Post.

Herbert W. Bowen, Minister to Venezuela, and brother of Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, who conducted the peace negotiations for Venezuela with the allied Powers a year ago, has the indorsement of the New York Senators, and is one of the leading candidates for the position of Ambassador to Mexico.

Thomas Flynn, of Plainfield avenue, has been spending a few days, with Raritan relatives.

"DODGER" MUST LEAVE PLAINFIELD FOREVER

POLICE ORDER BANISHMENT OF THE TROLLEY MEN'S DOG.

"Dodger," the canine pet of every employe of the Elizabeth-Plainfield division of the Public Service Corporation, has come under the ban of the law and is soon to absent himself or be absented from this end of the line. The edict has gone forth from police headquarters through the medium of Chief Kiely that "Dodger" must either be removed from Plainfield or part with his life. The trolleymen have taken it upon themselves to see that he leaves this bailiwick severely alone and will try and have him located at Elizabeth or Westfield.

"Dodger" never did claim any blue blood or exalted pedigree but his sagacity and faithfulness are almost without a peer. No one knows where he came from and no one in particular claims to own him but to the motormen and conductors he has always been as "Ownie," the famous railroad dog, was to the steam road men throughout the country. He has a habit of stowing himself away on the big through cars and riding up and down between this city and Elizabeth day after day. He is not always seen but he gets by just the same and will make a rush for the employes' lounging room at the end of each trip.

A few days ago while trotting about the Watchung avenue terminus, "Dodger" made an uncalled for attack upon Charles Messler, of this city, who claimed to the police that he was bitten. As the local ordinance is stringent in these matters the trolleymen were notified of the charge and given the preference of having "Dodger" killed or sending him away. The latter alternative was quickly accepted and "Dodger" will hereafter make Scotch Plains the limit of his western trips.

LICENSE FOR GOFF MAY BE GRANTED NOW

REPORT THAT COMMON COUNCIL MAY ACT FAVORABLY.

There is every indication that John Goff, of West Front street, will renew his application for a liquor license for his hotel with fair prospects of getting it. Certain influences have been at work, it is said, in his behalf and some believe that he will get the necessary six votes in the Common Council when the application is presented the first of the year.

It has been reported that H. D. Hibbard, the new member from the Second ward, who is a member of the Manganese Steel Safe Company, was one of those who petitioned against the granting of this license a year ago, owing to the proximity of the place to the safe works. This story is now denied and a man well-posted in city affairs says that he would not be surprised to see Mr. Hibbard favor the application, if presented. It is also said that Councilman Charles C. Randolph, the new member from the Fourth ward, is also inclined to favor it. Others who might be counted in favor of it are Frank DeW. Randolph, Stephen Higham, W. L. Gleak, and President Teiles, the last named expressing an opinion that he did not believe it to be within the province of the Common Council to compel a man to go two or three miles to get a drink if he wants it. This would give six votes for the license application if the opinion of those who are posted in municipal affairs count for anything.

No doubt influence will be used to defeat Mr. Goff in his efforts to get a license, as there was a year ago, when so many residents in the West End of the city, as well as members of Monroe Avenue church, championed by the pastor, Rev. John McMurray, took such a stand against the license. As the local "machine" seems to be out of favor with some of those in authority, it may be impossible for the members of it to secure many favors during the coming year.

JUDGESHIP FOR CROSS

Kean's Bill Would Provide a Berth for Union Man.

LIKELY TO ACCEPT IT

Senator Cross Declined Vacancy on Bench Last Year in Order to Help Senator Kean.

If the bill creating an additional Federal judge for New Jersey, which United States Senator John Kean has introduced in the Senate, becomes a law, it is taken for granted in some quarters that the new judgeship will be offered to State Senator Joseph Cross, of Union.

When Judge Andrew J. Kirkpatrick died last May the position which he left vacant on the bench was offered to Senator Cross and by him declined. In doing this the Senator intimated to his personal friends that he was influenced by two considerations. He desired, he said, to remain in the Senate and finish out his legislative career with the presidency of that body. He also said that the duties of the vcanat judgeship and the work of the court, which had grown so heavy of late, were altogether too much for one man, and he did not care to assume them. This latter objection increased the agitation for an additional Federal judge for this State, which has culminated in Senator Kean's bill.

The friends of Senator Cross say that if the new judgeship be offered to him there is no reason now why he should not accept it. The session of the Legislature will in all probability be over when, if the new judgeship is created, the time for the assumption of the duties of the office by appointee will have arrived. With two judges on the bench, the work of the court will not be so exacting as it was when Senator Cross declined the appointment.

It is said that another reason which influenced the Union Senator in arriving at the conclusion he did last spring was the fact that Senator Kean wanted his vote for re-election to the United States Senate next month. Had Mr. Cross accepted the judgeship and resigned from the State Senate, it was by no means certain, at that time, so the story goes, that his successor would be a Republican, and Mr. Kean was desirous of having with him in his Senatorial contest the State Senator from his own county. When Senator Cross announced that he would have to decline the appointment William M. Lanning, of Trenton, who then represented the Fourth District in Congress, was appointed to the vacant judgeship.

BELIEVES IN INCREASE OF ASSESSORS' SALARIES

ELSTON M. FRENCH DECLARES THE PRESENT WORK JUSTIFIES IT.

In a recent interview with Elston M. French, who was for six years assessor of the borough of North Plainfield, on the petition which is before the Common Council for an increase in the salary of the city assessors, expressed himself decidedly in favor of the raise.

"The work of the assessors," Mr. French said, "is much harder than many persons suppose. There is a vast amount of figuring to be done in making out the various percentages, which takes considerable time." Mr. French furthermore said that as a person entirely disinterested from any personal motive in the proposed raise in salary, he considers it in every way just and reasonable. "Under the new tax law," he said, "the work is made even harder than it was last year, and the different method of making assessments which is prescribed in this law, increases the assessor's duties and o ils upon his time to a considerable degree."

The petition has been referred to a committee, and will probably be acted upon near the first of the new year.

MRS. MAYBRICK'S LIFE STORY

AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND.

Rightfully or wrongfully convicted—and people are probably as sharply divided on this point today as fifteen years ago—there can be no questioning the universal interest in the personality and history of Mrs. Maybrick. A good part of the generation which saw her famous trial and conviction and was stirred to intense excitement by the campaign for her reprieve has passed away, but the public, those to whom the story is old, and those to whom it is new equally alike, are as keenly interested in the case as ever.

If any sceptic had doubted the fact, his doubts would not harve stood the test afforded by the publication of Mrs. Maybrick's prison experiences, written by herself, in the Manchester "Sunday Chronicle." Those connected with that paper are accustomed to the task of catering for the public demand. They are familiar with huge circulations which follow from the acquisition of some new feature which commends itself to a universal desire. But on this occasion the most experienced of them has to admit surprise at the result of this latest enterprise.

It is not that they did not anticipate that the publication of Mrs. Maybrick's experiences straight from her own pen would attract a large number of readers. The mistake was that, for once, they failed to estimate the extent of this increased demand. It was thought that when arrangements had been made for turning out 100,000 extra copies of the "Sunday Chronicle," the needs of the case would have been met. But the result has entirely belied this expectation. The whole of the huge issue was bought up yesterday, leaving so many unsatisfied claimants that the proprietors have been driven to the unprecedented course of reprinting the issue, and this morning the machines at the "Chronicle" office were merrily at work, turning out by the thousand copies of a paper a day old, yet in eager demand.

Some idea of the rush for the first instalment of the Maybrick autobiography may be gleaned from the letters, telegrams, and telephone messages which yesterday and today poured in from news agents in all parts of the country.

The book, to be published today, by Funk & Wagnalls Company, is the only authentic complete publication by Mrs. Maybrick of the story of her trial and imprisonment. It contains nearly three times more matter than given by her for publication serially in the press, and includes many incidents not heretofore given by her to the public.

SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE.

Riders, on Even Terms, Hold Back For Desperate Rally.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—With less than twenty hours remaining before some one of the ten teams that have survived more than 116 hours' hard riding shall have carried off the $1,500 purse in the six-day bicycle race, the motto of the little band is "Watch and wait." The leaders seem to have become convinced that for the present lap gaining is out of the question. The riders of two teams that lead in the chase for the prize keep close together and eye each other with mutual distrust. It is an equal rivalry, in which the turn of a hair may decide the outcome. With the exception of a few flurries which bring no results the wheels swing round with the tiresome regularity of a pendulum. The riders have fallen into a sullen silence. When the line of racers worms its way along nothing is heard but the whir of the machines.

Wheel linked to wheel, ten gaunt, gray faced racers plod laboriously around the bleak, barren arena of Madison Square Garden, and ten heavy breathing riders lay in troubled sleep upon their cots in the training quarters beneath the amphitheater, carefully watched by their trainers.

The riders are seldom bunched for fast speeding, but creep in unbroken Indian file round and round. The riders have settled down to a snail's pace in order to husband their energy for the trying period of twenty-four hours hence.

The race management early in the morning began a wholesale dispossess action against "never leave" spectators, Harry Pollok, backed up by a squad of fifteen policemen, started out on a campaign against "boarders." It was a difficult task to winnow the audience.

"I've been here since Sunday night, and I guess I got my money's worth," grinned one individual as he departed.

Rockowitz and Sulkins have quit the race for good, but as this team was so far behind its going or staying had no effect upon the complexion of the contest. For twelve hours they had been plugging along in a hopeless fashion.

Breton, the Frenchman, was, as usual, the rider who most frequently disturbed the loafing cyclists and carried them around the garden at a hammering pace. But for the French team the leaders might settle down to a comfortable jog and keep themselves in reserve for the critical hours at the close of the race. Breton and Gougoltz, having shaken themselves free from all the secondary teams except Williams and Samuelson, are pushing the two teams that are now fighting for first place.

At an early hour this morning the two leading teams had ridden 2,016 miles, the other teams trailing behind one, two and three laps.

Outsiders Won at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—Outsiders were again in evidence at Oakland The rain made the track somewhat muddy, and form players were at sea. Robert Mitchel, at 10 to 1, led all the way in the first race. Andvari, the favorite, failed to show any speed. Pelham, an 8 to 1 chance, beat The Mighty in the five furlong race, and Flying Torpedo, at 6 to 1, led the field in the second race.

Two Favorites at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 10.—Only two favorites won at Ascot. The last race was the biggest upset of the day. Hildebrand had the only mount of the day on Tizen, who was made a 1 to 2 choice and who was never seriously in the running. Susie Christina, at 5 to 1, proved the winner, with Landseer, at 10 to 1, second, and Patsy Brown, the heavily played second choice, third.

A Hundred Revolutions Did Not Kill.

NORTH GROSVENORDALE, Conn., Dec. 10.—Caught by his clothing in a big shaft in the North Grosvenordale cotton mills, Charles Gagnon, twenty-three years old, was whirled through the air circuitously for several moments. When the machinery of the mill was stopped Gagnon was found to be unconscious, but aside from a broken rib he was not hurt. It is estimated that he made a hundred revolutions.

Sailor Jumped to Death.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—While in a delirium John Delaney, a sailor from Binghamton, N. Y., jumped from the third story window of the Marine hospital here and received such severe injuries that he died within a few minutes. The hospital attendants heard Delaney scream and start to run down the corridor. Before he could be apprehended he had jumped through the window.

NOT WORTH ONE CENT

Chadwick Five Million Securities Called Valueless.

ROCKEFELLER'S NAME BROUGHT IN

Newton Hopes For Settlement by Dr. Chadwick, Now In Europe, but Admits His Chances of Payment Are Slim.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—According to a report here the package of securities belonging to Mrs. Chadwick and in the possession of Iri Reynolds, supposed to contain $5,000,000 worth of collateral, was opened. It is declared that, while the face value of the securities was $5,000,000, the actual value is not 1 cent. Mr. Reynolds refuses either to deny or confirm this report.

With reference to the statement of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton of Cleveland that he assisted in having introduced Mrs. C. L. Chadwick and Herbert B. Newton, though he was not well acquainted with the woman, Mr. Newton said at Boston:

"All I've got to say is this—I don't see why, simply because a man happens to be a minister of the gospel, he should not step forth in man fashion and take his medicine like the rest of us."

"Will you state just what you mean to convey?" Mr. Newton was asked.

"You may draw whatever conclusions you please," was the answer.

Asked if he entertained any bitterness toward Mrs. Chadwick, he said:

"I can truthfully say I do not. I have suffered much through this affair, but I can say with truth that I bear no malice toward any one.

"I couldn't help thinking, when reading the account of Mrs. Chadwick's troubles, that the way of the transgressor is hard. I pity her from the bottom of my heart."

Concerning the crediting of Mr. Newton with hoping for a settlement through John D. Rockefeller on the assumption that he would not wish to have his pastor's name dragged into the affair, Mr. Newton said:

"There is no truth in that report. I have had hopes of a settlement, but not through Mr. Rockefeller.

"Mrs. Chadwick represented to me that she had certain securities in the care of Iri Reynolds, and I was shown an affidavit signed by him stating that he had in his possession stocks and bonds belonging to her valued at $5,000,000 and upward. I don't understand that there is any question concerning the genuineness of this affidavit, and on that I rest my case."

"Did you see the securities in question, Mr. Newton?" he was asked.

"I did not. I didn't consider it necessary considering the name signed to the notes and Mr. Reynold's name as voucher for her ownership of the $5,000,000 in securities."

Mr. Newton admitted that his chance of getting anything from the tangle of Mrs. Chadwick's affairs is slim.

Upon the report that the Chadwick securities held by Iri Reynolds had been found to be worthless Mr. Newton refused to comment until the report had been officially confirmed. To the question, "If those securities are worthless, will your hopes of affecting a settlement of your claim disappear?" he replied:

"I would not want to say so. There is is a possibility that Dr. Chadwick might settle my claim."

In explanation of this statement Mr. Newton said that before his departure from America Dr. Chadwick had tendered him two checks in part payment of his claims against Mrs. Chadwick. He said that he supposed Dr. Chadwick thought the checks would be made good by his wife, but as a matter of fact they had proved worthless. These checks, he said, had a face value of about $50,000, one being drawn for $25,000 and the other for a slightly smaller amount.

May Not Survive Injuries.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 10.—Rollin A. Cook, seventy years of age, one of the best known men in western Massachusetts, was burned so seriously at his home in this city last night that it was believed he would not survive the night. Mr. Cook was reading in his room when a lamp exploded, igniting his clothing. He made desperate efforts to extinguish the flames, which enveloped his body, but did not succeed until he had been frightfully burned. Mr. Cook was for many years secretary of the Pittsfield Republican city committee and was also secretary of the Berkshire Agricultural society for a long period.

GENERAL NOGI'S TWO SONS KILLED

St. Petersburg Holds That Japan Hopes For Peace Through Roosevelt's Influence and So Support Hague Conference.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Advices from St. Petersburg this morning say that the Russian authorities evidently are not yet satisfied as to the truth of the report of the destruction of the remainder of the Port Arthur squadron, as the censor has not yet permitted the publication of foreign reports to that effect. Nevertheless these reports are in the hands of the admiralty, where they are considered as sounding the knell of the Port Arthur fleet. The only regret expressed is that they did not go out for a final fight or sink in deep water, where they would be beyond hope of salvage.

Dispatches from Tokyo say that the naval staff with the Port Arthur army reports that the protected cruiser Pallada was set on fire and has heeled to port, with her stern down. Eleven shots also told on the gunboat Gilyak.

The armored cruiser Bayan is still burning.

The commander of the naval artillery reports that the transport Amur was hit by fourteen shells and sank by the stern.

Many shots have greatly damaged buildings near Pheyushan.

The second son of General Nogi, the commander of the army that is besieging Port Arthur, was killed on Nov. 30 in the course of the final Japanese assault upon Two Hundred and Three-Meter hill. The general's eldest son was killed at the battle of Nanshan hill on May 27, and he is now childless.

The opinion is expressed in official circles at St. Petersburg that the action of Japan in accepting the invitation of President Roosevelt to a second conference at The Hague was influenced by the hope that it might in some way pave the way for a restoration of peace.

A Tienstsin report says that General Oku, after a three days' artillery engagement, has driven the Russians out of the small lofty island of Gushan, in the river, ten miles north of Liaoyang. The Russians, it is added, abandoned a quantity of supplies and several guns and retired to a position eight miles northwest, from whence they heavily bombarded the Japanese, setting fire to kerosene storehouses and causing a great conflagration. The Japanese are still gallantly holding the island with a small force.

Receivers For Shipbuilding Plant.

The company has built several torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers and recently finished the cruiser Denver. The company is also doing much private work.

Millionaire Brooks Shot Himself.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 10.—Mortimer Brooks of New York city while hunting near Pittsboro, in Chatham county, this state, has been accidentally and it is believed fatally wounded by the discharge of both barrels of his gun. He was crossing a ditch when the gun struck some obstruction and went off, both barrels entering his left side and passing through his body. Three physicians are rendering all possible attention. Mr. Brooks is a millionaire who has been visiting this section for a number of years on hunting expeditions.

TARIFF REFORM.

President May Call Extra Session Next Spring For Revision.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—It was said late last night that the president has by no means abandoned his idea of bringing about an extra session of congress early next spring for the revision of the tariff. The president believes that since the tariff must be revised within the next year or two the revision should take place as early as possible, and he is opposed to waiting even as long as next fall.

The president feels that, since it is generally admitted that changed conditions make an overhauling of the present tariff advisable within the next year or year and a half, the action should be taken as early as possible. If the tariff programme should not be put in motion until December of next year the debate on the bill would occur at a time when the campaign for the election of a new house of representatives is beginning. Such was the case when the McKinley tariff was enacted, and the Republicans lost the senate and the house in the autumn.

The president's idea is that the defeat in 1890 might have been avoided if the tariff law had been enacted several months earlier.

Should the president call an extra session he will do so in the face of determined opposition on the part of many of the leaders in both senate and house.

The question of a southern trip for the president next spring has not yet been settled, for Mr. Roosevelt has told persons who have extended invitations to him that he cannot make any definite arrangements at present. He regards it as somewhat unlikely that he will be able to leave Washington in the spring.

At the final session of the National Civil Service Reform league here President Roosevelt was severely criticised for the exemptions in the service through executive order made by him during the past three years. Nelson S. Spencer, former member of the municipal civil service commission of New York city, made a direct attack on the course pursued by the president. The president was defended by ex-Civil Service Commissioner Foulke, who declared the country was to be congratulated on having a president who was actuated by consideration of justice as well as of law.

In his remarks Mr. Spencer declared that the logical consequence of a continuance of the present practice of making exemptions is the restoration of the condition of affairs as they existed prior to the passage of the civil service act. Under such a practice it is not possible, he said, for the public to believe that it is treated with fair play.

DEAD WOODMAN ALIVE.

Soldier Known as Lennox Will Prove Himself Not Dead.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Three representatives of the Woodmen of the World, a fraternal society of Omaha, Neb., and two detectives left here last night for Cleburne, Tex., with a former private soldier who enlisted under the name of Henry Lennox and who was honorably discharged here on Nov. 12 last.

B. Wood Jewell of Omaha, chairman of the sovereign finance committee of the Woodmen, who was one of the party, admitted that Lennox is not the soldier's real name.

"This man disappeared from his home in Cleburne, Tex., in 1901 under circumstances that led his friends to believe he had been killed," said Mr. Jewell. "Within the last year a suit was brought by his wife against the Woodmen of the World on his certificate of membership in the sum of $2,000. The association employed detectives and located the man. He willingly consented to return and demonstrate that he is not dead."

Lennox, as he was known here, had a good army record. He was born at new Liberty, Ky., in 1872.

BOSTON, Dec. 10.—The ship W. F. Babcock, which has arrived from Port Blakely, Wash., after a voyage of 167 days, brought news of the loss of her boatswain, F. The vessel encountered a number of storms, but the worst was on Nov. 14, just passing Bermuda, when a hurricane blew her 200 miles from her course.

Bardley leaves a widow and seven children.

VON PLEHVE'S DEATH

Russia Torn by Social Revolutionaries.

A CHAPTER OF CRIMES REVEALED.

Socialist Organization Condemned Minister to Assassination and Was Responsible For Murder of Other Officials.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 10.—The indictment upon which Sasoneff, the assassin of Minister of the Interior von Plehve, and Sikorifsky, his accomplice, will be tried on Tuesday next is a formidable document, reciting the history of the assassination plot and details of the crime and revealing for the first time interesting facts about the accused and confessions made by them, winding up with the formal charge. The document, which has been shown to a correspondent, states that both Sasoneff and Sikorifsky belonged to a fighting organization of social revolutionaries, the central committee of which was organized abroad in 1902 and the organ of which was Revolutionary Russia. The object of the organization was to overthrow the autocracy and replace it with a republican socialistic regime. The document describes the manner in which the party organized secret circles for the distribution of proclamations among the peasants, stirring up university students, fomenting agrarian disturbances, inciting soldiers to mutiny and also preaching terrorism and the murder of statesmen who sustained the autocracy and took steps to suppress political disturbances. It lays the murders of Sipiaguine, Von Plehve's predecessor in the office of minister of the interior, and Bogdanovitch, governor general of Ufa, and the attempts on the lives of Prince John Obolensky, governor general of Finland, and Pobedonostseff, procurator general of the holy synod, at the door of the fighting organization, which, the document says, condemned Von Plehve to death soon after his appointment. The first attempt on Von Plehve's life was frustrated by the accidental explosion on April 13 at the Hotel du Nord, by which Pokatiloff was blown up with a bomb similar to the one that killed Von Plehve.

The indictment reveals in this connection a scandal in high life, a room adjoining the one in the Hotel du Nord occupied by Pokatiloff having been occupied by a naval cadet and a lady of noble birth, who, however, escaped death by being at supper at the time.

The execution of Von Plehve's death sentence, the indictment says, was then undertaken by Sasoneff, aged twenty-five, formerly a student at the Moscow university and the son of a merchant of Birsk, and Sammel Levi Sikorifsky, aged twenty, a leather worker of Knyshin, in the province of Grodno. Sasoneff had been twice tried for treasonable offences, first in 1900 and again in 1902. On the latter occasion he was exiled to Siberia for five years, but escaped abroad on his way into exile.

The movements of both the accused showed that the murder was planned for the occasion of one of Minister von Plehve's weekly journeys, on Thursdays, to the railroad station on the way to Peterhof to report to the emperor. Sikorifsky had previously made two trips to St. Petersburg on Wednesdays. On Wednesday, July 27, the day before the murder, he went to Ostroff, a station on the St. Petersburg-Warsaw railway, having provided himself at Vilna with a cloak of the naval pattern, where he left a handbag containing his linen and fifteen revolver cartridges. The morning of the murder Sasoneff and Sikorifsky met on a bridge over the canal near the Warsaw station, each being armed with an infernal machine, the ingenuity of which is minutely described. Inclosed in tin was explosive magnesial dynamite.

The indictment then describes in detail the murder of Von Plehve and his coachman, Fillipoff; how Sasoneff was stationed in front of the Warsaw hotel and Sikorifsky beyond the canal bridge, and says the bomb struck the carriage between Von Plehve and the coachman, killing both and injuring eleven others.

Sikorifsky, having ascertained that Von Plehve was dead, proceeded to Ostroff, where he took a boat, telling the boatman to row out near the Baltic works, where the battleship Slava was anchored. He threw his bomb into the river, and the boatman thought he was attempting to blow up the Slava. Although the boatman was offered 10 rubles, he put in shore and insisted upon handing over Sikorifsky to the police. This incident gave rise to the report that an attempt had been made to destroy the Slava.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 10, 1904

And now it is said that if United States Senator Kean's bill providing for an additional Federal judgeship in New Jersey becomes a law, Senator Joseph Cross will receive the appointment. Nothing is too good for Union County's faithful representative in the upper branch of the Legislature. Senator Cross should receive recognition for his work and it should not be delayed until he has ended his term in the Senate.

A journal devoted to advertising interests points out that large inroads are being made upon the sales of coffee because substitutes are being pressed upon the attention of consumers through the newspapers, while the coffee importers are letting trade slip away from them by default. The importers' remedy is obvious. By a systematic advertising campaign they can create an increased demand for coffee, just as the demand for the substitutes has been built up. The field for both classes of products may be successfully cultivated by newspaper publicity.—Ex.

AMONG MEN IN THE SHOPS

SEEN AND HEARD IN PLAINFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

John Dorgan, of Arlington avenue, has taken a position at the Pond shop.

Robert Slorah has resigned his position at the Scott factory to accept a similar one at Pond's.

Donald McInnis, of the West End, has resigned his place as engineer at the Rushmore Dynamo Works.

William Kenney and James McConnell were included in a small lay-off that was made at the Manganese Steel Safe Company plant, yesterday.

Many local employes have been affected during the past week by a temporary shut down at the C. & O. Works at Garwood. The suspension was caused by an accident in the engine room.

Marinus Bech, a former Plainfielder, who went to Copenhagen, Denmark, for medical treatment, is improving and expects soon to be able to return here again, where he was an employe of the Manganese Steel Safe Works.

After working for six hours on a steel vault in the building of the Marysville State Bank at Marysville, Washington, burglars were forced to give up their task of trying to get inside. The vault was made by the Manganese Steel Safe Company, of this city. The burglars wrecked the building but the safe remained undisturbed.

A telegram received from the officers of the Bank of Plymouth, Plymouth, Neb., tells of the failure of an attempt to rob that institution recently. The vault and building were wrecked, but the safe successfully resisted all attacks. This safe was also made in Plainfield by the Manganese Company.

Church Club Meets.

The Church Club, of New Jersey, held a meeting at the Mansion House, New Brunswick, on Thursday evening, about sixty persons, including clergy and laity, attending. From here there were Rev. E. M. Rodman and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson as guests of the club and George S. Clay and Mr. Russell, members. Bishop Lines, of Newark, spoke of the layman's part in "The Mission Cause," and R. Fulton Cutting, of New York, spoke admirably on the topic of "The Layman's Place in Social and Public Life." John N. Carpender, president of the club, presided.

Cheerful Workers Plan a Tea.

The proceeds from the affair will go toward the support of the city nurse.

Editor, The Daily Press:

"Forty per cent. more idle men in New York today than last year this time." "A great slump in stocks in Wall Street today." The above are conspicuous head lines in the Tribune of yesterday. Before election we were told that the above conditions would only prevail in the event of Alton B. Parker's success, and unrivaled prosperity would be the portion all over our land in case of Republican success. The absurdity of these claims are already too apparent. No, Mr. Republican, high tariff taxation can not nor ever will make prosperity. I am prompted again to ask how long will the American people be thus fooled. J. E. Martine.

Cedar Brook.

Editor, The Daily Press:

At the last meeting of the Common Council a petition was presented from the Board of Assessors for an increase of salary, giving as a reason that their work has greatly increased since they were appointed. They say valuations have reached about $9,000,000 against $7,000,000 when they took office or a raise of about 29 per cent., while they modestly ask a raise in salary from $300 to $500 or 66 2-3 per cent.

Now how can the Council be justified in granting their request. Though they state it is not for themselves in particular, but for others who may succeed them. But let me venture to say, they all expect to be reappointed, and raise or no raise they would not decline the office, which would be proof it is not such a hard job after all. As a taxpaper of this city, I cannot refrain from protesting against any unwarranted increase in salaries or other expenditures, but would like to see the tax rate go down correspondingly with a raise in valuations.

Stolen Horses Reported.

J. B. Onderdonk, whose home is on the road between Bound Brook and New Brunswick, has reported to the local police that his stable was broken into Tuesday night and two black mares, a set of harness valued at $15, and new buggy with red running gear were stolen. The thief is thought to have come in this direction, and may have disposed of the property in the outlying districts

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Several narrow escapes from a free for all fight have happened lately on the early morning trolley car which takes workmen to the shops at Westfield and Garwood. Among the passengers is a gang of ten or fifteen Italians who get on every morning and as one of the native born says, begins to show up until the "strenuous life" of the natives is aroused. This has led to several wordy engagements and threats have been made by each side, but no real engagement has taken place yet.

The success of the two weeks' evangelistic meetings which have been held in the Methodist church has led the evangelist, Rev. George W. Coon, to continue the services another week. No revival in several years has been held in town and the townspeople are awakening a spiritual interest in the meetings that has been encouraging to Mr. Coon.

The time limit for unpaid taxes is about up. The old style of carrying a delinquent list for years until they are practically forgotten is a thing of the past, as the law now compels the township to take action each year against the delinquent or lose their claim against the property.

Fanwood Council, R. A., elects officers for the ensuing year at the semi-monthly meeting to be held Tuesday night. All members are urged to be present as business of importance will be transacted.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Twenty members of the County Board of Freeholders met at Perth Amboy recently to make a final inspection of the Raritan river bridge. The inspecting was deferred in order to have a statement from the county engineer, the War Department and the Aldermen of Perth Amboy, that the bridge is all right before accepting it for the county.

The Township Committee, of this township, met on Tuesday at Hotel Nelson in New Market with all members present. Collector LaRue reported that about $7,000 of the year's taxes had been collected. He was instructed to pay the State school and county taxes as soon as it might be possible. A large number of bills were ordered to be paid.

GRACELAND SOON TO HAVE A SILK FACTORY

MAY RESULT IN ITS STATION BEING REBUILT.

Plans have been perfected by a New York silk manufacturing concern in which local capital is invested, to remove its plant from the metropolis to a new building soon to be erected at Graceland. The ground has already been purchased and work on the factory will be started as soon as the contracts are let. The concern is not a new one by any means and is making the removal simply to gain more room for its growing business without incurring the big expense of increased rentals to which it is now subject. Martin Rose, of Franklin place, is one of the Plainfielders who has holdings in the company.

With the establishment of the factory, Graceland is likely to undergo a boom that will result in the re-establishment of its depot on the New Jersey Central. One was maintained there some years ago when the place was first built up but the patronage fell off and the company closed it up. The building became a rendezvous for tramps and was finally torn down. Since that time many more houses have been erected in the vicinity and with factory employes going backward and forward to other places the hamlet may again be placed on the railroad map.

During the next few weeks, Schreiner's pharmacy at Park avenue and Second street will be replete in every detail with toilet articles, perfumeries and appropriate affairs for Christmas gifts. No pains have been spared in getting the best of each and Proprietor Schreiner extends a cordial invitation to old and new friends to call.

While icy winds make the pedestrians gather their coats and wraps about them and snow drifts lie in fields and roads there is always a breath of spring or summer at Neuman Brothers' Watchung avenue store. All through the winter months there is an endless profusion of green and wax beans, tomatoes, cauliflower and many other vegetables that are supposed to be allied with summer. They are received fresh each day and no one could tell but what they had just been taken from the garden, in the yard.

What better offering could be made to the home circle than the holiday gift of a piano. It is a delight, not for a brief season, but for years. It is a fountain of musical culture that is far-reaching in its influence. It is an element of good, in that it refines as well as delights. As with other things purchased, the best piano is the cheapest in the end; and the best piano is that which has, year after year, made for itself a solid reputation. The Fischer pianos speak for themselves. They are the outcome of sixty-four years of most skilled and practical endeavor. They are superior in fine tone-quality, chaste and artistic in case-architecture, and in remarkable durability of construction. A visit to the Fischer main warerooms, 164 Fifth avenue, as well as their branch warerooms, 58 West 125th street, will amply prove that the most critical taste in pianos can be suited.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, October 6, 1904, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll-call showed the following members present, viz.: Director Hubbard and Freeholders Adams, Brucklacher, Cady, Cladek, Connoly, Darby, King, Klee, Krouse, Marsh, McCandless, Meisel, Pierson, Robison, Scudder, Swain, Wahl, Westphal, Woodruff—20.

Owing to the absence of the clerk Mr. N. R. Leavitt was designated and appointed to act as clerk pro tem.

The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting on motion dispensed with.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Lewis Keller, Esq., as follows:

Oct. 6, 1904.

To the Freeholders of Union County, N. J.:

Gentlemen—As the owner of over 500 acres at Springfield, and as a heavy tax payer to the construction of Morris avenue, and other county roads, I wish to enter my emphatic protest against sacrificing Morris avenue or any other county road to trolley tracks; none of these roads are wide enough for railroad purposes.

Any statement that, where too narrow, they will be widened at the expense of the railroad company is on its face insecure; for the reason that the expense, to say nothing of the damage to curb stones, fences, shade trees and residences incidental to such widening would be prohibitive.

I am told that the necessary capital has been raised for the construction of a steam and electric road direct from Summit to Roselle, which by connecting with the existing steam roads or trolley lines running from Elizabeth, will carry passengers from Summit to the court house at Elizabeth in twenty minutes.

I figure that the best time that could possibly be made on a trolley line down Morris avenue from Summit 9½ miles at 12 miles an hour, would be 50 minutes. While I appreciate the absolute necessity of communication between Summit and Elizabeth, I venture to suggest that the parties who have already purchased the bulk of the right of way for the proposed road and are condemning the rest, should be given a fair chance to demonstrate the advantages of their route before sacrificing the highways upon which we have spent so much.

The construction of the Rahway Valley Railroad has already been contracted for and the road should be in operation by next June. I understand that the fare on it will be only 15 cents from Summit to Elizabeth, and 10 cents from Springfield to Elizabeth.

(Signed) Respectfully,
Louis Kettler.

On motion of Freeholder King, received and placed on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the County Board Committee.

Oct. 6, 1904.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned committee to whom was referred the application of the Morris County Traction Company for a franchise over certain portions of Morris avenue, would respectfully report:

That a majority of said committee have been over said route for the purpose of inspecting and considering the same. That they have met with the representatives of the company and are considering their proposition. Your committee, however, realizing the importance of careful action in the matter, would request further time for its consideration; and while they generally favor the application, yet, owing to the numerous details to be considered, desire further time, and would recommend that the consideration of the application be continued, and that when this Board adjourns it adjourn to meet two weeks from today, at 2:30 p. m., to take the matter up, at which time your committee feel confident they will be able to present a resolution or ordinance respecting the matter for your consideration and your action.

Respectfully submitted,
Benjamin King,
Henry Krouse,
E. K. Adams,
W. H. Swain,
J. Brucklacher,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, the report was received and recommendation adopted without dissent.

By the Committee on Picton Street Bridge, Westfield.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Picton Street Bridge, Westfield, have examined the same and find its condition such that the necessary repairs cannot be made for the amount appropriated by your honorable body; therefore,

Resolved, That the appropriation for said bridge be increased to $600, the same being an increase above former appropriations of $250.

(Signed) W. W. Connoly,
M. M. Spudder,
John Robison,
Committee.

Freeholder Adams moved the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the County Road Committee.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee to whom was referred the application and petition of Sarah A. McNabb, respecting the removal of the iron fence and wing wall of the bridge across Green brook, on Norwood avenue in the city of Plainfield, would respectively report that they have visited the premises and would report that they have found said wing wall and fence entirly within the street, and are of the opinion that the same cannot be removed without considerable expense and possible damage to said bridge, and do recommend that said application be denied.

(Signed) Benj. King,
Henry Krouse,
E. K. Adams,
Jacob Brucklacher,
W. H. Swain,
Committee.

Freeholder Adams moved the report be received, and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

THE REDINGOTE AGAIN.

The Separate Coat a Fad of the Season—Peacock a Smart Color.

The return of the old fashioned redingote is the sartorial novelty of the season for out of door wraps. The old lines are preserved in most instances, with a few modified touches. The new redingote fits close to the figure in the back and at the sides, and a full basque is sewed on where the waist terminates instead of over the hips.

Velvet redingotes are exceedingly smart worn with a cloth skirt that exactly matches. They usually have a fancy silk waistcoat of silk embroidered in elaborate sprays of flowers in shaded silks and wools or conventional designs of all descriptions.

The old superstition against peacock feathers is a thing of the past, and the evil omen which accompanied the plumage of the royal bird has had its day. Peacock blue cloth is being made into the most stunning costumes, and evening gowns of green and blue tulle are laid one over the other with charming effect.

The stunning redingote illustrated is carried out in fine black face cloth with thrown back revers of white cloth stitched with black braid each side of a fine line of pale blue. The same trimming is repeated on the cuffs. The skirt is just a little train and bears a series of narrow raw edged folds, a particularly good touch on a toilet of this kind. JUDIC CHOLLET.

INDOOR GOWNS.

Gray a Favorite For House Frocks. The New Quaker Waist.

One of the latest novelties for dinner and home dresses is the combination of mousseline de soie, cloth and fur, a fashion which lends itself particularly to the making over at home of several out of date gowns. The dress proper is made of the mousseline, and the cloth is inserted in bands edged with the fur. The effect is decidedly new and pleasing.

For indoor dressy toilets nothing is daintier than a frock made of the new cashmere, and gray cashmere is an ideal material when it suits the wearer and if the exact shade is selected. It lends itself admirably to the Quaker style, adorned with very worldly embroidered lawn collar and cuffs.

The pretty house frock of the moment is laid in full plaits at the waist or gathered, as the wearer prefers. If worn over a silk petticoat, the frou-frou at the feet is obtained. The blouse bodice is arranged in gathers at the neck, where it is finished with a collar and vest of transparent lawn inserted with embroidery. The bodice crosses slightly to one side, and around the waist is a panne band fastened at the back and boned into a deep point in front. The sleeves are puffed just above the elbow and have a long deep cuff coming over the hand and finished with dainty lawn appliques.

The charming blouse illustrated is of ivory liberty satin made with a shaped yoke formed of herringboning and a pointed smocked design. The high choker is of Irish guipure, and the cravat is of liberty.

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

Next came the night on the ice in February—a thing not highly creditable to us, albeit we were then but a handful and they were many. But D'ri and I had no cause for shame of our part in it. We wallowed to our waists in the snow, and it was red enough in front of us. But the others gave way there on the edge of the river, and we had to follow. We knew when it was time to run; we were never in the rear rank even then. We made off with the others, although a saber's point had raked me in the temple, and the blood had frozen on me, and I was a sight to scare a trooper. Everybody ran that day, and the British took the village, holding it only 24 hours. For our part in it D'ri got the rank of a corporal and I was raised from lieutenant to captain. We made our way to Sackett's harbor, where I went into the hospital for a month.

Then came a galling time of idleness. In June we went with Gen. Brown—D'ri and I and Thurst Miles and Seth Alexander and a half dozen others—down the river to the scene of our first fighting at Ogdensburg, camping well back in the woods. It was the evening of the 27th of June that the general sent for me. He was at the mansion of Mr. Parish, where he had been dining. He was sitting in his dress-suit. His dark side-whiskers and hair were brushed carefully forward. His handsome face turned toward me with a kindly look.

"Bell," said he, "I wish to send you on very important business. You have all the qualities of a good scout. You know the woods. You have courage and skill and tact. I wish you to start immediately, go along the river to Morristown, then cut over into the Black river country and deliver this letter to the Comte de Chaumont, at the Chateau Le Ray, in Leraysville. If you see any signs of the enemy, send a report to me at once. I shall be here three days. Take Alexander, Olin, and Miles with you; they are all good men. When your letter is delivered, report at the harbor as soon as possible."

I was on the road with my party in half an hour. We were all good horsemen. D'ri knew the shortest way out of the woods in any part of the north country. Thurst had traveled the forest from Albany to Sackett's harbor, and was the best hunter that ever trod a trail in my time. The night was dark, but we rode at a gallop until we had left the town far behind us. We were at Morristown before midnight, pounding on the door of the Red Tavern. The landlord stuck his head out of an upper window peering down at us by the light of a candle.

"Everything quiet?" I asked.

"Everything quiet," said he. "Crossed the river yesterday. Folks go back 'n' forth 'bout the same way as ever. Wife 's in Elizabethtown now, visiting."

We asked about the west roads and went on our way. Long before daylight we were climbing the steep road at Rossie to the inn of the Traveller's Rest—a tavern famous in its time, that stood half up the hill, with a store, a smithy, and a few houses grouped about it. We came up at a silent walk on a road cushioned with sawdust. D'ri rapped on the door until I thought he had roused the whole village. At last a man came to the upper window. He, too, inspected us with a candle. Then he opened the door and gave us a hearty welcome. We put up our horses for a bite, and came into the bar.

"Anything new?" I inquired.

"They say the British are camped this side of the river, north of us," said he, "with a big tribe of Injuns. Some of their cavalry came within three miles of us to-day. Everybody scairt t' death."

He began to set out a row of glasses. "What 'll ye hev?" he inquired.

"Guess I 'll tip a little blue ruin int' me," said D'ri, with a shiver; "'s a col' night."

Seth and I called for the same.

"An' you?" said the landlord, turning to Thurst.

"Wal," said the latter, as he stroked his thin beard, "when I tuk the pledge I swore et I hoped t' drop dead 'fore I see myself tek another drink. I 'm jest goin' t' shet my eyes 'n' hold out my glass. I don' care what ye gi' me s' long es it 's somethin' powerful."

We ate crackers and cheese while the landlord was telling of the west roads and the probable location of the British. He stopped suddenly, peered over my shoulder, and blew out the candle. We could hear a horse neighing in the yard.

"Some one et the window," he whispered. Then he ran to the door and drew the bolt. "Ain' much idee who 't is," he added, peering out of the window. "By gosh! more 'n a dozen folks out here, soldiers tew, most uv 'em on horseback. Come quick."

We followed him upstairs, in the dark, as they began to pound on the door. From the yard a light flashed up. They were evidently building a fire so that they could have better shooting if we came out.

"May set the house afire," said the landlord.

He quickly unwound a big hose that ran up to a tank in the peak above us.

"Plenty o' water?" D'ri whispered.

"Rivers uv it," said the landlord. "Tank 's connected with the reservoir. Big wooden pipe comes in the gable-end."

"Turn 'er on," said D'ri, quickly, "an' let me hev that air hose."

The landlord ran up a ladder. D'ri stuck the hose out of the window. The stream shot away with a loud hiss. I stood by and saw the jet of water leap forth as big as a pikestaff. A man went off his horse, sprawling as if he had been hit with a club. The jet leaped quickly from one to another, roaring on man and beast. There was a mighty scurry. Horses went headlong down the hill, some dragging their riders. In the silence of the night, bedlam had broken loose. The shouting men, the plunging horses, the stream of water roaring on rock and road, woke the village. Men came running from behind the house to see what had happened, then rushed after their horses. Some fell cursing as the water hit them. The landlord put his mouth to my ear.

"Mek fer yer hosses," he hissed.

We were below-stairs and out of the door in a jiffy. Two men fled before us at the stable, scrambled over the fence, and went tumbling downhill. We bridled our horses with all speed, leaped upon them, and went rushing down the steep road, our swords in hand, like an avalanche. They tried to stop us at the foot of the hill, but fell away as we came near.

HE BROKE THE SEAL AND READ IT CAREFULLY.

I could hear the snap of their triggers in passing. Only one pistol-shot came after us, and that went high.

"Guess their ammunition 's a leetle wet," said D'ri, with a shout that turned into laughter as we left the British behind us.

A party of four or five mounted and gave chase; but our powder was a bit drier than theirs, and for a time we raked the road with our bullets. What befell them I know not. I only know that they held up and fell out of hearing.

Crossing a small river at daylight, we took the bed of it, making our way slowly for half a mile or so into the woods. There we built a fire, and gave the horses half the feed in our saddle-bags, and ate our mess on a flat rock.

"Never hed no sech joemightyful time es thet afore," said D'ri, as he sat down, laughing, and shook his head. "Jerushy Jane! Did n't we come down thet air hill! Luk slidin' on a greased pole."

"Comin' so luk the devil they did n't dast git 'n er way," said Thurst.

"We wus all rippin' th' air 'ith them air joemightyful sabers, tew," D'ri went on. "Hed a purty middlin' sharp edge on us. Stuck out luk a haystack right 'n' left."

He began bringing wood as he sang the chorus of his favorite ballad:—

Li toorul I oorul I oorul I ay, etc.

Thurst knew a trail that crossed the river nearby and met the Caraway Pike a few miles beyond. Having eaten, I wrote a dispatch to be taken back by Thurst as soon as we reached the pike. Past 10 o'clock we turned into a rough road, where the three of us went one way and Thurst another.

I rode slowly, for the horses were nearly fagged. I gave them an hour's rest when we put up for dinner. Then we pushed on, coming in sight of the Chateau Le Ray at sundown. A splendid place it was, the castle of gray stone fronting a fair stretch of wooded lawn, cut by a brook that went splashing over rocks near by, and sent its velvet voice through the wood and field. A road of fine gravel led through groves of beech and oak and pine to a grassy terrace under the castle walls. Presently a tall, handsome man, with black eyes and iron-gray hair and mustache, came down a path, clapping his hands.

"Welcome, gentlmen! It is the Capt. Bell?" said he, with a marked accent, as he came to me, his hand extended. "You come from Monsieur the Gen. Brown, do you not?"

'I do," said I, handing him my message.

He broke the seal and read it carefully.

"I am glad to see you—ver' glad to see you!" said he, laying his hands upon my shoulders and giving me a little shake.

The two servants went away with D'ri and Seth and the horses.

"Come, captain," said my host, as he led the way. "You are in good time for dinner."

We entered a great triangular hall, lighted by side windows above the door, and candelabra of shining brass that hung from its high ceiling. There were sliding doors of polished wood on each side of it. A great stairway filled the point of the triangle. I was shown to my room, which was as big as a ball-room, it seemed to me, and grandly furnished: no castle of my dreams had been quite so fine. The valet of the count looked after me, with the offers of new linen and more things than I could see use for. He could not speak English, I remember, and I addressed him in the good French my mother had taught me.

The kind of life I saw in this grand home was not wholly new to me, for both my mother and my father had known good living in their youth, and I had heard much of it. I should have been glad of my new uniform; but after I had had my bath and put on the new shirt and collar the valet had brought me, I stood before the long pier-glass and saw no poor figure of a man.

The great dining-hall of the count was lighted with many candles when we came in to dinner. It had a big fireplace, where logs were blazing, for the night had turned cool, and a long table with a big epergne of wrought silver, filled with roses, in its center. A great silken rug lay under the table, on a polished floor, and the walls were hung with tapestry. I sat beside the count, and opposite me was the daughter of the Sieur Louis Francois de Saint-Michel, king's forester under Louis XVI. Therese, the handsome daughter of the count, sat facing him at the farther end of the table, and beside her was the young Marquis de Gonvello. M. Pidgeon, the celebrated French astronomer, Moss Kent, brother of the since famous chancellor, the Sieur Michel, and the Baroness de Ferre, with her two wards, the Misses Louise and Louison de Lambert, were also at dinner. These young ladies were the most remarkable of the company; their beauty was so brilliant, so fascinating, it kindled a great fire in me the moment I saw it. They said little, but seemed to have much interest in all the talk of the table. I looked at them more than was polite, I am sure, but they looked at me quite as often. They had big, beautiful brown eyes, and dark hair fastened high with jewelled pins, and profiles like those of the fair ladies of Sir Peter Lely, so finely were they cut. One had a form a bit fuller and stronger than the other's, but they were both as tall and trim as a young beech, with lips cherry-red and cheeks where one could see faintly the glow of their young blood. Their gowns were cut low, showing the graceful lines of neck and shoulder and full bosom. I had seen pretty girls, many of them, but few high-bred, beautiful young women. The moment I saw these two some new and mighty force came into me. There were wine and wit a plenty at the count's table, and other things that were also new to me, and for which I retained perhaps too great a fondness.

The count asked me to tell of our journey, and I told the story with all the spirit I could put into my words. I am happy to say it did seem to hit the mark, for I was no sooner done with our adventure than the ladies began to clap their hands, and the Misses de Lambert had much delight in their faces when the baroness retold my story in French.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Wall Street Reaction Not Due to Any Legitimate Cause.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Wall street's severe reaction was not due to any setback in the commercial world, all measures of legitimate trade showing wholesome progress, and confidence in the future is unshaken. Railway earnings in November averaged 9.2 per cent greater than in the same month of 1903, and the distribution of merchandise is sufficiently heavy to produce freight blockades at several points. Manufacturing plants report increased output in almost every instance, except where inadequate water supply provides a temporary interruption. This difficulty is most severely felt at coke ovens and paper mills in Pennsylvania. Seasonable weather has stimulated retail trade in wearing apparel, and holiday goods are in great demand. Foreign commerce at this port for the last week shows a gain of $2,029,971 in exports as compared with the same week last year, while imports increased $2,008,591.

Declines in farm staples were not sufficient to offset gains elsewhere, but had a helpful influence on export trade. Money rates rose slightly as more gold went abroad, where it was most needed.

Failures for the week numbered 239 in the United States against 331 last year and 26 in Canada compared with 20 a year ago.

CAPTAIN CLADO ARRESTED.

Former Viceroy Alexeieff Said to Be Implicated With Him.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 10.—Captain Clado's campaign in the Novoe Vremya against the admiralty and in favor of sending out the Black sea fleet irrespective of treaty considerations promises to have a sensational sequel. The captain has gone to the length of not only criticising the admiralty, but the Grand Duke Alexis, the high admiral.

Captain Clado was arrested last evening by direct order of Grand Duke Alexis. The fact of the arrest and a copy of the order of arrest were promptly published for the purpose of showing the powers that Russia officially disapproved of the agitation Captain Clado has raised in favor of forcing the Dardanelles and sending out the Black sea fleet as well as an act of resentment of his criticism of the admiralty. It was rumored last night that Admiral Alexeieff, who is generally credited with having backed Captain Clado's claim, has definitely ruined his prospects thereby and will shortly be relegated to the Caucasus as viceroy, succeeding Prince Galitzin, who, it is reported, has tendered the emperor his resignation as governor general.

Wanted to Lynch the Engineer.

JOILET, Ill., Dec. 10.—One miner was killed and seven others were badly hurt, one, it is feared, fatally, in an elevator accident at mine No. 1 in South Wilmington. Engineer Leslie lost control of the cage, and it bounded to the top of the shaft, throwing all the occupants out. Some of the other miners thought Leslie had been careless and were prepared to lynch the engineer when officers arrived and drove the crowd away.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held its monthly business meeting on Thursday and planned for the winter's work.

The Union Bible class taught by Rev. D. M. Stearns will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Tuesday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

Rev. George Hauser, of New York State, formerly pastor of the German Reformed church on Craig place, has been visiting friends in town.

James F. Parker will speak and the Y. M. C. A. male quartette will sing at the Y. M. C. A. meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be instrumental music.

At the 4 o'clock meeting of the W. C. T. U. tomorfow afternoon, Mrs. Tomlinson will speak on the topic, "Echoes from the Convention". Mrs. Tomlinson was in attendance at the National gathering as delegate from the local union.

PERSONAL.

Clinton Shannon, of West Third street, has been the guest of friends in Raritan for a short time.

Miss Marie Chapon, of Watchung avenue, is slowly recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. P. Frank Stone, of West Front street, is now able to be about the house, following a long illness and an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Sarah VanNortrick, of Somerville, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah VanWinkle, of East Seventh street, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Andrews, who have leased their home on Central avenue to Mrs. Dunbar, formerly of Providence, R. I., for the winter, have taken Mr. Schoonmaker's house, 963 Central avenue. They will not move to New York, as previously stated.

Another Concert.

The seating capacity of the Casino ought to be taxed to its utmost on December 15, when the Star Quartette, of New York, appears. No better singers could possibly be found in New York, outside of the Metropolitan Opera House. Dr. Carl. E. Dufft has been heard here and with the greatest pleasure. The other artists are equally fine.

—Sheriff-elect E. E. Cooper, of Somerset county, has leased the Alstine Lord property in East Somerville and will soon take possession.

AUTO ALMOST WRECKED BY BURSTING OF A TIRE

C. W. HOLLAND'S COSTLY MACHINE THROWN AGAINST THE CURB.

While Jackson Hedgeman, the chauffeur, was sending the large, glass enclosed automobile belonging to C. W. Holland along West Seventh street at a lively clip this morning, it narrowly escaped serious wrecking by an accident. When opposite New street, one of the front tires exploded suddenly and the steering wheel was jerked from Hedgeman's control. The machine swerved to one side and struck the curbing with force enough to throw a good part of the mechanism out of order. Two women occupants of the auto were shaken up and badly frightened but were not injured. Hedgeman applied the reversing lever and prevented further trouble.

In making the sudden turn, the machine just grazed the carriage of Mrs. Arthur L. Murphy and would have struck it but for a quick move on the part of the coachman.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Titus, of Madison avenue, have issued invitations for a reception to be given on their daughter, Miss Ruth Titus, on Thursday afternoon, December 23.

FOR SCHOOLS, $9,000,000

Vast Sum Spent to Support New Jersey's Schools.

ENROLLMENT, 252,203

Report of State Superintendent, Charles J. Baxter, Shows Increase in Educational Work.

New Jersey's public school system for the school year 1903-'04 cost $9,201,771,73 and on the expenditure of this amount of money results were attained that show a forging ahead in practically every department of the school work. These facts are presented in a summary of the annual report of the State Board of Education, which has just been prepared by Superintendent Charles J. Baxter, formerly of Plainfield, who is secretary of the board.

The summary shows that with a balance carried from last year of $1,112,088.32, the receipts for the year were $9,537,868.06, giving a total increase for the school year of $10,649,956.38. This is a decided increase over the receipts for the previous school year, the principal items being as follows: From income of State school fund for school purposes, $59,837.44; from State school tax, $61,028.46; from the local school tax levied on the districts of the State, $1,323,646.84.

The expenses of all the school work for the year were $9,201,771,73, leaving a balance on hand of $1,448,184.65, an increase over that of the previous year of $336,096.33.

The chief item in the school expenditures was for teachers' salaries, which amounted to $4,896,882,.83, an increase over the school year of 1902-'03 of $329,083.50. This increase was caused by the larger salaries paid in some instances and by the wages paid to 400 new teachers demanded by the increase in the school work.

The total value of all the public school property in the State is shown to be $19,861,393.45, an increase over the previous year of $731,645.43. The total enrollment for the year was 359,203. The total number of teachers employed was 8,694, a gain of 400 over 1902-'03. The average yearly salary paid the teachers was $563.25, an increase of $11.66.

Speaking further, the report says:

"Progress in educational matters continues to be the watchword in New Jersey and more impressively so than ever before, for the annual school year ending June 30, 1904. Though the realization of our ideals seems very distant, encouragement to persevere is always derived from our annual retrospect.

"We are gradually learning that in education, as in matters economic, means must be adapted to ends and that results will continue to sustain an inflexible ratio to effort and outlay. This knowledge obtains in varying degrees in different municipalities, as proved by the school facilities found in each.

"The amount expended for manual training and current expenses, as defined in section 95, was $6,901,963.56, as against $6,385,928.82 for the preceding school year, an increase of $516,034.77.

"This has affected the cost of education as follows: Average cost of tuition per pupil enrolled for the school year 1902-'03, $18.26; for 1903-'04, $19.23; increase, $0.97. Average cost of tuition per pupil for the school year of 1902-'03 calculated upon the average number of pupils in attendance, $27.25; for 1903-'04 $28.27; increase, $1.02."

Continuing his report, Superintendent Baxter presents a number of items which he states offer unmistakable evidence of advancement in the State school work. They are as follows:

Increase in number of school buildings, 5; increase in the number of school buildings owned, 7; decrease in the number of buildings rented for school purposes, 2; increase in number of school buildings valued above $40,000, 7; increase in total value of public school property, $731,645.43; increase in the average value of public school buildings, $350.95.

Increase in total enrollment of public schools, 7,746; increase in totals days' attendance at the schools, 1,384,353; increase in total number of pupils enrolled in kindergarten schools and departments, 2,333; increase in number of pupils enrolled in high school grades, 1,043; increase in average number of pupils on roll, 9,787; increase in average daily attendance, 10,261; decrease in the number of cases of tardiness, 15,036; increase in the seating capacity of the schools, 16,145; increase in total number of State certificate issued, 167; increase in the total number of State certificates held by teachers employed during the year, 154.

COUNCIL'S PRESIDENCY

Below - Surface Discussion Leads to More Rumors.

A PRIVATE CAUCUS?

Positive Report That Reappointment of Present Incumbent Will be Opposed.

While no decision has as yet been announced as to who will continue as president of the Common Council next year to succeed Mr. Tolles, there is a report in circulation that certain members of that body recently held a private caucus and decided on another candidate besides Mr. Tolles. A couple of weeks ago it was learned that there was opposition to the member now serving as president, but it was not believed that it would gain sufficient strength to again place him on the floor. Just what movement will be made is not known, but one thing is almost sure, and that is there will be another candidate for the position.

Mr. Tolles is the oldest member of the Common Council, has served well and faithfully on all of the important committees and when elected president, those who placed him there did so with the unanimous opinion that he justly deserved the honor after such an active service on the floor.

His friends now argue that there is not another member who is entitled to the presidency and that it would be shabby treatment to replace him.

While Councilman Daniel has been mentioned for the place, he is considered a valuable member on the floor. He is well suited for the position as chairman of the finance committee, being posted on matters of finance and as a lawyer can detect many irregularities that might pass one less versed in these matters. During his service he has shown himself to be just the one to guard the city's finances in the Common Council, and if he should be elected president he would not be as active as at present. It is understood that if another member is chosen for president, there is likely to be a general shakeup in the committees in which the Second and Third wards will be well taken care of.

A present the chairmen of the most important committees, aside from the finance and license, are members of the First and Fourth wards, and there is a rumor that in case President Tolles should be retired, these committees will be changed to give the other wards greater prominence. At all events 1905 promises to be one of the most interesting in the city's history. Several important matters are sure to come up and the disposition of them is certain to result in lively debates throughout the year.

A year ago when the Common Council caucused on officers and committees, Councilman W. L. Gloak called the conference. As yet no one has given such notice, although it is expected that Mr. Gloak will again ask for this year's conference.

MRS. T. H. TOMLINSON'S ADDRESS BEFORE W.C.T.U.

TELLS OF THE ASSOCIATION'S NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, county superintendent of the Woman's Christian Union and National superintendent of social meetings and red letter days, gave an interesting talk at the local Union meeting yesterday afternoon, it being an echo of the National W. C. T. U. convention, recently held in Philadelphia.

This convention was the largest in the history of the organization, there being present 500 delegates, besides a great many visitors. There were twenty-four delegates from New Jersey. The State has four National superintendent, Mrs. Thatcher, soldier and sailor work; Mrs. Cox, Sabbath observance; Mrs. Tomlinson, social meetings and red letter days, and Mrs. Margaret Ellis, legislation.

Mrs. Tomlinson reported that New Jersey had made a gain of 200 members during the past year. Mrs. Tomlinson reported that the prospects for the coming year are exceedingly bright, the influence of the organization being recognized in an unusual manner.

MORE WORKERS NEEDED FOR CHINESE MISSIONS

REV. G. E. MOSHER DECLARES IT OF MORE IMPORTANCE THAN MONEY.

"How a Chinaman is Made a Christian," was the substance of what Rev. G. E. Mosher, rector of the Kiadinh chapel, at Shanghai, told in his address at Grace Episcopal church yesterday morning In beginning his remarks, Mr. Mosher said that the present age is one in which the greatest need is for systematic work in missionary fields, and that in his address he intended to answer the question which is so often asked, "How do you make a Christian out of a Chinaman?"

In his talk on the conversion of the Chinese, the speaker showed how in the missions in China the work is systematicaly carried on, and how complete is the education of the Chinaman before he is admitted into the church. Rev. Mr. Mosher said that there are various stages in the religious education of a Chinaman through which he must pass, and in which he must be satisfactorialy examined before admitted into the church as a Christian.

The speaker told of the ways in which they attract the curiosity of the Chinamen, and of the methods which are used to punish them. He described in detail the courses through which the Chinaman passes before he is baptized and told of the awe in which the Chinese stand of American enterprise and power. The fear so often expressed of a "yellow peril," Mr. Mosher said, is nothing compared with the dread of a "white peril," which continually hangs over the Chinaman. In the Christian work, this fear is, to a certain extent, an advantage to the missionaries, as it often gives them a hold on the Chinese, which they would otherwise not have.

In conclusion, the speaker referred to the great need of more men and women in the work of missions in the vast Chinese empire, declaring it of more importance even than that of money. "The opportunities at the present time," Mr. Mosher said, "are the greatest that any age has offered, yet without men and women, comparatively little can be done among the millions of China."

MISS STINE BURIED.

Funeral Services Held at Stine Homestead.

Funeral services over the body of Miss Amanda Stine, who died Saturday morning, were held from the Stine homestead on Greenbrook road this afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which she had been a member.

Miss Stine was in her eighty-second year and had been an invalid for a long time. She was a daughter of the late John and Rachael Stine and the last member of the well-known family. She had four brothers and four sisters, all of whom are dead.

J. K. VANNESS IN WRATH

Locked Up on Charge of Disorderly Conduct.

VILLIFIED OFFICIALS

Ceased Tirade Only When Exhausted—Hearing Postponed One Week.

"Count" John K. VanNess, of East Front street, who has recently been in prominence through his defense in the suit to foreclose a mortgage brought against him by George Marsh, was released from the city jail yesterday afternoon, after treating the policemen nearby to one of the worst tirades of abuse they had ever heard. None of them were exempt and the villifying included several of the most prominent city officials with whom the "Count" has come in contact through civil cases. Arrested Saturday night on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct preferred by Chief Kiely he made night hideous for the other prisoners and ceased only through sheer exhaustion at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

His release was affected by his counsel, W. S. Angleman, with the assurance that he would be on hand for trial today. When his case was called this morning the "Count" was missing and Mr. Angleman declared illness to be the cause. Accordingly the matter was adjourned until next Monday morning.

Doorman McCue and Chief Kiely were standing in front of headquarters Saturday night, when VanNess came by and without provocation began to tell them "what he thought of them." His anger had evidently been aroused through Roundsman John Flynn's participation in the Marsh suit as a witness against him, as he was included in the verbal assault. The Chief attempted to pacify the "Count" and even offered to call a cab and have him sent home. His overtures were met with increased cursing and his arrest was eventually ordered, a formal charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct being entered against him on the police blotter.

DR. J. A. COLES' GIFT TO NEWARK INSTITUTION

PRESENTS FARM HOUSE TO ORPHAN ASYLUM ASSOCIATION.

For use as a summer home for the little charges of the Newark Orphan Asylum Association, Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, has presented to that organization a large farmhouse and twenty acres of land near Westfield. The gift, which has been accepted, was made as a memorial to the mother and sister of the donor. The dwelling on the property is forty feet square and contains fourteen rooms. To meet the needs of the orphan asylum Dr. Coles has promised to build additions sufficient to accommodate the 100 and more little ones of the institution.

Dr. Coles made his offer to the society some time ago, and though many of the managers considered it a great boon for the asylum, it was thought that its acceptance should be a matter of consideration. It was feared that there would be considerable expense attached to furnishing and maintaining the second home and making alterations so that all the children could be taken there at one time. Dr. Coles immediately agreed to erect two dormitories, one to be used by the girls and one by the boys, thus solving all difficulties, and at a meeting held by the officers last week the gift was formally accepted. By next summer the farm will probably be in readiness to serve as the "fresh air" home of the children, who will be sent there for the entire summer.

Basket Ball Tonight.

There will be a good game of basket ball on the floor of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight. The local team play the Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A. The line-up will be Scull, center; Smith and Hand, forwards: Neal and Long guards.

Swedish Lutheran Fair a Success.

All that attractive tables and a large crowd of buyers could do to make a fair a success, combined in favor of the bazaar at the Swedish Lutheran church Saturday afternoon.

Alfred I. Smalley, formerly of North Plainfield, but now of Lake Waccamaw, N. C., is visiting here for a short time. Upon his return he will be accompanied by Thomas Brantingham, of South Plainfield, who will remain south a few weeks.

SWEDISH PILGRIM CHURCH RID OF INDEBTEDNESS

CONGREGATION PREPARING FOR A CHRISTMAS EVE SERVICE.

Rev. L. T. Lindholm, pastor of the Swedish Pilgrim church, and his people are preparing for an interesting service on Christmas eve. At that time arrangements will be perfected for the burning the entire indebtedness of the church. Ever since the congregation erected its commodious church on West Sixth street, there has been a debt on the building. Rev. Mr. Norseen was pastor at the time and while he remained here he put forth every effort to reduce the indebtedness. This he did to some extent.

When Mr. Lindholm succeeded Mr. Norseen as pastor he at once took up this task and has pushed it forward to completion, much to the gratification of his people as well as himself. At the service to be held Christmas eve all of the church bills will be burned and there will be a programme appropriat to the occasion. The members of the church, with the assistance of kind friends, have worked nobly for the liquidation of the debt and they appreciate all the help given them.

SALE OF FAIR EFFECTS BRINGS TOTAL OF $43,951

MONEY TO BE DIVIDED AMONG THE LOCAL HEIRS.

The sale of the personal effects of Mrs. Charles L. Fair, which began in New York on Friday, ended Saturday evening, and 300 articles of furs and jewelry were sold for a total of $43,951. The Knickerbocker Art Galleries, at 7 West Twenty-ninth street, were crowded with women and dealers in jewelry, and the bidding at times was lively, although the advances were small.

Low prices as a rule prevailed. A four-carat diamond of unusual brilliancy brought only $850. A Russian sable muff and stole, which the auctioneer said had been appraised by the Custom House authorities at $2,000, were sold for $85. The highest price of the sale, $7,100, was paid by Henry Breidenbach for a diamond necklace, containing fifty-two diamonds.

Mrs. McKee bought a collarette made up of 900 pearls and 185 diamonds for $5,150, and Dr. Schuert paid $3,700 for a diamond collar weighing 70 carats. The proceeds are to be divided among Mrs. Fair's relatives, who include Mrs. Hannah Nelson, Abram G. Nelson and William B. Smith, of New Market, and Mrs. George Whitley, of Essex street.

MORTGAGE UNRECORDED COSTLY TO MRS. GOGGIN

INSTRUMENT FOR $2,166, A SUBJECT OF LITIGATION.

Vice-Chancellor Stevens has given an opinion in the proceedings instituted by Mrs. Mary Goggin to recover a claim against James F. Daly, former proprietor of the grocery as successor to Daly & Henderson at the J. Fred MacDonald store on East Front street. It declares that a mortgage for $2,166 is void, by claiming that the creditors' claims take precedence, because of failure to record the third mortgage when given.

W. R. Coddington, of the firm of Coddington & Swackhamer, who represents the plaintiff, and who asked for the appointment of a receiver, says that a third mortgage was given to cover a second one as collateral and that the declaration that the mortgage for $2,166 is void does not affect the case.

It appears that in all three mortgages were given. The first one was given by Hirst, Henderson & Bennett, the second by Hirst & Henderson, and the third by Daly. These were all given on the goods in stock. Before any of these mortgages were given the firm was Hirst & Co., the company being Mrs. Mary Goggin. When the mortgages were given they covered her money invested in the business.

J. Fred MacDonald has been acting as receiver by appointment of the court. He also acted as assignee for Daly. W. S. Angleman, Esq., is the attorney for Daly.

The decree will be filed Wednesday.

DR. H. K. CARROLL'S TRIP

To Accompany Bishop Neely to South America.

STARTS JANUARY 18

Condition of M. E. Missions There Require Personal Attention of the Corresponding Secretary.

When Bishop Neely, of the Methodist Episcopal church, starts at the end of this month for South America, to which field he was assigned by the general conference, which elected him last May, he will be accompanied by Dr. H. K. Carroll, one of the corresponding secretary of the Methodist Missionary Society, who is a resident of this city and a prominent layman of the Newark Conference. It is said that this will be the first occasion when a missionary secretary has visited the Methodist South American field. Dr. Carroll's proposed trip is the result of some changed conditions there that require the personal attention of the secretary in charge.

Bishop Neely and Mr. Carroll will first visit Panama, where Methodist work is to be commenced as soon as suitable location for it can be secured. The first meeting of this new mission is to be held at Lima, Peru, January 18. Included in his mission, besides Panama, is the work in Equador and Peru.

Bishop Neely and Mr. Carroll will next visit the Andes Conference, which meets at Coquimbo, Chile, February 8. This conference includes the Chilean and Bolivian missions. The Chilean mission has, strange to say, passed from a condition of self-support to one of independence on the Methodist Society.

Money from outside is now needed, and a readjustment is necessary. This readjustment Dr. Carroll is to oversee. Later he will go with Bishop Neely across the Andes from Valparaiso to Buenos Ayres. He will then visit the missions in Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay, returning to New York in the spring.

MISS MOLLY TAUB IS NOW MRS. HENRY LEVINE

MARRIAGE TOOK PLACE LAST NIGHT AT JEWISH SYNAGOGUE.

Miss Molly Taub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Taub, of Somerset street, was made the wife of Henry Levine, also of this city, at the Synagogue last night. Miss Taub was brought under an large American flag, which was placed at the front of the Synagogue, by Mrs. Samuel Taub and Mrs. Goldstein, while Mr. Taub and Mr. Goldstein escorted Mr. Levine before the minister, who was Mr. Davisson, of this city. The bridesmaids were the Misses Flora Levine, a sister of the groom, Rosie Rodstein and Annie Schwartz. Max Goldstein was the best man. The ushers were Max Gilman and Aaron Levine, the groom's brother.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the 200 guests assembled at the Company K armory, where an elaborate supper was served, and the evening was spent in dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Levine will make their home with the bride's parents on Somerset street.

Following the meeting, there will be a social half hour, when leaflets will be sold.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB'S GALLOP OVER THE SNOW

RIDE OF EIGHT MILES PROVED AN ENJOYABLE ONE.

The cold wind of Saturday afternoon had no terrors for the members of the Watchung Hunt Club, and those who went on the eight-mile chase enjoyed a most delightful time, and one of the best rides which the club has yet taken. The start was from John I. Holly's farm, on Park avenue, and the gayly attired huntsmen made a picturesque appearance as they started over the snow clad meadows toward Metuchen.

The first check was made near Metuchen, the party disbanding in the neighborhood of Oak Tree. From Metuchen the riders galloped off in the direction of Rahway, meeting none but good meadows and favorable omens. The hounds ran well and the fences were all well taken.

Next week the start will be at Westfield, and one of the largest fields of the season is anticipated. Among those who rode Saturday afternoon were these members of the club: Miss Holly, Miss Noe, of Westfield; Charles Ismay, Hugh Baldwin, W. Webster, C. M. S. Bellows, R. A. Chebbeare and Dr. M. O'M. Knott.

WOMEN OF ST. STEPHEN'S GIVE A UNIQUE FAIR

BAZAAR HELD AT THE HOME OF MRS. H. R. KNOX SATURDAY.

Under the auspices of the women of St. Stephen's church, an unique and attractive fair was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. R. Knox, of Webster place. All during the afternoon the rooms of the house, which were tastefully decorated, were well filled, and the articles sold remarkably well. In addition to its financial success, the fair proved an enjoyable social event.

The booths and tables were attractively arranged in the reception hall, parlor and dining rooms, and were draped in red and black. This effect was prettily brought about by festoons of paper hung from the ceilings and around the walls.

Directly upon entering the hall, the visitors were confronted by the Ladies' Home Journal booth, which was presided over by Miss Gahagan and Miss Currier. A feature of the fair was the Gypsy Queen, who occupied a booth picturesque with oriental hangings, in the rear of the dining room. She was portrayed by Miss Catherine Knox, uniquely costumed in a gypsy dress, who displayed her skill at fortune telling. At the fancy work table, Mrs. D. Cole was in charge, assisted by Miss Walshe and Miss Edna Willis. Mrs. Walter Platt was in charge of the candy table, while Mrs. A. C. Hill had charge of the doll display, which was one of the best of the attractions. Cake was sold by Mrs. Albert Beal and Mrs. George Dupee poured tea. The waitresses were Miss Sullivant, Miss Mattox and Miss Bowe.

NEW LUMBER BUILDING.

McDonough Brothers to Erect Structure.

McDonough Brothers, the coal dealers, of Madison avenue, have plans under consideration for the erection of a building and barn on their recently purchased property on West Third street, opposite their coal yards. The property extends from the Rogers' Silver Corporation property to that of Mrs. Carney, corner of West Third street and Central avenue, a portion of which is now occupied by John Lannon, the stone dealer. The new owners will, however, do nothing on the large building until spring, although the barn may be erected sooner.

Ever since the firm started in the coal business it had planned to engage in the lumber business some day, and it is proposed to do so on a moderate scale. Builders' materials will also be handled. Just the kind of a building to be erected has not yet been decided upon, but it will undoubtedly be a steel structure.

The barn and wagon shed to be erected will be with a view to keeping the firm's horses and wagons in one place, instead of having some here and some at South Plainfield, where its supply of ice is gathered and a coal business is carried on.

—VanArsdale's shoe store will remain open evenings until Christmas. —Adv.

CHURCH FREE FROM DEBT

Baptist Congregation Hears Welcome Announcements.

Dr. CHAMBLISS REMAINS

Consents to Continue His Pastorate Without the Time Limit Placed by Himself.

Following the morning service at the First Baptist church, yesterday, two very important and interesting announcements were made by L. V. F. Randolph, of the Board of Trustees. The first was that the entire church indebtedness had been paid and the second was that Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, who was engaged as a pastor for one year, has been re-engaged without the restriction of time limit as specified in the first instance.

In the few remarks made by Mr. Randolph, who was speaking for the trustees, said that he was pleased to say as the time of year approached for the observance of the feast of glad tidings that the debt which had been carried for several years had been paid, including expenses incurred during the past two years for improvements and that the last note and formal obligation had been discharged, leaving the church more than ever a free organization.

Referring to Dr. Chambliss, he said that a year ago he came to the church and at that time was not willing to engage himself as pastor for more than one year. Since then the congregation had had great comfort in his preaching and ministrations and today pastor and people are closely united. He added that Dr. Chambliss had consented to continue his pastorate without time-limit and that this was the cause for great rejoicing among the members of the church and congregation who are united in their love for their pastor. Mr. Randolph then paid deserving tribute to Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor emeritus, and said that he would continue to serve in his capacity he hoped for many years and that he and his family would still be held in the love and esteem which has been extended during the many years of service of the venerable pastor.

Mr. Randolph stated that the arrangement with Dr. Chambliss and the continuance of Dr. Yerkes as pastor emeritus, had been made with the Board of Trustees.

He requested that everyone give expression of their feeling of appreciation that the indebtedness had been cleared and that Dr. Chambliss would continue as pastor by rising. The request was heartily complied with.

Dr. Chambliss in a very few words gave expression to his feelings by thanking all for the kind renewal of expression of love and confidence, adding that he would continue to do his best and he asked for the united love and prayers of his people.

The thought expressed by Mr. Randolph that the church was never more united than at present was attested by the many kind words spoken by all to the pastor after the service. During the one year of service of the pastor the congregation has steadily increased and the membership has grown, there having been a great many baptisms during the past twelve months, although owing to illness the pastor was obliged to be away for several months. He is now perfectly well and enters upon his permanent pastorate with renewed energy and zeal.

SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE.

Root and Dorlon Hailed Victors at New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Amid the almost hysterical shouting of 10,000 persons in Madison Square Garden Eddie Root and Oliver Dorlon, an American team, vanquished the Holland-Belgian team of Johann Stol and Arthur Vanderstuyft and won the most memorable six day bicycle race on record. Seven teams finished despite the outbreak of the third day.

So close had been the finish between the teams that the end of the one hundred and forty-second hour saw two of them even, with 2,386 miles and 6 laps apiece. It was necessary for them to race an extra mile to settle the question of first prize, and it was this last mile that created the excitement far above any burst of the whole six days. This does not equal the 2,703 mile 4 lap record of Miller and Waller made in 1899, but beats the record of last year by sixty-eight miles three laps.

Score at the finish: Root-Dorlon 2,386 miles 6 laps; Vanderstuyft-Stol, 2,386 miles 6 laps; Samuelson-Williams, 2,386 miles 5 laps; Keegan-Logan, 2,386 miles 4 laps; Krebs-Folger, 2,386 miles 3 laps; Breton-Gougoltz, 2,386 3 laps; Turville-Mettling, 2,385 miles 9 laps.

The record for 142 hours is 2,733 miles 4 laps, made by Miller and Waller in 1899.

New Orleans Preliminary Derby.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—The Preliminary Derby, so called, though it is a race at half the distance of the original Derby, was the principal event on the card here. The Derby was a handicap at six furlongs, and several days ago the talent agreed that only two had a chance—Trapper and Ram's Horn, the former having the best of the weights. Those who backed Trapper never had an uneasy moment, for he was always close upon the heels of the pacemakers, Tom Shelly and Saladin, to the stretch, where Phillips let the Hastings colt move to the front as he pleased, and he finally won by two lengths from Matador, who came from a good many lengths behind. Ranger was third. Time, 1:21.

A Champion Boy Skater.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Brock Putnam of this city showed at the St. Nicholas rink that he is undoubtedly the fastest schoolboy skater in the district. The medium through which he demonstrated his high qualities as a speed skater was the half mile race for schoolboys under eighteen years of age. He was on the scratch, giving away handicaps ranging from ten yards to 150 yards. In spite of these liberal allowances he finished first after a hot race.

Vanderbilt Won $57,600.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The racing season in France has ended. William K. Vanderbilt is sixth in the list of winning owners with $57,600., Edmond Blanc is first with $126,200. Leigh, the American trainer, has the best record among trainers, both for flat races and for races over obstacles.

Thompson Defeated Kid Stein.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Maurice Thompson of Butte, Mont., was awarded the decision here over Kid Stein of Philadelphia in a six round bout at the Chicago Riding and Driving club.

Shot Lumber Contractor Fatally.

ALFRED, Me., Dec. 12.—John Goodwin of Lebanon has been arrested and brought here charged with shooting Wesley Fall, a lumber contractor, following a dispute over a boundary line at Lebanon. Fall was shot through the right lung and in the right shoulder and is thought to be fatally wounded. A gang of his men was cutting timber from a piece of land which Fall claimed was included in a recent purchase from Goodwin's father. Young Goodwin charged that Fall was trespassing.

Frying Pan Blow May Be Fatal.

BOSTON, Dec. 12.—During a quarrel over the ownership of a handkerchief here Frederick Weisburg, eighteen years old, is alleged to have assaulted his brother William with a frying pan and kettle. William's skull was fractured, and he was taken to the relief hospital, where it was stated that he would probably die. The alleged assailant fled and up to a late hour last night had not been apprehended.

Boy Duck Hunter Killed.

STONINGTON, Conn., Dec. 12.—John Fritz, seven years old, was accidentally shot and killed Sunday morning by his brother Albert, aged twelve, as the boys were on their way to hunt ducks. The elder brother says he stumbled and that his gun was discharged, killing John almost instantly.

SLID OVER THE BAR

Ship Fish Hawk Struck on Peaked Hill Sands.

FOUR OF THE CREW LOST THEIR LIVES

After Part of the Crew Had Deserted Their Ship She Slipped Across the Sands to Safety Near Provincetown Harbor.

HIGHLAND LIGHT, Mass., Dec. 12.—Four of the twenty members of the crew of the Boston fishing schooner Fish Hawk lost their lives during the night after deserting their vessel, which had struck and was pounding heavily on Peaked Hill bars, at the north end of Cape Cod. Five others, including Captain Bly, who followed their four companions over the side, had a severe six hour tussle against a freezing sea and gale in a small dory, but managed to reach Provincetown harbor. The deaths and suffering would have been avoided had all stayed by their vessel, which a few minutes afterward made a miraculous escape from one of Cape Cod's most deadly traps and four hours later was safely anchored in Provincetown harbor.

The lost seamen were: Thomas Kennedy, East Boston; John Woodworth, Everett; John Drew, Boston, and Joseph Kehoe, Gloucester.

Kennedy's body was recovered at midnight by the life savers, but none of the other bodies has been seen.

The Fish Hawk was fishing off Cape Cod when the weather became threatening, and the wind worked around into the northeast. Captain Bly decided to run into Provincetown, but before he reached the end of the cape the wind had increased to a stiff gale, and presently the little vessel fetched up on the dreaded Peaked Hill bars. Captain Bly, believing that there was but little hope of saving his vessel, burned his signal torch and then ordered his crew into the boats. Four of the seamen jumped into a dory, which was almost immediately capsized in the surf. Captain Bly and four others left the vessel a few minutes later and saw their unfortunate companions struggling helplessly in the surf and endeavored to reach them, but failed. Before the rest of the crew could follow their skipper the wind and sea had driven the Fish Hawk over the bar and into deeper water, from where she was navigated into Provincetown harbor.

Miss Mary, the eldest of the daughters, is the wife of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, viceroy of India. Miss Nannie, the second daughter, was married two weeks ago to Major Colin Campbell.

Merchant Marine League's Call.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. [illegible] The Merchant Marine League of the United States has sent out a statement setting forth the views of the league in its effort to rehabilitate the merchant marine of the United States. The statement says: "The sentiment of the people at large will control, and the more interest taken the more nearly correct must be that sentiment. The decadence of our foreign marine is a fact recognized in political platforms and variously on all hands. The evils are so apparent as to call for an immediate remedy."

BATH, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Two men were killed in a rear end collision between a couple of freight trains on the Lackawanna railroad three miles east of Bath early in the morning, and their bodies were badly burned in a fire that followed and destroyed part of the wreckage. The men were Jerry Snyder, a conductor of Elmira, and John Green, a flagman of Savona. They were in the caboose of the forward train when the collision occurred.

Mistrial in Civic Bribery Case.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 12.—The jury which heard the evidence in the bribery trial of ex-Mayor George R. Perry was discharged, being unable to agree on a verdict. They had been out since 3:30 Friday afternoon. It is said that they stood 10 to 2 for acquittal. The charge against the ex-mayor was the receiving of a bribe of $3,333 from ex-City Attorney Lant K. Salsbury.

Riot at Syveton's Grave.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Several hundred schoolboys and students assembled with the object of making a demonstration at the grave of Deputy Syveton, who died last week. The police broke up the groups, prevented a procession and closed the cemetery. Many persons were arrested, but released later. Syveton was the deputy who struck General Andre in the chamber.

UNHAPPY RUSSIANS

St. Petersburg Rioters Charged by Mounted Police.

MANY HURT BY HORSES AND SWORDS

In Spite of Warning Proclamations People Gathered In Streets Shouting "Down With the Aristocrats!"

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 12.—A popular antigovernment demonstration, the participants in which included large numbers of students of both sexes, began at midday in the Nevski prospect and lasted about two hours. Hundreds of police and mounted gendarmes who were hidden in the courtyard of the public buildings emerged suddenly and charged the crowd at full gallop, driving the demonstrators in headlong confusion and screaming with terror upon the sidewalks and into adjacent streets. This led to serious encounters, fifty persons being more or less severely injured. Large numbers were arrested.

Not since the riots of 1901, when Cossacks stretched across the Nevski prospect from building to building charged down the boulevard from the Moscow station to the Neva, has the Russian capital lived through such a day of excitement as this. The authorities got wind of the big antigovernment demonstration planned by the Social Democratic Labor party to demand an immediate end of the war and the convocation of a national assembly, and leading every paper in black faced type was an explicit warning to the people at their peril to desist from congregating in the Nevski prospect near the Kazan cathedral. At the same time extensive preparations were made to quell any disturbance.

The workmen and students seemed to swarm toward the corner of the Hotel Europe, opposite the Kazan cathedral. The police, recognizing that the critical moment was approaching, tried in vain to keep back the human tide. Then, when there was not a single mounted policeman in sight, on the stroke of 1, from the heart of the thickly wedged crowd a blood red flag like a jet of flame suddenly shot up. It was the signal. Other flags appeared in other parts of the crowd, waving frantically overhead, and they were greeted with a hoarse roar, "Down with autocracy!" The students surged into the street singing the "Marseillaise," while innocent spectators were trying to extricate themselves. Then, like a flash, from behind the Kazan cathedral came wheeling a squadron of gendarmerie. The doors of adjoining courtyards were thrown back, and battalions of police came out. A double squadron charged the flank of the demonstrators with drawn sabers. Five other squadrons circled the mob, cutting through the fringe of spectators, who gladly scurried to cover. The main wedge of the demonstrators stood fast only a moment or two. There was a sharp rattle of cudgels and sabers, though the wounds showed the police struck principally with the flat of their sabers. The women were especially fierce in their resistance. Many were struck and trampled, and blood streamed down their faces. None was fatally injured so far as is ascertainable. There have been over 100 arrests.

The ferment continued all day and far into the night.

Montana a Total Wreck.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 12.—The three masted schooner Montana, Captain Boyce, bound from Baltimore for Charleston, S. C., stranded at midnight near Pea island life saving station, North Carolina, fifty miles north of Cape Hatteras, during a heavy northerly gale and is a total loss. The captain and five of her crew after remaining in the rigging until 2 o'clock in the afternoon were rescued by life saving crews in the breeches buoy. One man was frozen to death in the rigging and another is nearly dead from exposure and exhaustion.

To Help Hibernian Strikers.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 12.—At a meeting of the state board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians it was voted to ask for a contribution from the 250 lodges in Massachusetts to pay the assessments of the local members who are affected by the cotton mill strike, any surplus to go to needy families here. The board hopes to raise $2,500. This is the twenty-first week since the strike, involving nearly 26,000 operatives, was declared. There has been no recent change in the situation.

Reckless Target Practice.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Captain Mills of the American line steamer Philadelphia has entered a protest against reckless target practice carried on off Plymouth. He says that as he approached the harbor on Saturday with nearly 1,000 souls on aboard their safety was endangered by a gunboat firing, which was persisted in even after the patrol launch apprised the gunboat of the liner's approach.

Lumber Mills Destroyed.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 12.—A fire which broke out in the lumber yards of Robinson & Co. at Portsmouth for a time threatened serious damage. The fire was confined to the square in which it originated, and the buildings destroyed are those used as planing mill, lumber mill, the sash and blind factory and power house.

SAIYEN HIT A MINE

Japanese Cruiser Sank With Captain and Many Men.

HEAVY ENGAGEMENT NEAR MUKDEN

Russian Ships Sunk at Port Arthur Still Object of Besiegers' Fire to Prevent Their Future Usefulness.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—A Mukden report says that the Japanese opened a heavy fire on the Russian position east of the railway at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, but the Russians had searchlights in readiness and for the first time used them. These army lights proved very effective, and a deadly rifle and artillery fire being concentrated upon the Japanese advance they were driven back with heavy loss.

The bombardment of Poutiloff (Lone Tree) hill was renewed vigorously at dawn, but slackened after a few hours without a direct attack.

The Japanese are largely colonizing southern Manchuria, sending there 7,000,000 emigrants, and they are also sending many young Chinese from Manchuria to Japan, paying their traveling expenses.

Advices from Tokyo last night say that the battering by the Japanese of the Port Arthur fleet continues, and there is little ground for expecting that the ships ever again will engage the Japanese.

In order to settle the question of all future availability of the Russian warships the Japanese continue to drop shells into the sunken hulks. The whereabout of the torpedo destroyers continues doubtful, but it is thought they are sheltering outside the harbor.

The cruiser Saiyen, flagship of the detached squadron, while co-operating with the army in bombarding Port Arthur struck a Russian mine and was enveloped in smoke and sank very rapidly.

The gunboat Akagi succeeded in rescuing fifteen officers and 175 men, but Captain Tajima and thirty-eight others went down with the ship.

The Saiyen, while flagship of the detached squadron and at the same time engaged in blockading Port Arthur, was often exposed to dangers and frequently rendered distinguished services.

The battleship Sevastopol continues at anchor outside, but possibly returns to the harbor at night and anchors inside the outer boom, which protects her from torpedo boats. The recent heavy weather has given added protection to the vessel.

Naval experts are discarding the theory that the Russians themselves sank any of the ships, and the fact that the vessels first showed lists while in exposed positions and the efforts made to save the Sevastopol are regarded as conclusive evidence against the theory of their being sunk by the Russians. A majority of the sunken warships lie headed northward. They received the bulk of the fire across their port sides, and the fact that at least two of them showed lists to starboard gives rise to the theory of Japanese shells exploding inside the ships and against the starboard armor, driving the armor outward and causing leaks.

Japanese imperial headquarters reports that in the direction of the Shakhe river during the night the enemy's infantry attacked an outpost at Siantankou, but was repulsed.

At 3 o'clock in the morning the Russians in unknown strength pressed the outposts in the neighborhood of the Shakhe River railroad, but was repulsed, with loss.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 12.—It is reported here that the contract for the British steamship line between British Columbia and Mexico has been awarded to Andrew Weir & Co. of Glasgow, Scotland. Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 12, 1904

President Harper, of Chicago University, scores the press for publishing fantastic stories about that institution. The frequency of startling tales about Mr. Rockefeller's school has given most newspaper men the impression that it has a hustling press agent.

The announcement that Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss has consented to remain as pastor of the First Baptist church is pleasant news not only to his congregation but to the people of Plainfield generally. During the past year he has endeared himself to the community and it is hoped that he will dwell here for the remainder of his days.

Other cities in the State have already taken steps to follow the example set by Plainfield in increasing its liquor license fees and everywhere in New Jersey praise is given the Common Council for its action. Widespread attention is also given the proposition presented by Councilman Tyler to limit the territory in which liquor may be sold. The Newark Evening News, the leading paper of the State, said editorially on the subject Saturday:

The city of Plainfield, which recently adopted an ordinance raising the license fee from $700 to $1,000, has now under consideration another measure intended to regulate the liquor traffic within the city limits. It is an ordinance designed to limit and restrict the district in which saloons and drinking places may be located. The ordinance, if adopted, will confine all saloons to the business part of the city and allow none outside of designated area. It will prevent the locating and licensing of saloons in districts where they are not wanted and will set at rest a great deal of uncertainty as to what Council may or may not do. Last year there was a long and bitter contest over an effort to locate a new saloon in a certain street. Council was divided over the issue, politics entered into the struggle; motives of both citizens and officials were impugned and the fight ended only by the defeat of the scheme. Plainfield does not, it would seem, intend to go through another such experience. It is certainly refreshing to find one city in New Jersey that is courageous enough, intelligent enough and determined enough to actually regulate its own liquor traffic. The fourteen saloons of that city can, in the first place, be easily watched. Their proprietors, in the second place, are very careful not to violate the laws, lest they lose their licenses for which they have paid heavily. Occasionally a "speakeasy" opens for a time, but its career is brief. Plainfield seems to have solved the question of the regulation of the traffic about as well as it can be solved under a license system.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Work will be started on the new extension of the brick work on the Levering & Garrigues plant as soon as the weather permits.

Subscriptions were taken up at all the services in the Presbyterian church yesterday to help pay the debt on the parsonage.

Preparations are already being made for the baseball dance which is to be held in Apgar's Hall on Friday evening.

William Brokaw is seriously ill at his home on Front street, caused by a rush of blood to his head.

Charles Boice, Jr., will leave tomorrow for Florida, where he will spend the winter months.

Dr. Sladovich is rapidly recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The storm of Saturday afternoon and night could not mar the success of the cake and fancy goods sale held by the Ladies' Aid Society, of All Saints' church, in the Casino, at The Homestead. The hours of the sale were from 3 until 10 o'clock, but it was some time after this hour before the enjoyable affair was brought to a close. Everyone seemed to vie with each other in seeing who could help the good cause the most. From the attendance one would hardly believe a miniature blizzard was raging without but none seemed to care and all were filled with that holiday cheer which begins to show itself as the yuletide approaches. The several booths were liberally patronized and the society will be enabled to present the church with a tidy sum towards reducing its indebtedness.

Last night's meeting marked the beginning of the third and last week of the revival meetings being conducted in the Methodist church by Rev. George W. Coon, of Boston. The meeting was in the nature of a union gathering, the members of the Baptist church meeting with them in the work. The attendance was large and Mr. Coon's last week's work here will no doubt be even more successful than the others, for the seed that has been sown is beginning to manifest itself and a number will be taken into the church shortly.

Some of those who enjoy winter dusted out their cutters and indulged in a sleigh ride Sunday morning. By afternoon the sun had melted what little snow there was in the roadway, so the sport was short-lived.

The weekly B. Y. P. U. meeting was the only evening service held last night at the Baptist church, as the members attended the revival meeting which was held at the Methodist church.

No meeting will be held at the Methodist church tonight, but tomorrow night and continuing every evening but Saturday, meetings will be held at the usual hour, 7:45.

A number of the lovers of dancing in town will attend the masquerade dance to be given tonight in the East Second street hall, by Prof. Suhr's dancing class.

Miss Nancy Wade, who has been spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, has returned today to her home at Milburn.

Miss Susie Parse returned yesterday from a visit of several days with Mrs. John R. Cochran, of Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn.

Rev. and Mrs. George Francis, of Westfield, were the guest yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. John Y. Hetfield, of Stout avenue.

The storm of Saturday prevented the members of the Brookside Gun Club from enjoying their weekly shoot.

A party of five from town saw the close of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, Saturday night.

George H. Johnston has been detained at home for several days, suffering from a severe cold.

Miss Mary Westcott, of the borough, has been entertaining friends from out of town over Sunday.

The Suburban and Y. M. C. A. bowlers roll a match game tonight on the Suburban alleys.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Miss Marjorie Voorhees, after weeks spent with her friends here, has returned to Asbury Park.

William Faulks, who is ill with pneumonia, remains about the same.

Michael Saverd is ill with pneumonia.

Fractured Her Ankle.

While walking home today about 11 o'clock, Mrs. Taylor, wife of Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor, of Park avenue, slipped and fell at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, fracturing her ankle bone. Elmer E. Runyon hastened to assist her. She was removed to her home in a carriage and Dr. H. M. Lowrie summoned. An examination disclosed no other injuries aside from the fractured ankle. He set the bone and the patient is now quite comfortable.

CRACK SHOTS CONTEST IN GUN CLUB TOURNAMENT

H. KELLER AND WILLIAMS DEFEAT T. H. KELLER, JR., AND VOSSELLER.

In what might be termed a small blizzard, with the snow falling fast and a howling wind from West by North, members of the Plainfield Gun Club and experts from New York and other places had a fairly successful shoot at the traps Saturday afternoon. There were fourteen contestants.

Among the experts in attendance were "Wild Bert" Williams, Harry Welles, Jack Fanning, T. H. Keller, Jr., and "Sim" Glover. Keller shot fairly well, making an average of 70 per cent., the best of the day. An interesting fifty-bird match took place between Keller and H. P. Vosseler, the latter a member of the club, and Harold Keller and "Wild Bert" Williams. The latter team won easily. Welles and Fanning competed with seventy birds, the former breaking sixty-three to his opponent's sixty-two. Glover had an off day and for that reason did not do any match shooting.

A COLD BEDROOM.

Mulholland Mistook Front Street Hallway for His Boudoir and Retired.

Mistaking the open hallway of a Front street building for his bedroom, George Mulholland, suffering from over-intoxication, prepared to retire late Saturday night. He had partially disrobed and settled himself for a sleep that would have meant his freezing to death, the thermometer registering ten above, when he was discovered by Patrolman Hamilton. Mulholland was pretty well along in cold storage when taken to police headquarters and had to be thawed out in front of the furnace before he could be placed in a cell.

He was fully himself again in city court this morning and Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

AMUSEMENTS.

Following the engagement of "The Other Girl" the attraction at the Grand is B. C. Whitney's piquant musical mixture, "The Isle of Spice," one of the conspicuous early season triumphs in New York. "The Isle of Spice" is a clever concoction of wit and fancy, dealing as it does with the adventures of two jolly tars dropped from a balloon on a mythical island in the Indian Ocean. The inhabitants take them for two mighty foreign potentates and due homage is rendered them. The search for the two supposedly lost sailors by the officers of the U. S. battleship, from which they went signaling in the balloon, is rendered doubly comic by the love entanglements of the young lieutenants with the guileless maidens of the newly discovered land of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. There is also a comic king called Bompoka, whose matrimonial experiences and methods of financing add to the general hilarity. Complications of a screamingly diverting order constantly occur, and thanks to a clever composer, whenever the audience is not convulsed with the efforts of the librettist, it is kept in a state of delight by a score of the prettiest numbers recently heard in musical comedy. Mr. Whitney has secured a capable company of clever comedians and singers to interpret "The Isle of Spice," and the evolutions of the chorus promise to be a revelation in agility and grace, without mentioning the captivating beauty of the young women termed "broilers."

PANAMA CANAL.

Bunau-Varilla's View as to Sea Level Waterway.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Phillippe Bunau-Varilla, who, before being minister of Panama to Washington, was the principal engineer of the Panama canal, gives an authorized interview relative to the building of the canal at sea level. M. Bunau-Varilla says that the construction of the canal at sea level is not only possible, but it must ultimately be so constructed, as are other connections between oceans, like the straits of Bosporus between the Black sea and the Aegean sea. Asked if the Panama canal ought to be constructed at once at sea level, M. Bunau-Varilla replied:

"Not at all. To be a perfect sea level the canal must be free from any artificial work, and there is perhaps no engineer who would be willing to accept the responsibility of building it immediately without dams on the upper Chagres to regulate the floods and without tide locks at Panama to counteract in the canal the currents due to the ten foot tide in the Pacific. The notion of a free discharge from the Chagres in a lockless sea level canal must result from experience, which would be acquired by working a lock canal with a central lake such as that I devised in 1892 and which was adopted by the isthmian canal commission in 1901. The construction of such a canal would give experimental data about the necessary cross section of the canal, about the slopes of the deep cut at Culebra and about the sediments of the Chagres, all of which are essential for building a sea level passage successfully."

ROBY BUILDING BURNED.

Rochester Has Sunday Fire, With Loss of $400,000.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 12.—The Roby building, Main street west and Elizabeth street, was destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, entailing a loss of about $400,000. The building, which was valued at $60,000, was practically destroyed. The Van Bergh Silver Plate company loses $250,000, with an insurance of $150,000. The Hayden Furniture company lost $100,000, insured.

The building was of brick, five stories high, but was filled with highly inflammable material and burned with great rapidity. The fire originated on the fifth floor from some unknown cause. Every piece of fire apparatus in the city was used to fight the flames, but nothing could be done to stop their progress.

The entire structure was on fire from cellar to top before half the companies arrived, and in forty minutes the floors fell, following a series of explosions. Surrounding property was endangered, but the fire was confined to the Roby building, where it originated. The Hayden Furniture company was burned out at Court and Exchange streets March 25, 1903.

Italian Ran Amuck In Church.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 12.—Clad only in his underclothing and a raving maniac from an attack of typhoid fever, James Delatto, an Italian, thirty-two years of age, with an ax held seven policemen at bay for over two hours in the Fifth Reformed Dutch church shortly before the morning service yesterday. Before being captured he jumped on top of the big pipe organ, and policemen were compelled to climb into it from overhead to capture him. In the capture three policemen were cut with the ax, and Delatto was shot through the head, but may recover. The organ was damaged to the extent of $1,500, and other damage was caused in the church by the ax.

Monument to Famous Western Guide

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 12.—A monument over the grave of James Bridger, the famous guide and explorer who discovered Great Salt lake and Yellowstone park and who opened the overland trail, has been dedicated in Mount Washington cemetery. It was erected by General Grenville M. Dodge of New York, the engineer who located the Union Pacific railroad and who followed the route advised by Bridger. The monument is a massive block of rough hewn gray granite, with the head of the scout in bas-relief and a chronicle of his most noteworthy achievements.

Rare Ceremony at Rome.

ROME, Dec. 12.—In the presence of 60,000 people assembled in St. Peter's Pope Pius X. yesterday morning canonized Blessed Alessandro Sauli and Blessed Gerardo Maiella, descendants of whom, including Marquises Ambrozio, Sauli and Negrotto, assisted in the canonizations, a ceremony so rare in recent times that this is only the second that has been held since 1870.

MAY GO FREE.

Mrs. Chadwick May Escape on Plea of No Forgery Being Committed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—From present indications it is extremely unlikely that any attempt will be made to obtain bail for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, who has been in the Tombs since last Thursday night on a charge of aiding and abetting bank officials in the embezzlement of $12,500. She was held under $15,000 bail. A person who is in a position to know the various moves in the Chadwick case said:

"Despite all reports to the contrary no active efforts have been made to obtain bail for Mrs. Chadwick in this city. There are plenty of people here who would sign her bond if asked, but the fact is it is not deemed advisable for Mrs. Chadwick to leave the city prison at present.

"I am of the opinion that Mrs. Chadwick will remain quietly in the Tombs for the present. Her examination is set for next Saturday before United States Commissioner Shields. If further continuance should not be asked by counsel on either side the commissioner would listen to the evidence with a view to determining whether or not Mrs. Chadwick should be held for the federal grand jury.

"It is the opinion of some of the leading attorneys that a charge of forgery cannot be made to hold in connection with these notes. They declare that it is not an act of forgery for one person to write the name of another, but that the offense lies in the attempt to negotiate such a signature for the specific value. This, they say, there is so far no evidence that Mrs. Chadwick has done. She has not sold or attempted to sell the notes for cash. She has not said that she would be glad to obtain money in exchange for them. She has obtained money from various sources on the statement of Iri Reynolds that she, to the best of his knowledge and belief, held securities of a certain value, and he believed what he said to be true.

"There has been, according to the attorneys, no evidence so far elicited showing that Mrs. Chadwick obtained money on these notes in any other manner than through the attestation of Iri Reynolds that he had seen the notes and considered them good. It is not believed by any of the attorneys in the case that the Carnegie securities will be of any account whatever."

WATER FAMINE IN VERMONT.

Farmers and Mill Owners In Serious Trouble Caused by Early Frosts.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Dec. 12.—Reports from towns throughout the state indicate a scarcity of water that is causing much inconvenience to farmers and mill owners and which threatens to develop into a serious water famine.

All the rivers are very low, and in the manufacturing towns mills are forced to run on short time. The plant of the International Paper company at Milton is affected, as well as the plant of the American Woolen company at Winooski, which has been compelled to resort to steam power. Many smaller industries are hampered.

Cold weather has set in much earlier than usual, and all the smaller streams are frozen. Farmers are drawing water considerable distances to supply their household needs and cattle. Navigation on Lake Champlain will close next Sunday, nearly two weeks earlier than usual.

Fell Over Bank to Death.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 12.—The frozen and wounded body of James White, a sixty-year-old resident of Freartown, below this city, has been found at the foot of a rock embankment alongside the tracks of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad. Coroner Selfridge made an investigation and decided that White had probably slipped from the edge of the bank during the night and, striking his head on the ragged rocks twenty feet below, died of concussion of the brain. There were no marks to show that he had been either assaulted or struck by a train. He leaves a wife and six children.

Two Drowned From Hunting Canoe.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Dec. 12.—John H. Gore, Jr., law partner of ex-Governor D. L. Russell, and his brother-in-law, John Brewer of Franklin, Va., about eighteen years of age, were drowned in Cape Fear river, five miles below Wilmington, Saturday night. A canoe in which they were returning to a steam launch up the river from a ducking expedition was capsized by a squall. Two other compantions in a ducking canoe were unable to rescue the men on account of the storm.

Heart Failure Induced by Cold.

BOSTON, Dec. 12.—The first local tragedy due to the present cold weather was reported here when Jeremiah J. Lehan, a night patrolman attached to the Jamaica Plain station, was found dead in a doorway on his route. Lehan had recently been ill with pneumonia. The medical examiner announced that death was due to heart failure induced by exposure.

Stepped In Front of Train†

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 12.—John Poole, a white grocer, about forty-five years old, was found dead lying alongside the Southern railway bed a short distance below the city. A note written by Poole points strongly to suicide. It is believed Poole deliberately stepped in front of a fast train and was killed instantly.

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 1,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

NEW MATERIALS.

Printed Panne Velvet Very Smart. Blouses of White Flannel.

Printed panne is a material which is often seen in the realm of blouses as well as for trimming purposes. As a matter of fact, panne is increasing in favor as the season advances, one of the newest developments having almost invisible stripes in two shades running through it.

Exquisite printed satins for evening wear are also included among the new fabrics. The design usually consists of a flower pattern in several soft shades on white, cream or light colored ground.

Some of the new shirts and blouses of white cloth or flannel are piped with leather or suede in different colors and adorned with straps of the same. A very effective example is fastened down the front with little tabs piped with bronze leather and bronze buttons. The two small patch pockets on each side of the fronts have the same decoration.

Accordion plaiting is very much used on children's dresses this season. Many of the little party frocks are accordion plaited from the throat to the hem and have short puffed sleeves.

The hat illustrated is suitable for a girl of twelve. It has a plain brim of velvet and a high crown, the top of which is covered with drawn velvet, while soft puffings of glace silk very closely gathered encircle the crown. The silk should be chosen to match exactly the velvet, or the hat could be developed entirely in velvet, but in this case it would be rather heavy.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

STYLISH VEILS.

Works of Art, but Too Heavy to Enhance My Lady's Charms.

Mme. la Pompadour's influence has reached even the kingdom of veils, and the newest idea is for my lady to cover her face with a dainty tinted mesh worked over with exquisite little bunches of flowers scattered carelessly about its surface.

A modern celebrity, Mme. Melba, has made fashionable a stunning veil which looks like a lace flounce. It is of chantilly and of a circular shape, ornamented with a deep border. Some of these expensive chantilly face coverings have a border also at the top, which makes a pretty finish for the brim of a smart hat or will conceal the ravages of time on an old one.

The craze for floral effects which has invaded the entire world of dress fabrics has not skipped over the veil, and the latest chiffon "beautifiers" have scalloped edges and are appliqued all over with velvet daisies. Double veils are also a novelty. A medium shade with a lighter tone over it sheds a becoming glow over the face.

Changeable effects in veils are very smart, and this artistic scheme is carried out by means of two veils. The inner one is not noticeable except for the fascinating beauty note it gives to the features.

The charming gown in the cut is of soft gray panne. The folded bodice is very new and swagger with its ruched and braided cape effect about the shoulders and the pretty chemisette of lace trimmed with bands of cameo velvet. The wrinkled sleeves have elbow ruches of lace, velvet and tiny quillings. The skirt is gathered and ornamented at the feet with ruffles of panne held in position with braid. The folded belt of panne is set on the bodice.

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

Dinner over, the count invited me to the smoking-room, where, in a corner by ourselves, I had some talk with him. He told me of his father—that he had been a friend of Franklin, that he had given a ship and a cargo of gunpowder to our navy in '76. Like others I had met under his roof, the count had seen the coming of the Reign of Terror in France, and had fled with his great fortune. He had invested much of it there in the wild country. He loved America, and had given freely to equip the army for war. He was, therefore, a man of much influence in the campaign of the north, and no doubt those in authority there were instructed, while the war was on, to take special care of his property.

"And will you please tell me," I said at length, "who are the Misses de Lambert?"

"Daughters of a friend in Paris," said the count. "He is a great physician. He wishes not for them to marry until they are 21. Mon Dieu! it was a matter of some difficulty. They were beautiful."

"Very beautiful!" I echoed.

"They are admired," he went on. "The young men they began to make trouble. My friend he send them here, with the baroness, to study—to finish their education. It is healthy, it is quiet, and—well, there are no young gentlemen. They go to bed early; they are up at daylight; they have the horse! they have boats; they amuse themselves ver' much. But they are impatient; they long for Paris—the salon, the theater, the opera. They are like prisoners: they cannot make themselves contented. The baroness she has her villa on a lake back in the woods, and, mon ame! it is beautiful there—so still, so, cool, so delightful! At present they have a great fear of the British. They lie awake; they hear a sound in the night, and, mon Dieu! it is the soldiers coming."

The count laughed, lifting his shoulders with a gesture of both hands. Then he puffed thoughtfully at his cigarette.

"Indeed," he went on presently, "I think the invasion is not far away. They tell me the woods in the north are alive with British cavalry. I am not able to tell how many, but, Dieu! it is enough. The army should inform itself immediately. I think it is better that you penetrate to the river tomorrow, if you are no afraid, to see what is between, and to return by the woods. I shall trouble you to take a letter to the Gen. Brown. It will be ready at any hour."

"At six?" I inquired.

"At six, certainly, if you desire to start then," he replied.

He rose and took my arm affectionately and conducted me to the big drawing-room. Two of the ladies were singing as one played the guitar. I looked in vain for the Misses de Lambert. The others were all there, but they had gone. I felt a singular depression at their absence and went to my room shortly to get my rest, for I had to be off early in the morning. Before going to bed, however, I sat down to think and do some writing. But I could not for the life of me put away the thought of the young ladies. They looked alike, and yet I felt sure they were very different. Somehow I could not recall in what particular they differed. I sat a time thinking over it. Suddenly I heard low voices, those of women speaking in French; I could not tell from where they came.

"I do wish she would die, the hateful thing!" said one. (It must be understood these words are more violent in English than they seem in French.)

"The colonel is severe to-night," said another.

"The colonel—a fine baroness indeed—vieille tyran! I cannot love her. Lord! I once tried to love a monkey and had better luck. The colonel keeps all the men to herself. Whom have I seen for a year? Dieu! women, grandpapas, greasy guides! Not a young man since we left Paris."

"My dear Louison!" said the other, "there are many things better than men."

"Au nom de Dieu! But I should like to know what they are. I have never seen them."

"But often men are false and evil," said the other, in a sweet, low voice.

"Nonsense!" said the first, impatiently. "I had rather elope with a one-legged hostler than always live in these woods."

"Louison! You ought to cross yourself and repeat a Hail Mary."

"Thanks! I have tried prayer. It is n't what I need. I am no nun like you. My dear sister, don't you ever long for the love of a man—a big, handsome, hearty fellow who could take you up in his arms and squeeze the life out of you?"

"Eh, bien," said the other, with a sigh, "I suppose it is very nice. I do not dare to think of it."

"Nice! It is heaven, Louise! And to see a man like that and not be permitted to—to speak to him! Think of it! A young and handsome man—the first I have seen for a year! Honestly I could poison the colonel."

"My dear, it is the count as much as the colonel. She is under his orders, and he has an eagle eye."

"The old monkey. He enrages me! I could rend him limb from limb!"

I could not help hearing what they said, but I did not think it quite fair to share their confidence any further, so I went to one of the windows and closed a shutter noisily. The voices must have come from a little balcony just under my room.

"My dear sister, you are very terrible," said one of them, and then the shutter came to, and I heard no more.

A full moon lighted the darkness. A little lake gleamed like silver between the tree-tops. Worn out with hard travel, I fell into bed shortly, and lay a long time thinking of those young ladies, of the past, of to-morrow and its perils, and of the farther future. A new life had begun for me.

CHAPTER VII.

The sun was lifting above the tree-tops when the count's valet called me that morning at the Chateau Le Ray. Robins were calling under my windows, and the groves rang with tournaments of happy song. Of that dinner-party only the count was at breakfast with me. We ate hurriedly, and when we had risen the horses were at the door. As to my own, a tall chestnut thoroughbred that Mr. Parish had brought over from England, I never saw him in finer fettle. I started Seth by Caraway Pike for Ogdensburg with the count's message.

Mine host laid hold of my elbow and gave it a good shake as I left him, with D'ri, taking a trail that led north by west in the deep woods. They had stuffed our saddle-bags with a plenty for man and horse.

I could not be done thinking of the young ladies. It put my heart in a flutter when I looked back at the castle from the wood's edge and saw one of them waving her handkerchief in a window. I lifted my hat, and put my spurs to the flank with such a pang in me that I dared not look back again. Save for that one thing, I never felt better. The trail was smooth, and we galloped along in silence for a mile or so. Then it narrowed to a stony path, where one had enough to do with slow going to take care of his head, there were so many boughs in the way.

"Jerushy Jane!" exclaimed D'ri, as he slowed down. "Thet air 's a gran' place. Never hed my karkiss in no sech bed as they gin me las' night—softer 'n wind, an' hed springs on like them new wagins ye see over 'n Vermont. Jerushy! Dreamed I was flyin'."

I had been thinking of what to do if we met the enemy and were hard pressed. We discussed it freely, and made up our minds that if there came any great peril of capture we would separate, each to take his own way out of the difficulty.

We halted by a small brook at midday, feeding the horses and ourselves out of the saddle-bags.

"Ain't jest eggzac'ly used t' this kind uv a sickle," said D'ri, as he felt the edge of his saber, "but I 'll be dumed ef it don't seem es ef I 'd orter be ruther dang'rous with thet air 'n my hand."

He knew a little about rough fighting with a saber. He had seen my father and me go at each other hammer and tongs there in our dooryard every day of good weather. Stormy days he had always stood by in the kitchen, roaring with laughter, as the good steel rang and the house trembled. He had been slow to come to it, but had had his try with us, and had learned to take an attack without flinching. I went at him hard for a final lesson that day in the woods— a great folly, I was soon to know. We got warm and made more noise than I had any thought of. My horse took alarm and pulled away, running into a thicket. I turned to catch him.

"Judas Priest!" said D'ri.

There, within 10 feet of us, I saw what made me, ever after, a more prudent man. It was an English officer leaning on his sword, a tall and handsome fellow of some 40 years, in shiny top-boots and scarlet blouse and gauntlets of brown kid.

"You are quite clever," said he, touching his gray mustache.

I made no answer, but stood pulling myself together.

"You will learn," he added, smiling, with a tone of encouragement. "Let me show you a trick."

He was most polite in his manner, like a play-hero, and came toward me as he spoke. Then I saw four other Britishers coming out close in upon us from behind trees.

He came at me quickly, and I met him. He seemed to think it would be no trick to unhand my weapon. Like a flash, with a whip of his saber, he tried to wrench it away. D'ri had begun to shoot, dodging between trees, and a redcoat had tumbled over. I bore in upon my man, but he came back at me with surprising vigor. On my word, he was the quickest swordsman I ever had the honor of facing. But he had a mean way of saying "Ha!" as he turned my point. He soon angered me, whereupon I lost a bit of caution, with some blood, for he was at me like a flash, and grazed me on the hip before I could get my head again. It was no parlor play, I can tell you. We were fighting for life, and both knew it. We fought up and down through brakes and bushes and over stones—a perilous footing. I could feel his hand weakening. I put all my speed to the steel then, knowing well that, barring accident, I should win. I could hear somebody coming up behind me.

GODS OF WAR! WE MADE THE SPARKS FLY.

"Keep away there," my adversary shouted, with a fairness I admire when I think of it. "I can handle him. Get the other fellow."

I went at him to make an end of it.

"I'll make you squint, you young cub," he hissed, lunging at me.

He ripped my blouse at the shoulder, and, gods of war! we made the sparks fly. Then he went down, wriggling; I had caught him in the side, poor fellow! Like a flash I was off in a thicket. One of the enemy got out of my way and sent a bullet after me. I could feel it rip and sting in the muscle as it rubbed my ribs. I kept foot and made for my horse. He had caught his reins, and I was on him and off in the bush, between bullets that came ripping the leaves about me, before they could give chase.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

The sad intelligence was flashed by wireless telegraphy from an incoming ocean liner the other day that Jimmy Michael, the wonderful little Welsh bicyclist had passed away on board the ship, and the news was soon after confirmed on the arrival of the vessel at New York. Michael, familiarly known as the "Welsh Rarebit," was probably the greatest bicyclist the world has known. He remained champion at various distances for a greater length of time and won more races of note than any other wheelman. His small stature and boyish face helped to make his performances the more notable, and his reputation was worldwide. Michael was born in Aberaman, Wales, 27 years ago. He started riding in 1894, winning the championship in Cardiff. He discontinued his job as a butcher boy in order to take up cycling, and his wonderful speed at home gave him courage to visit England in 1895, where he captured first honors in every event. During 1896 the diminutive cyclist was the champion of France, and after defeating all the crack riders came to America in the fall and scored a notable victory over Starbuck. Later in the year Michael lowered all world's records from two to ten miles, and it may be said no rider has ever held as many records as the "Welsh Rarebit." At different times the figures from two to 100 miles, both against time and in competition, have been credited to the name of Michael. Behind human pace in 1897 Michael defeated Tom Linton, an old time rival, for the championship of the world. He also scored over McDuffie, Lesna, and Chase, who was considered the best middle distance rider of England. Before the largest crowd that ever attended a bicycle race in Madison Square garden Michael lowered the colors of Starbuck, and the little fellow has the honor of having defeated every rider in America who essays to follow the pacing machines. At this time Michael became infatuated with horse racing, and although he had accumulated a bank account of $30,000 he thought he would like to become a jockey. A prominent eastern trainer gave him opportunity to learn and he secured a license and actually rode in a few races at Morris park, but discovered this was not his calling. The end of 1899 found his bank account depleted, and in 1900 he again took to the cycle racing game. Interest in this sport had died out noticeably in America, but Michael continued to meet with success. He went abroad and there, at Berlin, met with the accident which eventually resulted in his death, although it did not prevent him continuing his occupation. His last appearance in this country was a year ago, when he was defeated at New York.

American colleges have reputations the world over for turning out bright scholars and great athletes, but seldom are the qualities combined as in the case of Warren Ellis Schutt. This young man is a Rhodes scholarship athlete who earned his way to the other side for the purpose of studying at Oxford. The other day he won four events at the Brasenose sports, the 100-yard run in 0:11 2-5, the quarter-mile in 0:43 3-5, the mile in 5:07, and the weight-throw with 27 feet 5 inches. Schutt was the greatest distance runner among the American colleges and captain of the Cornell track and cross-country teams, before he went to England. Schutt's athletic record dates back little more than two years. At that time he was a sophomore at Cornell, and had never seen a running shoe. One day Trainer Moakley spied him on the campus and immediately picked him as a runner. Schutt was urged to report, which he did, and the trainer fitted him out in running togs. The first day Trainer Moakley sent him around the quarter-mile track a number of times. The stride Schutt showed warranted the trainer's expectations. The second day he sent him out with Cornell's champion cross-country team, which that year defeated Harvard, Yale and Princeton. The cross-country course is over five miles long, but to the surprise of Trainer Moakley Schutt was with the bunch when the team returned to the clubhouse. The third day Schutt made his reputation. He was again started with the cross-country champions. He knew the course, and long before Moakley began to look at his watch to get the time of his returning team, Schutt came in sight alone, running with perfect ease. "Why didn't you go 'round the course?" asked Moakley. "I did," answered the green runner. "Where is the team?" demanded the trainer. "Somewhere back there." And soon the leaders came in sight. The team had separated in their efforts to overtake the newcomer into their ranks, but none of them could do it. Schutt had lowered the record for the course and established himself leader of all Cornell runners. Two months later he won the intercollegiate two-mile, setting a new record for distance.

W. E. Schutt.

BASKET BALL.

Manager Collier, of the Plainfield High School basket ball team, has arranged a gala day for the two teams representing the local school on Friday, December 16. Both the first and second aggregations will journey to Newark where they will play the two teams representing the Newark High School. The team will be aided in their game by the cheers of about fifty members of the school, including several of the instructors. They will probably attend the game in a chartered car, and will get as many of the High School's friends to go along as possible. The line up including substitutes will be chosen from these players: Thompson, Collier, Freeman, Gavett, Smith, Stutsman and Vail. The second team, which will play against the Newark scrub, between the halves of the regular game, will go on the floor as follows: Doane, Caldwell, Mackey, Leggett and Freeman.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

The annual sale will be held in the parish house of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, tomorrow afternoon.

Charles A., William H. and Marie A., children of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Allegar, of East Second street, were baptized at Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

Announcement is made of a special meeting of the Woman's Society for Christian Work Wednesday in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. The meeting will be for work, followed by a social hour. A full attendance of members is desired.

The twelfth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be celebrated next Saturday morning. The society will have entire charge of the service and interesting reports will be presented by the various officers. There will also be special music.

Under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, an illustrated lecture will be given in the church on Friday night by Rev. F. H. Jacobs, the evangelist. He will show a large number of views of the Holy Land. All of the young people's societies of the city and borough have been invited.

Y. M. C. A. Basket Ball Schedule.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team has a strong schedule of games to play in the next two months. Manager Cahoone has secured several difficult games both at home and abroad, and the contests will be interesting ones. The following is the schedule: At home—December 19, Montclair Y. M. C. A.; January 23, Passaic Y. M. C. A.; February 13, Summit Y. M. C. A.; February 27, Summit Y. M. C. A.; March 13, Business Men; March 21, Orange; out of town—January 21, Montclair Y. M. C. A.; February 4, Newark Y. M. C. A.; February 18, Orange Y. M. C. A.; February 25, Passaic Y. M. C. A.

Paid Election Bet.

The payment of a bet made on the presidential election by John Fenner and Harry Fagley, both of Dunellen, furnished amusement for a big part of that borough's residents and also New Market, Saturday afternoon. Fagley picked Parker to win and losing, had to trundle Fenner all the way from Dunellen to New Market in a wheelbarrow. He lived up to the agreement and evidently had the best end after all as Fenner was nearly frozen before the trip was over.

McDonald Kidnapping Case?

Yesterday's edition of the Newark Sunday News contained a long account of "the possible solving of the familiar kidnapping case of four-year-old Lillie McDonald in Plainfield, N. J., in 1889," the dispatch coming from Seattle, Wash. Inquiry about town fails to reveal any such occurrence as a kidnapping taking place in this city and the author of the story evidentally became mixed in his location.

—J. P. D. Kirch, of Duer street, has taken a position in the shipping department at Hahne & Co., Newark.

TO ENJOIN MUNICIPALITY

Residents May Try to Prevent Disposal Plant Operations.

OBJECT TO ODORS

Law Favorable to City, the Sewage Disposal Plant Case Being Cited As a Precedent.

There is a report in the West End that in case the Common Council adopts the municipal system of the collection of garbage and attempts to burn the refuse matter in the old Plainfield Sanitary Company plant, recently purchased by the city and located on DeKalb avenue, steps will be taken to stop such action and legal redress will be sought if the Common Council denies the request of the residents in that end of the town.

That the city intends to make use of this plant is almost a foregone conclusion. The expenditure of $2,100 for the plant, and the publicity given through a discussion of the subject early in the year, leads those in a position to know that next year an effort will be made to introduce the municipal system of the collection and disposal of garbage. The Board of Health, as well as nearly every physician in the city, favors the system, and a majority of the physicians took an active part in the movement to secure its adoption this year. A lack of funds for the purpose defeated the measure.

The Board of Health has not by any means dropped the subject and just as soon as the members see their way clear to advocate its adoption they will do so. However, the ground for the petition of the residents of the West End against burning garbage there cannot be denied. When the plant was operated by the Plainfield Sanitary Company there was constant objection to the smell, and there are a number of citizens who claim that no matter what improvements are made the plant will not work satisfactorily. They point to the fact that other cities much larger than Plainfield have given up the cremation system, because it could not be worked successfully.

To put the plan in working order a considerable sum will have to be expended and there are persons interested in the system who claim that garbage can be burned and not throw off any undesirable odor. The West End residents naturally have a grievance against the city for locating the sewage disposal plant in that section, and they think it is manifestly unfair to operate a crematory plant for garbage disposal there, saying that it is adding insult to injury.

If the city decides to operate this plant, it will no doubt have the law on its side, as in the case of the sewage disposal beds. Mrs. Milliken made a test case against the city claiming personal injury, but the courts upheld the city in a long fight and this would no doubt be true if any action is brought against the city for the operation of the garbage disposal plant.

Those who are against the proposed system refer to an offer made the city by David Hand, of Netherwood, in which he agreed to take the garbage and pay a fair price for it, if delivered to him. This would appear to be a more desirable way of disposing of the garbage.

A $12,000 FOUNTAIN.

Somerville Board Considers It An Undue Extravagance, But Will Fulfill Provisions of Will.

The Somerville Board of Commissioners wrestled last night with the problem of where to place the new public drinking fountain for which $12,000 was left the town by the late Miss Alleine Lord, the eccentric recluse whose strange will caused a sensational legal battle in the courts there.

The document provides that this sum from her estates, valued at about $70,000, be devoted to erecting a fountain for man and beast to perpetuate the memory of her brother, the late John H. Lord, president of the Second National Bank.

The members of the board believe the town does not need a fountain of that value, but it will be erected to carry out the wishes of the testatrix, and a fund put aside to keep it in proper condition. The new fountain will probably be located in front of the Court House on Main street.

Miss Lord disinherited all her relatives, and, among other bequests, left $3,000 to St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, Somerville, for the purpose of building a new rectory; $3,000 to the Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions, and $24,000 to the society for the support of indigent clergymen of the Episcopal denomination.

FANWOOD BOWLERS WIN MATCH FROM Y. M. C. A. TEAM

IN TWO GAMES OUT OF THREE SUBURBAN CLUB PROVES SUPERIOR.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling team was defeated last night in two games out of three by the Suburban Club bowlers of Fanwood. The match was rolled on the latter's alleys, and though none of the scores were high the bowling was comparatively steady. The local team was really outclassed, and was fortunate in securing as it did the first game of the match.

Gahagan, of the Suburban Club, had the highest score of the evening, bowling a 197. M. C. Stewart's 179 was the second highest score, while his average was the highest in the match. Menzenbach, of the local team, bowled a good game, as did also Neal. The line up and individual scores follow:

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS FOR HOLIDAY DECORATING

CHIEF DOANE WARNS AGAINST USE OF FLIMSY MATERIALS.

While preparations are being made by merchants, churches and householder to put up decorations appropriate to the holidays, timely advice on the subject is offered by Chief T. O. Doane, of the city fire department. A little care in placing flimsy materials generally selected for the purpose, or better still, their non-use entirely, will often be the means of preventing a fire. One such blaze has already been started this season in Plainfield through the use of cotton and a strict observance to the following suggestions made by Chief Doane may save many dollars worth of property:

"Christmas is approaching, churches, stores and dwellings will be decorated. This is as it should be, but a little care and forethought may save many lives, not to speak of much valuable property. In decorating Christmas trees, candles should not be used, or at least not lighted, as the trees are very inflammable and candles are great spurters. The least spark falling in the foliage puts the tree in a blaze instantly. If in decorating, a snow effect is desired, mineral wool is a good substitute, and is absolutely fire proof. If children or older persons are to be dressed to represent Santa Claus, or other Christmas characters, all clothing may be made inflammable at a few cents cost. Be very careful in decorating around or near electric lights; if bulbs are to be covered, inflammable decorations can be obtained at a very small cost. No article of wool, cotton, paper, or drapery of any description should be allowed to touch or come close to an electric light. Use particular care with articles made of celluloid, as it is very inflammable, and the slightest spark, or too close contact with heat, will cause it to flame, and when on fire it is almost impossible to extinguish it."

Mother Church Sends Delegates.

The antiquity of the organization of the Baptist church at Scotch Plains was brought to mind on Sunday last when delegates from that church, styled the "mother church," were sent with their congregations to the First Baptist church at Broadway and Seventy-ninth street, New York. The occasion was the observance of the one hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the church organization.

Vaudeville Or Tragedy?

Plainfield is agitating for a new theatre. The city needs it, too, with Charles A. Reed, Mayor Smalley, James E. Martine, Dr. Anderson, Andrew McCardell and "Boss" MacMurray constantly insisting on occupying the centre of the stage.—Newark News.

NO CAUSE FOR ACTION IN SUIT AGAINST ENDRESS

CONTINENTAL PAPER BAG CO. MAY APPEAL TO HIGHER COURT.

No cause for action was the verdict brought by the jury of twelve men at Justice Hand's court yesterday afternoon in the contract case of the Continental Paper Bag Company against Fred Endress, of this city. Codington & Swackhamer represented the defendant in the case and H. C. Runyon appeared for the plaintiff. Though no definite action has been taken the case may be appealed by the Continental Paper Bag Company.

The suit was brought for the sum of $80, which the plaintiffs claimed was due for an assignment of goods. Though other business had been transacted between Endress and the Continental Paper Bag Company, the former proved that according to the law no contract was made in the case in question yesterday afternoon, and that though the company wrote saying that certain goods would be shipped, the order was not valid without his signature, which the company was unable to produce.

Both Mr. Endress and his cashier testified in the defense, their statements supporting the assertion that the goods were not ordered. For the plaintiff, an agent of the company and one of the employes in the correspondence department were the witnesses.

After consideration for about twenty minutes, the jury brought in the verdict, in favor of the defendant, that there was no cause for action. The members of the jury were Robert Cook, John Ross, J. Newton Wycoff, Frank Dunham, William Westphal, Jonathan Smith, John A. McKeon, W. H. Brokaw, James F. Smith, David Rogers and Augustus Jenkins.

TAX OFFICE RECEIPTS GREATER THAN LAST YEAR

COLLECTOR LEE HAS RECEIVED $67,000 UP TO DATE.

The receipts at the office of Tax Collector Robert L. Lee up to today, amount to about $67,000, while up to November 12 of last year the receipts were $30,000. A year ago the time-limit for the payment of taxes was a month earlier than this year and this naturally makes considerable difference. However, the money is coming in satisfactorily.

There is yet about $185,000 to be paid to bring the receipts up to the amount levied by the assessors and the bulk of this will come in during the next seven days allowed before interest is added to the several amounts. Most of the money now to be paid will come in checks and will be far easier to handle than the smaller amounts which have been paid in cash.

THROWN FROM SLEIGH.

Runaway Accident Caused by a Boy's Prank.

Hit by a snow ball carelessly thrown by some thoughtless youngster, a horse driven by Charles P. Titsworth, of Madison avenue, became frightened yesterday afternoon, and ran away on West Front street, throwing out both the driver and his brother, Roy Titsworth, narrowly averting a serious smash-up.

The horse tore madly from one side of the street to the other, kicking and plunging alternately. When harnessed up again, for the second time the horse threw Mr. Titsworth, and with the sleigh on its side ran down to Plainfield avenue and Second street on the way back to the stable at the Potter Press Works. The beast threw himself on the corner, and was caught before further damage could be done. Fortunately neither Mr. Titsworth or his brother were seriously hurt, and though the horse was slightly cut, no damage was done to the sleigh. The boy who threw the snow ball was nowhere to be found.

In the City Court.

Charged by Roundsman Flynn with vagrancy, "Shorty" Leonard, Walter Cunningham and Charles DeLeon, the latter of New York, were arraigned in the city court yesterday. All had a hard luck tale and Judge Runyon suspended sentence. Orrin Low, arrested by Patrolman O'Keefe Saturday night, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was fined $5.

SUIT FOR HER AFFECTIONS

W. C. Emery Wants Damages From D. Taylor, of Lincoln.

HE ASKS FOR $10,000

Trial Set for Tuesday, December 27, in the Essex County Court.

The Essex County Court opened today at Newark, and included in the long list of cases on the calendar are three of interest to Plainfielders. One of these cases is that of Watson C. Emory, formely of this city, against David Taylor, of Lincoln, whom he sues for $10,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. Mrs. Emory is now said to be the housekeeper for Mr. Taylor. Robert M. Clark, Esq., represents the plaintiff and George W. Anderson, Esq., assisted by Winfield S. Angleman, Esq., represents the defendant.

This case, which is set down for Tuesday, December 27, promises to be of unusual interest. Several times Mrs. Emory has left her husband, it is said, and for some time has been living at David Taylor's hotel at Lincoln. Mr. and Mrs. Emory at one time lived here and afterward moved to Dunellen. The husband was engaged in the fruit and vegetable business here.

Another case ready for trial is that of Alexander Kuskie against the Somerville Woolen Mills, who is suing for the loss of a hand while at work in the mills. Isaac P. Runyon, Esq., assisted by Winfield S. Angleman, Esq., represents the plaintiff and Lindabury, Depue & Falks the defendant.

The third case is that of Frank A. Champlain, of Newark, against Abram W. Cadmus, of this city, the suit being for the loss of profit on a car of grain sold to the defendant and which he refused to accept, claiming that it was not in the best condition. Brown & Beecher represent the plaintiff and James P. Powers, Esq., the defendant.

P. S. C. AGENTS SEEK RIGHTS OF WAY HERE

TO RUN POWER AND LIGHT FEED LINES FROM METUCHEN.

Agents of the Public Service Corporation are in town today endeavoring to secure rights of way for trolley and electric light poles to be erected on the road between this city and Metuchen, the corporation having arranged to eventually feed Plainfield with electric power from the new plant at Metuchen.

From Metuchen it is proposed to run the wires to Oak Tree thence to Maconnier chapel up Woodland avenue to Beckstein's place and then directly across to South Plainfield. From South Plainfield the route will be along Park avenue as far as Third street, through which thoroughfare the wires will be run to Dunellen. It is also sought to run a line Northwest through private territory to Richmond street. These are to be main trunk lines supplying light and power.

B. and L. Officers.

Officers were elected at the regular meeting of the Central Building and Loan Association, held last night in the rooms of the association. These were chosen: President, J. D. Loizeaux; vice president, C. M. Wilson; secretary, J. Fred MacDonald; treasurer, H. B. MacDonald, directors, David M. Runyon, H. C. VanEmburgh and James F. Buckle; auditors, Albert Seidell, George E. Collins and Carl Drange. It was decided to open the sixth series on Monday night, January 2. Reports of the condition of the association were very encouraging and the new year is started under most favorable circumstances.

Athletes May Give Circus.

There has been some talk on the part of the members of the evening class at the Y. M. C. A. of giving a circus on the gymnasium floor for the benefit of the gymnasium fund, which is used for repairs. There is considerable talent among the members of the class, a slack wire performer, a tumbler, a contortionist, and a clown being attainable. With the help of a few other professionals, a good entertainment could be arranged, and there is little doubt that the subject will be favorably considered.

HAINES THOUGHT HE SAW HIS STOLEN HORSE

HAS HASKARD HALED TO COURT IN CONSEQUENCE.

Horse experts, horse dealers and horse owners so filled police headquarters yesterday afternoon and talked horse to such an extent that the place for the time resembled the outskirts of an equine auction crowd. The collection was brought together through an assertion made by Patrick Haines, of Oak Tree, that John Haskard, the Morris avenue junkman, was in possession of one of a team of horses stolen from him two years ago. He preferred his charge Sunday and it took several policeman twenty-four hours to gather all the witnesses for both sides.

Haskard said he bought the horse from Stonewall Jackson two years ago giving him $165 for it. Jackson said he bought the horse in Chicago and produced several members of the Baldwin family to prove that they were around when it came in with a carload. On the other hand, Haines declared positively the horse was his and had several backmen and neighbors in court who declared they could identify it. This made an adjournment to Haskard's barn necessary and when the identifiers looked the animal over, their assurance that it was Haines' property oozed away. Only one of them said it looked like the stolen horse and yet "he might be mistaken."

Haines wanted the police to take the animal away from Haskard and when they refused, he stated he would secure legal advice. On the other hand friends of Haskard say some more legal advice will be sought if Haines doesn't take his eye off Haskard's animal.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM WINS FROM MT. VERNON FIVE

IN LAST GAME OF BASKET BALL BY THE SCORE OF 38 TO 25.

In a game characterized by fast team work and accurate passing, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated the Mt. Vernon five by the score of 38 to 25 last night. The game was played on the local gymnasium floor, and though witnessed by only a handful of spectators was not in the least lacking in excitement.

It was in goal shooting alone that the local team was superior, and the fact that they guarded their men closer, aided them in holding down the Mt. Vernon score. There was a great deal of open play, and many difficult shots were made. Long, who played guard, put up an exceptionally strong game both in guarding and in shooting. Though playing guard, he threw five baskets.

At the end of the first half the score was 19 to 16 in favor of the Plainfield team, and in the second part of the game Plainfield doubled the score and the visitors made 9 points. The line up and detailed score was as follows: Plainfield Y. M. C. A.—Hand and Smith, forwards; Collins, center; Scull and Long, guards. Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A.—Rames and Turis, forwards; Higgs, center; Johnson and McGean, guards. Goals from the field—Hand, 4; Smith, 6; Scull, 3, Long, 5; Rames, 3; McGean, 7; Johnson. Goals from fouls—Hand, 2; Turis, 3. Referee—Charles B. Morse.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST E. H. BALL DISMISSED

ACTION BROUGHT AGAINST LAWYER FALLS THROUGH.

The proceedings brought by Emma L. Peddie through her lawyer, J. Randolph Perkins, both of Westfield, against Ernest H. Ball, of this city, were set aside and bail discharged by Justice J. Franklin Fort, of the Supreme Court on Saturday. James O. Connolly, of Elizabeth, as counsel for Mr. Ball, made the application to have the proceedings dismissed on the grounds that the facts alleged were insufficient; that the proceedings were irregular, and not according to law.

Upon the argument Justice Fort announced from the bench that the proceedings of Mrs. Peddie and Mr. Perkins, her lawyer, were not in accordance with the law, but Mr. Perkins requested that he have time to prepare a brief of cases to sustain his position. This was granted. The justice, however, was not convinced thereby and rendered his decision discussing the proceedings and discharging the $3,900 bond given by Mr. Ball.

Mrs. Peddie charged Mr. Ball with representing to her falsely and fraudulently that if there should be war between Japan and Russia, three U. S. steel bonds which she held would be of no value, and that therefore she caused them to be sold. The dismissal of these proceedings will involve Emma L. Peddie in a suit for heavy damages brought by Mr. Ball for false arrest.

Ball was placed under arrest on October 31, and remained in the custody of the Sheriff of this county for ten days thereafter, until John Ryan and P. S. Foley, of Elizabeth, became recognized for his appearance. Ball is a New York lawyer of some standing.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS MEET

Mrs. F. H. Hall Explains Protest Against Oklohoma Bill.

ENTHUSIASTIC SESSION

Women Object to Statehood Measure Because It Denies Them the Right to Vote.

The members of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield were greatly disappointed in not having the pleasure of hearing Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell at their meeting, held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William H. Riley, of No. 11 Myrtle avenue. Word was received that illness prevented her from coming here. It is hoped to have her speak before the league in the near future.

Despite the storm, there was a good attendance of members yesterday and all were interested in a report given by Mrs. Riley of the recent suffrage convention held at Jersey City. One thing that impressed her the most was the unusually friendly relationship shown between the various clubs, as well as those who are not directly identified with the movement. Mrs. Riley believed that the convention had resulted in advancing the cause of equal suffrage very much.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, president of the league, who presided at the meeting, called the members' attention to the protest that is being entered against the admission of Oklohoma and Indian Territory as one State into the Union and denying the women the right of suffrage. There is now a bill in Congress to unite these two places under the name of Oklohoma and admit it to the Union, but the thing objected to by the women is that which denies them the right to vote and take part in the government of the State.

Circulars have been printed and circulated among the equal suffragists generally throughout the United States and protests are being sent to Washington in large numbers. The protest was unanimously adopted at the meeting yesterday and the votes of the members will be forwarded to the members of Congress.

The protest also says that "the women of the county should now protest against the women of the Southwest being ranked with the classes justly disfranchised, any other member of which may by effort, behavior or lapse of time, achieve enfranchisement."

Before adjournment the league decided to meet on Wednesday, Jan. 4.

MILLER CONCERT TALENT.

Madame Haughey and Miss Munson Among Artists.

For the second of the series of Miller concerts to be given at the Casino, Thursday evening, an array of talent that has seldom been excelled in Plainfield, has been secured. Among the artists who are to take part are Madame Pennington Haughey, soprano soloist at the West Presbyterian church, New York, a church noted for its fine music. She is a worthy successor of Madame DeVere, who received a salary of $4,000 a year as soloist in the same church.

Miss Grace Munson, who is also to appear, is the contralto soloist at the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church of which Dr. Samuel P. Warren, the famous organist, is the director of music. Paul Dufault, a third artist, is the tenor soloist at the Pilgrim Congregational church, Brooklyn, and has been engaged by Victor Herbert for solo work in connection with his series of six orchestra concerts in Carnegie Hall. Dr. Carl E. Dufft, the remaining member of the quartette, is so well known to Plainfielders, the mere mention of his name is sufficient.

Sagamore Club to Play.

The entertainment to be given at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening, under the auspices of the boys' entertainment course, will be an exceptionally good one, particularly for the fact that part of the talent will be local. An attractive programme of musical selections has been arranged by the Sagamore Musical Club, of this city, and in addition Lucious Perry Hill, a prominent New York entertainer and humorous, has a place on the programme.

Wagon at Fault.

The accident to the Holland automobile Saturday, was not caused by the exploding of a tire as first stated, but to the efforts of the chauffeur to avoid striking a carriage which pulled in front of him despite his warning. The front wheel of the machine struck a curb projection and the tire explosion followed. Mrs. Holland was in the auto but suffered no injury.

"IN A BAD WAY."

Many a Plainfield Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. M. A. Hall, of 219 Prescott place, says: "For several years I had a dull aching pain across my back, at times extending to my hips. I was compelled to lie in just one position all night and stooping, lifting or bending forward aggravated the pains. Although I used different remedies that were recommended to me I obtained little if any relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed in our daily papers and procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It was not long before I felt great relief and I was surprised how quickly the pain in my back disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

TWO INDICTMENTS.

Mrs. Chadwick Must Answer Forgery Charge.

ANDREW CARNEGIE IS SUBPOENAED

Husband, Interviewed at Paris, Would Not Deny Devere Story — Whitney Tells How $500,000 Note Was Hidden.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 13.—The grand jury of Cuyahoga county has returned two indictments against Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick. Each indictment contains two counts, one of forgery and one of uttering forged paper. The indictments relate one to the Carnegie note of $500,000 and the other to the note for $250,000.

Mr. T. K. Whitney presented to the grand jury the $500,000 note with the alleged signature of Andrew Carnegie. The note is dated two days earlier than the one for $250,000 and was made payable at the National Bank of Commerce. There has been an absence of certainty as to the existence of such a note. With the possible exception of Mrs. Chadwick, Spear and Beckwith having had a glimpse of it, it has never been seen, not even by Mr. Whitney himself, until it was produced before the grand jury. The note had been placed in an envelope, which in turn was in a second envelope and the two into a third envelope and sealed. Mr. Whitney had no idea at the time that it was not genuine.

The other note, for $250,000, which figured in the testimony, was made payable at Mr. Carnegie's office in New York city.

The maximum penalty for the offense charged in the indictment is twenty years imprisonment upon conviction.

County Prosecutor Keeler has issued a subpoena for Iri Reynolds, secretary of the Wade Park bank, who has lately stated that he believed her securities were good because Mrs. Chadwick told him she was the illegitimate daughter of Andrew Carnegie and pledged him not to reveal her secret. The subpoena calls him before the grand jury today. Mr. Keeler announces that he intends to investigate the affairs of the Wade Park Banking company.

Andrew Carnegie has been subpoenaed to appear tomorrow in the United States circuit court in Cleveland and testify as to the signature appearing on the notes used by Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick.

At Paris Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick of Cleveland, O., husband of Cassie L. Chadwick, has been staying quietly for some time, occupying quarters in a hotel in the center of Paris, but owing to the notoriety of his wife's affairs he has observed the greatest seclusion.

"Any one would be able to see from my appearance and surroundings that I am not a man who had received millions from his wife," said the doctor.

Asked concerning reports that Mrs. Chadwick is in reality Lydia Devere, he answered: "The first time that ever I heard the name of Mme. Devere in this connection was when I saw it recently in the papers. Only once before had I ever heard the name Devere. That was twenty-nine years ago at a post mortem examination at which I assisted on a woman of that name."

Dr. Chadwick mentioned this as clearly showing his lack of knowledge that his wife was Lydia Devere, but he declined to discuss further the circumstances of his marriage, saying it was a matter of public record and purely personal.

Questioned upon the financial aspects of his wife's affairs, Dr. Chadwick replied, "The financial matters in the case do not affect me in the slightest."

The doctor was shown a publication stating that the alleged securities embraced those of several million dollars signed or indorsed with the name Andrew Carnegie.

"I do not know Andrew Carnegie personally," replied Dr. Chadwick.

"Does your wife know Mr. Carnegie?" the doctor was asked.

"I would rather not discuss Andrew Carnegie," said the doctor.

A number of questions of similar purport concerning individual financial transactions failed to elicit a specific response.

"Concerning my relations with Mrs. Chadwick, I will explain them on my return to the United States. Although I have not yet taken any definite steps concerning sailing, I intend leaving Paris for the United States in a week or ten days."

Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in the Tombs at New York is overwhelmed by the developments of her case in Cleveland and will probably give up the fight there and return to Cleveland tonight in the custody of United States officers. Mr. Carpenter, her counsel, said:

"I think it possible that Mrs. Chadwick may go to Cleveland tonight or tomorrow."

He refused to discuss the indictments, but simply said:

"Mrs. Chadwick is not fearful of the result. She is entirely innocent of any crime."

It was said at the residence of Andrew Carnegie last night that he would be unable to go to Cleveland to testify in the Chadwick case owing to illness. Mr. Carnegie is indisposed with an attack of lumbago, and his physician is of the opinion that it would not be advisable for Mr. Carnegie to take the trip.

Big Snowstorm Stopped Traffic.

HOOSICK FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 13.—The intensely cold weather of the past three days was followed by a big snowstorm last night, which greatly impeded traffic. The mercury has ranged from 5 to 15 degrees below zero.

TOWN IS IN FLAMES

Japanese Now Train Big Guns on Port Arthur.

WIRELESS PLANT AND ARSENAL AFIRE

Besiegers Creep Closer and Closer In—With Golden Hill Forts Taken Czar's Stronghold Will Fall.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Tokyo reports say that Port Arthur is in flames, caused by the terrific bombardment from the forts already taken by the Japanese.

The wireless telegraph station has been destroyed, and fire has burst out in the arsenal, while flames are being kindled in various sections of the city.

The Japanese are advancing closer and closer to the town.

The bombardment has already inflicted great damage upon Golden hill, the east stronghold of the Russians. With that gone, the port will fall. The fire of the Japanese is now directed toward this point, especially from the heavy naval guns placed on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill.

The commander of the Japanese battery, reporting, says:

"Four Russian battleships, two cruisers, one gunboat and one torpedo storeship lying in Port Arthur harbor are completely disabled. There is no further necessity for bombarding the Russian naval force.

"Are now engaged shelling the town of Port Arthur, which is being heavily damaged."

An officer who has returned from the army before Port Arthur says the delay observed in Russian preparations for gathering the dead during the armistices showed a scarcity of available men in the garrison.

There is absolutely no truth in the report published in the United States that the daughter of a Japanese officer had been shot as a spy by order of the military authorities at Vladivostok.

Pennsylvania Officials In Wreck.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 13.—A party of Pennsylvania railroad officials on a tour of inspection and in charge of a special train on the Little Miami divison of the Panhandle collided last night with a freight train on a siding at Spring Valley, and seven men were injured. A peculiar phase of the wreck was the fact that the members of the party on the special were out for the express purpose of inspecting signals and switches. A misunderstanding of signals is said to have been the cause of the wreck. The collision occurred while the special train was running at high speed.

Samoans Want Legislation.

TUTUILA, Samoa, via San Francisco, Dec. 13.—At a general meeting of the natives convened by the commandant the people of Manau were represented by leading citizens from those islands for the first time since the United States took over the eastern portion of Samoa. The chief speakers at the meeting urged the establishment of a legislative council and wanted to know why the commandant should make laws without the consent of the people.

Impure Food Bill In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The senate had under consideration the pure food and Philippine government bills. Debate on the former was confined to calling attention to the inadequacy of the protection accorded the people of the United States against impure foods and drugs. The discussion of the Philippine bill related solely to the question of the guarantee by the Philippine government of the income or interest on bonds of railroads in those islands.

President Guard to Be Rough Riders.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—President Roosevelt's guard of honor in the inaugural parade on the 4th of next March will be a squadron of picked men from his old regiment of rough riders, the First United States Volunteer cavalry. Colonel A. G. Brodie, governor of New Mexico, and Major W. H. H. Llewellyn, formerly of the rough riders, took luncheon with the president yesterday, and arrangements for the guard of honor were made at that time.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Dec. 13.—County Treasurer Frank Obenchain has been missing for two weeks. His bondsmen have placed Jacob Guthrie in charge pending an accounting. SPENCERIAN AGAIN.

New Orleans Handicap Won In Spite of Top Weight.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—Though drying rapidly, the track was lumpy and slow. The beaten favorites were Fallona, Dan McKenna and Garnish. Spencerian again showed her quality by winning the handicap with top weight up and in spite of serious interference for the greater part of the distance.

The stewards fined Charles Cochran $100 for failing to keep the contract for his son to ride the Morris filly Viperine in the Preliminary Derby last Saturday. R. Tucker, acting for Captain S. S. Brown, has sold the two-year-olds Signal Light and Sanction to James Arthur. The price was private.

Muddy Going at Oakland.

Jordan Defeated Palmer.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Before the National Sporting club last night Ben Jordan beat Pedlar Palmer on points in a fifteen round contest for the featherweight championship.

A THEATER FIRE.

Academy of Music at Norwich, N. Y., Suffers.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Fire in the Academy of Music building at Norwich, N. Y., last night did damage estimated at $25,000.

The fire started about 8 o'clock in the basement of the North Packing company, which occupied the store part of the building.

Sixty girls who were on the stage rehearsing for the entertainment to be given at the Congregational fair narrowly escaped from the burning theater. An explosion of an oil tank in the basement helped to spread the fire.

Part of the building was saved. The loss was divided between the building, the North Packing company and Fred E. Page's book store, in which much damage was done by water. The origin of the fire is not known.

Six Thousand Women In Riot.

MADRID, Dec. 13.—The feast of the Virgin was marked by a riotous scene at Valencia. A procession of 6,000 women bearing lighted tapers to the cathedral came in conflict with a Republican demonstration, and a general fight ensued. The gendarmes were unable to disperse the combatants by charging and fired several rounds from their carbines into the mob. Many persons, including women, were wounded.

Sleep by Order of the Emperor.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—"Sleep well tonight, by order of the emperor," said Emperor William laughingly to Leoncavallo at the conclusion of the final rehearsal of "Der Roland von Berlin," alluding to the fact that the composer for several nights had been unable to sleep on account of anxiety over the success of his opera and thereby expressing his satisfaction with Leoncavallo's work in its finished form.

Cotton and Corn Carnival.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 13.—Governor Vardaman made the opening speech at the cotton and corn carnival and, after welcoming the visitors, branched off into politics and made a very sensational utterance. On the attitude that southern representatives should assume in their fight against the reduction of southern representation he was very bitter.

Six Were Injured.

COSHOCTON, O., Dec. 13.—Six persons were injured when a mixed local passenger train on the Pennsylvania railroad struck a broken rail, the caboose rolling down the bank to the edge of the canal, where it caught fire from a stove and was destroyed. Ten men and four women were in the overturned car, but only six were injured.

Dr. O'Hanlon Helps Nan Patterson Toward Freedom.

YOUNG'S HANDS BORE POWDER MARKS

Skeleton, Again In Court, Drew Protest From Girl's Counsel—Judge Cautioned Jurymen Not to Talk at Home.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—What is considered to be a most important point by the defense of Nan Patterson, on trial before Judge Davis in the criminal branch of the supreme court for the murder of Caesar Young, was made when the defendant's counsel, Abraham Levy, established through Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon that he believed after making an analysis that the stains, believed to be blood stains, found on the right hand of Caesar Young were powder stains.

He added that he had detected no odor of powder on the hands of Nan Patterson when he made a test after the tragedy.

A headless human skeleton, dorsal vertebra and ribs, played an important part in the trial. The grewsome exhibits were made use of in the examination of Dr. O'Hanlon, who performed the autopsy on Young's body. Miss Patterson's counsel protested at the use of the skeleton, asserting that it did not compare correctly with the structure of the dead man's body, but his objections were overruled.

The skeleton was used to decide the course of the bullet after it entered Young's body. The prosecution contended that it had gone straight to the spine, which the government lawyers believed proved that Young did not kill himself.

Assuming that Young with the pistol in his right hand had crossed it over to his chest and shot into his left side, the prosecution contended that the bullet would have traveled to the left. The fact that it flew straight inward to the spine they allege as conclusive that the wound was not self inflicted.

Dr. O'Hanlon was positive that the bullet had taken a straight course to the right.

Lawyer Levy for the defense tried to gain an admission that the muscular covering of the ribs at the point of entrance of the bullet may have deflected its course, but Dr. O'Hanlon declared that there had been no deflection until the bullet struck the spine.

When Mr. Levy asked Dr. O'Hanlon if he had not at first declared the case to be a suicide the prosecutors objected and the objection was sustained. Dr. O'Hanlon testified positively that he had found powder marks on Young's fingers. His testimony as to the course of the bullet was corroborated by Dr. Riggins of the Hudson Street hospital.

William Stemm said that the driver of the cab lifted the trap and looked in after the shot was fired.

Justice Davis said from the bench that a gross impropriety had been committed by a newspaper in publishing what purported to be the views of the wives of the jurors concerning the case. He cautioned the jurors not to discuss the testimony even in their own families.

Carter Not a Heretic.

JAMAICA, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Prepared to stand by his letter to the Nassau presbytery, in which he stated his disbelief in the Westminster confession, which caused no little disturbance throughout Presbyterian theological circles, the Rev. Samuel T. Carter, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church at Huntington, N. Y., and now of New York city, faced the Nassau presbytery, and, although he emphasized his former utterances that scholastic theology is wrong from its base upward, he was received back into the fold with a considerable satisfaction and enthusiasm.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 13, 1904

Several of the Metropolitan papers are doing a lot of talking about a 65-year-old stowaway who just came over. They certainly have forgotten Uncle Henry Gosway Davis, the octogenarian.

Noting a newspaper headline reading "Threw the lawyer—into a cell" the office boy scents a typographical error in the first word. He says it sounds more plausible to spell it "through."

It is the same old story. Put the blame on Eve. Columns of space are given Mrs. Chadwick and the rascals, who, as bank officials, loaned her immense sums of money, go by almost unnoticed. For the public good the ends of justice would be better served by the authorities giving closer attention to the bank wreckers. In the scandalous Hannah Elias case, District Attorney Jerome's office trained its guns on the woman, although the one more to be scorned was the depraved victim, Platt. As soon as a man realizes that he has become a victim of a woman's wiles, he cries out, never considering that he is the one more to be blamed and more to be despised.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Three days will intervene between the retirement of the present Common Council for 1904 and the reorganization of that body for 1905. The present members will probably hold their last meeting for this year on Friday night, December 30, when all bills will be paid, the accounts for the year balanced and the minutes of the final meeting adopted. The date for this meeting was fixed as near the end of the month as possible to permit the reception of as much tax money as possible. This will give the members an idea how much money they can borrow in anticipation of taxes for payment of notes and other obligation.

The 1905 body will meet Monday night, January 2, which it is compelled to do, for the purpose of organization. An adjournment will then probably be taken to a later date in the month to consider the regular business.

No Mission of Mt. Olive.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Referring to the statement made a short time ago, to the effect that the former Fillmore Avenue Baptist church building would be secured by the Mount Olive Baptist church to be used as a mission, I wish to make a denial. I am opposed to another Negro Baptist church in this city on the ground that we have enough and furthermore, that of the Negro churches here now, not one is self sustaining. All of them are dependent upon the charity of the generous Christian public. While my church is the leading one of the Negro Baptists and the senior of the local colored churches, yet it is not independent of its white friends. At present I am making an effort to free it from debt and am soliciting aid from these same friends. I do not favor another church of the Baptist or any other denomination and shall protest against any such movement. You will oblige me greatly by making this announcement as it is the expression of my congregation, which does not intend to endorse a movement for an East End mission at this time. Rev. E. E. Jackson.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Fresh vegetables continue to predominate at Neuman Brothers'. For tomorrow they will have as specials green and wax beans, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, tomatoes and Boston head lettuce.

—Congressman Ira W. Wood has appointed Clifford Blummel, of Trenton, to the vacancy in the West Point Military Academy, which the Fourth district is entitled to fill. As alternate Congressman Wood has named Ashbel Angel Wilmott, of Lambertville.

—Charles L. Lewis, of this city, in writing of one of the entertainers to appear in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course on Thursday evening next, says: "John Thomas ought to have a crowded house next Thursday, for everybody wants to laugh and he seems to have been made for the purpose of making people laugh. Surely 'his face is his fortune' and behind that face, which makes you laugh to look at it, beats a warm, generous heart. I knew him well in Boston and held him in high regard personally and thought him one of the funniest men, naturally funny, that I have ever seen. I shall be glad to laugh at him again."

PRETTIEST GIRLS, IN BRUNSWICK OR HERE?

BITTER ARGUMENT ON QUESTION CAUSES SCENE AT A DANCE.

The New Brunswick Times contains this story of a thrilling encounter: "A dispute over which town, Plainfield or this city, had the prettiest girls, nearly resulted in an exciting climax to a dance given in a Bound Brook hall a few evenings ago. But for the interference of a few cool heads the affair would have terminated in a hand-to-hand hair-pulling contest or probably a hatpin sticking affray.

"It all came about over a remark passed by a Plainfield girl over a bevy of local young ladies who regularly attend the dance. 'Why, what a lot of pretty and charming looking girls there must be in New Brunswick,' said the Plainfield maiden. 'Yes, New Brunswick is full of them and has Plainfield badly beaten. Why, we have so many good looking girls over there that it is known far and wide, and it is for that reason the richest men in the United States do not send their sons to Rutgers College. They are afraid we girls will run away with them.'

"To this claim the Plainfield girl took issue, and said it wasn't so. 'New Brunswick girls may be pretty, but Plainfield girls are prettier, and cannot be beaten when good looks are brought into the question. Why, all the young doctors and lawyers come to Plainfield after their college days and stay there.'

"The argument put up by the Plainfield young woman was apparently not appreciated by the damsel who lives in the town on the Raritan, and thereafter many cold looks were exchanged. The climax came when one of the Plainfield girls unintentionally stepped on a New Brunswick girl's dress during the maze of a waltz. This action was a signal for a turmoil. Swift as a ball from a cannon's mouth the New Brunswick girl shot out a dimpled arm and made a frantic effort to fasten it in the flaxen curls of the Plainfield girl. She failed to gain her point and much excitement prevailed.

"Dancers gathered around and the orchestra stopped playing, and Chief Fiddler O'Harra made strenuous attempts to stop the disorder. In a half hour's time dancing was resumed, but not before many untame threats were heard. The fellows stood neutral, and the Bound Brook and Somerville girls looked on and had nothing to say."

The New York Daily Tribune.

Of course, a great deal depends on your own taste in the matter of newspapers. If you want a publication that serves up so much gore and so many thrills in every issue, it is money thrown away to buy The Tribune. If, however, you are looking for a daily history of the world, carefully collated and sifted and presented in the most attractive form that the laws of good taste will permit, you cannot make any mistake in reading The Tribune every day. But The Daily Trsbune is more than a continuous history. It contains special articles on nearly every subject which is supposed to to interest intelligent and clean-minded people, to say nothing of the illuminating and instructive editorial articles and reviews of books, music and the drama. Just by the way of experiment, why don't you invest $1 and get The Daily and Sunday Tribunh by mail for a month? With The Sunday Tribune goes a handsome illustrated Supplement and a Magazine, with colored covers, equal to anything sold for ten cents.

THE CENTURY'S ART FEATURES.

A Number of Agreeable Surprises in the Field of Colored Work Promised Soon.

During the past months many pictures in color have appeared in the pages of The Century, notably: Maxfield Parrish's exquisite paintings for the articles on "Italian Villas and Their Gardens;" Miss Betts's charming pictures of the days of our fathers; the paintings by Frederick W. Stokes illustrating remarkable sky effects; Charles R. Knight's animal studies; Miss Violet Oakley's imaginative studies; Mr. Tobin's portrait of Pope Pius X; reproductions of J. Wells Champney's pastels; Miss Ellen Bernard Thompson's studies of children; reproductions of paintings by George de Forest Brush, William M. Chase, Laura C. Hills, and others. It is the aim of The Century to confine is experiments in the field of color work to subjects which have uniqueness and an important reason for color treatment. Miss Betts will contribute several other groups typical of the same period, among them "The Duet," "Christmas Callers," "St. Valentine's Day," and "The Serenaders." Mr. Parrish has made a beautiful illustration for a story "The Princess and the Boy;" and the coming year of The Century will contain a number of agreeable surprises in the field of color work.

The Century will continue to print beautiful and representative examples of work by American painters and sculptors. It will have also articles on men who are coming to the front in art abroad, including Mucha, Zuloaga, and the German secessionists. An article on "Children's Costumes in the Nineteenth Century" will have exquisite illustrations by Maurice Boutet de Monvel. The late J. L. Gerome will be the subject of reminiscences which will be accompanied by interesting illustrative material. A paper on the Art Influence of Philadelphia by Harrison S. Morris will soon appear.

For twenty years Timothy Cole, the acknowledged master of wood-engraving of the world, has been in Europe for The Century reproducing the masterpieces of art for the pages of the magazine. Here have appeared the greatest works of the masters of the Italian, Flemish, Dutch and English schools. Mr. Cole is now engaged in reproducing the work of the Spanish masters, and superb examples of their art will appear from time to time. The artists whose work will appear in The Century during 1905 include all the notable illustrators of the present day.

Miss Gilbert's Latest Book.

A bevy of children, an original nurse girl, whose very "badness" makes her the more human, a charming young woman and a big Newfoundland, all will join in entertaining the young folks who read "The Making of Meenie," by Miss Edith L. Gilbert, a teacher in the Hartridge School on East Seventh street. Meenie is the nurse girl, and a capitally drawn character she is. He virtues—for she has plenty of them as well as her fair share of failings—are well brought out, and her development along the right lines will be followed with interest. Miss Gilbert writes of children with admirable ease. She has a keen sense of humor, and, with it, an understanding of the hopes and sorrows of small men and women. We think that those of older growth will find something in the pages of "The Making of Meenie" to laugh at, and also some valuable hints as to the way to reach a child's heart. The story, without doubt, will please the youthful members of the family. The "frolicsome four," of whom Miss Gilbert has written previously, reappear in its pages.

There are half a dozen attractive illustrations by Margaret Goddard.

Miss Gilbert is the author of "The Frolicsome Four."—Newark Evening News.

SUITORS ABIDE BY DICE'S DECREE

TWO ADMIRERS OF A WIDOW TRUST TO CHANCE TO WIN.

SHE COULD NOT DECIDE

After the Throw the Loser Wept at His Ill Luck, But Later Took Part in Anti-Nuptial Celebration.

St. Cloud, Minn.—To have the choice of her future husband depend upon the outcome of a game of dice was the fate of Mrs. Maggie Dressling, a well-to-do widow of this city. Mrs. Dressling has lived alone in her little home in the suburbs. Surrounding the house is a plat of ground upon which vegetables were raised. Mrs. Dressling has a neat little income from a farm which she owns.

She had a suitor in Thomas Kern, a veteran of the war, but he gave up trying to make a living a few weeks ago and went to the soldiers' home. Since then Mrs. Dressling has divided her attention between William Heimsrath, a widower, and William H. Scruby, a veterinary surgeon. So equally were her affections divided that the two men were in continual hot water. They had been good friends, but soon ceased to speak as they met.

They met in a downtown cafe and Martin Muchler, owner of the cafe and a friend of both men, said it was a shame that the two should be separated because of the widow.

"Is there no way it can be fixed up?" he asked.

The suitors were doubtful.

"Why not," said Muchler, seized with an idea, "why not shake dice for her?"

"All right," agreed the swains.

The dice box was produced and the men decided that they would throw five dice five times and count the spots. They threw, and Muchler, who was referee, kept tab. The veterinary threw 60 and Heimsrath 68.

Muchler announced the result and Heimsrath laid his head on the bar and sobbed.

"Wait a minute," cried Muchler, "I've made a mistake in the count. You've both thrown 60. It's a tie."

THREW DICE FOR THE WIDOW.

Heimsrath took a new lease of life and the veterinary surgeon, still game, declared he would throw again and throw they did. This time Scruby rolled 62 and his rival 57.

"She's yours," said Muchler.

"Have a drink," said the surgeon.

"I never want another drink of anything else on this earth," sobbed Heinsrath.

But he changed his mind later, and the coming nuptials were celebrated at a feast, paid for by the veterinary.

Girl Played the Limit.

Reno, Nev.—The rough and tumble life of prospectors, miners and gamblers of Goldfield, the bustling new mining city, was changed for a short time when Miss Nivens, a young woman from California, walked into one of the largest gaming halls and started to play the limit at the faro table.

Interest at once centered around the young woman. She played two hours, and at one time her winnings amounted to nearly $2,000. Then her luck changed and her last cent was lost. She parted with $500, all the money she had with her.

Dog Captures Hungry Eagle.

Paris.—A dog belonging to a farmer in the vicinity of Romans captured a big eagle recently, after a desperate struggle. The bird had picked out the dog for a meal while the animal was dozing in the sun. The dog, feeling the eagle's talons in his back, squirmed quickly round and bit the eagle's leg. The bird let go, but the dog hung on and completely subdued the eagle. When the owner of the dog arrived the bird was still alive, with its four-footed victor lying on top of him, keeping guard. The eagle measured five feet from tip to tip of its outstretched wings.

Mother Canes Son.

Mahoney City, Pa.—Chided severely by his mother for excessive drinking, Anthony Povilitis looped a rope about his neck and hanged himself to a door. Before kicking a supporting box from under his feet he called good-by to the family in the next room. As he dangled in the air his mother belabored him with a cane until he begged for mercy. He was finally cut down, as docile as a lamb.

TWENTY-FIVE IN CUSTODY.

Baltimore Police Capture Couple Held For Bank Robberies.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 13.—After a "still hunt" which was continued all night by Marshal Farnan, Deputy Marshal Manning and Captain of Detectives Humphrey of the local department, assisted by police officials from the counties and Baltimore detectives, a man who gave his name as Edward Morgan, twenty-four years old, and his wife, Maud, about twenty-two years of age, were arrested in connection with the bank robberies in La Plata, Charles county, and Mount Airy, Carroll county, Md.

The Morgans were not arrested until after a struggle, in which Morgan drew a ferocious looking revolver from a holster strapped to his waist. He was unable to use it, however, before being rendered hors de combat by the policemen and detectives, who forced an entrance to the house wherein he and his wife were located. The police authorities are of the opinion that Morgan was the leader in both the bank robberies above referred to. As yet they are not certain as to his real identity.

Including Mrs. Morgan, who is held in the central police station, there are in all twenty-five persons in custody here on charges of being implicated in bank and postoffice robberies at points in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina.

The authorities are apparently forging a chain of evidence against several of the men and expect to prove that they have captured a gang of safe blowers notorious in all parts of the country.

Smoot Inquiry In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Three witnesses were heard in the case of Senator Reed Smoot before the senate committee on privileges and elections, the committee resuming its investigation after a long recess. The first witness was the Rev. J. M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate of New York, who told of a Mormon meeting he attended in Salt Lake City last summer in which President Joseph Smith declared he would not give up his plural wives. George Reynolds, a high official of the church, testified in regard to ceremonies that have taken place in the endowment house and concerning ecclesiastical divorces granted by the church, and John Henry Hamlin told of the plural marriage of his sister, Lillian Hamlin, to Apostle Bram Cannon.

New Greek Episcopate In America.

VIENNA, Dec. 13.—The pope at the request of the Hungarian United Greek Catholic bishops has approved a project for the establishment of an independent united Greek Catholic episcopate in America under which the Hungarian emigrants will be distributed in the dioceses of New York, Baltimore and Pittsburg. The Hungarian bishops are now engaged in negotiations with the congregation of the propaganda, whose approval is necessary.

Arrested For $6,943 Theft.

BOSTON, Dec. 13. — William J. Leonard, Charles Leonard and James Cahill, who were detained on suspicion of having been implicated in the theft of a case of jewelry belonging to a local company, have been formally arrested. Under the warrants the Leonards and Cahill are charged with the larceny of jewelry to the value of $6,943.

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER, AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

GOWNS OF THE SEASON.

By Lady Will Array Herself In Velvet and Fine Cloth.

A very stunning gown carried out in the fashionable novelty of the season—velvet in a lovely shade of cigar colored brown—has a deep flounced skirt, each flounce bordered with an application of brown cloth. The upper part of the skirt is composed of many fine plaits running horizontally, following the curve of the waist. The velvet bolero has an applique of cut out cloth, and a square collar of venetian point lace bordered with fur forms points on the arms. The sleeves are puffed at the elbow and are quite tight fitting above and below. A high orange cravat taffeta waist, with the same color repeated in the cravat, completes a delightful whole.

Perfectly stunning is a gray velveteen dress made with a three-quarter Louis XVI. coat. The wide revers of white cloth were trimmed with black and silver galloon, and buttons of old silver fastened the coat, which was lined with pale green brocade. A full frilled chemisette and jabot were worn with the costume. The skirt had several bias flounces edged with the black and silver trimming.

The visiting toilet illustrated is of plum panne cloth. The full skirt is laid in plaits around the waist and adorned at the bottom with a looped trimming composed of a wide and narrow black braid. The odd little basqued coat is shirred in a line from shoulder to waist and further beautified with revers of braid trimmed velvet and a waistcoat of white suede fastened with a double row of small gold buttons. The sleeves are shirred up the center and finished with turned back cuffs and puffings of lace, which also make the chemisette.

SLEEVES OF THE MOMENT.

They Are Eccentric In Makeup, but Withal Beautiful.

Sleeves from all ages have been called in to help out the general modern variety of arm adornment. All styles are acceptable this winter unless they puff and droop below the elbow.

A pretty sleeve has two puffs, the upper one fulled considerably at the armhole and the second puff finishing at the elbow in a three inch ruffle which hangs over a tight fitting cuff of tucked mull or embroidery.

Coat sleeves run the gamut from perfectly plain ones with just a little fullness at the shoulders to elaborate affairs trimmed in all sorts of novel ways.

On all the smart sleeves puffs and puffs with shirrings in between meet with general favor.

The rather unusual blouse illustrated has a very pretty sleeve formed of a deep puff to the elbow and finished with shirrings and a short ruffle. The high cuff is made of alternate rows of embroidered cloth and stitched bands. The blouse itself is of dark green fine broadcloth, and the pelerine effect on the front of the waist is stitched and edged with hand embroidery carried out in peacock colors. The turned over collar about the high neckband is of the same embroidery. The long tie fastened at the neck with enameled buttons is of peacock blue and green changeable silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

D'ri and I

By IRVING BACHELLER

Author of "Eben Holden," "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Lothrop Publishing Company.)

Drums were beating the call to arms somewhere. I struck the trail in a minute, and, leaning low in the saddle, went bounding over logs and rocks down a steep hillside as if the devil were after me. I looked back, and was nearly raked off by a bough. I could hear horses coming in the trail behind with quick and heavy jumps. But I was up to rough riding and had little fear they would get a sight of me. However, crossing a long stretch of burnt timber, they must have seen me. I heard a crack of pistols far behind; a whiz of bullets over my head. I shook out the reins and let the horse go, urging with cluck and spur, never slacking for rock or hill or swale. It was a wilder ride than any I have known since or shall again, I can promise you, for, God knows, I have been hurt too often. Fast riding over a new trail is leaping in the dark and worse than treason to one's self. Add to it a saddle wet with your own blood, then you have something to give you a turn of the stomach thinking of it.

When I was near tumbling with a kind of rib-ache and could hear no pursuer, I pulled up. There was silence about me, save the sound of a light breeze in the tree-tops. I rolled off my horse, and hooked my elbow in the reins, and lay on my belly, grunting with pain. I felt better, having got my breath, and a rod of beech to bite upon—a good thing if one has been badly stung and has a journey to make. In five minutes I was up and off at a slow jog, for I knew I was near safety.

I thought much of poor D'ri and how he might be faring. The last I had seen of him, he was making good use of pistol and legs, running from tree to tree. He was a dead shot, little given to wasting lead. The drums were what worried me, for they indicated a big camp, and unless he got to the stirrups in short order, he must have been taken by overwhelming odds. It was near sundown when I came to a brook and falls I could not remember passing. I looked about me. Somewhere I had gone off the old trail—everything was new to me. It widened, as I rode on, up a steep hill. Where the tree-tops opened, the hill was covered with mossy turf, and there were fragrant ferns on each side of me. The ground was clear of brush and dead timber. Suddenly I heard a voice singing—a sweet girl voice that thrilled me, I do not know why, save that I always longed for the touch of a woman if badly hurt. But then I have felt that way having the pain of neither lead nor steel. The voice rang in the silent woods, but I could see no one nor any sign of human habitation. Shortly I came out upon a smooth roadway carpeted with sawdust. It led through a grove, and following it, I came suddenly upon a big green mansion among the trees, with Doric pillars and a great portico where hammocks hung with soft cushions in them, and easy-chairs of old mahogany stood empty. I have said as little as possible of my aching wound: I have always thought it bad enough for one to suffer his own pain. But I must say I was never so tried to keep my head above me as when I came to that door. Two figures in white came out to meet me. At first I did not observe—I had enough to do keeping my eyes open—that they were the Miles. de Lambert.

"God save us!" I heard one of them say. "He is hurt; he is pale. See the blood running off his bootleg."

Then, as one took the bit, the other eased me down from my saddle, calling loudly for help. She took her handkerchief—that had a perfume I have not yet forgotten—as she supported me, and wiped the sweat and dust from my face. Then I saw they were the splendid young ladies I had seen at the count's table. The discovery put new life in me; it was like a dash of water in the face. I lifted my hat and bowed to them.

"Ladies, my thanks to you," I said in as good French as I knew. "I have been shot. May I ask you to send for a doctor?"

A butler ran down the steps; a gardener and a stable-boy hurried out of the grove.

"To the big room—the Louis-Quinze," said one of the girls, excitedly, as the men came to my help.

The fat butler went puffing upstairs, and they followed, on each side of me.

"Go for a doctor, quick," said one of them to the gardener, who was coming behind—a Frenchman who prayed to a saint as he saw my blood.

They led me across a great green rug in a large hall above-stairs to a chamber of which I saw little then save its size and the wealth of its appointments. The young ladies set me down, bidding one to take off my boots, and sending another for hot water. They asked me where I was hurt. Then they took off my blouse and waistcoat.

"Mon Dieu!" said one to the other. "What can we do? Shall we cut the shirt?"

"Certainly. Cut the shirt," said the other. "We must help him. We cannot let him die."

"God forbid!" was the answer. "See the blood. Poor fellow! It is terrible!"

They spoke very tenderly as they cut my shirt with scissors, and bared my back, and washed my wound with warm water. I never felt a touch so caressing as that of their light fingers, but, gods of war! it did hurt me. The bathing done, they bound me big with bandages and left the room until the butler had helped me into bed. They came soon with spirits and bathed my face and hands. One leaned over me, whispering, and asking what I would like to eat. Directly a team of horses came prancing to the door.

"The colonel!" one of them whispered, listening.

"The colonel, upon my soul!" said the other, that sprightly Louison, as she tiptoed to the window. They used to call her "Tiptoes" at the Hermitage.

The colonel! I remembered she was none other than the Baroness de Ferre; and thinking of her and the grateful feeling of the sheets of soft linen, I fell asleep.

CHAPTER VIII.

The doctor came that night, and took out of my back a piece of flattened lead. It had gone under the flesh, quite half round my body, next to the ribs, without doing worse than to rake the bone here and there and weaken me with a loss of blood. I woke awhile before he came. The baroness and the fat butler were sitting beside me. She was a big, stout woman of some 40 years, with dark hair and gray eyes, and teeth of remarkable symmetry. That evening, I remember, she was in full dress.

"My poor boy!" said she, in English and in a sympathetic tone, as she bent over me.

Indeed, my own mother could not have been kinder than that good woman. She was one that had a heart and hand for the sick-room. I told her how I had been hurt and of my ride. She heard me through with a glow in her eyes.

"What a story!" said she. "What a dare-devil! I do not see how it has been possible for you to live."

She spoke to me always in English of quaint wording and quainter accent. She seemed not to know that I could speak French.

An impressive French tutor—a fine old fellow, obsequious and bald-headed—sat by me all night to give me medicine. In the morning I felt as if I had a new heart in me, and was planning to mount my horse. I thought I ought to go about my business, but I fear I thought more of the young ladies and the possibility of my seeing them again. The baroness came in after I had a bite to eat. I told her I felt able to ride.

"You are not able, my child. You cannot ride the horse now," said she, feeling my brow; "maybe not for a ver' long time. I have a large house, plenty servant, plenty food. Parbleu! be content. We shall take good care of you. If there is one message to go to your chief, you know I shall send it."

I wrote a brief report of my adventure with the British, locating the scene as carefully as might be, and she sent it by mounted messenger to "the Burg."

"The young ladies they wish to see you," said the baroness. "They are kind-hearted; they would like to do what they can. But I tell them no; they will make you to be very tired."

"On the contrary, it will rest me. Let them come," I said.

"But I warn you," said she, lifting her finger as she left the room, "do not fall in love. They are full of mischief. They do not study. They do not care. You know they make much fun all day."

The young ladies came in presently. They wore gray gowns admirably fitted to their fine figures. They brought big bouquets and set them, with a handsome courtesy, on the table beside me. They took chairs and sat solemn-faced, without a word, as if it were a Quaker meeting they had come to. I never saw better models of sympathetic propriety. I was about to speak. One of them shook her head, a finger on her lips.

"Do not say one word," she said solemnly in English. "It will make you ver' sick."

It was the first effort of either of them to address me in English. As I soon knew, the warning had exhausted her vocabulary. The baroness went below in a moment. Then the one who had spoken came over and sat near me, smiling.

"She does not know you can speak French," said she, whispering and addressing me in her native tongue, as the other tiptoed to the door. "On your life, do not let her know. She will never permit us to see you. She will keep us under lock and key. She knows we cannot speak English, so she thinks we cannot talk with you. It is a great lark. Are you better?"

What was I to do under orders from such authority? As they bade me, I hope you will say, for that is what I did. I had no easy conscience about it, I must own. Day after day I took my part in the little comedy. They came in Quaker-faced if the baroness were at hand, never speaking, except to her, until she had gone. Then—well, such animation, such wit, such bright eyes, such brilliancy, I have never seen or heard.

My wound was healing. War and stern duty were as things of the far past. The grand passion had hold of me. I tried to fight it down, to shake it off, but somehow it had the claws of a tiger. There was an odd thing about it all: I could not for the life of me tell which of the two charming girls I loved the better. It may seem incredible; I could not understand it myself. They looked alike, and yet they were quite different. Louison was a year older and of stouter build. She had more animation also, and always a quicker and perhaps a brighter answer. The other had a face more serious, albeit no less beautiful, and a slower tongue. She had little to say, but her silence had much in it to admire, and, indeed, to remember. They appealed to different men in me with equal force, I did not then know why. A perplexing problem it was, and I had to think and suffer much before I saw the end of it, and really came to know what love is and what it is not.

Shortly I was near the end of this delightful season of illness. I had been out of bed a week. The baroness had read to me every day, and had been so kind that I felt a great shame for my part in our deception. Every afternoon she was off in a boat or in her caleche, and had promised to take me with her as soon as I was able to go.

"You know," said she, "I am going to make you stay her a full month. I have the consent of the general."

I had begun to move about a little and enjoy the splendor of that forest home. There were, indeed, many rare and priceless things in it that came out of her chateau in France. She had some curious old clocks, tokens of ancestral taste and friendship. There was one her grandfather had got from the land of Louis XIV.—le Grand Monarque, of whom my mother had begun to tell me as soon as I could hear with understanding. Another came from the bedchamber of Philip II. of Spain—a grand high clock that tolled the hours in that great hall beyond my door. A little thing, in a case of carved ivory, that ticked on a table near my bed, Moliere had given to one of her ancestors, and there were many others of equal interest.

Her walls were adorned with art treasures of the value of which I had little appreciation those days. But I remember there were canvasses of Correggio and Rembrandt and Sir Joshua Reynolds. She was, indeed, a woman of fine taste, who had brought her best to America; for no one had a doubt, in the time of which I am writing, that the settlement of the Compagnie de New York would grow into a great colony, with towns and cities and fine roadways, and the full complement of high living. She had built the Hermitage—that was the name of the mansion—fine and splendid as it was, for a mere temporary shelter pending the arrival of those better days.

STORM HOLDS CONNECTICUT.

Railway Trains and Trolley Cars Held Up All Over the State.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13.—Connecticut is in the grasp of a blizzard, transportation companies, both trolley and steam, being the principal sufferers in a snowstorm that covered the state for a depth of eight inches. Falling steadily from an early hour, the dry, light snow made fast, and as the day wore on the troubles of the steam and trolley roads increased. At a late hour last night the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad trains were anywhere from half an hour to an hour late on the main line, and in obscure points in the state some were held up for hours. Expresses from New York and Boston were held up by the storm at different points along the line, and not a train reached its destination on schedule time.

Reports from all over the state reveal a distressing condition as far as trolley service is concerned. The wind, which blew at an average rate of twenty-three miles an hour, caused huge drifts to be made in the outskirts of the cities, stalling hundreds of cars throughout the state.

The storm had its effect on the traffic of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which was at a standstill several times during the day and night. The large number of freight trains were unable to be kept on the move, and hundreds of cars were held up as the result, especially on the line between this city and New York.

BASKET BALL.

The Hope basket ball team will resume their playing Friday night, after a short rest by a game with the Sagamore team, of New Brunswick. The game will take place in the local Y. M. A. gymnasium.

Scull, the center of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team, played a good game last night in the contest between the local team and the Mt. Vernon aggregation. Smith, the crack forward, was as lively as ever, and put up his usual strong goal-shooting game.

Manager Collier, of the Plainfield High School basket ball team, has secured a favorable response to his proposed plan of taking a crowd of rooters to the basket ball game at Newark on Friday afternoon. It is expected that the afternoon session of the school will be allowed to the pupils who desire to accompany the team. A special trolley will be chartered, and about sixty members of the school will attend.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will be the scene of two lively games of basketball tomorrow afternoon. In both games, the leaders in the two leagues will contend, in the interscholastic league the match will be between the Plainfield High School and the Leal's School fives, and in the Juvenile League, Whittier and Plainfield High School Seconds will occupy the floor. These teams are the best in the two leagues, and the struggle between them will have much to do in determining the eventual winners.

HOCKEY.

The North Plainfield High School will not put a hockey team on the ice this winter. Westfield High School will be represented, and a series of games will undoubtedly be played between the two local schools and the Westfield aggregation. The formation of a hockey league is somewhat impracticable as there is so much uncertainty about the ice. The championship can be easily determined however from the results of the interscholastic games. As yet the Leal's School players have not been called out to practice, but they will take advantage of the first good opportunity.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers will roll the Roselle aggregation Wednesday evening in the Central Journel Bowling League.

The next local game in the Central Jersey Bowling League will take place tomorrow evening between the Park Club and the Roselle bowlers. On December 22 the Park Club will roll a match with the Cranford team at the home alleys.

BIG FLOATING FAIR.

WESTERN TOWN IS GOING AFTER THE ORIENTAL TRADE.

Seattle, Wash., Proposes to Show the Asiatics What We Have to Sell —"The Fair" to Sail Next Year.

Seattle, Wash.—This place comes to the front with a twentieth century development of the exposition idea that promises to have an important bearing on the oriental trade that everyone has heard so much about in the last few years. Instead of waiting for people to come to a fair the Seattle people, or, rather the Northwestern Commercial company of Seattle, proposes to send the fair to the people—exclusively to people who have money to buy goods. The exposition was to have been started out this month, installed on the steamship Victoria, but the Russo-Japanese war upset the scheme and the sailing date of the floating fair as been postponed to November 15, 1905.

The idea is to offer American commercial houses an opportunity to send representatives to establish permanent agencies and also to make immediate sales to the countries bordering on the Pacific ocean, which contain the larger portion of the world's population, and which are in direct water communication with the United States. The floating industrial exhibition will visit the cities of Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki (Port Arthur and Vladivostok if war conditions permit), Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Singapore, Colombo, Mauritius, Delagoa Bay (or Valparaiso and Callao, South America), Cape Town, Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney and Honolulu. The steamship will remain from two to ten days in each of the places named, according to their importance, thus giving ample opportunities to all interested to visit the exhibits. The American consul at all of the cities to be visited will be informed in advance of the exhibition and its purpose and announcements will be made in the public press of the names of the firms whose representatives are on board the vessel, their line of business, etc., and the consuls will be requested to see that importing and exporting merchants in the interior and adjacent cities will be fully advised of this exhibition.

STEAMSHIP "VICTORIA."
(It Will Carry Seattle's Floating Fair to Asiatic Ports.)

The itinerary of the vessel is arranged with a view of taking advantage of the time of year that is most seasonable, with reference to weather and climatic conditions, to afford, apart from the exhibition purpose of the tour, a health-invigorating cruise.

Exhibitors will be awarded 100 to 500 cubic feet of space and will be permitted to carry five tons of cargo if desired. The lower decks, where the exhibits are to be arranged, will be gorgeously decorated, brilliantly lighted and supplied with power. While in port the exhibition will be open from eight a. m. to eleven p. m. The crew will be at the disposal of the exhibitors in arranging and caring for the exhibits. All exhibits will be set up before leaving Seattle and will remain in place until the voyage is ended. Only the exhibitors and their exhibits will be carried. While there are accommodations for 216 first-class passengers the number will be limited to 100 actual exhibitors, but 25 of these may have the opportunity to take their wives.

ODD WOMAN'S CLUB.

DOMINATING SOCIAL FORCES WITHIN ARCTIC CIRCLES.

Has a Membership of Nearly One Hundred Women and Exerts an Influence for Great Good Throughout Alaska.

Nome, Alaska.—The farthest north woman's club in the world is the Kegoayah Kozga club of Alaska. It is unique in other ways besides being the only woman's club within the arctic circle. From a nucleus of two indomintable spirits, the Kegoayah Kozga has grown to a strength of nearly 100, and has now an influence for great good in the country of snow and ice. It was started for the purpose of promoting social life and greater intellectual development among the intrepid women from all parts of the states and foreign countries who bravely followed their husbands or fathers into the land of the midnight sun to share their trials and hardships in the search for wealth. Under the missionary spirit, however, it has grown into one of greater usefulness, a real benefit to the poor savages of the north.

Wives and daughters of judges, physicians, mining experts and gold kings are the members of this organization. Women, many of whom during their short sojourn in the north, have had innumerable novel and thrilling experiences, more in a few months than their sisters, living in luxury in the states, have in a lifetime.

The members of this club during the winter, which is the long season in Alaska, have their reindeer and dog teams, where their sisters of the warmer south have their carriages. Instead of whirling up to the door of their friend's palatian mansion with a Victoria on a bright, crisp winter's morn, the Aurora club members, on snow shoes, "mush" to the more humble habitation of a sister member.

The club was organized in 1901 under the leadership of Mrs. Josephine

MISS BARNARD.
She Was a Charter Member of the Furthest North Woman's Club.

Scroggs, a minister's wife; Miss S. R. Barnard, a government teacher, and Mary E. Hart, a traveler and explorer. Kegoayah Kozga, or Northern Lights, as it is translated from the Eskimo tongue, was chosen as an appropriate name because of the peculiar environments of the club. As a club home a small, unpretentious hall was hired at Nome, and the members made it cozy and attractive with rugs, hangings and curios. This was soon outgrown, and through a plan proposed by a wealthy mine owner's wife, funds were raised to build a permanent home. To-day the club is the chief social factor in the life of Alaska.

How Much One Should Eat.

One of the much discussed questions of the day on which there are almost as many opinions as individuals is the quantity of food one should eat. Doctors all agree that the majority of people eat too much. Babies from the day of their birth are forced to eat too much, and they grow up with this artificial appetite. The most reasonable estimate yet made is probably that which fixes one-twentieth of the average weight of the body as the average daily quantity required. If you weigh 140 pounds you should consume seven pounds of food. This includes drink as well as solid food. But it is ridiculous to set down a hard and fast rule. Such a quantity might kill some, and there is a case on record of a man wasting away on a diet of seven or eight pounds of food a day. He cut down his diet to three-quarters of a pound of liquid and the same of solid food and as a result he grew stout and lived to a ripe old age.

UNITED MISSIONARY WORK

Annual Union Praise Service at Crescent Avenue Church.

DR. MACKENZIE'S TALKS

Prominent Speaker Said Subject of Missions Should Not Be Divided.

That the subject of missions should not be divided, as widely as it commonly is, by the terms home and foreign, was the substance of Dr. Robert Mackenzie's talk at the annual Union Praise meeting of the missionary societies of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon. "Without foreign missions there could be no home missions," the speaker said, "and in actual work the two branches are closely allied and firmly united."

Yesterday's meeting is the only one in the year in which the two societies of the Crescent Avenue church unite in a Praise service, and it was largely attended by members of both the home and foreign departments as well as representatives from the First Presbyterian church. The meeting was opened with a short devotional service led by Mrs. Israel Pierson, the president of the Home Missionry Society. Following this service, Rev. Robert Mackenzie, D. D., of the Rutgers Presbyterian church, of New York, was introduced as the speaker of the afternoon. Dr. Mackenzie, aside from being a delightful talker and a user of picturesque terms, is well equipped to speak on "Missions."

Dr. Mackenzie has had a great deal of experience in both fields and missionary work, and has studied character and conditions in many countries, especially in the west. His narration of western experiences was decidedly interesting and instructive, and he delivered his address with beautiful ease, and charming manner of expression.

In beginning his remarks, Dr. Mackenzie said that it was not his purpose to give a detailed account of the work of home and foreign missions, as he thought such topics were already familiar to the societies, but his aim was merely to excite interest in the great subject, not as two distinct forces working for good, but as a united body fulfilling the commandment, "Go ye into all the world, and preach."

Much of Dr. Mackenzie's address was historical, though the greater part was descriptive. He spoke of the fact that, though commonly distinguished by the terms "home and foreign fields," there are certain points in this country that are harder to reach, and further away in period of time, than the heart of Africa. He also emphasized the fact that the tremendous immigration is an extensive opportunity for home missionary work, where the same nationalities are reached in this country in greater numbers than they are available in their own lands. The Greek bandits, Mr. Mackenzie said, are flocking to this country in greater forces than any other nationality, and many of them are the worst characters imaginable.

At the conclusion of Dr. Mackenzie's address a social hour was sent, and tea was served by Mrs. Jacob VanDeventer, Mrs. Frank Hyde and Mrs. Deuse VanFleet. A contralto solo by Miss Mary Hubbell was much enjoyed.

F. L. Montgomery Very Ill.

Francis L. Montgomery, of East Ninth street, worshipful master of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. An operation was performed and though he rallied, his condition has since become critical.

WILL BUILD FLATS.

J. Fred MacDonald to Improve His Property on East Front Street.

J. Fred MacDonald, owner of the business property adjoining his residence on East Front street, which was partially destroyed by fire recently, has the work of improvement well underway. He has adopted plans for the building of two seven-room flats over the store which is occupied by John Brokaw, as a dairy.

A portion of the store front will be used for an entrance to the flats above, while Mr. MacDonald also proposes to place a vestibuled entrance to the store. The flats, which have already been rented, will contain all the modern improvements and will be an addition to the property interests in that neighborhood. The store entrance will be left where it is, the stairway to the flats being placed on the south side of the building.

C. J. BAXTER TELLS OF THE SCHOOL LAW

STATE SUPERINTENDENT EXPLAINS DIFFICULTIES TO ASSOCIATION.

Charles J. Baxter, formely of this city, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, addressed the County Association of School Boards Monday at the Trenton court house. His subject was "Recent Decisions of the State Department of Public Instruction."

He stated that in the past the boards had had some difficulty in determining whether women had the right to petition a school board to hold a public meeting. Mr. Baxter said that in these instances the women had as much power as men.

He also referred to the misunderstanding existing among boards as to the duty of granting transfers to pupils who live in one district and want to go to a school in another. He said that when a pupil wanted to go to a school in district in which he did not live a transfer could not be granted. The non-resident pupil would have to pay tuition or the board would. The question of paying tuition is optional with the board.

Mr. Baxter said such a decision was made in order that all districts have good school facilities.

The speaker urged the boards to secure well qualified teachers, and after getting them to keep them. He advised them to pay better salaries in order to keep them. The meeting was not very well attended on account of the storm.

BATTLE FETE.

Wants Elizabeth to Have a Gala Celebration on June 8 Next.

General J. Madison Drake, commander of the Veteran Zouaves, of Elizabeth, has started a movement in that city in favor of a big celebration on June 8, which will be the 125th anniversary of the battle of Elizabethtown. On that day, the commissioners appointed by Governor Murphy, under an act appropriating $5,000 with which to mark certain historic places in New Jersey, will unveil a monument at Union Square, which is centrally located in Elizabeth.

This monument, which will probably be in the nature of a properly inscribed tablet, will mark the spot where, in the year 1780, a little band of Colonial troops resisted the advance of the British, under General Sterling, and caused the death of the latter. A tablet will also be unveiled on the spot where the new court house now stands, where there was once a building used for the confinement of prisoners during the Revolutionary War.

A petition will be circulated by General Drake and others interested in the proposed celebration, and the Mayor and the City Council will be asked to arrange for a parade and representation of the battle in the afternoon, with out-door speeches and fireworks in the evening.

Architect Not Engaged.

The Plainfield Trust Company has not yet engaged an architect to make plans for its handsome new building which is going to be erected at the corner of Park avenue and West Second street, neither has it decided on the style of structure to be erected. Nothing in the matter will probably be done until the first of the new year. Work on the building will not be started until spring.

F. J. Smith As Accompanist.

Frank J. Smith, of New York, for many years organist and director of music at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will be the accompanist at the Miller concert at the Casino tomorrow evening.

RICHARD HARDING KILLED

Former Plainfielder Met Accidental Death in Colorado.

DETAILS NOT GIVEN

Dead Man at One Time a Brakeman on the Jersey Central—Brothers Reside in This City.

In a telegraphic despatch from Chicago this morning, William and Edward Harding, of John street, received word of the accidental death of their brother, Richard Harding, a former well known Plainfielder, at Leadville, Col. The information came from another brother, John Harding, and gave no intimation of the cause. The chances are that he was killed in a wreck or by cars as he has been a conductor on a road running out of Denver.

Harding was the son of John Harding, formerly of South Second street, and was widely and popularly known throughout the city. During his early life he was a brakeman on one of the Jersey Central's local passenger trains running out of Dunellen and was about to be advanced to conductor when he decided to go West. His brother John had preceded him and was engaged in silver mining in Colorado and he joined him at a place near Pueblo. They continued together until a short time ago when John moved to Chicago and Richard went back to railroading.

The latter's last visit to Plainfield was made three years ago when he came on through the serious illness of Edward, his brother, remaining until he was fully restored to health. Richard was then a fine specimen of manhood and those who remembered him will feel the shock of his death more keenly. Beside the brothers mentioned, there is one sister surviving, Mrs. John Mitchell, who went from Plainfield to Denver a short time ago.

In his message to the brothers, John Harding announced that he would go to Leadville and have the body brought to this city for burial in the family plot.

FAIR AT HEAVENLY REST A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

WOMEN'S BAZAAR NETTED GOOD SUM FOR THE CHURCH BENEFIT.

Under the auspices of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, a fair which was in every way a success was held yesterday afternoon at the parish house. Though the attendance was not as large as it might have been, the financial success of the bazaar is assured by the way in which the attractive articles sold.

The room presented a picturesque appearance, with the tastefully arranged tables, decorated with cut flowers. The fancy work table was the chief attraction, many useful and ornamental articles being contributed. Most of these were disposed of. Presiding over this table were Mrs. J. A. Babcock, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt and Mrs. Sergueau. Mrs. Foster, and the Misses Foster had charge of the candy table, which was another feature of the fair.

The cake table was in charge of Mrs. H. Farleigh, Mrs. Albert Brooks and Mrs. Ludgate. This table together with the ice cream and chocolate tables attracted many of the visitors. The chocolate table was in charge of Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Hawthorn and Mrs. Sutton, while Mrs. B. K. Burr presided over the ice cream. The general committee in charge of the fair was Mrs. C. C. Graves and Mrs. E. E. Brown.

Sensible Winter Conveyance.

Dr. G. W. Endicott, of Park avenue, has a unique arrangement for his buggy which he uses to make calls. The entire front of the carriage is enclosed with glass, while the side curtains are so placed as to make the conveyance almost air-tight. The glass front permits the doctor to always have full view of the roadway, while he is shut off entirely from the wind.

Borough Taxes.

The citizens of the borough are awakening to the fact that there are only a few days remaining before the evening of the 20th when taxes become delinquent and the collector reports that receipts are increasing daily.—Adv.

CHARLES E. HEPBURN DIES IN THE WEST

FORMER PLAINFIELD DRUGGIST PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY AT TUCSON, ARIZ.

Word was received in Plainfield today of the sudden death at Tucson, Ariz., of Charles E. Hepburn, a former well known Plainfielder and original proprietor of the drug store at Park avenue and Second street, now conducted by Berthold J. Schreiner. He retired as usual last Tuesday night and in the morning his heavy breathing aroused Mrs. Hepburn. A physician was summoned and though everything was done for him, he passed away Wednesday night. The funeral and interment took place at Tucson.

Mr. Hepburn was a native of Canada but had lived in this city many years. Soon after establishing himself in the drug business locally his health failed him and he went west. He was located for a time in California and recently moved to Tucson. Surviving him are a widow and three children, William, Harold and Lucy Hepburn.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS MEET.

Quarterly Session at the First Baptist Church Last Night.

Reports from the various committees occupied most of the time at the quarterly meeting of the officers and teachers of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, held last night. These reports were encouraging and that of the treasurer showed a good balance on hand. The envelope system of giving was considered an excellent one, showing an increase in the contributions as well as attendance of the pupils.

The Christmas committee announced that it was decided to hold the annual entertainment on Thursday night, December 29. Thursday, July 20, was suggested for the annual excursion to Asbury Park and this date will probably be decided upon.

FOR INAUGURATION TRIPS

Union Republicans to Go to Trenton and to Washington.

CO. COMMITTEE MEETS

The Most Imposing Delegation That Ever Left Union Co. Will See Roosevelt Take the Oath.

In addition to the execution of regular post-election business, at the meeting of the Republican County Committee last evening, former Assemblymen Codding, Newcorn and Meeker were appointed as a committee to draw up resolutions on the death of Assemblyman-elect Embree.

With regard to the probability of a special election, it was announced that the question had been submitted to Attorney-General McCarter to decide whether the effect in the Legislature will warrant the expense of holding one.

A large delegation of Union County Republicans will go next month to Trenton to attend the inauguration of Edward C. Stokes as Governor. Had it not been for the extensive preparations being made by the Union County Republican leaders for attending the inauguration of President Roosevelt, there would be much greater interest displayed in the Stokes inauguration. It is probable that the delegation will be headed by a band of music, and that at least 100 stalwart Republicans will be in line.

The Roosevelt delegation will be the most imposing political turnout that ever left Union County to attend the inauguration of a President or a Governor.

SPINE NOT FRACTURED.

Steady Improvement Noted in Condition of Lineman John Dilts, of Flemington.

John Dilts, of Flemington, at one time employed as a lineman for the Public Service Corporation, and who sustained serious injuries to his back by a fall on East Front street last summer, is still at Muhlenberg Hospital under Dr. Endicott's care. There is slow but gradual improvement in his condition and his physician believes that he may be able to walk at some future time.

It was reported at the time of the accident that the man's spinal cord was fractured, but this does not now seem to be the case. The spinal cord was severely injured and for many weeks Dilts had no sense of feeling below his chest. He is now able to detect the slightest touch and this general sense of feeling is stronger each day.

NEW YEAR'S DAY AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A. GYM.

BOYS' AND MEN'S CLASSES WILL GIVE EXHIBITIONS OF THEIR WORK.

Plans are rapidly being put into effect for one of the most elaborate and interesting physical work [exhibitions which have ever been conducted under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. The affair will take place on New Year's day, and during both the morning and afternoon, the gymnasium will be opened for inspection, and an interesting programme will be arranged both for the boys' and for the men's classes.

On account of the fact that there will be a Star Course entertainment at the auditorium in the evening the men's class exhibition will be held in the afternoon, and will be one of the best which has been planned for many years. The object of the exhibitions will be to a great extent to show the nature of the daily work which is conducted at the gymnasium. There will be, however, special work and features appropriate to the occasion.

The boys' department exhibition in the morning, in addition to covering the regular class work, will be characterized by special apparatus exercises by the various class leaders, and a basketball game between two picked teams.

In the afternoon, the men's class will hold their regular drill and class work followed by a programme of special events, including mass running and several unique races. There will also be tumbling, and other individual exhibitions. It is expected that Walter MacNaughton, the champion high diver, will be present and will give an exhibition. A basketball game between two picked teams from the members of the men's class will conclude the programme.

Christmas Cantata at P. H. S.

The pupils of the Plainfield High School have started practicing on the Christmas cantata entitled "The First Christmas," which will form an important feature of the exercises on Dec. 23. The words of this cantata are by Goetze and the music by Barnaby. Charles E. Lewis, the musical director of the Plainfield public schools, is training the pupils in the singing of the selection.

Warning Against Snowballing.

Led on by the result of snowballing in former years, and by accidents which have already occurred this season, Principal I. W. Travel, of the Plainfield High school, made an appropriate address yesterday morning at the chapel assembly, warning the pupils against the danger of throwing snowballs, and cautioning them to refrain from the practice at all times.

STOKES' JOB FOR CODDING

Opinion That Westfielder May Have the Clerkship.

BRIGGS FAVORS HIM

Popular Union County Republican Leader is Non-Committal—Voorhis Doesn't Want the Place.

The main talk in the corridor at the State Capital yesterday was concerning the Clerk in Chancery to succeed Governor-elect Stokes, who will resign before the first of the year. Rumors were thick and interesting. Some of the gossip was that everything was at sea. Those who took this view said that Mr. Stokes had been unable to determine on the man. According to this story, the Governor-elect had offered the place to several men, all of whom had declined. One of the member from Morris said Daniel W. Voorhis, chairman of the Republican Morris County Committee, could be named, but he would not take it. There were those who said that the clerkship had been tendered to Vivian Lewis, of Passaic, and Clinton E. Brockenridge, of Bergen. This was denied. In fact, there was a great deal of this vague sort of gossip.

Those who were not doing much talking, but were evidently pretty well posted, said that Charles N. Codding, of Union, who is the assistant clerk of the Supreme Court, could have the place if he would accept. It was only a week ago that Codding's name was mentioned in one of the Trenton newspapers. It was at once taken up by other papers, and since then there has been a regular Codding boom. One thing is certain, and that is that State Treasurer Briggs, who was chairman of the State committee during the recent campaign, is out and out for Codding. He believes, as do all Codding's friends, that he is in every way competent, and that his long experience and knowledge of State affairs qualify him to take the highest position in Governor Stokes's Cabinet, as it is now called. Whether Codding really desires the place is hard to state, because he modestly declines to express an opinion. In the minds of the old political observers, Codding has the inside track.

Yet, with due regard to all the rumors and reports, it is nearer the truth to say that the newly elected Governor has not yet made up his mind whom he will appoint, as his successor. It may be Codding, it may be any one of half a dozen well known men, and it may be a man whose name has not been mentioned or thought of outside of Mr. Stokes himself.

SOMERVILLE BEGGING.

Its Public Library Directors Ask Carnegie to Help Pay Off Debt.

At its meeting yesterday the Board of Directors of the Somerville Puplic Library directed its president, John F. Reger, to write to Andrew Carnegie with a view of getting a gift from him so as to make the library free to all. At present the reading room is free, but those who take out books pay a yearly subscription. An appeal will also be made to citizens of the town to pay off the indebtedness on the library building erected some time since. This structure cost about $8,000 and there still is a mortgage of $1,200 on it. It is believed that with little effort on the part of the directors this can be wiped out.

The Somerville library contains about 6,000 volumes and new ones are constantly being added.

Dinner for Miss Hegeman.

Mrs. Edward H. Ladd, Jr., of Stelle avenue, gave a dinner at her home last evening for Miss Virginia Hegeman, who recently made her debut at the Park Club, and among the guests was Miss Edith Fisk, another recent debutante. The decorations were pink, pink roses and American beauty roses being chiefly used on the table. Besides Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ladd, the guests were Miss Virginia Hegeman, Miss Matie Wadsworth, Miss Edith Fisk, Miss Grace Kaufman, Miss Ursula Howland and J. Whitney Baker, Willard Wadsworth, Joseph Wadsworth, Dr. F. C. Ard, of this city, and Willis Wood, of New York.

No Report From P. S. C.

In speaking about the proposition to place an arc light at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue, Councilman Clarence L. Murphy stated yesterday that the Public Service Corporation has not yet given him the cost for such a light, although it was asked for some time ago. Mr. Murphy will probably present a full report on the matter at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council on Friday night, December 23.
